"The resurrection of Christ was not an extraordinary event, merely an extraordinary instance of an ordinary event. In some way Christ after His death was made optically manifest to his disciples, but I do not believe he was resurrected in the body. He was resurrected in the same way as your dead husband, brother or wife."—New York American.

Sizing up the Saloon.

It is quite evident that the saloon is a great menace to society and does not intend to be governed by State laws, city ordinances or police control. It boldly defies law and constitutional authority, and, regardless of God and man, leads on its procession of unfortunate victims to temporal and eternal destruction.—Bishop Garrigan.

Not an Amusement Bureau.

The church is not bound to provide amusements for her young people. The Bible sanctions no such theory. The apostles had no time for any such business. The church of Jesus Christ was organized for holy, spiritual and saving purposes. It is a school, not a playhouse. It is a workshop, not a pleasure resort, nor a sporting ground.

There is an urgent need in many quarters for a return to this scriptural conception. The young ought to be educated to the idea that the spiritual is of the first importance and all else must be subordinate to that end and aim.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Rob't. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 35 cents per copy.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

Poetry.

Morning.

When the light is slowly breaking, in the dark, and distant east,
The morn is surely dawning, of the day of endless peace;

Rise Christian soldier, gird your armor on,
Bid adieu to fear, and let your sleep begone,
Cast your bread upon the water, that it may return,
And fill up the bin, the cofer, and the urn.

Your Captain when he cometh, will conquer every foe,
That he is King of kings! with power, to all he'll show;
Then unfurl the royal banner, and shout the gospel call;
And proclaim the great salvation, that is free for all.

A Sequel of the Resurrection.

Who were they among all the followers of Jesus who wended their way without escort in the early atmosphere of the early moments of that historic morning, when the Savior of all men arose triumphant over death and his prison house the grave? None other than the two Mary's, coy and timid with that loving patient persistence peculiar to the gentler sex. Anxious withal to learn what was transpiring at and around the sacred tomb of the beloved Christ; the heavenly messenger still there, had seen and divined their plight and at once came to their aid and in gracious speech hastened to reassure them, "Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus, he is not here, for he is risen, even as he said." Matt xxviii 56. Then the angel kindly instructs them to "go quickly and tell his disciples he is not here, for he is risen." ver 7. What a tumult of mingled feelings they must have experienced when they left "the tomb with fear and great joy and ran to bring his disciples word." While the lady disciples were carrying out the angelic errand, "Some of the guard" who were told off to watch the tomb by Pilate at the earnest solicitation of the priests and elders and their friends, "Came into the city and told unto the chief priests all the things that were come to pass." verse 11. Thereupon the authorities as an unit believed with unquestioned consent what the soldiers told them. But the most amazing part in the conspiracy against Jesus and his followers in keeping with the testimony of the soldiers was, that the body was missing undoubtedly, and the sepulchre was empty save for the cerements laying around which had wrapped the dead; "The Sanhedrin were cognizant of the facts, which they had fully discussed in council assembled and thereafter formulated a program for future guidance, whereby with large money bribes and oily speech they persuaded the soldiers to advertise a thinly veiled double lie saying, verse 13, "Say ye, his disciples came by night and stole him away while we slept." "How are the mighty fallen." To what immoral depths have they sunk in their pitiable humiliation to screen themselves behind the falsity and weakness of a brazen twofold lie which can hardly be surpassed in desperation of unholy scheming; how could the military distinguish between objects or individuals while fast asleep. It was scarcely possible and highly improbable that the military company would all of them, fall asleep at one and the same moment of time, unless simultaneously overcome by a powerful anaesthetic. Nevertheless the disciples were wrongfully branded as ghouls on the slim evidence of sleeping men, which is no evidence at all. Again is there any dim likelihood that 50 or 100 men would own in a body that they had one and all sinned against the rigid Roman "Rules and Regulations of War," having slept at their post, all of them knowing full well the least dereliction in this respect was punishable with death?

Then as to the disciples they were entirely routed out, scattered like sheep without a shepherd, and discouraged almost beyond hope, with their organization sadly broken up. The lamination of their leader was as they had thought and acted a most fatal blow to their cherished expectations. The curtain of events had been rudely and swiftly dropped by the enemy death. In face of all these exciting circumstances, would the disciples even remotely attempt by force or strategy or both, to secure the body of Jesus while that formidable armed Company of Roman soldiers stood guard before the tomb wherein had lain the lifeless Christ; on the other hand had the stealing of the body been successfully carried out as previously hinted by the priestly Sept. nothing would have been accomplished. Hence it is cause for wonderment why the sacrilegious disciples were not arrested by the authorities and brought to trial as the authors of all this trouble. Had such a proposition been in the least feasible to further the interests of the Sanhedrin without publicly exposing themselves or involving the soldiers. Short and unscrupulous shift would have been meted out to the dejected and defenceless disciples. But the unexpected had happened just when the clan of priests with the elders and their friends had drawn the cloak of their perfidiousness more closely around them in evident satisfaction at having dissipated the cloud as they imagined hanging ominously over their reputation; two men appear on the public streets of Jerusalem and in the temple the most frequented spot in the city, preaching the identical good news of the kingdom which the martyred Jesus had done before them, and not only that, but boldly making known the resurrection of the Christ in no uncertain tone. Thus causing much gossip and wide eyed surprise at the boldness of those unlettered men, preaching, teaching and healing in the name of the despised Nazarene. The things above all others their opponents dreaded, who were ever ready with subterfuge to circumvent their previous promontory doubts last they be verified, "The last error will be worse than the first." Who were those two men causing all that stir? Peter and John. Come forth from soul-hiding? Is this the same Peter who lately denied his Lord and Master? Yes, determined to stand up stand up for Jesus to the bitter end. And John too, with his old time love re-invigorated will gladly die in the cause of his beloved Lord and Master. Read the fearless literary style in that superb sermon by Peter in the 2nd of Acts. It is no sermonette made up of ahems an' whispers, but the ring of the genuine metal on the anvil of truth. "Let all the house of Israel therefore know assuredly that God hath made him both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom ye crucified." Under this intuitive expository preaching by the disciples 3000 received the Word and were immersed into the all-saving name of Jesus, and it can be safely inferred none of that number were infants of tender years, because they could not receive the Word. Only the intelligent minded are enrolled for citizenship in the coming kingdom.

However, matters were rapidly reaching a crisis when Peter and John cured the lame man from his birth now 40 years of age, who had been accustomed to ask and receive alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple. The people gathered round wondering and astonished at the miracle. Peter took the liberty to address them and notably among other things he mentioned, occur, "Ye denied the Holy and Righteous One. * * And killed the Prince of life whom God raised from the dead whereof we are witnesses." But the tide of excitement was steadily rising and in consequence immunity from molestation was not to be expected for the apostles and others like minded. A hurry call had been sent in to the proper quarter bringing the agents of law and religion upon the scene. Acts iv 1-4, "And they spake unto the people, the priests and the captain of the temple and the Sadducees came upon them, being sore troubled because they taught the people and proclaimed in Jesus the resurrection from the dead." So they were marched off to prison in the gloaming of that day there to await the coming morrow when a hearing of their conduct was to be had before the authorities, and the narrative also tells "But many of them that heard the Word believed and the number of the men came to be about 5000," who proclaimed their allegiance to Jehovah and his Christ, under the magnetic preaching of Peter and John. As pre-arranged next day they were taken into court, in which were a goodly company of rulers, elders and scribes, "And Annas the high priest was there, and Caiaphas and John and Alexander." In fact quite a gathering of the "upper ten." And when all was ready court was opened and the apostles asked, "By what power or in what name have ye done this, then Peter filled with the Holy Spirit said unto them, Ye rulers of the people and elders, Be it known unto you all and to all the people of Israel, that in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth whom God raised from the dead, even in him doth this man stand here before you whole."

Here was boldness personified, fearlessly assailing in open court the main doctrine in the creed of the Sadducean mob—nonresurrection, and in the next breath accusing their judges to their face of being red-handed murderers. Was ever a more damaging charge preferred in court by prisoners against their judges? Now the priestly clan will arise in their wrathful might and demand their detractors before them be summarily tried, and arbitrarily punished forthwith. They did not do this, however, because they were afraid to run the gauntlet of public opinion in combatting the charges of the apostles. They also had seen the glaring blunders to which they had committed. The resultant fruit for counsel was after the manner of Gamaliel of old; hence the verdict, "Let us threaten them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus." "And being let go they came to their own company and reported all." Then the united company joined in that magnificent prayer, xxiv 30. No wonder the place was shaken, and they themselves were blessed and stimulated to further effort to speak the Word of God with boldness." "And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people." But jealousy, that unholy and unrighteous so fatal to results wherever it obtains a footing had seized the high priest and his company, generating their displeasure that they had the apostle company again promptly imprisoned. But the angel of the Lord miraculously set them at liberty, thereby causing consternation among the authorities, for when the council met and called for the prisoners they were nowhere to be found until some one came and said, "Behold the men whom ye put in the prison are in the temple standing and teaching the people." Then went the officers and brought them before the council when the high priest at once reminded them they had violated an order of court. "We strictly charged you not to teach in this name; and behold ye have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us." Peter in reply with condensed and pointed speech said, "The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom ye slew hanging him on a tree. Him did God exalt with his right hand to be a Prince and a Savior to give repentance to Israel and remission of sins and we are witnesses." This closed the trial. Then Dr. Gamaliel spoke briefly in behalf of the apostles counselling moderation, to which the court agreed; "And when they had called the apostles unto them, they charged them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go." But although keenly and abused the thought to them caused "rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer for the name," seizing every opportunity to teach and preach Jesus as the Christ.

Conference Report.

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Oregon and Washington, is now recorded history, and we believe will long be remembered. There were here and there on the cars one or more that were traveling to one central point, had left behind them their home cares, and were making one more effort to meet with those of like precious faith and the objective point was the Church of God, at Felida, Washington.

The brethren have a nice church at this place with good seating capacity, an organ, and a bell to announce service time.

At 8:30 P. M. Friday, June 24, the meeting was called to order by the President, Lewis Montgomery, in the chair. After his address to the brethren a song service was held, and then preaching by W. H. Wilson, of Austin Station, Chicago, Ill.

At 10:00 A. M. Saturday, met for business meeting. The Secretary being absent, E. W. Knapp, was appointed Secretary Pro Tem. The Secretary's report for 1900 read and approved, and adopted. In creating a Constitution and By-Laws in 1900 it was thought best to add the following clause, which was carried by motion:—"All acts or parts of acts of the 1900 Constitution that conflict with any previous Constitution are hereby repealed." Then followed the financial report of the different churches that had sent money to the treasurer:

Brother Frank Smalley, for Eden, Washington, $45 00.

Brother A. W. Darby, for Corvallis, Oregon, $95.00.

Brother Lewis Montgomery, Portland, Oregon, $110 00.

Brother E. W. Knapp, Scholls, Oregon, $35 00.

The treasurer's report was read and accepted. Received $800 00, and paid out the same for evangelist work.

The financial report of Brother W. H Wilson accepted and settled. Reported preaching 89 sermons in many places in Washington and Oregon.

Then followed the report of the churches:

Corvallis, eighteen members. Keep up Bible reading, had some preaching by W. H. Wilson.

Eden church keep up Sunday School, had some preaching by W. H. Wilson and A. W. Darby.

Felida keep up a Union Sunday School, good attendance and all seem to take an interest in it. Had a series of meetings by W. H. Wilson.

Scholls has lost so many by death and moving away, that there is just about enough to keep up the organization. They keep up Union Sunday School. Meet once a month for Social meeting, and partake of the Sacrament.

President Montgomery gave a talk advising all brethren and sisters who were so situated that they could have no Sunday School of our faith, to go into any Sunday School and try to get in as teachers and teach truth, the truth, Sister Goldie Darby offered a grand suggestion, that we use song books fitted to our faith, and suggested a book published at St. Paul, Nebraska, entitled "New Songs of the Kingdom." It is the only song book published by our faith.

As our money had all been used in the evangelist work, subscriptions were called for which resulted in raising $182 00. The president appointed a financial solicitor for each church to further raise funds.

The Business Meeting adjourned at 11:00 A. M. after which Brother Darby gave an excellent discourse on the "Signs of the Times, and the Soon Coming of Christ."

At another session of business the following officers were elected:

President, Brother Frank Smalley, of Eden, Washington.

Secretary, Brother E. W. Knapp, of Monkland, Oregon.

Treasurer, Sister Goldie Darby, of Corvallis, Oregon.

Upon motion it was ordered that the Conference give letters of commendation to the following:

W. L. Skeels, of Arizona.

A. W. Darby, of Corvallis, Oregon.

Wm. Prosser of Laurel R. D. 2, Oregon.

E. W. Knapp, of Monkland, Oregon.

Adjourned.

At 8:00 P. M. Preaching by W. H. Wilson on the "Evolution of the Spirit Life." A very grand and able discourse.

On Sunday morning most of the visiting brethren attended and took part in the Union Sunday School, at 10:00 A. M. After Sunday School a business meeting to raise money to pay indebtedness on church, $130 00 raised and a committee appointed to further raise funds.

At 12:00 M. A Solo by Sister Goldie Darby, then preaching by A. W. Darby, on the "Blessing of the Nations," a grand theme and ably handled.

After meeting adjourned to hall, to basket dinner, which was like a family reunion, then a grand visiting time until 3:00 P. M. A Social Meeting was led by Goldie Darby. After a special song by Sister Anna Hathaway, an essay by E. W. Knapp, another by the President, fifteen took part in the Social Meeting, and it was a veritable praise meeting; but it was cut short by lack of time. Brother Darby then took charge of the Sacrament and 44 partook.

At 8:00 P. M. Preaching by W. H. Wilson on the "Adoption." At the close of his sermon the new President, Brother Frank Smalley, gave the brethren some good words of advice. Then adjourned.

The sad good-byes were reserved until Monday morning, when the brethren took the trains for their several homes, feeling that we had a good harmonious meeting; but a tinge of sadness prevailed as we noticed the vacant places. For some cause none were present from Eugene, and old, Brother Smith was left very sick at Corvallis. And Brother Prosser, how we did miss him. His accustomed cheerful talk, and pleasant ways were sadly missed, and how our hearts did go out to him in his present affliction; for "Ma," as he always called his wife, had a stroke of paralysis and there was a call for the children to come home, and anxious aching hearts were watching, hoping, and still trusting in the One that said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

E. W. Knapp, Sec'y. N. W. Con.

Lay Aside Every Weight.

"Therefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." Heb xii 1 2.

As the blood in man is purified, and returned again to perform all its vitalizing functions in his system by the constant inhalation of air; so in order to a proper sustentation, and perfect development of his Christian character, he must constantly exercise an unwavering faith in Jesus, that all the moral impurities of his mind may be thrown off, or his "heart purified by faith." The apostle, after giving a catalogue of ancient worthies, who have "declared plainly" (by their works) that their faith was in God, says: "wherefore (for which cause, we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight," etc.

In briefly considering some of the truths taught in this passage, I propose to inquire:

I. What is the testimony of these worthies?

1 It is, that God in his immutable purpose had made promises to them of an inheritance in the future.

2 That a firm faith in these promises, and implicit obedience to his will, was required of them before they had a title to this inheritance, at the appointed time.

3 That in their estimation, the "recompense of reward"—to which they "had respect" would far outweigh all it was possible for them to suffer for its sake. Hence, they suffered all, even the loss of life, and counted all earthly aggrandizement as nothing, that they may reap the reward.

4 That God was graciously pleased to signify his approval of their unbounded confidence in him, by many mighty works, proving himself thereby worthy of all their trust, and giving them a pledge that he would ultimately perform all his Word.

II. We consider the advice here given. "Let us lay aside every weight" etc. Reference is obviously here made to the famed olympic games of Greece, where it was customary to load the racers with heavy weights, for hours previous to running, that they may feel the lighter, when with their long and cumbersome garments, they were thrown aside. How apt the figure here used. How easy for a humble soul to apply this advice to himself. He knows from sad experience that his progress has often been retarded by heavy weights. Again and again has he been brought almost to a stand still. But whence came these hindrances and of what material are they composed? Upon a strict examination we shall find that worldly pleasure, and love of gain, with their tribe of legitimate offspring, have mostly composed these heavy weights. How opportune is the advice of our beloved Bro. Paul, in this age, when the professed Christian, as well as the open worldling is striving at all hazards, to grasp the unrighteous mammon, "lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run the race that is set before us," and in 1 Cor ix 24 (still using the same figure) "so run that ye may obtain."

III. The object on which the eye of faith should ever be fixed. "looking unto Jesus."

As the eye of the racer was fixed on the judge in the game, and who should award the prize, so look to Jesus, the author and finisher of your faith. Are you tempted to give up the contest? apply to him, he has been tempted and tried in all points like as you are, yet without sin, therefore he is able to succor. Are you bowed down with poverty, or bodily sickness? Are you persecuted for righteousness sake by those from whom you have a right to expect better things? Look to Jesus, remember his sufferings for you, and remember too that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and that for their own profit, that they may be partakers of his own holiness." Let nothing so engross your mind that you lose sight of Jesus for he is the only channel, through which all lasting comfort and consolation can flow for your support, in this race for everlasting life. The final consummation of all your hopes is nigh at hand, press on "let no man take your crown" contemplate often the joy that is set before you, and then you will feel strength and encouragement to endure hardship as good soldiers until the strife with the world, the flesh and the devil be past. Be sure you look to Jesus.

But some have not begun to run this race. They have no hope for the future, they are receiving their good things now, and at the same time despising the Father of mercies, and rejecting the Son of his love, and doing despite to the spirit of grace. They consider him to be a trifler who says, "Vengeance is mine I will repay!—M. G.

Don't Worry—Work.

The above heading is a fitting motto for all our readers to tie to. Those who worry much have but little time for anything else. The time so spent is wasted, for along with worry goes a spirit of pessimism, discouragement, downheartedness, and usually a lack of ambition.

Where worry constantly enters into the routine of daily life, the slough of despondency broadens daily unless filled at once with sunshine before it grows broad and deep beyond all hope of filling.

Worry prevents effective work no matter what the occupation may be. If we are given to introspection and worry and allow this habit to grow, our days of usefulness will be shortened and we will prove of little aid to those about us.

In the first instance it is useless to worry, because we can correct the trouble in some way and then there will be nothing to worry about. Where we can help matters the thing to do is to get busy and remove the cause, as we are wasting valuable time in concerning ourselves about those matters over which we have no control.

If we cannot change conditions that cannot be helped, it is manifestly useless to worry about them. It, therefore, rests with ourselves to eliminate this kind of worry, for no amount of anxiety can alter the situation.

It is therefore only the first condition of things about which we need to concern ourselves. "Know thyself" is a pretty good axiom to cling to. Where people have the worry habit, the thing for them to do is to turn the search light direct on themselves and try and determine where the fault lies. It may not be possible to cure the worry habit in a day or even longer but worrying one's self into a frenzied condition of mind simply means unarming one's self to grapple with the perplexities of life.

The one who is worrying should find some deviation from his or her routine of daily duties and in some different work find relief. A hobby is a good thing to tie to, if it is the right kind of a hobby. Reading helpful literature is a good panacea. Attention to the family and to helping others, or the doing of something that will take the mind off the things that are perplexing, is the safe way out.

Strive to cultivate a cheerful disposition. Spend the spare time among people who are cheerful. We should keep out the rays of worry that creep into the wellsprings of the heart and let in the sunshine of optimism. If an opportunity passes, do not worry about it; look for another one.

Work kills worry. Just try it once and see if it doesn't. Life is short at the most; we should not shorten it by worry. We should aim to eliminate, as far as possible, those things that cause worry. We should arm ourselves by keeping in good physical condition to better meet the aggravations of life, ever remembering that there will come across our pathway of life things that are not to our liking. We should be philosophical. If we lose in one place grab hold somewhere else. Be an optimist, fill your soul with faith and hope, look at the bright side and shun the dark. "Don't worry—work."—Selected by Kathryn Townsend.

A self-conscious and egotistical young clergyman was supplying the pulpit of a country church.

After a service he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain-spoken man, what he thought of his morning effort.

"Waal," answered the old man, slowly, "I'll tell ye a kind of parable. I remember Tunk Weatherbee's fust deer hunt, when he was green. He followed the deer's tracks all right, but he follered 'em all day in the wrong direction."

"Ye serve the Lord Christ," Col. iii. 24. This saying ennobles the weary routine of earthly employments, and sheds a halo around the most humble occupation. The shop, the barn, the scullery and the smithy, become temples when men and women do all to the glory of God. Then "divine service" is not a thing of a few hours and a few places, but all life becomes "holiness unto the Lord," and every place and thing as consecrated as the tabernacle and its golden candlestick. —C. H. Spurgeon.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, post paid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read the little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

LET all make note of the change in Brother Huggins' address. It is now 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. As many will be sending for his book which is just now ready, it is important that you have the correct address.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 800 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 20, 1910. NUMBER 27.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations: the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Something Each Day.

Something each day—a smile,
It is not much to give,
And the little gifts to life
Make sweet the days we live.
The world has weary hearts
That we can bless and cheer,
And a smile for every day
Makes sunshine all the year.

Something each day—a word,
We cannot know its power,
It grows as continuous,
As grows the gentle flower.
What comfort it may bring,
Where all is dark and drear!
For a kind word every day
Makes pleasant all the year.

Something each day—a thought
Lofty, good and true,
That aids another's need,
While we our way pursue;
That seeks to lighten hearts,
That leads to pathways clear;
For a helpful thought each day
Makes happy all the year.

Something each day—a deed,
Of kindness and of good,
To link in closer bonds
All human brotherhood.
O, thus the heavenly will
We all may do while here;
For a good deed every day
Makes blessed all the year.

Selections.

A Calm Review of the Claims of Christian Science.

[Some years ago Edgar P. Hill was the Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Portland, Oregon, but is now engaged in his church work in Chicago, Illinois. While at Portland he preached a sermon on the above topic, and as this society is very energetic in pushing their claims, and many are being drawn to their ranks, we give this place trusting that some few may be warned, and thus led to fully investigate in a calm manner the claims made, and thus be able to decide what they ought to do. We deem it the best "Calm review of the claims of Christian Science" we have seen, and ask a careful reading for this sermon.—ED.]

During the past few years there has spread over the land a movement which now numbers its followers by the thousand. It is been ridiculed by those unable to appreciate the elements of its strength. It has been savagely attacked as if all who imbibed its teachings were conscious deceivers. Rarely has it received fair treatment; for no one is competent to pass judgment on such a movement who is unable to recognize the possible sincerity of those who may hold opinions different from his own.

There came to my desk during the past week a letter containing these words: "If the people calling themselves Christian Scientists go about doing good, teaching that the God within, if recognized, will heal all ills, living open, honorable lives, just alike to themselves and fellow beings, is it right that any other church should seek to tear down what they build up, provided it is founded on Christ-like principles? I have some neighbors who practice the principles of self-healing. Their lives are upright, none can question that. Will God smile upon me if I question their sincerity or even their methods, so long as they do not denounce him?"

The thought in the mind of my correspondent may come to many, on such an occasion as this. Therefore, at the outset, it may be well to give you

A BIT OF PERSONAL HISTORY.

A few years ago I discovered that one of my very warmest friends, one whose Christian character was to me an inspiration and joy, had become a Christian Scientist; had taken the course of lectures; was an eager student of Mrs. Eddy's book and was practicing the prescribed method of healing. If ever there had been in my mind a suspicion that all Christian Scientists were either insincere or stupid, it was removed then. I knew that my friend longed for a closer walk with God. I found that he had become filled with the hope that he had found something that would satisfy his heart's deepest desires. Going to this friend, I said: "If Christian Science is true, then I propose to get into it. If it is not true, you ought to get out of it." We decided that together would review the course of lectures which he had taken, study Mrs. Eddy's book, and step by step consider the claims of Christian Science. As a result of our study we soon found ourselves confronted with a statement which, after careful consideration, we agreed was a mere assumption which had no foundation in fact. "If this is not true," said my friend, "then the whole system is wrong." Now, no one will insist for a moment that by thus counseling with my friend and rendering him a service for which he has not ceased to give thanks to this day, I brought into question his sincerity or intelligence. His high moral sense and quick mind made me all the more confident that he would recognize the truth when it was made plain and would heartily appreciate the help of any one who could assist him to find it. In this spirit of helpfulness I desire this evening to review the claims of Christian Science.

First of all,

SOME GENEROUS ADMISSIONS

must be made. It is not to be denied that some of the best people to be found anywhere are disciples of this new faith. Their lives are pure. Their manners are gracious. Their zeal and earnestness are worthy of cordial commendation. Many of them lead us to live on the very highest plane of thought and action. They are most reverent in their attitude toward religious things. Then, too, these new teachers come with one of the most comforting and uplifting messages that it is possible to imagine. I have seen those into whose live some great affliction had come, after listening to the words of a Christian Scientist, brush away the tears and go back to their tasks with a new joy in their hearts. In addition to all this, I am prepared to say that Christian Science has been successful in healing disease. I have met many who have been helped by it and a number who have been cured. Unprejudiced investigators recognize the appearance of a new method for the curing of human ills. Have sufficient admissions been made? Is there any disciple of this new school who can ask for a heartier or more complete recognition than this?

WHAT IS CHRISTIAN SCIENCE?

Suppose, then, we ask just here the question: "What is Christian Science? What are its distinguishing characteristics?"

A few evenings ago a gentleman came to this city, advertised as an official lecturer, whose mission was to explain with authority the system of Christian Science, in order that there might be no misapprehension in regard to its teachings. I listened intently to the address from the opening sentence to the final word, and I am obliged to confess that if any one was able to learn from that address what Christian Science is he has a better brain than I have. With the exception of the time spent in dwelling on the diseases of humanity and the power of the mind over the body, which every one admits, the lecturer devoted himself to the task of explaining wherein Christian Science is identical with the accepted teachings of Christendom. A more complete fooling of an expectant audience could scarcely be imagined. Suppose a man heralded as an apostle of Mormonism should come to this city for the announced purpose of explaining his faith. How much would his audience know of Mormonism when he got through, do you suppose, if he spent his whole time in explaining the points of coincidence with Christianity, making not the slightest reference to that which distinguishes Mormonism from every other faith? A Buddhist could find some points of agreement with the Christian, and so could the Mohammedan, but when we seek to understand the faith of either, we ask for the points of indifference, not of similarity.

If you were to talk with a Christian Scientist you would soon find him using strange expressions and looking at things from a peculiar point of view. You would find him referring to the Bible, but giving familiar passages a construction which you never heard before. He would speak of God and Christ and the Holy Spirit with every evidence of reverence and sincerity, but you would feel that he was attaching a new sense to them quite different from that with which you are familiar; unlike that which the ordinary mind would gain from reading the Scriptures. Strangest of all, you would hear him declaring with great confidence that there is no such thing as sin, no such thing as death. All these are simply beliefs. A Christian Scientist's body becomes racked with pain until the lines in the face announce the terrible suffering, but he calmly declares that nothing is the matter with him. He falls and bruises his head, but to your surprise he insists that the swollen spot is only a belief, and the very ground upon which he fell, in fact, the body which fell against the ground, have no real existence except in the mind. He stands by the fresh-made grave of his beloved and appalls you by declaring that death is only a delusion.

A FEW QUOTATIONS.

Now since the lecturer the other evening insisted so strongly that no one knows of what he ever heard was intelligent in criticising the subject, let me quote from Mrs. Eddy's book, which, as you know, is authority for all Christian Scientists. On page 341 I read, "Man is never sick," while in the same paragraph occur the words: "It is well to be cheerful in sickness, to be hopeful is still better; but to understand that sickness is a delusion is best of all." What reason there is for advising one to be cheerful in sickness, when it is insisted that man is never sick, it is difficult to say. Again and again Mrs. Eddy says that there is no such thing as matter; that it is a delusion, a mere belief. But on page 33 she says: "Men say the body is dead, but this death was the departure of a mortal delusion; not of matter. The matter is still there." Now, how, we ask, can matter still be there when, according to the fundamental teaching of Christian Science, there is no such thing as matter? On one page she says that there is no such thing as matter, and on the next she asks: "Can matter recognize mind?" Her argument, thrown into a syllogism, would read like this: Major premise, "Matter has no existence"; minor premise, "Our bodies are composed of matter"; conclusion, "therefore our bodies have no existence." As a distinguished Scientist has said: "It is not known whether the worthy lady founder of the school ever stopped to reduce her foundation principles to the form of a syllogism. It is presumed not, for otherwise their intense monumental and aggressive absurdity would have become as apparent to her as it is to others."

Scattered through Mrs. Eddy's book we come upon such sentences as these on every page: "I learned that sickness is an illusion." "There is no finite soul or spirit." By the way, my friend, you are brushed out of existence with one sweep of the pen. "Sin, sickness and death belong to the nothingness of error." Then curing the sick is nothing more than removing an illusion from a something which is in reality nothing. "Food neither strengthens nor weakens the body." "Heat and cold are the products of mind." Do Christian Scientists then repudiate food? Do they sometimes build furnace fires during the hot days of August and sit on the front steps when the cold blasts of winter whistle about their ears?

I do not dwell upon these absurd statements for the purpose of making sport; but that you may have the subject fairly before you. You will see I am sure that this system (if we may call it such) appears to be confusing, inconsistent and utterly absurd. I venture to say that almost all Christian Scientists are willing to admit that the statements which they make must sound to one who hears them for the first time like the gibberings of a crazy person. They will also acknowledge that when they pass through a Whitechapel district or the wards of a hospital or run against a door, they would find it impossible to believe that there is no reality in evil and sin and matter were it not for some teaching of Christian Science which demands that these things be regarded as illusions. Their own judgment if let to itself would decide overwhelmingly the other way.

THE BASIS OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

This leads us to inquire as to what teaching of Christian Science it is which demands so complete a surrender of one's judgment and requires one to subscribe to statements against which all his experience, and all his reasoning powers rise in earnest protest.

Surely, there must be a basis for all this curious structure, enduring as God's Word, upon which it professes to build, and as immovable as God himself. Now the entire structure of Christian Science is built upon one statement. If that statement is true, then Christian Science may be true. If that statement is false, then the whole structure vanishes like a cloud city of the air. Christian Science says: "All is mind." It makes that the point upon which it builds its inverted pyramid. On page 424 of the Christian Science textbook we read: "Everything is mind; on this statement I stand." It is the only sentence italicised in the whole book, so far as I remember, as if the author realized that upon that statement the whole system rests.

Suppose then we go out on a tour of investigation that we may find authority for a statement that plays such fanciful tricks with our convictions and, like a magician's wand, suddenly dissolves this solid earth into an airy nothing and a dream. Who says that "All is mind?" Do the great scientists of the day say so? They are more inclined to say that "All is matter," so impressed are they with the reality of things seen. Did Sir William Hamilton, the greatest metaphysician of his day, teach any such thing? He declared that there was a wide gulf between mental and material phenomena. You can take no apple in your hand, but whoever heard of a man taking a piece of love or of patriotism in his hand? Did Dugald Stewart and Thomas Reid, the distinguished Scotch thinkers, believe such a thing? They taught the very opposite. Suppose you were to ask 100 unprejudiced men on the street, "Do you think that 'All is mind?'" How many would answer in the affirmative? Not one. Is such a statement, or anything like such a statement, to be found within the lids of the Bible? The Bible says, "The worlds were framed by the Word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." Did Jesus teach such a thing? He made no such statement, but assumed the very opposite. Did Paul say so? He said to the Thessalonians, "I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless." Who, then, is it that makes this astounding statement? What authority have we for saying that "all is mind?" Why, Mrs. Eddy, of Boston, says so. That is the only reason.

MRS. EDDY'S UNFITNESS AS A TEACHER.

Well, is Mrs. Eddy, of Boston, peculiarly fitted by reason of profound learning to place herself against such an array of witnesses to the contrary? Let us see. In the edition of 1885 of "Science and Health," Mrs. Eddy endeavored to explain the origin of the word Adam. She stated there that "Adam is from the Latin demens." Now, as every college boy knows, the Hebrew had become a dead language before the Latin was born. In the edition of 1886, the author determined to make another attempt to show where Adam got his name. There you will find that "Adam is identical with the Latin daemon." But any classical student knows well enough that "daemon" is not a Latin word at all. It is a Greek word. And now you will find, on page 381, that "Adam should be thought of as 'a dam' an obstruction to truth." So, if any one in the face of the testimony of the greatest scientists, the most learned scholars, the universal conviction of humanity, the teaching of the Bible, Christ, Paul and all the rest, is determined to make his judgment kneel before the mere assertion of such a teacher, there is no law with which I am familiar that will prevent.

Now, you will see easily how the thing works. I assert that "All is black," and succeed in inducing you to assume that statement. With this thought in mind you go forth to view God's splendid creation. Immediately you become bewildered. "Surely this rose is red," you say. "It appears so, but 'All is black.' Therefore the rose is black." You look at a tree and say: "But is not this tree green?" I rebuke you for your forgetfulness. "To mortal sense it appears to be green, but 'All is black.' Therefore the tree must be black." You look up into the glorious blue of the sky and cry pathetically, as the world seems slipping from you, "Is not yonder sky blue?" Almost with indignation I upbraid so stubborn a disciple. "Have I not told you that 'All is black?' Then, of course, whatever the appearance may be, the sky must be black." Yes, it is all so plain, so logical, so inevitable. Suddenly you turn to me and say: "But, my friend, what reason have I for believing that 'All is black' when my own conviction and the testimony of humanity unite in declaring that it is not so?" Then, in supreme self-confidence and egotism, I draw myself up to my full height and say: "You must believe that 'All is black,' BECAUSE I SAY SO."

The reasoning of the Christian Scientist is exactly along this line. The new disciple is told to assume, as the fundamental principle of the new faith, that "All is mind." This is to be the first thought in the morning and the last when the head touches the pillow. Over and over again must this magic formula be whispered, "All is mind. All is mind. All is mind." The new student goes forth to the day's task. At once he becomes bewildered. He visits a prison where wicked men rejoice in their evil deeds. He sees pure maidens betrayed by heartless deceivers, and innocent lives dragged behind the chariot wheels of lust and avarice. "Sin seems to be a very real and awful thing," says the new disciple. "But 'All is mind,' you must remember," says the teacher. "Therefore, there can be no such thing as sin." The student rejoices in the hope that it may be so, and is silent. He looks upon a battlefield, where the wounded and dying are groaning in agony. The terrible gashes made by the bayonet thrust and bursting shell make the heart sick. "Surely, pain and suffering are very real." "But 'All is mind.' Therefore, pain and suffering are only beliefs," Then the disciple stands looking upon the limitless expanse of the sea, or up into the starry depths of heaven's vault, or in reverence pauses before some wonder of leaf or rock or eagle's wing. Everything seems so beautiful, so real, so vocal with praise to God. "Surely all this is no illusion," he cries. "How quickly you have forgotten your lesson," says the teacher, reprovingly. "'All is mind.' Therefore, of course, there can be no reality in these visible forms." And then the disciple, as a returning wave of independence and intelligence sweeps through his mind, asks: "Why should I, contrary to all of my own convictions and the united testimony of the whole race, believe that 'All is mind.' What authority have I for any such statement?" "Why, my dear friend, you must believe that 'All is mind' because Mrs. Eddy says so."

You are now able to see how it is that Christian Science is able to offer to the world the most comforting and inspiring message of which it is possible to conceive. It tells the sick and sorrowing that there is no sickness, no sorrow. It is as if some one were to announce to a man almost distracted by reason of his debts, that there is no such thing as a debt; that he does not owe one cent. Of course, the man would rejoice with joy unspeakable—provided he was so foolish as to believe the statement, not even pausing to ask, "But is this true?"

THE CURES OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Let us now consider for a moment Christian Science as a curative agent. I have said that it has worked agreat many cures. Of this there can be no reasonable doubt. To the mind of the Christian Scientist and of those who think vaguely, this seems to be absolute proof of the whole system. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Let us see. Your child is told that if he will write a letter to Santa Claus and allow it to float up the chimney, he will get some Christmas presents. The child tries it. Christmas morning he finds the very toys for which he wrote. During the day a playmate insists that there is no such person as Santa Claus. Indignantly, and with true Christian Science assurance, the child holds up his toys, saying: "By their fruits ye shall know them." How could there be more satisfactory proof? But while you do not deny that the child received the presents for which he wrote, you know that his explanation is not correct. In other words, a fact may be undeniable while the explanation of the fact is altogether wrong. Christian Science does work cures, but the correct explanation is one with which every scientific investigator is entirely familiar. The mind has a powerful influence over the body. The lecturer of the other evening was quite right in stating that a large number of diseases can be traced to the mind. His story of the man who thought that he had swallowed his false teeth was to the point. I could tell of more striking cases than that, of a blister being produced on a patient's back by applying a postage stamp and insisting it was a fly plaster; of a man dying who imagined that a vein had been opened when nothing but warm water was dropping on him. Every mind-healer and hypnotist and all physicians understand how much the mind has to do in causing disease and curing it. Thousands of people are cured merely by becoming convinced that something has been done to them that will make them well.

Christian Science has just as many cures, and just as many failures as these other systems. We hear of the cures as we do of the successful gold hunters; of the failures we hear but little. In the city in which I lived in Illinois, there was a very attractive young woman, who became deeply interested in Christian Science and followed its teachings faithfully for several years. At last disease laid hold upon her. She suffered frightfully; groans would involuntarily burst from her lips. But when friends called to ask how she was, she always replied that nothing was the matter with her; that she was perfectly well. She refused all medical attention and in a few weeks died. In this city a member of this church was taken sick with a cancer in her throat. She consulted a Christian Scientist, who told her that nothing was the matter with her. The patient gave herself completely into the keeping of the healer. She stoutly maintained that she was getting well; in fact, that nothing was the matter with her. But she got worse and worse until she could not swallow a drop of water. And yet, on a day when she choked until her face was as black as a kettle, the healer calmly informed her that nothing was the matter with her. In a week she was dead. In this city a young man who was an epileptic was induced to try Christian Science. He was told that his epilepsy was only a delusion which he was to dismiss at once. A more obedient, trustful patient could not be found. A few weeks thereafter he was dead. I could give you a score of cases similar to these, which have come under my own observation.

Now, my friends, in all these cases something was the matter, or else

Editorial Committee:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, July 20, 1910.

We have no further word from Brother John L. Wince. It is not likely that he will gain his strength fast enough to be able to preach again soon.

Brother Joseph Williams was to have visited the Plymouth church on July 31, it being a fifth Sunday, but has decided that he must have a rest, and will not come as he hoped to do. We hope he will be able soon to come to us.

A letter from Sister M. A. Woodward of Dutton Michigan, tells of an accident the 4th of July that severely burned her grandson. The boy is getting better, but the doctor has had to dress the wound each day since, and it will be some weeks before he is well. Another argument for a "same fourth."

In this issue of our paper we give our readers a sermon by Edgar P. Hill, at the time a Presbyterian minister at Portland, Oregon. We note the advances made by this comparatively new system of so-called religion among a class of people who ordinarily are supposed to possess good reasoning powers. Many of the followers of this cult are of the usually intelligent sort, such as claim to be wanting to advance in learning—claim to be students, etc. This author takes the subject up kindly and calmly, and is at first willing to say that if it is truth he wants it himself—if it not is truth, it is the opposite, and none should want it. He finds on investigation that the whole system is based on one statement, and that it must stand or fall on that. "All is mind," is the basic principle One must rid themselves of the idea that there is any such thing as "matter"—such does not really exist if "all is mind"—it cannot. Then after every sense that mortal man has is outraged and stupified by this declaration, the question comes, Who said so? Who says "All is mind?" Mrs. Eddy, of Boston, says so. The author shows that Mrs. Eddy is not a fit teacher. That she has made contradictory statements. That she is not a woman of deep learning in any high branch of thought. That she is not possessed of even the ordinary education of any of our colleges. That she is contrary to the Bible, to Jesus Christ, to Paul and other inspired writers, so cannot be divine. Thus she is totally unfitted to lead aright. With such a foundation to rest on, and such a person as its founder, all that can be said of "Christian Science" is that it is a hobby, a freak, a whim—and this is the definition of a "fad." We are living in an age when if one person gets a notion in his head, no matter what sort of a whim, and rides his hobby, he will get followers. To show how this works we note that two European queens have said that women should not wear corsets, and we may expect a decline in this business. Further, up in the Canadian northwest territory is a sort of religious society whose numbers have the "back to Adam" whim, and often leave their homes, men, women and children starting off on a pilgrimage with not a stitch of clothing on their bodies. The mounted police are notified and start after them with blankets, and round them up like cattle and get them back home the best they can. Christian Scientists may object to being classed with these so-called fanatics, but if we view it calmly as Mr. Hill does, are not these followers of Mrs. Eddy just as foolish? These poor people would go about without proper clothing for the body. Is a Christian Scientist "clothed in his right mind" when he says "Matter does not exist—all is mind?" The choice of "fads" is before you—which will you take?

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Sunday School Lesson.

July 31, 1910.

A Lesson on Forgiveness. Matthew xviii 21 35.

Golden Text —"If you forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you." Matthew vi. 14.

This is not long after our last lesson, after Jesus and the disciples had returned to Capernaum. Jesus had been giving them some lessons regarding humbleness, and the manner of treating one another. When the question was asked as to who should be greatest in the kingdom of God, a little child was brought forward, and they were told unless they all became as humble and teachable and innocent as the child they could not hope to even enter the kingdom. The one best fitted by child-likeness would be made greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

Warning had been given about offending one of Christ's little ones, and the punishment in store for such. They were warned not to be the offender, and to cast off every thing that would in the least cause offense. The story of the lost sheep had been told, and how there was more rejoicing when it was found, than over the ninety and nine that were not astray. Then there had been the lesson of the brother who trespasses against his brother, and how he should be told privately of the fault, then if he refused to acknowledge his error, he was to be taken before one or two others, and then before the body, and if still unrepentant, was to be as an heathen man, etc.

These things led up to the question Peter asks regarding forgiveness. The disciples needed these lessons, for a time of trouble was coming. Opposition was growing, and Jesus was to be taken from them. They must know how to treat the world, and their duty to each other. Ambition to be first must be put down; strife was to be avoided, as it only weakened the front they must put up against their enemies. Self-seeking was not in accord with the kingdom of heaven, and if they hoped to attain that, this feeling must be put out of their lives. They must be willing to acknowledge when they did wrong, and now comes the other side. How often should they be willing to forgive? Peter we know was of an impetuous nature, and it is likely was often found fault with, as such men usually are. hence it is likely the instruction of Jesus had been tried and this question of how to forgive came up. The Rabbis contended that from Amos ii. 4-5, the Lord taught that three or four times was all that should be allowed, and others claimed that as seven was called perfection, a completeness, that seven times was necessary. Hence Peter's question.

Peter's intention was no doubt all right. He wanted to do what was proper, and would go the largest limit given. He would be over-generous, but it is evident he had failed to grasp the true principle of forgiveness.

What was Jesus' answer?

There need be no contention as to whether this means 490 times (70 times 7) or if only 70 and 7 times is the true rendering. The point to get in mind is that the spirit of forgiveness does not end. You cannot measure the principle of love by the multiplication table. So when Peter asks how many times to forgive a repentant brother, and would limit leniency, Jesus makes reply, no limit—times without number.

Jesus then gives a parable, to illustrate the idea. Man is sinful and owes a debt to God of such magnitude that he cannot hope to pay it. Acknowledgement of his sin, and inability to atone, God forgives. This principle must be wrought out in our relation to our fellows. As we would want God to deal with us, so must we be willing to deal with each other. Our Lord's prayer, given as a sample for us, would have us forgive as we hope to be forgiven.

The true spirit of forgiveness will prompt us to do all the good we possibly can to one who has wronged us. This principle is taught in Proverbs xxv. 21, 22, where we are told to give bread to our enemy if he be hungry, and if he be thirsty, give him drink, thus heaping coals of fire on his head. Let the heart be full of the desire to aid, full of kindness, of forgiveness, of love, and it does not matter how often. Any action by another can only call forth such feelings from us. On the other hand, if our heart be full of hate and revenge, then an act can only call forth this feeling.

There can be no such thing as an unforgiving Christian. Man's greatest need is forgiveness, and it is his highest attainment.

The greatest fault a man can have is to be conscious only of the faults of others.

The Land of the Dead.

"And they shall come again from the land of the enemy." Jer. xxxi 16.

Where is the land of the dead? Where are our departed friends? This is a question that every living person is or ought to be interested in, for all must go to that land. What shall we accept as our authority for this information? The only authority we have is the Bible. Nearly all Christian people accept the Bible as authority, yet many do not believe its plain teaching because it is not popular with the world.

It is a general belief that all children who die before the years of accountability will be saved—and we believe that they are taken directly to heaven as soon as the body dies. The prophet Jeremiah foretold, nearly 700 years before it occurred, the destruction of many children under two years old in and near Bethlehem by king Herod to try to secure the death of the child Jesus, and he said, "Thus saith the Lord: 'A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation, and bitter weeping; Rachel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not.' Thus saith the Lord: 'Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work shall be rewarded,' saith the Lord; 'and they shall come again from the land of the enemy. And there is hope in thine end,' saith the Lord: 'that thy children shall come again to their own border.'"

The enemy of all the living, and the last one to be destroyed, is death. 1 Cor xv 26 The Lord said these children would come again from the land of the enemy, therefore they were in that land. Does any one think that heaven was called the land of the enemy? What does Job say about this land of the dead?

He says, "So man lieth down and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep. O that thou wouldest hide me in the grave, that thou wouldst keep me in secret, until thy wrath be past; that thou wouldest appoint me a set time, and remember me! If a man die, shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come." Job xiv 12-14. He says, "If I wait, the grave is mine house. I have made my bed in the darkness." xvii 13. "A land of darkness, as darkness itself; and of the shadow of death, without any order, and where the light is as darkness." x 22. "There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest. There the prisoners rest together; they hear not the voice of the oppressor. The small and great are there; and the servant is free from his master." Job iii 17-19.

In harmony with this, the prophet Ezekiel says of the Elamites, "There is Elam and all her multitude round her grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, which are gone down uncircumcised into the nether parts of the earth." Ezek xxxii 24. The old, the young, the great, the small, the wicked, and the righteous, "all go into one place; all are of the dust, all turn to dust again." Eccl iii 20. But there will be a time of awakening from this sleep in the dust. The prophet Isaiah says, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs; and the earth shall cast out the dead." Isa xxvi 19.

Daniel says, "Many that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake." Dan xii 2. Job says, "After I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet out of my flesh shall I see God." Job xix 26 (margin). The Psalmist David said, "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness." Psa xvii 15.

Isaiah said that God's people should live again, showing that they must die and dwell in the dust until the time when the earth should cast them out. This included Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, who had been gathered to their people (Gen xlix 29) in the one great tomb of the earth (Job xxi 32,) the land of the dead. Did not Jesus say that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were living? No, he did not. He called them "the living," because they were counted worthy of future life, and their names were written in the "book of the living." Ex xxxii 32; Mal iii 16.

Jesus said this to show that there will be a resurrection of God's people from the dead, and that to Him, who regards the future resurrection of his people as though it was present,—"God who makes alive the dead, and calls things that be not as though they were," Rom iv. 17, they are alive. These people are alive in God's memory only, and he says, "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels." Mal iii 17. That day is the resurrection day, the Judgment day, the Millennium. If the dead are in the earth in a state of unconsciousness, what did David mean when he said, "The child cannot return to me, but I can go to it?"

He meant that either it could not return to him in this world to come, which is true, or he meant that it could not return to him in this life, but he could go down into the grave to it. Jacob used a similar expression when he thought that Joseph was dead, and said, "For I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning." Gen xxxvii 35.

If the soul is not the conscious person and continues to live after the body dies, why does the Bible say that the soul of the widow's son came into him again, and he revived? 1 Kings xvii 22.

It is evident that whatever it was that came into the boy, it was not the person himself, but something that quickened the boy, and caused him to revive and live. The word "soul" as used here is translated from the Hebrew word nephesh, which is rendered life, mind, etc.

The spirit of the boy, that life-giving element, had returned to God who gave it, but when Elijah prayed for the boy's soul to return into him, God sent forth his spirit again and quickened the boy's body, and it again became a living soul, the life or soul returning. Not that the spirit or soul is either an entity, but that the spirit is the power of God that quickens or animates the body, and as a result of that quickening, the body becomes a living conscious being.

But is not the mind immortal, and continues to be active after the body dies? Is not this theory being taught at funerals? Yes, this is being preached but it is contradictory to the Word of God. Shall we believe God, or man? These ministers are honest in their convictions, but their mistaken idea is due to their misconception of the nature and personality of the spirit of man, and their confused idea of the antecedent of the personal pronoun in the first and second person.

Is it possible for the body to be the person in some expressions, and the spirit to be the person in others? Can you conceive of such a dual being, a part of the time your body being you, and at other times or in different expressions your spirit being you? Can you believe that your spirit is an ego, a conscious individual, you yourself, living within your fleshly body which is also a conscious being, you yourself, and both separate and distinct individuals, and yet both the same?

This is what is theoretically taught by immortal soulists. In the sentence "Thou shalt surely die," they say the antecedent of thou is the body, that the body only is what God said should die. They teach that God meant the body only, when he said, "Of dust thou art, and to dust shalt thou return," which appears reasonable. When Jesus said, "I am he that liveth, and was dead," according to their theory, he meant "I (the spirit) am he that liveth, and (I the fleshly body) was dead." What confusion! The real antecedent of I or you is the conscious ego which can not exist without the union of body and spirit; therefore the living body, whether natural or spiritual, is the person, for without the living body the person or soul ceases to be until the body is resurrected.

Why not accept the truth? Why not believe God? God said that man should die, and while dead he has no conscious existence; that future and eternal life depend upon a resurrection from the dead. Yes God did say this by his inspired servants, and they spoke it very plainly. If we say that man does not really die, we are teaching what the old serpent said to Eve, and are making God untrue.

If we teach that the mind does not cease its consciousness and activity when the body dies, we are disputing God's words by his holy prophets.

The mind, according to Webster, is the power that conceives, judges, reasons, thinks, remembers, feels, desires, and wills; the entire spiritual nature; the soul. If the mind is active, these faculties of the mind are active. What say the prophets? The Psalmist David said to God, "For in death there is no remembrance of thee." Psa vi 5. He said of man, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." Psa cxlvi 3, 4. The prophet Isaiah said of certain rulers, "Therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish." Isa xxvi 14.

Solomon said, "The dead know not anything." Eccl ix 10. Paul said he believed all that is written in the law and in the prophets (Acts xxiv 14), and he said except there be a resurrection from the dead, all who have fallen asleep in Jesus are perished. 1 Cor xv. Why? Because they have ceased to exist until Christ gives them life again at his second coming, and if there be no resurrection, then these saints are perished, because their condition would be the same as the wicked of whom David said their souls ceased forever. Psa xlix 8. Now if any of the departed are in a conscious condition, they must have been resurrected. Does the Bible teach that the resurrection of each occurs at the time the body dies? No it does not. Paul said "For as in Adam all die even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor xv 22, 23.

Can it mean then that Christ comes for every saint when he dies, and takes his soul to heaven, as some are teaching? No. Paul said the Lord himself would descend from heaven, and the dead in Christ would rise first, and the living (in Christ) would be changed, and would be caught up together with them (the resurrected dead) in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air. See 1 Cor xv 52; 1 Thes iv 16, 17. So we know that the resurrection will include all the righteous (the bride) at the same time, and has not yet occurred. Inasmuch as the Lord, through the medium of his inspired servants, has told so plainly and with so much evidence, that man must die, that while dead he is in "the land of forgetfulness" (Psa lxxx 12), and has ceased to be a conscious person (Psa xxxix 13) until Christ calls him from the grave at his second coming, there can be no Bible evidence to the contrary without contradiction, which would nullify the whole Bible; therefore those passages that immortalists quote to substantiate their theory cannot mean what they think they do, but are mostly parables, visions, and those writings of Paul's of which Peter said, "In which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest (pervert), as they do also the other Scriptures, unto their own destruction." 2 Peter iii 16.

These "unlearned" teachers may be well educated in the wisdom of this world (1 Cor ii 4-6) but are unlearned in Truth. As long as they are blinded they cannot see danger.—F. M. Howell.

The Majesty of Work for God.

"God is so great that He communicates greatness to the least thing that is done in His service." In a moment of soul-weariness, that enters every life when the bounds of the earth task that we have been given seem to narrow and contract our vision, we forget the great Taskmaster who has drawn the plans, and looking down toward the earth, a sense of loneliness environs us, the world fails to understand and we cannot grasp the full meaning, see the finished beauty of the expression of our hands. Then it is that, through the silence, the great void where the voice of the human cannot reach, we hear the still, small voice revealing the meaning of service, the majesty of the humblest task as we work with God.

Dr. Johnson, in giving advice to an intimate friend, said, "Accustom your children always to tell the truth, without varying in any circumstance." A lady who was present protested that this was too much to expect. "For instance, in repeating another's words, relating what happened, etc., little variations will occur a thousand times a day, unless one is perpetually watching," she said. "Theo, madam, you ought to be perpetually watching," replied the doctor.

The article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 95 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in The Restitution that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 26-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. Allard.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Ohio will be held August 17 to 21 inclusive in the new church 10623 Lee Ave. Cleveland, Ohio.

The church is located in the East end of the city near East 105 Street, a short distance from the street cars.

Please communicate with the Pastor R. G. Huggins and arrangements will be made to meet you at the Depot.

The program will appear later.

J. C. Thompson, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus of the State of Illinois will be held in Oregon, beginning Wednesday, August 17 and continuing over Sunday the 21.

This Conference will follow immediately the annual Bible School conducted at that place.

We are expecting a greater meeting than ever before. Come.

Emma L. Smith, Sec.

The Eighth Annual Bible School under the auspices of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, is announced to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 8 to 18, 1910. The teachers are to be the same as last year, the board and lodging are free, though any donation to the cause will be received. Students should bring note books, pencil and Bible. Any further information will be furnished by S. J. Lindsay, Oregon, Illinois, who should be at once notified if you are thinking of attending.

Please announce in The Restitution that the annual Conference of Missouri will convene August 10th to 15th, inclusive, at Morse Mill, Mo. Program will be given later.

J. H. Morse.

The Missouri-Kansas Conference of the Church of God will meet at Severance, Kansas, on Grand Island Railroad, about 40 miles west of St. Joe, August 20-28 inclusive. Business meeting August 22 at 10 a. m. Meetings forenoons, afternoons and evenings. All lovers of free speech and investigation of religious questions are cordially invited to attend. There is good train service from St. Joe, trains leaving for the west about 10 a m, 4 p m, and 8 p m.

By order of the Con. Board,
Eugene Howard, Pres.

The Missouri Conference of the Church of God, will open Wednesday evening, August 10, and continue over the following Sunday. Brothers Conner of Ohio, and Allard of Iowa, will be with us, assisted by Brother Winningham of Missouri, and possibly others. The program will be announced from day to day, arranged according to convenience and circumstances.

The place of the meeting, Morse Mills, Mo., can be reached by only one railroad conveniently. So all coming will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern R. R. to Victoria, which is about forty miles south of St. Louis. Hacks will meet every train and convey passengers to Hillsboro, where the brethren will meet them and take them to Morse Mills. All coming please send word of date and train of arrival, to J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

This will be our third Conference in Missouri, and we pray that it will be as successful as those preceding. We want every Church of God in Missouri to be represented. Plan now to come. Then we will see what a closer union of the brethren will do!

Sadie B. Morse, Sec'y.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTIONIST is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

He's Coming.

He's coming soon we know,
He'll change this world of woe
From suffering and from sin;
He'll bring the new age in.

That age so endless bliss,
A contrast to all this,
For then all wars will cease
And men will live in peace.

The saints will rule as kings,
With power to do all things,
And signal acts will do,
All those who be true.

[illegible] will pass away
In that new and grand day,
For weed will be no more,
But men [illegible]

The saints immortal reign,
With Christ at Zion's helm,
They'll teach mankind the way,
And guard them well they stray.

A. WALLACE MASON.

There has before me a copy of a paper published in Nebraska, dated May, 1910, self-styled "an independent and progressive monthly publication for Bible students of any denomination." On the first page the Editor says in an editorial: "The founder of this paper and now its Correspondent Editor, is the Evangelist for the ——Conference, the only Conference which does not attempt to place a check on the tongue of its Evangelist." Then speaking of the liberty-loving policy of the paper itself the Editor scolds "narrow sectarianism" and says no one can "forge shackles and padlocks for his feet and mouth."

Now strange to say but nevertheless true, these statements are found in a paper and were written by a man claiming to belong to the Church of God. If he will read the epistle of James he will learn that he needs bridles, "checks", "padlocks", and other things for his mouth. And as to the propriety of a Conference turning its Evangelist loose without a "check on his tongue," we can only say, and say it sorrowfully, the procedure is wholly unscriptural and antibiblical.

In Paul's day some teachers began "teaching things which they ought not," and contrary to our Editor who applauds a conference for giving its Evangelist liberty to preach without "check" what he pleases, the inspired dictum of the Apostle is, "Whose mouths must be stopped!" Titus i. 11. You can snivel at this and doubt it "narrow sectarianism" if you please; we have the apostolic injunction to rebuke erratic teachers "sharply" (v. 13) and to stop their mouths, and we must do it or become recreant.

It will be a sad day for the truth when our church delivers up to Evangelists its rights. It can only come when God's word is wholly ignored as authority. "Rights" and liberties will then all be vested in the Evangelists; they will be the supreme tribunal. Then the church dare not "check" an Evangelist any more than a Catholic would attempt to shackle the feet or "padlock" the mouth of the pope! What then would become of the truth? Suppose the Evangelist should begin to preach the immortality of the soul? "Check" him? No; that would be horrid "narrow sectarianism." Suppose he preached the transmigration of souls, purgatory, eternal torment, etc., would you dare to check him? No; away with shackles and padlocks! Such curtailing of a man's liberty would be contemptible sectarianism. Dear reader, under such unprincipled goody-goodyism, and such flabby sentimentalism, what, Oh what would become of our "precious faith?" Would it not go up in smoke as a sacrifice on the altar of Evangelism, whose whims, edicts and bulls we would idolize and adore?

Excerpts.

The immortality of the soul—how and when it was introduced into the Christian Church.

In my last article I showed that human immortality had its origin in the neighborhood of Babylon, and spread through Egypt, where it was made much of by the priests, and from there spread to many of the surrounding nations, but in the time of Christ, and even much later, it was certainly not a universal belief, as it is assumed to have been by many at the present time.

In the middle of the third century after Christ, there lived a Christian by the name of Commodian. He wrote a work in verse entitled "Rules of living." In it he says, "That he had been a pagan, but had by the study of the Bible, come to believe in it. He intimates that as he believed with the great majority, that death made an end of man's personal existence. he was especially attracted by the promise of an eternal divine life which was offered him in the Scriptures."

Even yet the whole world of mankind has not accepted the immortality of the soul as a fact, as the following quotation will show from Stanley's work "In the heart of Africa." He said to an African "Where do you suppose your father has gone to now that he is dead?" "The dead die," he replied solemnly. "They are no more. The sultan dies, he becomes nothing: he is then no better than a dead dog. He is finished, his words are finished; there are no words from him. It is true," he added, seeing a smile on my face, "the sultan becomes nothing. He who says other words is a liar."

Stanley said "But then he is a very great man." "While he lives only; after death he goes into the pit, and there is no more to be said of him than any other man."

This African had more sense than most of our so-called wise men. At the time of Christ the immortality of man was creeping in more and more among the Jews. They had brought some confused ideas of that kind with them from their captivity in Babylon, and in coming in contact with Greek literature, which was spreading among them when Christ was here, the idea of an intermediate state was beginning to be believed in by some of the Pharisees, and by the time of the destruction of Jerusalem it was believed in by a great many. First when my attention was arrested by the fact that I could find no promise in the Bible after diligent search on my part that any one was to go to heaven at death, I was reading the works of Josephus, and he gave me a help for a while out of my difficulty, for he states about the end of the work that there is an intermediate place where dead souls go to, or perhaps I ought to say dead living souls. He tells us that the good and bad are separated, however, but are not punished or rewarded in this intermediate state, and that this place is under the earth.

This idea came from Babylon. This idea is the beginning of the Romish purgatory. It was from Babylon it came, and the new Babylon took the idea and improved upon it.

Professor Harnack has said "The Catholic church is that form of Christianity in which every element of the ancient world has been successively assimilated which Christianity could in any way take up into itself without utterly losing itself. Christianity has throughout sucked the marrow of the ancient world and assimilated it."

Even in the first century we find traces of this iniquity already at work on the church. Paul could see clearly its coming, and warned the church to beware of its deadly work. I Tim. iv. 1. "Now the spirit speaketh expressly that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils" or rather demons, which is the Greek word. These demons were the departed spirits, or the immortal souls.

In the church of Corinth this doctrine of demons was apparently being already taught, and brought forth by Paul that wonderful 15th chapter. When men are convinced that they are immortal, they have no need of the resurrection, for they are then much better off without their old bodies, as some of our contemporaries teach.

Professor Sree, the great Oxford archeologist says "You cannot but have been struck by the similarity of the ancient Egyptian theory of the spiritual part of man, to that which underlies so much Christian speculation of the subject, and which still pervades the popular theology of the day. There is the same distinction between soul and spirit, the same belief in a material body, and in a heaven which is a counterpart of our own earth.

Perhaps however, the indebtedness of Christian theological theory to ancient Egyptian dogma is nowhere more striking than in the doctrine of the trinity. The very terms used of it by Christian theologians meet us again in the inscriptions and papyri of Egypt."

So-called gnosticism became rampant in the second century, and many Christians began to introduce it in their writings and discourses, and by the third century it was taught almost everywhere. Gnosis means wise or wisdom, and these very wise men (in their own eyes) taught the inherent immortality of man, and also had adopted much other foolishness from the heathen along with it.

Marcion, one of the early gnostics, said Jehovah was a God, indeed the creator of the lower world, as the Jewish Scriptures claim, but it was this lower world that he created, above which was a spiritual world, where dwells the Supreme God. The true God, the only one worthy of the name, was pure spirit. He got these ideas from the Persians.

Justin Martyr who was put to death in the second century, says to Trypho the Jew, "But I, and all right minded Christians, know well that there is to be a resurrection of the flesh, and that for a thousand years Jerusalem will be built up and adorned and enlarged, as the prophets Isaiah and Ezekiel and the others declare."

Tatian a disciple of Justin's, who in his later life went over to gnosticism, and died in 180, wrote "The soul is not in itself immortal, O Greeks, but mortal, but yet it is possible for it not to die. If indeed it knows not the truth, it dies and is dissolved with the body at the end of the world, receiving death by punishment. But again if it acquires the knowledge of God it dies not, although for a time it be dissolved."

In a work called the Didache (which means teaching) believed to have been written about the end of the first century, it says "Be ye watchful for your life, let your loins not be quenched, and your coats not ungirded, but be ye ready, for ye know not the hour in which our Lord cometh."

The leaven of gnosticism was working rapidly even in the second century, for we find Justin issuing this warning "If you have fallen in with any who are called Christians, who yet say that there is no resurrection of the dead, but that their souls are taken up into heaven immediately upon death, do not suppose that they are Christians."

Professor Hurtz in his church history page 103 says "From the middle of the second century onwards, there appears in the historical development of gnosticism an ever increasing tendency to come to terms with the church. This is shown by the founders of new sects, Marcion, Tatian, etc. The most brilliant period in the history of gnosticism was the second century commencing with Hadrian. At the beginning of the third century there was scarcely one of the more cultured congregations throughout the whole of the Roman empire and beyond there as far as Edessa, that was not affected by it."

The result was as Hurtz describes, "Finally the last dissolving action of this age was to less severity of life..... to make modifications in constitution life and conversation in accordance with the social customs of the world, and to settle down through disregard of the speedy return of Christ so confidently expected by the early Christians, into an easy satisfaction of the enjoyments of earthly possessions."

Gold Dust.

No one ever really knows why the angels sing so much until he himself brings to some one "tidings of great joy."

Life, like war, is a series of mistakes, and he is not the best Christian, nor the best general who makes the fewest false steps. He is the best who wins the most splendid victories by the retrieval of mistakes.

Today is your day and mine, the only day we have, the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great world we may not understand, but we are here to play it, and now is our time.

Self interest is the natural impulse of humanity. Deny self and serve your neighbor, says Christ. If the world would follow this maxim, all hatreds, variances, contentions, and the host of evils which arise from the friction of avarice and self seeking, would vanish.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 35 cents per copy.

Have we Eternal Life Now?

1. Because eternal life is a matter of promise.

Proof: "This is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life" (1 John ii. 25). "Eternal life, which God, who cannot lie, promised before the world began" (Titus i. 2). "According to the promise of life, which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Tim. i. 1).

The fact of eternal life being a subject of promise is proof that it is not the subject of present possession, for what a man has in his possession does not require to be promised to him.

2. Because it is in the world or age to come that eternal life is to be received and enjoyed.

Proof: "He shall receive.....in the world to come, eternal life" (Mark x. 30). "He that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal" (John xii. 25). "God shall render..... to them who seek for glory, honor, and immortality, eternal life.....in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ" (Rom. ii 7, 16). "The righteous shall go into life eternal" (Matt xxv. 46).

If it is [illegible] age to come that eternal life is to be conferred, it is manifest that it cannot be possessed in the present age, when the age to come is still a matter of futurity.

3. Because eternal (aionios) life being age-life (from aion, age)—that is the age-to-come life—is life that will never end, correctly enough described as "everlasting life," which is always the equivalent in the Scriptures of eternal life.

Proof: "They who shall be accounted worthy of that world.....neither can they die any more". Luke xx. 36. "I give unto my sheep eternal life, and they shall never perish." John x. 28. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom. vi. 23.

If eternal life is everlasting life it follows that in the present state we lack it, seeing our life is not everlasting, but comes to an end, necessitating our return to mother earth.

4. Because eternal or everlasting life results from a change of this corruptible and mortal body into an incorruptible and immortal one.

Proof: "He shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his own glorious body." Phil iii. 21. "This corruptible must put on incorruptibility, and this mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor. xv. 53. "Clothed upon, that mortality may be swallowed up of life." 2 Cor. v. 4.

Our present mortal and corruptible state is therefore evidence of our present non-possession of eternal life.

But you will say, "There are passages that plainly say we have eternal life." "Ye have eternal life." 1 John v. 13. "God hath given to us eternal life." verse 11. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life." John iii. 36. True, there are such passages: but what are we to do with them? Are we to put such a meaning upon them as will set aside or make the other passages meaningless and useless? Or are we to understand them in harmony with the other passages? There is only one wise answer: We must make them all agree. The Scripture is at one with itself, and if we make it clash, there is something wrong in our interpretations. You cannot make the idea of an actual present possession of eternal life agree with the passages which tell us it is a future thing; but you can make the idea of an actual future possession agree with statements that speak of it as a present possession. You ask, "How?" The answer is: By noting the custom of Scripture to speak of future things that are certain as though they were present. Examples:

"A father of many nations have I made thee" (when as yet Abram had no son.) Gen. xvii. 5.

"Unto thy seed have I given this land" (when as yet there was no seed) —Gen. xv. 18.

"I (Isaac) have made him (Jacob) thy (Esau's) Lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants, and with corn and wine have I sustained him" (when as yet Jacob had realized none of these things)—Gen. xxvii. 37.

There are many other examples. A single New Testament illustration may suffice: Jesus in prayer said to the Father, "The glory which thou hast given me, I have given them." John xvii. 22. When as yet even Jesus himself was not glorified. John xvii. 39. Jesus said, "I give my sheep eternal life." In the sense in which he gives it to them—in promise and guarantee—in that sense they "have" it—not actually, but in the certainty of its future possession. Christ now has it actually, and those who possess him possess it, for he is our life (Col. iii. 4), and that life is eternal life, and this life is in Christ only. I John v. 11. Christ dwells in the believer's heart by faith. Eph. iii. 17. In this sense, and in this sense only, eternal life abides in him. But this sense is a very important sense, for the possession of eternal life by faith will lead to its actual glorious possession in the age to come.—Bible Finger Post.

Coming Glories.

There has been a long long age of suffering. The weary march of the world sends forth the wail of gloom and death. Dark and cold is the tomb where the centuries sleep. The floors of the oceans resound to the footsteps of decayed empires. The waves moan on the shores and send back tidings of ruined thrones and tarnished crowns. The desert sands sport in the winds over cities wasted by armies and famine. The great temples once resonant with the songs of victories have only a few shafts of marble to mark their place in their desolation. The cold shadow rests upon the bleak plains amid the wrecks of earthquakes and pestilences. While here and there we behold bright spots on the canvas of the ages, we ever dread impending darkness which enshrouds the sun as it sets behind the cloud, in the night of forgotten glories.

But beyond all this there is a new morning, a day of fulness and peace. It is foretold by the rising star which gives assurance of the coming glory, and the age of immortality and the blessedness of companionships. We are told that it was needful that the Messiah should suffer, so that he might enter into his glory. He foresaw the scene of Gethsemane, but beyond that he saw the paradise and the tree of life in the Crystal City. He heard the moan of the old creation, and sent forth the glad tidings of a new heaven and a new earth beyond. The river of death shall cease to flow, while the river of life shall come from underneath the throne with waters of immortality. The voice of sorrow will give way to the songs of gladness. Indeed the world itself shall rejoice amid the prophetic visions of the seers of Israel, when that sublime promise is fulfilled: "As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord." Num. xiv. 21.

Baptism.

On Wednesday afternoon, July 6th, by previous appointment, there were three baptized in Rock River in Oregon, Illinois. They were Mrs. Margaret Canode and her daughter, Miss Bernice, and Mrs. Mary Swingley. Sister Canode had been brought up under the influence of the gospel in the home of Uncle "Bill" Swingley and had been considering the matter for some time. She and her daughter have been attending services at Oregon quite steadily for a year, and have become quite conversant with the truth as it is in Jesus. Aunt Mary Swingley, as she is familiarly known, has been disturbed in mind for some time with respect to her former baptism. It seems that she was induced to be baptized as the result of a Methodist meeting and at the hands of a Methodist preacher some years ago and she became fearful that her knowledge of the truth and the conditions attending baptism were not in accordance with the terms of the Scriptures, and she accordingly applied for baptism with the others named above.

The writer of this report has always insisted that baptism does not consist simply of being dipped in water. Unless the knowledge of the first principles of the gospel precede, the dipping in water is useless. It is cause for rejoicing to know that Sister Swingley solved this problem for herself. These three will make a substantial addition to the little body at Oregon, since they are people highly esteemed by all who know them. Brethren, pray for these who have taken upon themselves these new duties.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1850. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

bothing was the matter. When the healer said, "There is no such thing as sickness," she told what was true or what was not true. There is no middle ground. If something was not the matter, then why did those people die? If something was the matter, then the healer told what was not true. Either explanation is fatal to Christian Science.

HOW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE GAINS ITS DISCIPLES.

Any one can see how, by its power to heal a certain class of diseases, one who is not a clear thinker is led to accept the teaching of Christian Science, however absurd it may seem. Dr. Hudson, one of the ablest writers of the day on the subject of psychic phenomena describes the method of propaganda most accurately. He says: "It seems obvious that no greater demand could be made upon the resources of our credulity than to tell us that all that is visible or tangible to our objective senses has no real existence. And yet that is what the patient of Christian Science is invited to believe, as a condition precedent to his recovery. Of course, he feels at first that his intelligence is insulted, and he protests against such palpable absurdity. But he is quieted by soothing words, and advised to hold himself in the mental attitude of denying the possible existence of disease. After a seance of this kind, lasting perhaps half an hour, the patient almost inevitably finds immense relief. To say that the patient is surprised is but feebly to convey his impressions. He is confounded. The healer triumphantly asks: "What do you think of my theory now?" It is of little use for him to reply that he does not see that the theory is necessarily correct because he was healed. Most likely he fails to think of that in his gratitude for restored health, but if he does he is met by the triumphant response: 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' To the average mind, untrained to habits of logical reasoning, that settles the question, and Christian Science has scored a triumph and secured a follower."

THE THEOLOGY OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

It is the theology of Christian Science which is the most serious aspect of the case, for as may be easily shown, it involves the rejection of the fundamental principles of the Gospel. The lecturer who recently addressed us took pains to show the entire harmony of Christian Science with the accepted faith of Christendom. If the gentleman had been frank he would have explained that he attached to words a very different meaning from that which we were led to believe. For example, he said that Christian Scientists believe in God, and rather rebuked the old-fashioned Christian for failing to recognize more fully the divine presence. Then he proceeded to give a definition of God in words with which only the most critical listener could find fault. Suppose, however, we strip the verbiage from the lecturer's definition that we may understand just what a Christian Scientist means when he speaks of God. In the second article in the platform of Christian Science may be found these words: "God is mind; He is divine principle, not person." "God is a principle." Does any one maintain for a moment that this is the conception of God which the unprejudiced reader gets from the Bible? If God is a principle, then it is a mere juggle of words to call him the Heavenly Father. He should be called "it." Who can pray to a principle? I could as easily think of praying to the constitution of the United States, or the law of gravitation, or the principle of infinite love. My God is a personal God, who loves me, who hears me when I pray, and to whom I can say: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me."

The lecturer said that he believes in Jesus Christ. But what does he believe in regard to Jesus Christ? Does he believe that He was the divine Son of God; that He suffered and died, and rose again; that by His stripes we are healed? If he says that he does, then we may be sure that words mean nothing to him, for, according to the text-book which is his authority, Jesus "was, after all, only a human, corporeal concept," while his sufferings on Calvary were as idle a show as "a painted ship upon a painted ocean," for, according to Christian Science, there is no such thing as pain. Does he believe in a Holy Spirit, comforter and sanctifier? Then he throws into those words a meaning of his own, for, according to his text-book, "the Holy Ghost is Divine Science." Does he believe in prayer? Then he gives the term a definition different from that with which we are familiar, for, according to his text-book, "petitions only bring mortals the result of their own belief." Of course, he does not believe in sin, for a Christian Scientist told me this past week that she never spoke of sin any more, that she never sinned, although St. John says explicitly: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." These few references will give you an idea of the complete antagonism between Christian Science and the fundamental principles of the faith of Christendom.

Therefore, after a familiarity with these new doctrines for over ten years, I do not hesitate to say most emphatically that, whatever else it may be, it is not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ as made known in the Bible. God's peace is within the reach of all who, with implicit trust and hearty obedience, will accept the promises of His holy word and take as example and savior the Son whom He hath sent. A sad thing it is that a Saul prefers to seek the counsels of the witch of Endor rather than the priest of the house of God.

Dear friend, perhaps you have become interested in this new faith, having turned to it in the hope that it might cure you of some disease, or comfort you in some sorrow, not realizing the subtle danger that lurks behind its pleasant sounding words. Surely, you will never be satisfied to think of God as only a principle, nor think of scripping from Christ the crown of His divinity, nor be willing to surrender your judgment into the keeping of a mistaken woman. Will you not rather fling open the windows which God has provided for the discovery of truth and study this marvelous universe, which, instead of being a creation of the imagination, declares the glory of God and showeth His handiwork? Will you not trust in the God of Abraham and Isaac, of Jacob, of Christ, and an innumerable company which no man can number? Will you not kneel before the cross on Calvary and pray there, "God be merciful to me a sinner"? Will you not, instead of endeavoring to ignore such relalities as sorrow and sin, seek rather to comfort those that mourn, and with Browning say:

"Why comes temptation but for man to meet,
And master and make crouch beneath his feet,
And so be pedestalled in triumph?"

Then, when the struggles are all over and the work has been done, thou shalt hear the welcoming voice of the Master: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 3, 1910. NUMBER 29.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

A Psalm of Comfort.

Look up and heart, and grieve no more,
Naught e'er can go amiss;
For he who drives thy bark to'ard shore
Resides in all that is.

Nor think thyself and life alone,
Or dark and cold thy place;
Surrounding thee is all thine own
The friendship of God's love.

There is no creature e'er denied
The comfort of his eye;
'Tween him and thee is no divide—
Where thou art, he is nigh.

No child was ever loved like thee—
Despite the galling pain,
That breaks the heart and bows the knee
And weighs upon the brain.

Just now no stars the path cover;
Across the trackless sea;
But One there is who guides the wheel,
And guides it really.

Fear not! He loves thee would enfold
Thy very self in light;
And give thee visions as of old,
To gird thee for the fight.

Look up and heart, and grieve no more,
Naught e'er can go amiss;
Thy barque will surely reach the shore,
And thine be all that is.

The Kingdom and Dominion.

The prophet Isaiah says, (viii 20), To the law and the testimony; if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them. Conclusions can only be obtained rightly when we have weighed carefully the law and the testimony. In Neh viii 8 we learn that "They read in the book in the law of God distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading." We note by these two Scriptures that the law was reduced to a language by which thoughts were conveyed by words and sentences. The reader must convey to the listener the meaning of the thought or sense in the sentences. The language was invented by man but the thought was Jehovah's. The apostle says, Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. The record that we have is the product of the Spirit of God. The Spirit is the Comforter. But the message that produces the comfort comes to us through either written or spoken language. While Paul persecuted the church of God he was exceedingly zealous of the traditions of the fathers. We also learn that he was taught the gospel by the revelation of Jesus the Christ. Paul taught this same gospel and said, Though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you let him be accursed. This curse is pronounced upon any man who preaches any other gospel. Then let Scripture interpret Scripture, and not man. The writers of the New Testament were directed as were those of the Old by the Holy Spirit. Our title speaks of a kingdom and the dominion. Now are these words to be understood in an ordinary sense or must they be given a meaning? The best Bible scholars claim that the literal should be given when possible. In Daniel vii 27 we read, The kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions (margin, rulers) shall serve and obey him. The promise to the saints is a kingdom and dominion. This kingdom is to be located under the whole heaven and not in it. If the language of the prophet means anything it means that this kingdom is yet future and into it all the whole earth and all rulers shall serve and obey the laws of this kingdom. Now it is evident that there can be no kingdom without a king. To the law and to the testimony concerning this person. Bible history as well as profane teaches that Jehovah had a kingdom over which he ruled through the Judges. The Lord said unto Samuel, Hearken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee; they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them. So Jehovah was their king. 1 Chron xxviii 5 David says, Of all my sons the Lord hath chosen Solomon, my son, to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel. Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king, instead of David his father. The above is proof that the kingdom over which David and Solomon ruled was the Lord's. This kingdom continued until overturned in the time that Zedekiah was king. Ezek xxi 27. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; (the kingdom); and it shall be no more until he comes whose right it is; and I will give it to him. This was the kingdom of Israel and since that time it has remained in an overturned condition. There has been no king on the throne of David since its overthrow. Yet there is one promised. Psa lxxxix. I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever and his throne as the sun before me. Psalm cxxxii. The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David, he will not turn from it; of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne.

Peter in Acts ii 30 applies this prophecy to Jesus whom he declared had been raised from the dead to sit on David's throne. The angel announced this same truth to Mary saying that her son Jesus should sit on David's throne and rule over the house of Jacob (kingdom of Israel) forever; and unto his kingdom there should be no end. The above is ample proof that Jesus the Christ is the son or seed of David and when he comes he will occupy his father's throne over Israel. See Matt xix 28; xxv 31; Luke xix 11-15. Jesus is to be a literal king over a literal kingdom. He is to have associate rulers. Isa xxxii 1, Behold a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment. See Acts xv 14 17; Rev ii 26 27; iii 21; v 9 10; xx 4; xxii 5; Matt v 5; 2 Peter i. 13.

The above is proof sufficient to prove that those who overcome will be rulers in that kingdom promised. The territory ruled over according to Daniel is under the whole heaven. In Isa xiv 18 we read, Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited. Again we read, Psa cxv 16. The heaven even the heavens are the Lord's; but the earth hath he given to the children of men. The kingdom will again be restored to Israel with fleshy Israel as subjects and spiritual Israel as rulers in the kingdom. Ezek xx. I will bring you out from the people and I will gather you out of the countries wherein you are scattered, I will bring you into the wilderness of the people and there will I plead with you face to face. I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant, I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me. See Ezek xxxvii 15-28; Jer xxxi 40; Isa lxv 17 25; Zech xiv 1-12; Amos ix 11-15.

The kingdom spoken of in the prophets will have Christ as their king; the saints as the associate rulers, the earth as the territory and the nations living on the earth when Christ comes and fleshy Israel as subjects. The laws will go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem which will then be the capital city. This is the kingdom that Jesus preached throughout all the cities of Judea. The gospel or glad tidings were that this kingdom that was then in an overturned condition will in the future be set up and the ruins thereof built up. Acts xv 16. He commanded his apostles to preach the gospel and directed that men should believe it and be baptized into the name in order to be saved. This is the gospel that Paul declared is the power of God unto salvation to every one who believed. He also pronounced a curse upon any one who preached any other gospel.

Paul was qualified through the teaching of Jesus to preach the gospel. The historian Luke wrote that he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus; both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets from morning till evening. It is also written that he preached the kingdom of God for two whole years in his own hired house in Rome. Philip preached the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus to the Samaritans, and when they believed they were baptized both men and women. Unless you preach a universal, literal kingdom you preach another gospel.

Yours in the gospel truth.
D. C. ROBISON.

The Bereans Column.

[Copy supplied by Illinois Bereans.]

Dear Bereans:

Paul tells Timothy, "From a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness. That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.

Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine. Meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them; that thy profiting may appear to all.

In John v 39 Christ commands us to search the Scriptures. "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me." "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope."

"If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book, and if any man shall take away from the words of this book God shall take away his part out of the Book of life and out of the holy city."

We must study to show ourselves approved, workmen that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth.

Acts xvii 11 says, "These at Berea were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the Word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so." So let us be Bereans indeed and search the Scriptures daily.

VERNA WOODS

BE STRONG IN THE LORD.

Going back in our study and research for things helpful and needful, we turn to the Old Testament, where in 1 Kings ii 2 to 4 we read, Now the days of David drew nigh that he should die, and he charged Solomon, his son, saying, I go the way of all the earth; be thou strong therefore and show thyself a man; and keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments, judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself.

O that fathers would be as wise in these days and give such instruction to their sons. Then their prosperity would be such that they might enter into the glories of the new kingdom when Christ comes. We all desire strength and health, more than beauty, and strength of character is of more value than gold, or physical power. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver or gold." We must learn with patience to endure all things, even as Paul for Christ's sake, endured affliction and imprisonment; was ship wrecked, and beaten with many stripes, yet through untold hardships was given strength of the Lord to remain faithful. In 2 Tim ii 1 what admonition does he give to Timothy. Thou, therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. Not pomp, not power, not stylish clothes, but grace, a very important essential of Christian character. We all have our appointed tasks. Some special line of work that we are best fitted for, (if we would let God do the choosing), for the upbuilding of humanity, and for that work we must gain in grace, and faith, and love to fulfil our mission. 2 Chron xv 7, Be ye strong therefore and let not your hands be weak; for your work shall be rewarded. He teacheth my hands to war and my fingers to fight. But that does not mean that we are to be warring continually. Only as the Lord gives us strength to overcome the enemy, and the evils that afflict us. O that we would have greater trust and confidence in God's promises. In Isa xxxv we read many good things, many encouraging things.

Say to them that are of a fearful heart, be strong, fear not; behold your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense. He will come and save you. And what a wonderful salvation. What great things hath he laid up in store for those who love him. The blind shall see, the deaf hear, the lame walk. No weakness there. Isa xl 29, 31. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary, and they shall walk and not faint.

Several years ago I was left alone in a large country house, with two small children. A dark and gloomy place, near a rail-road much frequented by tramps; dismayed and fearful, when the children had gone to sleep, I turned to my Bible for comfort and consolation, which has never failed me yet. The book opened at Isa xli and my eyes rested upon these words in the 13th verse, For I, the Lord, thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, fear not; I will help thee. There it was, strength in weakness. Needless to say, I felt strengthened and comforted, and slept soundly until 7 o'clock the next morning. So let us not trust to our own strength too much, for our very thoughts are vain. But rather let us be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord. Helping one another, for we are chosen people. Rom xv 1. We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak and not to please ourselves. Even Christ pleased not himself. There is a thought for daily food for any Berean who is inclined to be selfish or worldly minded. Eph vi 10. Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

Rejoice in the Lord, giving thanks always to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us cheer and comfort one another, overcoming our weaknesses, setting aside any weight that doth easily beset us, marching forward to victory. Phil iv 13, "I can do all things through Christ which strengthened me."

Rom xi 36, For of him, and through him, and to him are all things. To whom be glory forever. Amen.

MRS. HESTER V. BERRY.

SIN.

Since the disobedience of Adam and Eve, until the present time, we find that sin had been the great enemy, which separates mankind from God. Yielding to temptation is the first act of sin. Jesus was tempted of Satan forty days, alone in the wilderness among wild beasts, with nothing to eat. During this time the tempter came to him and said, "If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." His answer was: "It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Again the devil setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple and tells him to cast himself down, as God has given his angels charge concerning him and in their hand they shall bear him up. Jesus said, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." He taketh him up into a high mountain and showeth him all the kingdoms of the world and offers them to him. He tells Satan to get behind him.

He bore all this temptation without sin. This is a great lesson to us. If we yield to temptation, we commit sin, and unless we accept Christ and be prepared to meet and overcome it, what shall be our reward?

"The wages of sin is death." Rom vi 23. This is to be the end of the wicked; death to the soul. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ezek xviii 4, 20. But we which have obeyed and ceased to serve sin, are promised everlasting life. "But now, being made free from sin and become servants to God, ye have your fruits unto holiness, and the end, everlasting life." Rom vi 22. The time will come when sin will be destroyed. This was the mission of Jesus. "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." Jno iii 8. This devil is nothing more than sin which we see around us every day. Jesus will destroy it. Through death he put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

Then let us Bereans yield not to temptation, but have patience, self control, and put on the whole armor of God, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. Eph vi 11.

TRUST IN THE LORD.

[Read to the Chicago Church, at Breaking of Bread.]

What does it mean to trust? Is it not, that the one who trusts another, has the utmost confidence in that person? We know without a doubt that whatever the trusted person has been given to keep or do for another, that it will be accomplished. For instance, we have heard it said, "I would trust him (or her) with a bag of uncounted gold." This truly, would show the confidence or trust one had in another. Can we find many of this example in these last days?

But there is One above all in whom we can trust without even the thought of a doubt. He is the Creator of all. "O taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man that trusteth in him." Psa. xxxiv. 8.

God knows those who trust in him. They are few in comparison to those who do not trust. Yea, and there are some who will not trust in him. If we could only persuade them to "taste and see that the Lord is good."

"He that understandeth a matter wisely shall find good, and whoso trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." Prov. xvi. 20.

"The fear of man bringeth a snare; but whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe," Prov. xxix. 25.

Let us put our trust in the Lord, who is a safeguard from the evil one, in which we cannot trust. "Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies." Psa. xl. 4.

This is the kind of person the Lord loves. The proud and liars cannot put their trust in the Lord, for they do not even respect him. We must first have respect for a person, before we can love. All liars will have their part in the second death. Let us not be one of those.

"Many sorrows shall be to the wicked; but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about. Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart." Psa. xxxii. 10, 11.

"Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust and not be afraid; for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation." Isa. xii. 2.

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee. Trust ye in the Lord forever; for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength." Isa. xxvi. 3 4.

Yes, many sorrows shall be to the wicked, because they will not trust in the Lord. Their preference is for the influence of the evil one, who drags them down to the lowest depths of degradation; but to those who trust in the Lord, their prospect is like the beautiful bright sunshine in the balmy springtime. It is glorious! We may indeed rejoice and shout for joy. Why? Because God is our salvation, our strength and our song. Perfect peace is theirs who trust in the Lord. But this is not all gained in a little while, for Paul says, "For therefore we both labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, especially of those that believe." 1 Tim. iv. 10.

"But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord: he is their strength in time of trouble. And the Lord shall help them and deliver them; he shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in him." Psa. xxvii. 39, 40.

"The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate." Psa. xxxiv. 22.

"But let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice, let them ever shout for joy, because thou protectest them, let them also that love thy name, be joyful in thee. For thou Lord, wilt bless the righteous; with favor wilt thou crown him as with a shield." Psa. v. 11, 12.

O, there are so many blessings for those whose delight and trust is in the Lord!

"Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed. Delight thyself also in the Lord, and he shall give thee the desire of thine heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him and he shall bring it to pass. And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noon-day. Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him; fret not thyself because of him that prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass. For evil doers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth. For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be, yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Psa. xxxvii. 3, 8, 9-12.

Let us turn to David's song, the words of which he spake unto the Lord, when the Lord delivered David from his enemies. He said: "The Lord is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer." "The God of my rock, in him will I trust; for he is my shield and the horn of my salvation, my high tower and my refuge, my Savior, thou savest me from violence." 2 Sam. xxii. 2, 3.

David had the utmost confidence in the Lord and fully trusted him. "They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth forever. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem so the Lord is round about his people, from henceforth even forever." Psa. cxxv. 1, 2.

The Smoker's Protest.

The man in the waiting room took the cigar out of his mouth long enough to say to his neighbor:

"If there is anything ridiculous in this world it is the practice of giving a baby a pacifier to hold in its face. Look at that poor little chap there in the cart, sucking away at a contrivance that will spoil the shape of his jaws and give him adenoids and dyspepsia as sure as shooting. How people can expect a child to grow properly when his whole nervous force is spent in an all-day effort to masticate a piece of rubber, I can't understand."

Having spoken, the man returned the cigar to his mouth and became peaceful again.

Dear, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, OFFICE EDITOR

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 3, 1910.

LAST week we stated that the Editor and his wife enjoy an outing as much as anyone. We prefer to take such in visiting where the brethren of like faith are congregated. When meetings are held here or near here, we always do our part to make others have a pleasant time, and get the most good from the meetings. We have often felt that we would enjoy attending meetings in other states, and have done so in years gone by when we had transportation. Things are different now, and we lack the means of "getting there." We have both visited the Ohio brethren, and would enjoy seeing them all again very much indeed. The Editor has once visited the Illinois and Iowa conferences as now organized, and has very pleasant memories of the same. We said last week that we could arrange to attend somewhere if the friends would renew subscriptions sufficient. Now brethren, to show you how this matter really is, we will say this: In Illinois there are a number of brethren and sisters, old subscribers to our paper, who have always paid, and whom we have confidence in, any one of whom would be offended to receive a personal "dun". In the aggregate if these good friends could and would renew now, we would receive this week $67 25. This is in Illinois alone. Looking at the Ohio list, the same sort of people—all first class and good, if they would do likewise, we would have in a few days, $38 75. We should like very much to be with the brethren who meet in general conference at Waterloo, as well as attend the regular Iowa conference a few days. Should those who are in the state of Iowa, on receipt of this paper at once remit what is due us, we would have $53.00 before Saturday night. This would give us at once from these three states $159.00, which would enable us to easily attend meetings that do not conflict in date, and be a source of great pleasure and interest to us both. Some one will say, "If these folks don't pay promptly, why don't you cut them off, after giving them notice, and not allow such a condition." To reply and illustrate:—Some time ago a Sister, to whose home THE RESTITUTION has gone for years, handed us $3.00 to pay for last year and this, remarked at the time that it was just carelessness, as it could have been paid when due as well as not. We assured her that it came in good at the time, and we were indeed thankful for it. We then made bold to ask a question. We told the sister that the week before we had very much needed a little money, and asked if we had just notified her of the condition of the account—had sent her a "dun"—how she would have taken it? She flushed up, and acknowledged that it would have been no more than she deserved, but that if she had gotten such "a thing" she would have paid up to date and stopped her paper. This is exactly the situation a publisher is in. Take the 88 people referred to in the first part of this article, who owe us an average of $1.80 each, and "dun" them, and we lose practically the whole of them. We are not complaining, dear brethren and sisters, we are just telling you that if you could and would send us your subscription that is due now, we could and would take a little vacation that we feel would do us good, and perhaps enable us to do a little service for the Master as well. We do not do this to urge any one who is not able to, at this time, send in his renewal, but there may be some—perhaps enough—who can as well as not do this, and enable us to visit some of the brethren elsewhere. We leave it entirely with you brethren.

FOR some time Brother and Sister N. D. Titchenal, of Wenatchee, Wash. have been at Battle Creek, Mich., and before they returned home desired to visit Plymouth. By an error in postal matters the notice of their coming was not delivered, and on Saturday evening they came unannounced. Word was sent out to as many as possible, and on Sunday evening Bro. Titchenal gave us an excellent discourse. All were much pleased to meet and greet Brother and Sister Titchenal, and will welcome them here at any time. We enjoyed their short sojourn with us, and pray the blessing of God will be with them in their further work for his cause.

ARRANGE to attend the Conference in your State, and your little to help teach the truth.

THE call for a General Conference at Waterloo, Iowa, is in this issue of our paper, with the programme, to which we call your special attention. All interested should study the matter carefully and know how to act.

BROTHER Joseph Williams visited the Plymouth Church on last Sunday, delivering one sermon in the forenoon and going to Argos for the evening. Brother Williams is tired, and is taking a rest for a few days with friends at Argos.

LATE word from the home of Brother John L. Wince does not encourage any hope of his regaining health and strength. He has dictated a short article which will appear in next issue, which may be the last he will be able to give us. We bow in submission to the laws governing our nature and whatever is the will of God.

ON Thursday, July 28, a party of six, Mrs. W. D. Thompson and daughter Olive, J. H Willey and wife, and the Editor and wife, having been invited, went to Argos by train, where we were met by Brother A. O. Roose and taken some six miles to his beautiful country home. There his wife and daughters welcomed us, and—well, it is impossible to describe the good time we had all day. We just simply enjoyed it. Brother Roose is a strong substantial farmer, with the look of plenty about him. Sister Roose has an easy quiet way of making you comfortable and at home, and the girls are sensible and refined. We thank them each for the very pleasant day they gave us, and may the Father's choice blessings be with them through this life, and may each have an entrance abundantly into the kingdom of our Lord when Jesus comes.

FOR some weeks the English nation has been in the throes of a mighty struggle. The oath taken by the king at coronation has been obnoxious to his Catholic subjects, and it was sought to have it so changed that these people would not be subject to "insult" longer. At last by a vote of 245 to 52 the new oath modified to satisfy all these elements has passed its third and final reading. By striking out certain words the present form of oath is made acceptable to non-conformists as well as Catholics, inasmuch as it only requires the king to declare he is a "faithful Protestant." It was a struggle for power in England, and we see how it came out.

THE rupture between the Spanish government and the Vatican is causing some stir in Europe, and is being watched with interest in this country. The situation in Spain is perhaps little understood by many. By terms of agreement between the Vatican and Spain, the Catholic religion has been declared to be the state religion, and the Vatican has maintained an accredited representative at Madrid. For years Protestant denominations of all kinds have had to keep in the background. While, by an agreement with other nations, liberty of religious opinions was allowed, yet no celebrations or demonstrations in public were allowed, and even the houses of worship were not to bear any marks to indicate that they were used for religious services, and while front doors were allowed, they were little used, and during service were kept closed, so the passer-by would not know what was going on inside. Recently the government, backed by the king, has taken a more liberal attitude toward non Catholic denominations, and a decree has gone forth permitting the display of insignia of public worship by Protestant societies. This called forth a protest from the Vatican, and has resulted in recalling representatives of each party to the quarrel. To aggravate the situation, Don Jamie of Bourbon, pretender to the throne, and of course Catholic in his tendencies has called his Carlist supporters, as against the government, and asks them to "rally round our flag, and fight side by side in a great battle against the enemies of real liberty," stating that then he would "take the place of honor that devolves on me by birth." The Vatican hopes for the fall of the government, but the king stands with the Premier, and he declares he will not recede from his position, and that the holy see has no real cause to be offended. One paper, commenting on it, says, "The holy see is heading deliberately toward a rupture which will precipitate the opening of a rapid and energetic anti-clerical campaign." It is a struggle for power by the Vatican. Watch and see how it comes out in Spain.

Concerning the Kingdom of God and the Name of Jesus Christ.

Among the many vagaries of modern preaching and teaching from stage and pulpit and the Sunday School rostrum, is the faulty assumption that the kingdom of heaven, the kingdom of God, of the Scriptures is set up, established, and in full working order. Not in the letter of scriptural specification, which clearly defines the territory "from the river to the ends of the earth," limited only by the boundary "under the whole heaven." Dat. vii. 27.

Now comes the up-to-date theologian contending this is wrong, all wrong and misleading, because this kingdom "about which the prophets dreamed" is non-territorial and is located "in men's hearts," adducing as proof, Luke xvii. 21. So that the fallacy may at least have a scriptural tinge. Whereas, in this text advanced as proof, the meek and lowly Jesus firmly and pointedly informs the quibbling and self-righteous Pharisees that the kingdom was neither nominally at that particular place, or beyond, but territorially in part where they were standing, while heart, singular or plural is unmentioned as being the receptacle of the kingdom. Was ever heart or hearts constructed with capable capacity in mineralogical parlance to hold even that little pocket of terra firma, the so-called Holy Land by the edge of the Mediterranean Sea: let alone the bewildering space "under the whole heaven?" Yet the fact is unescapable that the installation of error no matter when and where detection of absurdities is precluded, "To be ignorant of one's ignorance is a condition to be deplored," and like Egyptian darkness, can be felt, "But he (they) that doeth the truth, cometh to the light." Jno. iii: 21).

To the model prayer given as a legacy by the Savior, Lord Jesus to his disciples in all time coming as the correct keynote in the scale of prayer, will be found the clause, "Thy kingdom come." That clause has not been rescinded. The kingdom prayed for by the Lord's instruction shall be a heavenly kingdom administered after the likes prevailing in heaven, and as no kingdom, empire, or republic hitherto extant has earned the title heavenly, God's kingdom still lingers in futurity.

Men of old have looked, and men of today are looking in the eagerness of expectatancy "for the good time coming," with the panacean Balm of Gilead to heal creation's present and chronic woes. The make-believe kingdom in men's hearts, to them is insipid, unsatisfactory and repugnant. Because, despite the bulk of preaching and teaching there anent, there is no perceptible improvement. Consequently many pertinent questions are asked in reference to the why and wherefore of these all-important things in the profile of the Scriptures.

If the heavenly kingdom be set up in men's hearts, as claimed, why is it that the nations are so assiduously learning the art of war of the most deadly approved and destructive type. While in the event of war being declared, the Red Cross Society appears on the field with its agents and appliances, virtually suggesting to the belligerents by its presence, Lay on, no matter how furious and cruel and how appalling the carnage, we are here to bind and patch you up. How long, O Lord, will such inconsistencies prevail, from the working of the false kingdom in the heart. May the truth shine forth as the effulgence of the sun in his noonday strength, that the false theories read into the Scriptures be thoroughly exposed.

Climatic conditions are unchanged. Tornados, blizzards and fearful cyclones are still in evidence. The lifetime limit of 70 or 80 years is not extended. The fearful catastrophes of Martinique, San Francisco and Messina from disturbances of the earth are ever and anon duplicated. All nature is still "ravening in tooth and claw," no move perceptibly has been made to "cause evil beasts to cease out of the land." Ezek. xxxiv: 25, 28. Else an ex-President of the United States, like the mighty Nimrod of old could not follow the hunt and chase in "Darkest Africa." Nor the wealing has not yet been known to lead and feed and play with and among the denizens of the forest, copse and field, without harm.

No such stage has been reached in world-wide history as yet, when the peoples will qualifiedly sit under their own vine and fig tree, the picture of peace and security. So long as life and property are menaced by uncontrollable mobs of lawlessness, and the unchristian competitive system pervades all ranks in their transactions of business in stocks and bonds and preferred shares and other values, in religion and politics down to dealing at the grocery and dry-goods store, while the thermometer of love for our neighbor registers zero. Love, the great teacher inculcated as the only true antidote for selfishness. Love is not an asset in competition.

Who is this, before whom these and other ills shall vanish? It is Jesus, our redeemer, the Great King. The prefix great is added to his kingly title. None of earth's historic kings were so honored. Theirs was the affix. See Alexander the Great, etc. The great king will be great in wisdom, power and might. The immensity of his domain calls for greatness. There will ultimately be no more sea. Valleys in the sea have been discovered over five miles in depth, and hills in proportion, and the prophet tells the desert and solitary places metaphorically speaking shall yet clap their hands in fertile joy and gladness. He is to be the law-giver and judge of all this vast kingdom; no more legislatures, no more congresses to frame new laws and rejuvenate old laws.

Furthermore, it is passing strange that believers of the kingdom of the heart have ignored the seer of God when he spoke in an inspirational moment, those clarion words, "Wait ye for me, saith Jehovah, until the day that I may assemble the kingdoms. For then will I turn to the peoples a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of Jehovah to serve him with one consent." Zeph. iii. 8, 9. Esperantists have made laudable effort to almost propagate an universal medium of speech, whereby those versed in Esperanto converse and read, no matter what the mother tongue may be. See Acts ii. 5-13, inclusive. Their Esperantine speech is not pure nor new, nor indeed can be, or anything emanating from fallible humanity with the solitary recorded exception of Jesus the Christ. He alone is the tried and true exemplar of the perfect life. Who would refuse to follow "in His steps" now, and become an heir and joint heir with him in the soon coming kingdom, his own rightful inheritance?

Wireless telegraphy or long distance speaking almost quite recently caused a furore among scientific and other interested people throughout the nations of this mundane sphere. Yet, strange to record it, this mode of transmitting speech is not new, but simply a forgotten art. To speak any distance without wires is as old as the institution of prayer, the mode God has ever used in hearing and communicating with his people. In scanning the horizon of past and present history, there is nothing new under the sun. Whatever engrosses local or world wide attention may have been used in some form by a prior people. Esperanto comes only as "a shadow before," the inauguration of the heavenly kingdom, wherein the glory of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. It is said some excellent men and amiable women hold the theory that the cream of all the most advantageous utilities in this age will be utilized in the kingdom age. Patents and improved patents however, will look antiquated, for intelligence goes forward in leaps and bounds unrestrained by nine-tenths of the drawbacks that shadow the Edenic Curse.

Loved and fraternal ones, it is incumbent on us to take our Bibles and search and see if these things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, are so. "Every scribe who hath been made a disciple to the kingdom of heaven...bringeth out of his treasure things new and old." There is no time to lose. "The night is far spent and the day is at hand." The King is coming back soon from the far country whence he came as gone. Ye isolated and disconsolate faithful, brace up. You will not be left out, or forgotten, when the Great King comes to make up His Jewels.

IAN KATHSON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 40.

Amie S. Whiting, as I told you in my last, died the 21st of April, 1891; my brother Virgil M. Chaplin, the 16th of the following July, but how different were their deaths,—such sadness over the passing away of the one, such joy and peace in the falling asleep of the other! Auntie Willard alludes to Virgil's death in touching terms in her diary, and, to the close alliance that existed between herself and her dear Amie in the copy of a letter that she had sent to Miss Otis.

I find from the record kept of her correspondence that this beloved foster-child was as faithfully and statedly remembered by letters whenever away from home as was the earlier daughter—Alice Johnson Gould—of Kalispell, Montana, adopted when Auntie Willard was still living in Oswego, Indiana. So, sad as was the outcome, it was not lack of love that sent Amie to her death. All Auntie Willard's adopted children seem to have had a large place in her affections, and books and papers that would be helpful to them in their daily lives, were sent to them, the same as to her own children. Even Mrs. Gould's two sons had a place in her heart, though separated from her by hundreds of miles.

But here is a letter from Miss M. A. Georgiana Otis of Boylston Place, Boston, Mass., written April 3, 1865. It related to a book that she had sent to father at Auntie Willard's suggestion, she said, "some points in the book had called out a good deal of difference of opinion and was, she feared causing separation of feeling among the brethren, there being unwillingness on the part of some to look at all sides thoroughly. Brothers Grant and Himes being supposed to be of this number, she "trusted that the truth would be finally evolved from the discussion," but gives no hint as to what the matter was about, but it must have been on the Time question, for she goes on to say, that she "thinks the work of Brother Thurman contains a good deal of interesting matter, and that she enjoyed reading it, though not competent to judge of the merits of the astronomical question now being broached by Brother Hudson and others." "She had always felt," she says, "that the time is a legitimate subject of enquiry; as much revealed as any other point of the prophecies, and had felt sure the Lord would reveal 'the time' to his waiting people before he comes. She did not feel that repeated disappointments ought to repel from the study—the Jews, being reproved and accursed because they 'knew not the time of their visitation.'

Miss Otis had met Auntie Willard, first at Wilbraham, and afterward at her own home in Boston, and had corresponded with her for some years. She felt that the friendship of this devoted woman was "one of her choice blessings, and that Auntie Willard had not only been made a blessing to her, but to many of the saints.

We of those early days remember distinctly the humble, lovely, Christian character of the Sister Parkman who was associated with Miss Otis in her work in Boston. She had died but a short time before this and Miss Otis felt deeply afflicted over her death as well as over the death of five friends of her own immediate family in the short space of two years. But "God's grace was sufficient for her and she was kept in peace."

Sister Parkman had left a fund to Sister Otis that was to be used in her work and it was in this way that she was able to send out books to those who needed them. It was through her that I received Mr. Muller's "Life of Trust."

I give this brief outline of Miss Otis' letter because of her connection with Amie Whiting in Christian work, and also because she was Auntie Willard's friend. Amie loved her.—perhaps too deeply, and in losing her mental balance, imagined that some one had stolen the dear Georgiana's affection from her and that there was nothing left to live for. How dangerous a thing it is to love any human being more than we love God, or to desire their love for ourselves, and for ourselves alone, to the exclusion of others just as worthy as we are. To love as Jesus loved, that is the acme of perfection.

God Made Liquor.

God no more "made liquor" than he made a faro table or a resort of debauchery. He no more made it than he made the tools of the burglar or the vile inventions which the customs seize. He made it only in the same sense as he made the dynamite bombs of the anarchist thugs. Wheat and corn and rye are wholly useful and wholesome food as nature yields them, but by the devices of man, strong drink is produced from them, and it ruins men if they drink too much of it, as many of them do if they drink at all. Instead, therefore, of putting the responsibility for liquor on God, we advise the clergy to lay the whole blame for it on men, as a dangerous luxury which God compels them neither to produce nor to consume any more than he compels them to do any thing else. Moreover, it is questionable whether the influence of the clergy in preventing the abuse of liquor would not be strengthened greatly if they refrained wholly from its use themselves. Besides, being usually emotional men of sedentary habits, they are better off without such a stimulant. The habit of drinking, dangerous for everybody, is especially dangerous for them in their own persons and in the example they set for other people.—New York Sun.

To all Brethren of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus in the United States and Canada.

We the undersigned Presidents of the Conferences of the Churches of God, do hereby ask you to meet with us in a General Conference to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 25th to 31st, inclusive, (Time to be extended if necessary,) for the purpose of discussing our needs as a body, and, if found necessary, organize a General Conference for the purpose of bringing us into a closer unity of the one Faith and work between the different states and territories.

We urge each state to send at least one delegate, and especially urge every brother and sister who can possibly do so to attend and take part in all discussions whether or not a delegate.

Conditions relating to our spiritual welfare are arising that cannot be ignored in the light of Scripture; therefore it is our duty as a body of people to give attention to them. We therefore not only urge but beg you to make an extra effort to be at this meeting that we may endeavor to bring order out of our apparently chaotic condition.

The Iowa State Conference has offered the use of their beautiful campgrounds, together with tents and bedding, free, and will furnish meals at 10c each to all who attend, except the regular delegates whose expenses will be met by their respective conferences.

You cannot afford to miss this meeting. Papers relating to vital questions pertaining to our spiritual welfare will be read, and will be followed by a discussion of the subject in which every brother and sister should have a voice.

Plan at once to attend. Could you spend your money in a nobler cause, or to a better advantage than for the purpose of magnifying the Truth we profess to love? Are we really anxious to hand the Truth down to our children in its purity?

In a few more years the place that knows us now will know us no more unless the Lord comes. Can we neglect such an opportunity to increase the Lord's goods and still expect to hear the welcome plaudit of "Well done good and faithful servant" when the Lord comes?

"Rev." E. O. Coontz an Adventist minister of Mineral, Ill., writes: "Your book received. Am reading its contents with much interest."

Writing from the Pacific coast, Bro. W. H. Wilson says: "I have seen your book at several places on the Coast, am pleased with it. It will be a valuable book of reference. Hope you will have a ready sale for it."

Brother C. P. Walker, Editor of The Christadelphian, Birmingham, England, writes in the July number concerning our book, "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts:" "The book seems good, and we believe the brotherhood is of good reputation."

Excerpts.

THE IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

In my last article I gave a brief summary of the belief of Origen. Professor Shaff says of Origen, "His fame survives for all time as the father of that Bible criticism which is the scientific foundation of Christian truth." Shaff says further of him "Also in regard to the dogma of the divinity of Christ, he powerfully supported it and was the first to teach expressly the eternal generation of the Son." Eusebius speaking of the time between 211 19 A. D says, "About this time sprung up in Arabia as the propagators of false opinions. These asserted that the human soul, as long as the present state of the world existed perished at death and died with the body but that it would be raised again with the body at the resurrection. And as a considerable council was held on account of this Origen being again requested likewise here discussed the point in question with so much force that those who had been before led astray completely changed their opinions." So we have in Origen the destroyer of the truth, as it is in Christ, Jesus and the father of orthodoxy. His learned followers do not all give him the credit he deserves for their faith and most of the unlearned believers in orthodoxy know little or nothing at all about him and his wonderful philosophy further than they get it from their teachers as it has filtered through the ages.

Many of the early Christians were buried in the catacombs at Rome, and before Gnosticism and Origen got in their deadly work among the Christians there are some of the inscriptions written on their tombs, "Here rests my flesh, but at the last day, through Christ I believe it will be raised from the dead." "You well deserving one having left your (relations) be asleep in peace—you will arise—a temporary rest is granted you." "Justus who will rise with the saints through Christ." "Here reposes in peace Laurentia who believed in the resurrection." This is supposed to be the most ancient inscription over a Christian in the catacombs "As a place of sleep for Titus Flavius." But when gnosticism and Origen had got in their diabolical work among the Christians this is the form of some of the inscriptions found in the catacombs "In Christ Alexander is not dead but lives above the stars, etc." By the middle of the third century, while there may have been many true believers yet the large mass of the so-called Christians were so degraded by that time that one of the bitter causes of controversy was whether infants should be immersed immediately at birth in order to save their immortal souls, or eight days afterward, they had not got down yet to the farce of sprinkling them yet, and calling that baptism. That did not come in till nearly a thousand years later as a general practice. Constantine the Great, who is said to have been the first Christian emperor, delayed being immersed till within a few days of the time he left he was going to die, so as to have all his sins washed away at once during his life, however, he presided at their councils and decided as to what was the faith to be believed and who were Christians and who were not, as the following proclamation issued by him will show. "It is our pleasure that all the nations that are governed by our clemency and moderation, should steadfastly adhere to the religion taught by St. Peter to the Romans; which faithful tradition has preserved and which is now professed by the pontif Damasus, and by Peter, bishop of Alexandria, a man of apostolic holiness. According to the discipline of the apostles, let us believe in the sole Deity of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost; under an equal Majesty and a pious Trinity. We authorize the followers of the doctrine to assume the title of Catholic Christians, and as we judge that all others are extravagant madmen, we brand them with the infamous name of heretics and declare that these conventicals shall no longer usurp the respectable appellation of a church. Besides the condemnation of divine justice they must expect to suffer the severe penalties which our authority guided by heavenly wisdom shall think proper to inflict upon them."

Then the orthodox Christians started out in their bloody work of persecuting God's people through the centuries and destroyed their writings so that we can get very little trace of them now. This proclamation of Constantine was issued after the Council of Nicea, where he presided and had a hard time keeping the bishops in order. The discussion was as to Christ being co-equal and co-eternal with the Father. The discussion lasted so long that two of the bishops there assembled died in the meantime, and once the decision was arrived at that Christ was co-equal and co-eternal with the Father. Gibbon tells us that in order to have all the signatures of the bishops who had been present at the council, the document was laid in the graves of the dead bishops and their immortal souls came in the night time and signed it!!!

The doctrine of the inherent immortality reigned supreme and woe unto any one who dared to question it. William Tyndal born in England about 1484 and publicly strangled in Antwerp in 1536 by the old mother of harlots said "The true faith putteth the resurrection which we ho warned to look for every hour." The heathen philosophers denied that but put that the soul did ever live. And the pope joineth the spiritual doctrine of Christ and the fleshly doctrine of philosophers together, things so contrary that they cannot agree any more than the spirit and the flesh do in a Christian man."

Leo the tenth who was pope when Luther left the Catholic Church, was born 1475, died in 1521. issued this decree, "Whereas, some have dared to assert concerning the reasonable soul that it is mortal; we, with the approbation of the sacred council (the fifth council of the Lateran) do condemn and reprobate all who assert that the intellectual soul is mortal, seeing that the soul is not only, truly of itself and essentially the form of the human body, as it is expressed in the canon of Pope Clement the fifth, but likewise immortal; and we strictly prohibit all from dogmatizing otherwise, and we decree that all who adhere to the like erroneous assertions shall be spurned and punished as heretics." To this decree Luther replied that the immortality of the soul "Was some of the decretals of the Roman dung-hill." Those who admire Luther so much for his courage and great work that he did for the freedom of mankind from the tyrany of the papacy still cling most tenaciously to the "Roman dunghill." But Barnes who has written eleven Volumes of Commentaries on the New Testament and five on portions of the Old Testament says, "I have no hope of the immortality of the soul, or of future happiness, except that which is founded on the Gospel of Christ. I have seen no evidence. I now see none, of the immortality of the soul as derived from human reasoning which would be satisfactory to my mind, and my belief that the soul will exist forever is founded on the fact that life and immortality are brought to light through the Gospel. The reasoning of Plato on this subject, in the Phaedo, has done nothing to convince me on that point." But the people love to have it so, and what will they do in the end thereof?

Sunday School Lesson.

AUGUST 14, 1910.

The Laborers in the Vineyard.
Matt. xx. 1-16.

Golden Text:—Many that are first shall be last, and the last shall be first. Matthew xix. 30.

The time of this lesson is soon after that of last week, while Jesus was in Perea, on his way to Jerusalem.

In this lesson the kingdom of heaven is again likened to something. A householder, the owner of a farm or vineyard, has need of laborers, so went out early in the morning to the place where such were usually found to hire men to work. This was an invitation to come work in my vineyard.

After our last lesson, where the rich young man had gone away, preferring his money to service for Jesus, Peter asks what is in store for those disciples who had forsaken all to follow their Master. Jesus had told the young man that if he gave what he had to the poor, and followed him, that there was treasure in heaven assured for him. Now Peter wants to know what they can expect, and is told that thrones of glory await them, and all who have forsaken houses and lands, homes and kindred, for him shall receive an hundredfold, and inherit everlasting life.

He then warns them,—But many first shall be last, and the last first.

By other parables we have found that the field or vineyard is the world, and Jesus is the householder representative of God, who is the maker and owner. The true vines are planted, but they must have care and tilling if good fruit is to be gathered at the harvest time.

The history tells us how the kingdom of Israel had been planted, but the tilling by the worldly-minded priests and leaders had caused "wild grapes", "bitter clusters," to come forth, instead of the good fruit, so that now a new planting is made, and new laborers are being hired to do the work.

The lesson shows that some laborers were engaged early in the morning, and were promised a penny for their work during the day. At various hours as the day advanced, even to the eleventh hour, laborers were engaged, with the promise of such pay as was right.

The penny of that time was worth about 17 cents of our money, and its purchasing power was then several times greater than now, so that the wages were fair, being more than an ordinary Roman soldier received.

When night came, the steward called the men in, and was directed to give to each a penny—those who had worked all day, and those who had only labored one hour, the same. Objection was made by those who had borne the heat and burden of the day, that they should have no more than they who only served one hour. They were told that no wrong was done them, as they received what was agreed upon as their wage for the day, and they had no cause of complaint—the householder had the right to give to the others as he saw fit. According to law he could do what he chose with his own, and they had no right to interfere or grumble. They were given what was rightfully theirs.

Much has been said of the unfairness of giving to the eleventh hour laborer as much as the one received who has worked all day. Some have likened this to what has been called "death-bed repentance." A man working his wicked devices all his active life, and when he comes to be stricken with death, repents and after receives eternal life in the kingdom the same as the man who has tried all his life to serve God.

This sort of condition does not look just fair, but really it has nothing to do with our present lesson. This householder wanted certain work done that day. He went to the market-place early in the morning to get workmen, and hired what he supposed would be a sufficient force to do his work. As the day progresses he sees need for more men, and goes for them, promising fair pay. At the eleventh hour he sees urgent need for men to accomplish the task, and going forth sees men equipped for labor standing idle all the day, and on enquiring the cause gets the answer that though they were ready and anxious to work, no man had hired them. They are immediately engaged, and promised adequate pay.

There is another phase to this subject. The men who had remained at the place where such laborers were usually found all day, and had not gone off to the saloon, but had been on the look-out for a job till the eleventh hour, had been faithful even in idleness and were still ready to do one hour's work. He was not like many loafers are in our streets, who when asked to do a true work will put it off till the next day on one pretext or another. Such do not really want to work, but these men in our lesson are different. They had stayed all day, anxious to be engaged—willing to do any work assigning them.

The Master deemed such worthy of as much pay as the others, and so gave them the penny at night, claiming the right to do as he chose with his own.

Many who have advantages in the way of learning and wealth, education and talent, while pretending to be workers for God, do very little in his vineyard beyond a formal service requiring little real effort and no sacrifice. Such will complain when given the last place, the first having been given to some earnest, energetic, self-denying worker who has served but a short space of time.

The desire to be first is not a good incentive. Those who merely seek the wages of well doing, are like men in a shop who neglect their work to look at the clock. Such care little for the success of the business—their wages is all they care for. Such Christians (if they be worthy the name even) have no care for the real upbuilding of the cause of God, so long as they are prominent and have the first place.

The spirit of your service is what counts. Self centered, formal service will never receive from the Lord, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," for this will only be said to those who have done well—the unselfish man or woman who does work for Christ because the spirit of love animates and prompts to words and deeds of kindness and cheer.

Come Out of Her My People.

What do these words mean? God's people are in danger. It sounds like the signal for flight. Surely they must heed the call or suffer the consequences. Where are they? and who is the Her of whom the Revelator speaks, so steeped in sin and has the people of God in bondage? Can it be that she is the [illegible] and beautiful of chapter 12, clothed with the sun and the moon under her feet? Yes; but she is fallen. For in John xviii we see her again, disrobed of her garment of light, and arrayed in purple and scarlet and the mother of a numerous progeny; he sees her going into judgment upon a scarlet colored beast, full of names of blasphemy. Her name is written on her forehead, Mystery, Babylon, the great mother of harlots and abominations of the earth. God's people can fully identify her. The church of Rome and her daughters partake of the character and disposition here described. So shall this great system of error composed of Protestant sects, with their mother's name in their forehead, go into judgment, to receive the plagues written in the Book. Rev xviii 4. Many of God's people are still entangled in the meshes of this great Babylonian net. Will they remain and drink from the golden cup until it is too late? Or will they heed the warning of God and be free? Come out of her my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. Rev xviii 4 8. Escape for thy life, look not behind thee. Remember Lot's wife." God warns his people now as of old. The whole system of religion as found in this great confusion of tongues, has for its foundation stone the immortality of the soul. It is in truth, "the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird." And unless the light of truth is permitted to shine on the understanding of those who are thus enslaved, they will receive the awful judgments of the seven last plagues. But the Lord will not forsake his people while they are struggling for freedom. They shall know the truth and the truth shall make them free, for he is able to save to the uttermost. Yes, God is calling his people out of this darkness and confusion unto his marvelous light. Man unassisted cannot do this great work. The Holy Spirit was given to guide his people into all truth, and shall abide with them forever. John xiv 16; xvi 13 Some of our loved ones now in this sectarian net are unmindful of their danger, and have not awakened, and may linger too long. Others will make their escape before judgment overtakes them. "Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord has made ruler over his house hold to give them meat in due season. Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing." These words of our Lord were spoken for the present time. To give meat in due season, or just prior to our Lord's appearing is to meet with great opposition. Who then is a faithful and wise servant? The thought received is, They are hard to find. The evil servant unwilling to receive pure food, will eat and drink with the drunken. Begins to smite fellow servants, rejects all light concerning his Lord's coming. The Lord that servant will come when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware. So we learn the great truths spoken by our Lord to his disciples of old are applicable today. If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also. The way is strait and narrow, but it is the one our Master trod. It is the path of the just, and a shining light, leads to the mountain of God. We are nearing the summit, will we reach it? O blessed Lord hold our hand lest we fall. Blessed thought, almost home at last.

SALLIE BLACK.

For Me.

What is for me, happiness or misery? No one can be happy, and be mean, selfish, or ungrateful. True happiness consists in making others happy: in living a pure upright life, in getting wisdom, and retaining it. Prov. iii: 13, 18, in trusting in the Lord, happy is he that feareth to do wrong, and Peter says, if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye; and if ye be reproached for the name of Christ happy are ye. Why? For the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you.

Sometimes tears show happiness; that is when they are tears of joy. Has God anything for me that would cause me to be happy? Yes: He has promised eternal life to all that will come to him through Jesus Christ. Why should that make me happy? Why the idea of living with Christ thousands and thousands of years, with no sickness, neither sorrow, nor pain, nor death, and all people just as good as I will be, with no one to molest me, or make afraid, is a joyful state that one cannot attain to in this life, and whoever in this present life lives in such a way, that he can have the blessed assurance of being raised when Christ comes or changed if living when Christ comes, is in the most blissful happy state, it is possible for mortal man to be in. Wherefore comfort one another with these words. Will not that be a happy time? Will that time be for me? Yes if I do my part and live so I am found worthy. But if I do not live so I will be accepted then my life will surely be miserable. How are you trying to live? Will you be rewarded with happiness, or misery? This present time is the only time you are sure of. Can you not make a start for eternal life and happiness. Will you try? It is worth trying for.

Yours in Hope,

E. W. KNAPP.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 20-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. ALLARD.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Ohio will be held August 17 to 21 inclusive in the new church 10623 Lee Ave. Cleveland, Ohio.

The church is located in the East end of the city near East 105 Street, a short distance from the street cars.

Please communicate with the Pastor R. G. Huggins and arrangements will be made to meet you at the Depot.

The program will appear later.

J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus of the State of Illinois will be held in Oregon, beginning Wednesday, August 17 and continuing over Sunday the 21.

This Conference will follow immediately the annual Bible School conducted at that place.

We are expecting a greater meeting than ever before. Come.

EMMA L. SMITH, Sec.

THE Eighth Annual Bible School under the auspices of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, is announced to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 8 to 18, 1910. The teachers are to be the same as last year, the board and lodging are free, though any donation to the cause will be received. Students should bring note books, pencil and Bible. Any further information will be furnished by S. J. Lindsay, Oregon, Illinois, who should be at once notified if you are thinking of attending.

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the annual Conference of Missouri will convene August 10th to 15th, inclusive, at Morse Mill, Mo. Program will be given later.

J. H. MORSE.

The Missouri-Kansas Conference of the Church of God will meet at Severance, Kansas, on Grand Island Railroad, about 40 miles west of St. Joe, August 20-28 inclusive. Business meeting August 22 at 10 a. m. Meetings forenoons, afternoons and evenings. All lovers of free speech and investigation of religious questions are cordially invited to attend. There is good train service from St. Joe, trains leaving for the west about 10 a m, 4 p m, and 8 p m.

By order of the Con. Board,
EUGENE HOWARD, Pres.

The Missouri Conference of the Church of God, will open Wednesday evening, August 10, and continue over the following Sunday. Brothers Conner of Ohio, and Allard of Iowa, will be with us, assisted by Brother Winningham of Missouri, and possibly others. The program will be announced from day to day, arranged according to convenience and circumstances.

The place of the meeting, Morse Mills, Mo., can be reached by only one railroad conveniently. So all coming will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern R. R. to Victoria, which is about forty miles south of St. Louis. Hacks will meet every train and convey passengers to Hillsboro, where the brethren will meet them and take them to Morse Mills. All coming please send word of date and train of arrival, to J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

This will be our third Conference in Missouri, and we pray that it will be as successful as those preceding. We want every Church of God in Missouri to be represented. Plan now to come. Then we will see what a closer union of the brethren will do!

SADIE B. MORSE, Sec'y.

The twenty-fifth Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, in the State of Nebraska, will be held in Omaha, Aug. 13th to the 21st inclusive.

The meetings will be held in a tent. Meals will be furnished at 10 cents and lodging free. Owing to the greater distance those in the west have to come, the Brethren of Omaha have decided to pay three dollars on every one's fare coming from west of St. Paul and Grand Island. Good speakers will be provided and we urge every one to come and help make this Conference a success and enjoy the benefits which cannot help but follow an attendance.

Please read Bro. Adams' report for June, thoughtfully and carefully, and let it test self to see if sacrifices are really being made. If we are truly looking for Christ's soon return, let us give practical proof of it and put his business before all other business.

Christ has left us in charge of his work for a time and by joining ourselves to him, we have promised to be faithful to the trust and make his business a success as far as we can. In order to make any line of work a success we must concentrate all our energies upon it, and subordinate and bend all things to it. If we have not been doing this, but have been putting worldly business and pleasure ahead, let us begin with this Conference to put Christ's ahead.

During Conference, if attended in the right spirit, faith and strength for the following year's work will be obtained, and we will be better able to wait patiently for his return. Every one make a special effort to be there and do his share toward making a good start for the next year's work. Let us not be shirkers. Every thing possible will be done to make your stay both pleasant and profitable. If further information is desired write Bro. M. D. Newell c Blair, Neb, Pres. of Conference Board.

ALTA KING.

People With Keen Eyesight.

The best eyesight is possessed by those people whose lands are vast and barren, and where obstacles tending to shorten the sight are few. Esquimaux will detect a white fox in the snow at a great distance away, while the Arabs of the deserts of Africa have such extreme powers of vision that on the vast plains of the desert they will pick out objects invisible to the ordinary eye at ranges from one to ten miles distant. Amongcivilized people the Norwegians have better eyesight than most, if not all others, as they more generally fulfill the necessary conditions.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 803 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

IN our issue of April 8 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergansen, Barberton, Ohio.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and after war is when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John I. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Don'ts.

Don't deny the existence of a talking serpent in the Garden of Eden, if you do you are on the road to the higher Criticism and there is no telling where you will land. Some one who will deny the existence of two trees and that will destroy the historicity of the passage.

Don't deny the supernatural begetting of Jesus on the ground of your own conclusion, that, if supernaturally begotten, he would have the nature of the Father—be immortal. For the annunciation of his birth the angel said to Mary, "that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God;" and he was repeatedly called the Son of God prior to his death and resurrection. Adam was supernaturally created, made in the image of God, "Which was the son of God" but not immortal. We can be made in the image of God without having his nature; be in his image morally, wear the divine nature in the future.

Don't say that Christ died for one portion of mankind—only a few—in one sense and for another portion in quite another sense; that to the few was extended the offer of eternal life, but to the many no such offer was made, for surely in whatever sense he died for the few, he died for the many.

Don't say that Christ, in his prophecy on the Mount used a symbol, or he never used a symbol in all of his teaching. He did, however, use figures of speech and parables.

Don't say that the language of the Bible is absolutely literal. The word "deep" is sometimes used literally, sometimes figuratively, in some cases being equivalent to death itself, and so with other words. Mountains being used for great kingdoms, hills for little kingdoms, waters and rivers for peoples, and floods for an invading army.

If you must believe in a future antichrist don't deny the existence of a past and present one, who has filled the world with the fruits of unrighteousness, blinded the minds and enslaved the consciences of countless millions, burned the Holy Book of God and put its followers to death, usurped the throne and kingdom of Christ and set his mouth against the very heavens.

Don't say that only easy parts of the Bible should be studied, discoursed and written upon. It is well to study difficult portions of the Bible, for thereby one gains not only mental strength, but a more comprehensive knowledge of God's Word. All Scripture was written for our learning.

Don't say that it is unprofitable to try to explain and harmonize difficult passages of Scripture with other portions of the divine record.

I have heard people say, "That is your hobby" when a subject has only been talked on a few times. To ride a doctrine as a hobby is to be on it continually, like the boy on his hobby horse.

In interpreting the Bible don't fail to grasp the scope of the passage, especially must you do this in expounding parables.

Don't think the Lord's cause will take care of itself without your aid. Many Christians act as if they wanted to make that prophecy come true that there will be little faith in the last days. Don't do that. Don't expect somebody to do much if you do nothing.

Don't cease working, don't cease giving, don't cease praying, don't cease looking for the coming of the Lord.

JOHN L. WINCE.

Ye Shall be Witnesses Unto Me.

In the first chapter of Acts the historian records the fact that Jesus remained forty days with his apostles after his resurrection, teaching them the things concerning the kingdom of God. He proved to them that he was the identical person with whom they had associated for three and a half years. They handled him, ate with him and talked with him. The object of all this was that they might be competent witnesses of his resurrection.

They were directed to remain at Jerusalem until they should receive the Holy Spirit. For ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in Judea and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

They were to receive power after the Holy Spirit came upon them to do many mighty works in his name. John wrote, The comforter which is the Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have told you. When this spirit of truth is come, he shall testify of me. And ye shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

We find that Jesus was anointed by the spirit to preach the gospel; also that he anointed his apostles to do the same. By this they were able to cure the sick and were given power over all unclean spirits. This qualified them as witnesses for the truth.

Why all this preparation, you ask? That men and women might be led to receive the message of life and be counted as God's children. It is written that God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

Every witness whom Jehovah has sent has been fully qualified. Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. If we reject the message, we reject the Holy Spirit. In so doing we reject eternal life. Jesus said to his apostles, The flesh profiteth nothing: The words that I speak unto you they are spirit and they are life.

No one has taken more pains to prepare his witnesses than did Jesus. He was their instructor for three and a half years. They were given power to perform miracles in his name. During these years they were sent out to preach the same gospel that Jesus preached, which was the gospel of the kingdom of God. Luke says they went everywhere preaching this gospel and healing the sick. These witnesses being qualified are sent out to deliver a special message.

The message that Jesus sent by his special messengers is found recorded in Mark and reads thusly, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.

It is recorded that they went everywhere preaching the gospel. The gospel was modified by "of the kingdom of God," or "of the kingdom of heaven." When this gospel was preached the kingdom of God was over-turned and had been since the days of Zedekiah that wicked prince of Israel. Eze xxi: 25 27.

The good news concerning this kingdom is that it is to be restored again. The prophet says, It shall be no more until he comes whose right it is and I will give it (the kingdom) to him. Every prophet from Moses to Malachi speaks of the restoring again of this kingdom.

John, the forerunner of the Christ, declared the majesty of heaven nigh at hand. The great prophet who would follow him was Israel's king. He was the heir to the vineyard whom they killed.

This gospel is preached to the whole world in order to select a ruling class who shall rule in righteousness. The kingdom promised the "little flock" will be a future and literal kingdom. This kingdom is first to be local, or the mustard seed kingdom. It is to occupy the land promised Abraham, the land of Canaan. Jesus and those selected from the nations will be the ruling class and Israel restored will be the subjects. In that day Jerusalem will be rebuilt and become the capital city of the world. The laws will go out from here disciplining the nations and bringing them under the rule of Israel restored. The nations that submit will be blessed through a king who will reign in righteousness and princes who will rule in judgment. The Psalmist says, Be ye wise now therefore, O ye kings; be instructed, ye judges of the earth. Serve the Lord with fear and rejoice with trembling. Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are they that put their trust in him.

This is applicable when Jesus and the saints have possessed the kingdom. This is the stone that will break in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver and the gold. It will fill the whole earth. This kingdom will acquire dominion, and greatness; will become universal under the whole heaven.

In quoting from the 72nd Psalm we read, He shall judge the people with righteousness and the poor with judgment. The mountains (ruling class) shall bring peace to the people. In his day shall righteousness flourish and an abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth.

These conditions are not to be brought about without trouble. The nations of this earth will not surrender their power without a struggle. The obstinate ones will be forced to obey even if the rulers are destroyed. The saints shall have the honor of binding their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron. Psa. cxlix. All beings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him. His enemies shall lick the dust.

In contemplating the great blessing no wonder it is written, that the prayers of David, the son of Jesse are ended. When the kingdom, dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven prevails nothing can harm in all the earth. Jehovah's purpose will then be fulfilled and his promise to the fathers be made sure, viz: As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. Brothers and sisters, let us labor and pray for the hastening of these times.

Your brother in the Hope,
D. C. ROBISON.

Table Talk.

PSALMS CXIX. 116.

Uphold me according unto thy word, that I may live: and let me not be ashamed of my hope.

David is here praying for God to uphold him according to his word.

Isaiah xli. 10 records: Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea I will help thee; yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.

I Cor x: 13, There hath no temptation taken you, but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

What is recorded, brothers and sisters is for us to-day just as much as it was for those of the early church. Sometimes we think our temptations and troubles and sorrows are more than we can bear, but our trials are only such as any other has to bear.

The greater part of our ills and troubles are brought about by our own neglect to the laws of God.

Gal. vi: 7-8. Be ye not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap life everlasting.

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord has promised to them that love him.

Do you notice brothers and sisters to whom it is that the Lord is going to give this crown of life?

To them them that love him.

How do we generally treat those we love? Do we show our love for them by going exactly contrary to their advice and loving requests?

I am very much afraid, brothers and sisters, that if we used those tactics we would soon convince them the we loved ourselves instead of loving them.

If we were to go into partnership with one of our dearest friends, and he furnished everything, and all we had to furnish was our labor, and then out of every dollar we made we were to say, I furnished the labor and did all the work, and I don't see why I should give you more than five cents or two cents from every dollar we make, for it was my efforts that brought the returns, and I am entitled to all but a cent, but I will give you two of them. Don't you think, brothers and sisters, others would say we were the most ungrateful persons it was ever their lot to meet.

We would probably make excuses and say the expenses were very great and then I had to have this, that, and the other, but do you think our excuses would go with our friends who are joking on at our acts.

There is laid up for us a crown of life eternal, for those who love the Lord and endureth temptation. Brothers and sisters, are we stewards of God's wealth, (for we brought nothing into this world, and we can take nothing along,) doing those things for His Cause, and are we showing our love for Christ and his cause, or for ourselves, by the way we minister our stewardship?

Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God; for God can neither be tempted with evil, neither temptoth he any man: but every man is tempted when he is drawn away by his own lust and enticed.

Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

Do not err, my beloved brethren. Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

Be ye patient therefore brethren, unto the coming of the Lord; stablish your hearts for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

Let me not be ashamed of my hope. Christ says in Matt. x: 32, 33, Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.

But whosoever shall deny me before men him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven. Ps. xxv. Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

Oh my God, I trust in thee; let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me.

The enemies, dear brothers and sisters do not necessarily have to be persons, but they may be any of the lusts to which we may submit ourselves to be overcome, and therefore acknowledge that they are master instead of Christ.

Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed; let them be ashamed which transgress without cause.

Show me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths.

Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the Lord of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.

P. L. MORRON.

Upon This Rock. Matt xvi: 18.

In answer to the Lord's interrogation of his disciples as to who he was, Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." As a result, Jesus said, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

The point at issue is, Upon what rock was the church builded? "Peter" means stone or rock; now does that prove the church was founded on Peter? If so, upon whom was the church of other ages, Acts vii: 38, built? And is Peter able to bear up the burden of the saints out of the tomb, that hades shall not prevail upon them?

If we can determine what is the foundation of the church, we can find whether that foundation be Peter, or what. So we read in 1 Cor. iii: 11, "Other foundations can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Then the church was builded, not on Peter, but upon the truth in his words, "Thou art the Christ," for this truth is the foundation laid. Because Peter by revelation perceived this truth, his name was changed from Simon to the word meaning rock, in keeping with the rock of this foundation-truth.

Further evidence is found in Eph. ii: 20, "built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone." Upon this foundation the church of all ages was built, verse 19, "church in the wilderness" and all, for they looked forward by type and promise to this coming One. But how can "apostles and prophets" be the same foundation as Jesus Christ, even if he be therein as the "chief cornerstone?" Because all the prophets, Acts iii: 24, and apostles, Acts viii: 5, 35 and xviii 5, preached this foundation truth, Christ, or the kingdom of God, Luke ix: 2, which is the same thing, Acts viii: 12.

Who laid this foundation stone? The Father, Is. xxviii: 16. How then can Paul do it, 1 Cor. iii: 10? Because he preached the foundation, "Christ," that God raised him from the dead to fulfill all the gospel promises, to assure thereby the forgiveness of sins, salvation from sin in the power of a Lord risen out of the flesh, and salvation from death through "the power of an endless life."

Upon this resurrection-rock is the church founded; upon a living Lord, and not upon a dead man, even though he be an apostle; for by his resurrection, Ro. i: 4, was this foundation of Sonship demonstrated.

Notice

To those of the Household of Faith everywhere. Greeting:

We wish to call to your remembrance the notice given immediately after the Annual Conference, concerning the Bible School which is to convene at Coats Grove, Mich., beginning August 28, for one week, to be concluded by the Quarterly Conference Sept. 2nd-4th. The value of the Bible School has been fully demonstrated, and we wish to urge that all that are interested in its success to plan to attend. Entertainment will be furnished by the Coats Grove brethren, and they desire a full attendance. As soon as possible, notify Bro. A. K. Richardson, R. F. D. 5, Hastings, Mich., that you will be there so that you can be provided for.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay is expected to have charge of the class, which will insure profit to all that attend.

Coats Grove is located in Barry County, about seven miles from Hastings, and is on the C. K. and S. R'y. If you cannot make connections by this route, go to Hastings via the M. C. R'y, notifying Bro. Richardson beforehand, if possible, and you will be met with a rig.

Don't forget the date and place, and come with Bibles, paper and pencil, and a determination to make it the most successful meeting we have held.

The Restitution.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THING. WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 10, 1910. NUMBER 30.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

To all Brethren of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus in the United States and Canada.

We the undersigned Presidents of the Conferences of the Churches of God, do hereby ask you to meet with us in a General Conference to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 29th to 31st, inclusive, (Time to be extended if necessary,) for the purpose of discussing our needs as a body, and, if found necessary, organize a General Conference for the purpose of bringing us into a closer unity of the one Faith and work between the different states and territories.

We urge each state to send at least one delegate, and especially urge every brother and sister who can possibly do so to attend and take part in all discussions whether or not a delegate.

Conditions relating to our spiritual welfare are arising that cannot be ignored in the light of Scripture; therefore it is our duty as a body of people to give attention to them. We therefore not only urge but beg you to make an extra effort to be at this meeting that we may endeavor to bring order out of our apparently chaotic condition.

The Iowa State Conference has offered the use of their beautiful campgrounds, together with tents and bedding, free, and will furnish meals at 10c each to all who attend, except the regular delegates whose expenses will be met by their respective conferences.

You cannot afford to miss this meeting. Papers relating to vital questions pertaining to our spiritual welfare will be read, and will be followed by a discussion of the subject in which every brother and sister should have a voice.

Plan at once to attend. Could you spend your money in a nobler cause, or to a better advantage than for the purpose of magnifying the Truth we profess to love? Are we really anxious to hand the Truth down to our children in its purity?

In a few more years the place that knows us now will know us no more unless the Lord comes. Can we neglect such an opportunity to increase the Lord's goods and still expect to hear the welcome plaudit of "Well done good and faithful servant" when the Lord comes?

A. R. UNDERWOOD, OFFICE EDITOR

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA. AUG. 10, 1910.

BRETHREN, last week we gave some figures showing how easy it would be for the Editor and wife to attend one or more of the Conferences to be held, and meet with those of like faith, if we could have what is due us. We gave statement of what was due from three states, and said if each would send in these dues we would have in hand at once $159.00. To give you an idea of how this was taken hold of, we will just say that up to Saturday evening we received from Illinois $1.50, from Ohio $3.00, from Iowa $12.00. In all $16.50 out of $159.00. What do you say, brethren, can't you aid us with a little more? This will not quite do, as you can see for yourself.

Dear Brother Underwood.

I drop you a line to ask you to change the date of our Conference. Too many meetings in August, and I am unable to get speakers. Change to September 3-11.

I expect to be at the Illinois and Iowa meetings, and would be glad to see you there.

Yours in hope,
ALMUS ADAMS.

On the fourth page will be found an announcement for the Nebraska Conference to meet at Omaha on August 18 to 21. The above letter just received in Monday mail, tells of the change in date, and all interested will take notice. We would much enjoy meeting Brother Adams and others at these meetings, but the signs are not favorable at present.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Will you please make it known in the next issue of THE RESTITUTION that the Cleveland brethren extend a hearty invitation to all of like faith to attend the Ohio Conference. Sleeping arrangements have been made to accommodate the visiting brethren at the homes of those within walking distance of the Church.

Yours in hope,
W. S. TOMLINSON.

The above letter is self-explanatory. The Cleveland brethren want you at the Conference, and will do their utmost to make your visit pleasant. Brother Tomlinson speaks for them with authority, as he is President of the Conference, and an Elder in the Cleveland Church. Having been the recipient in years past of the hospitality of these brethren, the Editor can assure you that the invitation is hearty, and you will be made very welcome. All go who can do so.

Sons of God.

For as many as are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons of God. Rom. viii: 14.

Who is led by the spirit of God?

Certainly: not those under the law. For if ye be led of the spirit, ye are not under the law. Gal. v: 18. Hereby know ye the spirit of God. Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God; and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God. 1 John iv: 2. Then if you confess that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, you will believe it, and in obeying you become a Son of God. Whosoever believeth and shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God and whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God, and if born of God, then a son of God. 1 John iv: 15 v: 1. Whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world, and he that overcometh the world believes that Jesus is the son of God. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. Whoever does an act that gives him life, is a son of God. Christ's command: Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved. Believing the gospel and being baptized, makes one the son of God.

Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we may be called sons of God. Beloved, now are we the sons of God? And it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. 1 John iii: 1, 2.

All the promises given in the Book, whereby we may be saved; viz: believing and being baptized; he that endureth to the end; calleth on the name of the Lord; believe on the Lord Jesus and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. In being saved, we are the recipients of God's great gift, the gift of eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. By laying hold on eternal life, we become the sons of God, through faith and obedience. God is at all times ready, and willing to take more sons into His family.

Don't you, dear reader, want to become a son of God? The present is the only time you have any assurance of, and you can in no way, improve this time to any better use, than to become a son of God. This is the greatest and grandest adoption ever known, and is free for all. Will you accept it?

Yours in Hope,
E. W. KNAPP.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I see a piece in our family paper (we are all of one family in the one faith) it is where the Editor is kindly speaking of some who have let their time run out on their paper; have been negligent in sending in the money due to Brother Underwood. I am sorry, for this ought not to be. We have taken THE RESTITUTION for twenty-three years, and in all that time it has never crossed our minds to let our time expire without renewing, and sending in the money promptly.

For the last twelve years we have sent the paper to three or four families outside of the faith, and Brother Underwood has been very good, giving a reduction on those outside the faith as he wished to share in the work. We appreciate this very much. We consider it a pleasure to have such a good paper to pay for. It has such good articles in it. We feel so thankful to those who write for the paper for their labor. They who work in the vineyard shall receive a reward. It is a duty that belongs to each one of us to do what we can.

Now I hope, brothers and sisters, you who have been thoughtless in paying for your paper, will stop and go to thinking, and the first thing you know you will have it all studied out how you can raise the money and send it to Brother Underwood in a few days. I feel sure you would make Brother and Sister Underwood to rejoice, as by your so doing you will make it possible for this brother and sister to go to one or more of the good Conferences, and I think they ought to be there, as I have heard they are sound in the faith, and I feel they would be a help to the Conference. I met Brother and Sister Underwood six years ago at the Antioch Conference in Indiana, and they were a help to the meeting—Sister Underwood was indeed a great help in the singing. I would love to hear of them attending our Conference at Cleveland, Ohio, which will commence August 17. I feel they would be a help, and it will be an enjoyment to them. I have been told a number of times by those who have visited in the home of Brother and Sister Underwood that they do all that lays in their power to make it pleasant for the brothers and sisters when they have meetings at Plymouth or near there.

Brothers and Sisters, let us each one take hold and do what we can for the benefit of spreading the true gospel, let our lot be what it may. Do it willingly, and not stand back and expect some one else to do our part, for that never can be done. No labor, no reward. What a sad thought. Thanks be to our blessed Redeemer that he has made it possible for the weakest of us to be in his kingdom if we will only use the talent he has left to us.

Now I am going to listen to hear of Brother and Sister Underwood attending several Conferences. I hope they may be permitted to attend the General Conference at Waterloo, Ia. How much I would love to be there, but I know I cannot be, so I will just wait and live in hope of meeting at the great gathering, when the King of all kings and Lord of lords shall be there, and every one who has become a child of God and have held out faithful to the end, will be there. Oh, what a gathering that will be.

May we all be present at that great gathering, and meet, without the loss of one, is my prayer.

Your Sister in hope,
MRS. W. H. EIDEMILLER.

[The above is given at the earnest request of the writer and others, and not because we enjoy personal mention of this kind.—ED.]

Grant us, O Lord, to pass this day in gladness and peace, without stumbling and without stain; that reaching the eventide victorious over all temptations, we may praise Thee, the eternal God, who art blessed and dost govern all things, world without end. R. L. Stevenson.

Dear Restitution:

I will try to write a short letter for the first time in my life to THE RESTITUTION. I have been taking the paper for some time, and have got a great deal of information from it. I have been a hard student of the Bible for four years. When I first started out I joined the Campbellites. I was getting right down to business, and one day I and the preacher were talking on the Abraham covenant. He said Abraham had received all the promises God ever promised him. That was not what my Bible taught me. My Bible says they all died in the faith, not having received the promises. Heb xi 13. Acts vii 5, said, and he gave him [Abraham] none inheritance in it; no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him. Gal iii 29, says, And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. From the teaching of the Bible, I am convinced that it will take the resurrection for Abraham and his seed to receive the promises. and I am sure that if we do the things God has commanded us to do, it will be counted to us for righteousness. My Bible teaches me that this earth is the future home for the redeemed, after the curse is removed. Jesus says, in Matt v 5, Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth. Psalm xxxvii 11, says, But the meek shall inherit the earth. My Bible has convinced me that my Campbellite baptism is no good, for they are not of the Abrahamic faith or seed. Paul says in Rom xiv 23, Whatsoever is not of faith is sin.

Will there be any preacher or any one of the faith travelling through northwest Texas this summer or fall? I want to be baptized in the proper faith. I want to belong to the church that Paul persecuted (the Church of God). If I live I will go thirty miles north of where I live to hear an Advent preacher. I cannot go under an assumed name.

My post office is Quail, Texas, Collingsworth County; any letter of information from any one will be appreciated. JAMES DELOSIER.

There was once an aged hermit in the Egyptian desert who thought it would be well with him if he had an olive tree near his cave. So he planted a little tree, and thinking it might want water, he prayed to God for rain, so rain came and watered his olive tree. Then he thought that some warm sun to swell its buds would be desirable, so he prayed, and the sun shone out. Now the nursling began to look feeble, and the old man deemed it would be well for the tree if frost were to come and brace it. He prayed for the frost, and hoarfrost settled that night on bar and beam. Next he believed a hot southerly wind would suit his tree, and after prayer the south wind blew upon his olive tree and——it died.

Some little while after the hermit visited a brother hermit, and lo! by his cell door stood a flourishing olive tree.

"How came that goodly plant there brother?" asked the unsuccessful hermit.

"I planted it, and God blessed it, and it grew."

"Ah, brother, I too planted an olive, and when I thought it wanted water I asked God to give it rain, and the rain came; and when I thought it wanted sun I asked, and the sun shone; and when I deemed it needed strengthening, I prayed and the frost came—God gave me all I demanded for my tree as I saw fit, and yet it is dead."

"And I, brother," replied the other hermit, "I left my tree in God's hands, for he knew what it wanted better than I."

Announcement.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God of Southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah from October 8 to 16 inclusive. Program will appear later after definite arrangements have been made. We bid all welcome who may come. Anyone wishing further information may write to Lewis Weaver, Route 3, Casey, Illinois.

That which you would wish you had said to a friend if you heard the friend was dead, is the very thing for you to say to that friend today; for the friend who is alive to-day may be dead to-morrow. To-day is the only accepted time for any duty that must be done at some time.—Henry Clay Trumbull.

Sunday School Lesson.

AUGUST 21, 1910.

Jesus Nearing Jerusalem. Matthew xx. 17-34.

Golden Text.—"The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." Matthew xx. 28.

The time of this lesson is supposed to be in the last month of JESUS' ministry, in Perea, while on his last journey to Jerusalem.

In the first part of this lesson is an example of splendid heroism. Jesus is going to suffering and death. He is to be the subject of mockery. He is to be betrayed by one of his pretended friends. Base ingratitude and rejection, with cruelty and untold trials are to be his portion. The greatness of this heroism is manifest when we consider that he could have escaped. When he was betrayed, and Peter had drawn his sword, and received another rebuke, Jesus tells him that he had power then to ask his Father, and legions of angels would come to his rescue. "No man taketh it (my life) from me, but I lay it down of myself."

A man may be inspired to do some deed of bravery and heroism by the cheers and encouragement of his fellows. Applause from admiring crowds may urge a man to some great deed. Jesus went steadily on with all these absent. Disgrace, seeming defeat for all his plans, and those about him with misgivings and alarm. No strength came to him from even his friendly followers. He trod the way alone. He willingly gave himself to the greatest cause of all time. Through the darkness of the future, with disaster, defeat and death before him, it was hard to see victory beyond, but the promise was he should rise again the third day, and he trusted his Father through it all.

In our schools and various institutions, it is thought best to have each year special days when such men as Lincoln and Washington can be held up before the young, and their words and works extolled that others may be stimulated to heroic efforts. They are held up as ideals, but how much more can we recommend the character and words of Jesus as we each week contemplate him as Leader and Guide. He sacrificed himself for others.

Leaving this part of our lesson we come to two ambitious men. From comparison of accounts we learn that they went with their mother to Jesus, and made solicitation for places of honor in his kingdom. They expected he would make his power manifest, subdue his enemies, and establish his kingdom, and as they had faithfully served him, thought it no harm to ascertain what would be their position.

This mother worshipped Jesus, prostrated herself before him, asking a favor as of a king. In asking this favor for her sons it is clear that they did not understand the nature of affairs that must transpire before the establishment of the kingdom. Shortly before this Peter had asked what would be the portion of the disciples who had followed him, and was told that they should sit on thrones judging the tribes of Israel, and they thought the time for this must be near. Hence this desire to obtain places before some one else had them.

Before making promises Jesus must know what was wanted, so asks, "What wilt thou?" Then the specific request is made for the two highest places in the kingdom. No fault is found with these men; they are good men—none better—and they likely had good motives. Being ambitious to gain a position where service can be rendered, is not a crime.

Various reasons may be seen for these brothers wanting these positions. They had been selected at various times with Peter for special service, and were undoubtedly devoted to their Master, and wished to be near him. What they desired would keep them near him, give them more intimate relations with him, and higher knowledge of him could be thus obtained. This was the desire for greater usefulness in his kingdom. It manifested their faith in the promises of Jesus, and showed their courage. So it was not all desire to be first and have the best place.

"Ye know not what ye ask." Your conception of the magnitude of this request is indeed small. Your highest dreams and wildest fancies cannot conceive of the radiance and glory of the throne I am to occupy. The right hand of the Son of God! Think of what that means. The beauty of holiness! Could they comprehend all the grandeur and magnificence of the situation. Angels from the very presence of God in attendance. No wonder Jesus said, "Ye know not what ye ask."

Then "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of?" Had you thought to count the cost? Can you pay the price? No man was able to stand with Jesus in this. The cup was his to drain to the bitter dregs. He must tread the wine-press alone, with no helper or companion.

These men thought they were able to bear with him the trial and suffering he was to endure, but at his betrayal they stood off with the other disciples.

Jesus assures them that a full share of trial will come to them. A bitter cup will be placed to their lips, and a baptism of suffering await them. But to sit in the positions of honor with him was in the keeping of the Father. Jesus does not say they shall not occupy these places. They may indeed be the most deserving ones. God's gifts and favors will be given those who are competent and fitted to do his service. To give good service requires training. Jesus went through the school of training, conquered self, overcome the temptation to take an easier and more pleasant path. To him belongs high honor.

Who will be given position in God's kingdom?

Those who subordinate all things to his will. Those who are trained for such work.

Question—Are you willing to be so trained?

True greatness is not, as the Gentiles taught, among princes who have dominion and exercise their brief authority. Rather is it to be found with the man who can best serve his fellows. He who will sacrifice most for others, and deny self, is greatest. The desire to be greater than another is purely selfish, and is wrong. A desire to be as good and useful as possible, and to improve over the present—to grow—is right in a way, but the desire to serve your fellows can never be wrong. He is greatest who does greatest service to his fellow-man. Not for self-exaltation, not for fame, but to be of use to others.

Jesus and his disciples reach the Jordan and cross to Jericho. Some blind men desire sight, and Jesus has compassion on their miserable condition and heals them.

Obituary.

James Theodore Smith, the month-old son and only child of Brother and Sister Samuel J. Smith of Chicago, died at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Aslaksen, in Adeline, Illinois, July 19, 1910.

The writer in seeking words of comfort to speak to the bereaved, called attention to the loving tenderness manifested by the Savior for the little ones while He was among men, and then we read that "this same Jesus", with heart overflowing with pity and affection will come again to give us beauty for ashes, to comfort all that mourn. Ah, we cannot but believe that our darling, falling asleep with sorrow's tears upon its cheeks, will awake with sparkling eyes and joyous laughter when the sunbeams crown the hills with morning's everlasting glory!

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let us Pray.

Everlasting God, the Creator of all things animate and inanimate—the sustainer of all things,—we approach thee with grateful hearts,—with Godly fear, with reverence and love for the proofs of all thy love for us. We are glad to be among the living this morning so that we can praise thee, for the dead cannot praise thee. Our Father and our God we ask thee in the name of Jesus this morning to forgive all we have done or thought amiss since we last assembled as thy household. Were it not that thou knowest our frames and remembereest that we are dust, and has given us the name of thy glorious Son to plead before thee we dare not approach thee. Then, for the sake of Jesus hear us, pardon all our trespasses, love us freely, and grant us thy heavenly grace that we may be able to live Godly in Christ Jesus. We would pray for all thy saints who have made a covenant with thee by sacrifice. Oh that they may all, to-day be blessed of thee, whether assembled with others of like precious faith or scattered and lonely—bless any who may be sick, or afflicted in mind or body. Bless the proclaimers of the truth as it is in Jesus. Bless all the learners in Sunday School; bless all those devoted to the youths within our reach, and oh grant, blessed God that thy kingdom may soon come and thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Keep us to that glorious day, and save us with thy great salvation through Jesus the Anointed. Amen.

Read This.

It is an invitation warm and hearty to attend the Ohio Conference which convenes in Cleveland on the evening of August the 17th, and lasts until Sunday evening the 21st.

If you are coming write to the Editor at once, and provision will be made for your comfort while here. And just before you leave home write us again—a postal will do—telling us when you will arrive in the city, and you will be met at the station or steamer wharf. But in case you should be missed by us on arriving in the city we ask you to clip out the following paragraph of directions and paste it in your day book, and you will have no trouble in finding The Church of God, 10623 Lee Ave., where the Conference is to be held:

All coming by way of the railroad should go to the Union Depot. There take the Euclid street car. The fare is 3 cents. When you pay your fare give the Conductor 1 cent more and ask him for a transfer on E. 105 Street. The Euclid car comes to this street without change. Don't get nervous on this ride, as it is 6 or 7 miles from the depot to E. 105 St. On arriving there go to the east corner of the street, and take the first E. 105 Street car that goes north, and about a 7 minutes ride will bring you to Lee Avenue—and there is the church.

Those who come by boat can take any car in sight, and they will arrive at the Square in five mintues. There change, and follow above directions.

Temptation.

A few thoughts on Temptation. This very word temptation, in the Word of God proves to us that although children of God by adoption, we are prone to sin and temptation awaits us in every walk of life.

1 John iii, 9, Whosoever is born or begotten of God, doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him, and he cannot sin because he is begotten of God. We are begotten to a lively or living hope by the gospel, and if we follow in the way of righteousness, we will not practice sin. In speaking of our hope John says, Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is; and every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself even as he (Jesus) is pure.

Like the Romans, we were the servants of sin but obedience to the truth has made us free from sin, and we become servants of righteousness. Paul says to them, What fruit had ye then in those things whereof now ye are ashamed, for the end of those things is death. The very temptation of worldly pleasure that came to us before we were Christians will come to us again. Our environments govern our amount of temptation to a great extent. We very often throw ourselves in the way of many temptations by the companionship we seek. Jesus said, Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all other things shall be added unto you. So if we strive first after spiritual food, spiritual companions and the favor of God, there will be little time to give to the pleasures of the world, and our desire to partake of them will vanish, for our Heavenly Father will have filled our minds with his love and peace and the things of the world will have no place.

In Jesus' last prayer he said, I pray not that thou shalt take them out of the world but that thou shalt keep them from the evil of it. It is needful then that we have temptation, although we can elude many by our conduct. Unless we are tried, we will not be purified and fit for the Master's use in his kingdom. We need not be afraid the Father will not do his part for Paul says, in Corinthians, There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man, and God will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able, but will, with the temptation provide a way to escape that ye may be able to bear it.

Let us be like Moses when he said, I would rather suffer affliction with the people of God than enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. That is the way to enjoy our Christian life, to remove all appearance of worldly sin and ungodliness, and live soberly. We not only help ourselves but our influence for good on our brother's life is of more value than we know. If we deny ourselves and take up our cross daily and follow Jesus, what crowns of rejoicing will be ours when the Lord of life comes to banish all evil and sin.

ANNA DREW.

Do You Understand the Kingdom?

You probably think it does not matter whether you do or not. If so, it is a pity for yourself. If you do not understand the Kingdom, you do not understand the gospel; and if you do not understand the gospel, you cannot be saved; for God has been pleased to appoint the belief and obedience of the gospel as the means of our salvation. If you have any doubt about this, read the following passages: Mark xvi. 16; Rom. i. 16; 1 Cor. iii. 21: xv. 2; and many others.

But you say: "Of course I believe that the gospel is the means of our salvation; but what has the Kingdom to do with it?" You will get the answer in the following passages from the New Testament: "Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the Kingdom of God." Mark i. 14. "He went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the tidings of the Kingdom of God." Luke viii. 1. "He sent them (the apostles) to preach the Kingdom of God." Luke ix. 2.

If the gospel preached by Jesus and the apostles was the gospel of the Kingdom, how can you believe that gospel without knowing about the Kingdom? Do not be like some who say that the gospel is the gospel of the Kingdom in the sense of having come from the Kingdom of heaven, and is not necessarily about the Kingdom any more than an Act of Parliament is about Parliament. The way of this quibble is stopped by the words which tell us that the gospel consisted of "the things concerning the Kingdom of God" (Acts viii. 12), and that Paul "preached the Kingdom of God" (Acts xx. 25)

You must know about the Kingdom, in order to know the gospel. You may easily know if you are inclined to give heed to what God has said. The Bible speaks very plainly of it.

1. We are told through Daniel, that in the latter days—"The God of heaven shall set up a Kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the Kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these Kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." Dan. ii. 44.

2. The Kingdom will be upon earth, and will take possession of of all the kingdoms of the World.

Proof: "The Lord shall be King over all the earth." Zech. xiv. 9. "The Kingdoms of this world...become the Kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever." Rev. xi. 15.

3. The Kingdom so to be set up will be the ancient kingdom of Israel restored.

Proof: "Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" Acts i. 6. "In that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen." Amos ix. 11. "The kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem." Micah iv. 8. "I appoint unto you a kingdom as my Father has appointed unto me that ye may.....sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Luke xxii. 29, 30.

4. In the setting up of the kingdom, the Jews will be gathered from their present dispersion in all the earth, and restored to their own land, which will be the seat or headquarters of the kingdom of God, and will bear rule over all the earth.

Proof: "He that scattereth Israel will gather him." Jer. xxxi. 10. "He shall assemble the outcasts of Israel and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth." Is. xi. 12. "I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side and bring them into their own land." Ezek. xxxvii. 21.

5. Ancient Jerusalem, though now desolate and insignificant, will become the capital city of the whole earth.

Proof: "At that time shall they call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord." Jer. iii. 17. "The Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem." Isa. xxiv. 23. "Then shall Jerusalem be holy." Joel iii. 17.

6 Christ's accepted people will reign with him, and inherit the kingdom when these glorious things are fulfilled.

Proof: "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him." 2 Tim. ii. 12. "To him that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations, and he shall rule them. Rev. ii. 26. "The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom for ever." Dan. vii. 18, 27. "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom." Matt. xxv. 34.—Bible Finger Post.

God's Law is Our Delight and Meditation. Psa. i 2

If the man is "blessed" (v. 1) who walks not in the counsel of the ungodly, it follows as a fair inference that he is cursed who does follow ungodly counsel and conduct. Ungodliness is the source of all sin. Overt sins are often denounced with asperity while ungodliness is tolerated and indulged. An apt illustration of what I mean—see the divorce evil. Often divorce is held up to detestation, while the sins which create divorce are "winked at." Acts xvii 30. To represent divorce as a great evil is a mistake; the sins committed at home before the divorce was wanted or sought is the "great transgression." Psa xix 13. Divorce is only a public expression of sins committed previously. These sins are primary; and if it were not for them, divorce litigation would never happen. To make a great outcry against divorce is folly. To remove a tree by breaking off its twigs and branches is a failure. To effectually remove it you must uproot it. So an irreligious, ungodly way of thinking expresses itself ultimately in conduct, action, life. Therefore, there are things a man must not do if he is "blessed," happy.

The Bible has "thou shalts" as well as "thou shalt nots." After telling us in this Psalm what the "blessed" man does not do, David immediately goes on to tell us what he does do. Righteousness isn't passive; it is right-doing. "He that doeth righteousness is righteous." 1 John iii 7. Hence for a man to be righteous he must not only obey the "thou shalts," but the "thou shalt nots" as well. He must not walk in the counsel of the ungodly, or stand in the way of sinners, nor sit in the seat of the scornful. He must not do these things; but he should "delight in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night." Psa i 2.

Taking up in seriatim order the salient thoughts in this passage, we proceed to make a few remarks upon

1. "The law of the Lord."

The word law from torah, means "law, direction." See Young's Concordance. A law is a code of rules to govern human action. The law tells us with authority what to do, and what not to do; it gives "direction" to our action. By the law of the Lord, then, we understand David means all of God's Word then written, but particularly the Pentateuch. Psa cxix 1, 55, 87. The Bible is emphatically the "law of the Lord." "God is a spirit." John iv 24. As the "Lord" is a "spirit," "the law of the Lord" is "the law of the Spirit." Rom viii 2. The Spirit, you see, has formulated a "law," and those who are "after the spirit" (v 4), do mind "the things of the spirit" (v 5). They have received the spirit of adoption (v 15), and have become "spiritually minded" (v 6), and are "led by the spirit of God" (v 14) that is by the "law" which the Spirit has revealed. To talk about being full of the Spirit, led of the Spirit, etc., without the "law" which the Spirit has formulated, is to try to reach an end without means to obtain it.

2. "His delight is in the law of the Lord"—"the Spirit." 2 Cor iii 18. The word "delight" (chephets) means "pleasure, desire." The delight or pleasure, a saint has for the law of God should be as strong as God's desire is toward the excellent of the earth "in whom is all my delight," says he Psa xvi 3. If the man of God's favor delights thus in the revelation of his spirit, it is because there is a right relation of his will and affections to the "law of the Lord." A man cannot delight in a law he knows nothing about. He may know the law, still he will not delight in it unless he loves it. God's people must not merely read the Bible as a perfunctory duty, they must catch the spirit of David and say, "Make me to go in the path of thy commandments; for therein do I delight." Psa cxix 35. "I will delight myself in thy commandments, which I have loved" (v. 47). In this text the reader will notice that delight in the commandments resulted from love of them. "Unless thy law had been my delights, I should then have perished in mine affliction" (v. 92). Modern so-called Christians, puissant in profession, tell us that they "do not know much about the Bible; and hardly ever read it," that it "cannot be understood anyway," etc. They have no understanding, delight or love for God's Holy Word. Sometimes they exult in the Holy Ghost, claim they have "got" it, but as for the law which the spirit has revealed for them to believe and live by, of this they know nothing, and care less. "What fools these mortals be."

3. "In his law doth he meditate day and night."

To meditate means to think, ruminate. We become like our thoughts. Prov xxiii 7. If we ever become spiritually minded and God-like, we must remember him upon our bed, and meditate on him "in the night watches. Psa lxiii 6. We can, by musing on the works of God's hands, brighten this lurid, evil world (Psa cxliii 5), and get an uplift to our souls. We must, if we are punctilious Christians, love God's law, and meditate upon it. Psa cxix 97. David had more understanding than all his teachers, for this reason: "Thy testimonies are my meditation," v 99. By considering what God says he gives us "understanding in all things." 2 Tim ii 7. This is the way, dear reader, and the only way to get divine instruction.

4. "Day and night."

See Jos i 8. To meditate in God's law "day and night" means to do it continually. The Scriptures are to be searched (John v 3) and read (Isa xxxiv 16) daily (Acts xvii 11). They are to be thought about and talked of during the day, as we sit in our homes, or walk by the way; and when we lie down at night we must still think of God and his Holy Word. Deut vi 7; Psa cxix 55. We do not think it too much trouble to eat our meals three times a day. But how often we try to live a week or a month without eating divine pabulum! The manna was gathered daily, the Sabbath excepted, Ex xvi 26. It was typical of Christ, the true bread, and the words of spirit which he uttered. John vi 51, 63. God's Word must be found and eaten daily, like the manna, if we expect that joy and rejoicing of heart promised. Jer xv 16. If the Word dwells in us richly (Col iii 16), how facile and happy we are; and with what heavenly delight we meditate in the Holy Word! We cannot see a vineyard without thinking of the good lesson Christ gave us in John xv. We cannot look at a hen and her brood without Matt xxiii 37 rushing into the mind. Everything, from morning till night, speaks to us in thunder tones the truths of God's Word, if we only have it in our hearts (Psa xxxvii). But Apostate Christendom render nugatory the entire Word of God. God's law they do not understand, obey, delight in, meditate upon, love, or care for. They claim the Holy Ghost converts, leads, sanctifies, and saves them without the Word; it is, therefore to them a dead letter, an obsolete book. O Lord, "Forgive them: they know not what they do."

Christian Fellowship.

In the ordinary affairs of business and society, we mingle freely with all kinds of people, but Christian fellowship is limited to Christians. Contact is not fellowship. Christ taught a moral and spiritual separation from this world. When persons are clear and outspoken in denying essential and saving truth, we may show them courtesy and kindness, but the Word plainly and repeatedly teaches that it is wrong to fellowship or encourage them in any way as Christians. This is not prejudice or partisanship.

Formerly some religious bodies were too strict in testimony against what they deemed heresy, but nearly all are now too lax in testimony, life and fellowship. We are admonished not to bid God speed to those who do not teach the truth, especially concerning Jesus Christ, and we are even forbidden to eat in fellowship with certain errorists. We should not countenance fatal error by our presence at a brotherhood banquet, with its representatives, no matter how eloquent and pleasing they may be.

How displeasing to God is fellowship with unbelievers. Christ says: "He that is not for me is against me." However polite and pleasing it may seem, we cannot shake hands with destructive critics and also with the Lord Jesus Christ. They are guilty of soul murder. It is treason to saving truth and to God to fellowship as Christians, Unitarians and Universalists. While they boast of brains and progress, their characterizing of Jesus as a good man and a great teacher, is the climax of absurdity. If he was not what he claimed, The Son of God, he was the wildest imposter who ever appeared in the world.

Error begets evil and we are taught to abhor that which is evil and cleave to that which is good. Such fellowship especially in leaders, implies insincerity and promotes unbelief among the common people. Actions speak louder than words, and this is heretical action.

Errorists see the inconsistency and must regard it as a weakness or hypocrisy. It forfeits their respect and confidence. Corporate fellowship is becoming more and more a serious matter with intelligent and conscientious Christians, when so many orthodox bodies lack courage or soundness to deal with heretics. Christ, and him crucified is our first, greatest and most essential theme.

Men in orthodox pulpits are now uttering heresies for which they would have been silenced fifty years ago. Would it be consistent and edifying for the President of the United States to address the Presbyterian General Assembly?

The leaders of the church who shun to declare the whole counsel of God concerning Ruin and Redemption, and fellowship those who deny these fundamentals, are promoting apostasy, and they will have a fearful account to render in the judgment day.—E. P. Marvin.

The noblest thing on earth is the man who rises to the dignity of self-mastery. The man who can refuse indulgence to a clamoring desire, can hold the craving appetite ungratified, and say to the rising passion, "Peace, be still!" is a true hero.

"A sail boat was lost in a heavy fog off the coast of Maine. A rowboat was towing it, but its oarsman had become confused. At last the advice was given, 'Listen for the beating of the waves on the shore; that never stops.' They followed the advice, and soon reached land. Now there is something that will guide us as well as the sound of the breakers, and that is the voice of God in our hearts. That also never stops. Always it is calling and calling, and we have only to stop and listen."

Replies to the numerous questions now on file will appear after our return from the west, about Sept. 24th.

"God's People Subject to Civil Law," a neat, well-written, scriptural booklet of 44 pages, by J. August Smith, of 1121 W. Church St., Rockford, Ill. The price is 5 cents per copy. It is an expose of the Saturday Sabbath theory; and although brief it is the best work I have yet read in laying bare this Jewish and fleshly delusion. If any of our readers need this subject thoroughly cleared up and fixed forever in their mind, or if they want a little hand book full of unanswerable arguments with which to confute Seventh Day keepers, here it is for 5 cents.

"Three Broken Links in Error's Chain—Santa Claus, Soul and Satan." A book of 52 pages by Mrs. M. Grove, of John Day, Oregon. Price 25 cents. Sister Grove is a minister of the Christian Advent denomination, an iconoclast, I was about to say in that body. The book is well written from a literary standpoint, and scripturally she is more than a match for her adversaries—and most of these she has found are in the folds of her own church. Though a woman and mistreated by her own brethren, she has thrown a fire-brand among them in sending out this book, and decreed an uncompromising war on the Bad God, or Jinarily called the Devil. She treats them as easily as a dog treats opossum. This is how she does it: When a belief of the immortality of the soul, eternal torment, and a Devil as the tormentor of the damned was practically a universal belief, a few Bible Students, prominent among them were Adventists, got up courage to say the Bible for us ungtossed by theological opinion. They went back to the original words translated soul, spirit, hell, etc., in our version; and they showed that soul, instead of meaning an "individual intelligence," simply means a "living being;" that spirit, instead of meaning a "disembodied essence" as we had always been told, simply means "life principle;" that hell instead of meaning a "place of endless misery," simply means hades, the unseen, the invisible, the covered up, the realm of the dead. All this showed candor and fairness. And Sister Groves naturally supposed that such Bible loving people would be willing and anxious to thus treat all other Bible subjects. A glance at the original words rendered "satan" and "devil" in our version revealed the fact that they only signify "an adversary," "an accuser." The Adventist had taught her that there were no immortal souls; had thrown water into hell and put out its fires. With no souls to people that region; with no brimstone and fire to inflict torment—with the occupants and place both gone, Sister Grove could see no need for the General Overseer—the devil. Not having anybody for the Gentleman (?) to grab, having no hell-home in which he might torment his dupes, she supposed the Adventist would let him go as gracefully as they had let go Santa Claus, soul, spirit, hell, etc. But in this expectation she was doomed to a schocking disappointment. Without subjects, fire, torment—without even a hell for a home to live in, still they held on to the Bad God,—and they are still holding on to his tail! Reader, if devilology still mistifies you; if there is still the stench of fire and brimstone on your clothes, send 25 cts to Mrs. M. Grove, John Day, Oregon, and you will receive by return mail a Divine Disinfectant.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible; Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Roblason's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 20-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. ALLARD.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Ohio will be held August 17 to 21 inclusive in the new church 10623 Lee Ave. Cleveland, Ohio.

The church is located in the East end of the city near East 105 Street, a short distance from the street cars.

Please communicate with the Pastor R. G. Huggins and arrangements will be made to meet you at the Depot.

The program will appear later.

J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus of the State of Illinois will be held in Oregon, beginning Wednesday, August 17 and continuing over Sunday the 21.

This Conference will follow immediately the annual Bible School conducted at that place.

We are expecting a greater meeting than ever before. Come.

EMMA L. SMITH, Sec

THE Eighth Annual BibleSchool under the auspices of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, is announced to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 8 to 18, 1910. The teachers are to be the same as last year, the board and lodging are free, though any donation to the cause will be received. Students should bring note-books, pencil and Bible. Any further information will be furnished by S. J. Lindsay, Oregon, Illinois, who should be at once notified if you are thinking of attending.

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the annual Conference of Missouri will convene August 10th to 15th, inclusive, at Morse Mill, Mo. Program will be given later.

J. H. MORSE.

The Missouri-Kansas Conference of the Church of God will meet at Severance, Kansas, on Grand Island Railroad, about 40 miles west of St. Joe, August 20-28 inclusive. Business meeting August 22 at 10 a. m. Meetings forenoons, afternoons and evenings. All lovers of free speech and investigation of religious questions are cordially invited to attend. There is good train service from St. Joe, trains leaving for the west about 10 a m, 4 p m, and 8 p m.

By order of the Con. Board,
EUGENE HOWARD, Pres.

The Missouri Conference of the Church of God, will open Wednesday evening, August 10, and continue over the following Sunday. Brothers Conner of Ohio, and Allard of Iowa, will be with us, assisted by Brother Winningham of Missouri, and possibly others. The program will be announced from day to day, arranged according to convenience and circumstances.

The place of the meeting, Morse Mills, Mo., can be reached by only one railroad conveniently. So all coming will take the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern R. R. to Victoria, which is about forty miles south of St. Louis. Hacks will meet every train and convey passengers to Hillsboro, where the brethren will meet them and take them to Morse Mills. All coming please send word of date and train of arrival, to J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo.

This will be our third Conference in Missouri, and we pray that it will be as successful as those preceding. We want every Church of God in Missouri to be represented. Plan now to come. Then we will see what a closer union of the brethren will do!

SADIE B. MORSE, Sec'y.

The twenty-fifth Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, in the State of Nebraska, will be held in Omaha, Aug. 18th to the 21st inclusive.

The meetings will be held in a tent. Meals will be furnished at 10 cents and lodging free. Owing to the greater distance those in the west have to come, the Brethren of Omaha have decided to pay three dollars on every one's fare coming from west of St. Paul and Grand Island. Good speakers will be provided and we urge every one to come and help make this Conference a success and enjoy the benefits which cannot help but follow an attendance.

Please read Bro. Adams' report for June, thoughtfully and carefully, and let it test self to see if sacrifices are really being made. If we are truly looking for Christ's soon return, let us give practical proof of it and put his business before all other business.

Christ has left us in charge of his work for a time and by joining ourselves to him, we have promised to be faithful to the trust and make his business a success as far as we can. In order to make any line of work a success we must concentrate all our energies upon it, and subordinate and bend all things to it. If we have not been doing this, but have been putting worldly business and pleasure ahead, let us begin with this Conference to put Christ's ahead.

During Conference, if attended in the right spirit, faith and strength for the following year's work will be obtained, and we will be better able to wait patiently for his return. Every one make a special effort to be there and do his share toward making a good start for the next year's work. Let us not be shirkers. Every thing possible will be done to make your stay both pleasant and profitable. If further information is desired write Bro. M. D. Newell of Blair, Neb, Pres. of Conference Board.

ALTA KING.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams. And her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 14 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

God's Tenth.

When good old Jacob learned to give
One tenth to God of all he had,
He found that he with ease could live,
And blessings came to make him glad.
Maybe you owe to God a debt
Pay up at once—lest you forget!

'Tis said this law was set aside—
Some boast they are longer bound
But, if love makes the path more wide,
It would a better way have found
No better plan has reached us yet
Pay up at once—lest you forget!

"But I am very poor," you say,
"With scarce enough to eat and wear"
Perhaps you've robbed God's tenth away,
And lost the blessings he would share.
Of all men you are most in debt—
Pay up at once—lest you forget.

Abraham and the Promises.

"THY SEED WHICH IS CHRIST."

So God chose Abraham, tried him, and having found him faithful he received the promises; as it is written, "And thus having patiently endured he obtained the promise." He is called "The friend of God" (James ii 23) and the father of all the faithful, because, "He believed God, and it was accounted unto him for righteousness." Now the question arises, what did Abraham believe, and do; and what is expected of us to believe and do? In Gen xii 1 we read, "Now Jehovah said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house unto the land which I will show thee; and I will bless thee and make thy name great" Gr v. 4. "So Abram went, as Jehovah had spoken unto him." The Apostle Paul, in commenting on Abraham's obedience of faith said: "By faith Abraham, when he was called, obeyed to go out unto a place which he was to receive for an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing whither he went. By faith he became a sojourner in the land of promise, as in a land not his own, dwelling in tents, with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise; for he looked for the city which hath the foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Heb xi 9. Now if Abraham's seed in the flesh could have been perfected under the law, they would never have lost possession of the land; for "had there been a law that could make alive, righteousness would have come by the law. But the Scripture shut up all things under sin, that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe." Gal iii 21, 22.

All that Abraham did, signifieth something. Abraham had eight sons, one by the bond woman, "I will make him a great nation, twelve princes shall come from him;" one by the free woman; and six by the concubine, the latter he sent away who became the figure of all the Gentiles who are to be saved. Now to Abraham were the promises spoken, and to his seed. He saith not, And to seeds as of many; but as of one, and to thy seed which is Christ "And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to promise" (v 29). Now what is required of a seed? "If the seed die not it abideth alone." "For they are not all Israel, neither, because they are Abraham's seed, are they all children; but, In Isaac shall thy seed be called. That is, it is not the children of the flesh that are children of God, but the children of the promise are reckoned for a seed." Rom ix 7 If then we are Abraham's seed it is not in the flesh; but, "The blessing of Abraham in Christ Jesus; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith." Gal iii 14. We become heir to all things in Christ in heaven and earth. Now we are not obliged to come to an improvised altar on earth to receive this promise; for the Word is nigh thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart; (pretty close contact) that is, the Word of faith which we preach; because if thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thine heart, that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Rom x 8. "Received ye the Spirit by the works of the law or the hearing of faith?" And as Abraham did we must we, "Come ye out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch no unclean thing: and I will receive you, and will be to you a Father, and ye shall be to me sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty. 2 Cor vi 17

Melchizedek, like unto the Son of God, a priest of the Most High God, and king of Salem, blessed Abraham. "But without any dispute the less is blessed of the better." Heb vii 7. Melchizedek was a type of the priesthood of Christ, being both king and priest, which under the law could not be. But Christ and those in him are prophets, priests and kings, in spirit, in promise. Jesus when he was in the flesh cast out demons, healed all the sick and raised the dead; but they all died again. Having been raised in the power of an endless life, he will return and raise the dead in Christ first, but every man in his own order, company, rank. That our calling is heavenly cannot be disputed by the student of Scripture. Heaven is a condition now as well as a place hereafter, and we apprehend that the earth will be a very desirable place in which to live, especially in the new Jerusalem when glorified, when the last enemy is destroyed, which is death. For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. "The last enemy that shall be abolished is death." And not the first (when he comes) as many would have us believe.

So Christ is the "I am" (he) who is and was, and is to come, a Father to father Abraham. While we can answer the question which was so puzzling to the Jews, and is today. "If David in spirit called him Lord, how then is he his son?" "And the least in the kingdom is greater than John the Baptist," without putting Abraham, David and John out of the kingdom. So Christ is the last man Adam, and being last is first; for the last shall be first. Abraham was told to look up to the stars, and down to the sand of the sea shore, "so shall thy seed" be. The New Jerusalem whose builder and maker is God, is coming down and we will meet the Lord in the air. This will be the saints refuge in the time of trouble, while Jacob's refuge is on the earth, possibly in Arabia; while the Jerusalem that now is will be clothed upon by the new. "Then the moon shall be confounded and the sun ashamed, for Jehovah of hosts will reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem; and before his elders shall be glory." Isa xxiv 23.

"Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenlies in Christ; even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world that we should be holy and without blemish before him in love, having foreordained us unto adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto himself." Eph i 3, 3.

Verse 13, "In whom ye also, having the Word of truth, the gospel of your salvation—in whom having also believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, which is an earnest of our inheritance unto the redemption of God's own possession. (Stones in the living Temple). Abraham was given a seal of circumcision in the flesh, while our hearts are circumcised in the Spirit. The Father of glory may give unto you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him, having the eyes of your understanding enlightened, that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, (because being sons we are to be made like him, and share in his glory). He raised him from the dead—scarcely any believe in death today, but they believe that God can deny himself, and make a man both dead and alive at the same time—and made him to set at his right hand in the heavenlies far above all rule, and authority and power and dominion and every name that is named, not only in this age, but also in that which is to come: and he put all things in subjection under his feet—but now we see not all things put under him—and made him head of the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all." The meaning of this is, that there is no greater glory, honor, power, nor dominion in the heavens nor on earth that to be possessed by "The Body of Christ," of which he is the head, his inheritance in the saints meaning that Christ is not complete until they are united and glorified upon.

The royal family of God, who only hath immortality. "Oh that thou wouldst rend the heavens, that thou wouldst come down, that the mountains (kingdoms) might quake at thy presence * * to make thine name known to thine adversaries, that the nations may tremble at thy presence!

"For from of old men have not heard, neither perceived by ear, neither hath the eye seen a god besides thee, who worketh for him that waiteth for him." Isa lxiv 1-4. "But unto us God revealed them through the Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God." 1 Cor ii 10 "Christ in us the hope of glory." Our hope, then, is not expressed as we have heard some Advent sing, "Come Lord Jesus and reign over us, while we sit every man under his own vine and fig tree." Abraham, Isaac and Jacob saw these promises afar off which we now possess, as an earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of God's own possession, and will enter into their enjoyment at the manifestation of the sons of God. "God having provided some better thing concerning us that they without us should not be made perfect. Heb xi 40.

E. D. McGLEEN.

Notes by the Way.

My last notes closed with the meetings in progress at Sacramento, California. The meetings were intensely interesting from the beginning Most of those attending, while not skeptics, were non-church goers, on account of not finding in the popular church, that which commended itself to them; but the grand old gospel of the kingdom, and its kindred truths did appeal to them, and they regretted to have the meetings closed. By a protracted effort, a congregation could be established there. My visit with Bro. and Sister Cook and family was very pleasant, indeed, and will be long remembered by me.

Sacramento is the place where my Uncle Benjamin Wilson is buried. On Decoration Day Bro. Cook and daughter tried to find his grave, and almost dispaired, but finally did find it by aid from the office. I told him that I would like to visit it. He then accompanied me. It was some effort for us to find it, as there was nothing but a dirty weather-beaten stick to show that there was a grave there at all. On pulling up the little piece of board, we saw that his name had been written upon it, and just an indistinct outline could be discerned upon it. There was no mound—the earth had sunken down below the surrounding ground. It made me feel so sad to see such neglect and care of the burial places of those who have been prominent among us as instructors and expounders of God's Holy Word. Is it right that they should be laid away with no more respect than that accorded to dumb driven cattle? Many one should desire to learn more about this, address B. F. Cook, 3015 F street, Sacramento, California. Bro. Cook kindly showed me the principal points of interest about Sacramento. One of these was old Fort Sutter, erected in 1839. It is now a museum of California relics, especially of those relating to the Sacramento Valley. I noticed three or four old stage coaches of the Colonial type, Indian relics, weapons of defence, etc., old Mexican carts, and other relics too numerous to mention. I enjoyed a visit to the Capitol Building and Grounds. The building is surrounded by a park of twenty-five acres. This park is said to contain at least one tree of every kind known in the world. The entire park is enclosed with different kinds of palm trees, which give it quite a tropical appearance. We ascended to the top of the dome of the Capitol Building 225 feet above the sidewalk. From this point we obtained a fine view of the city, and the surrounding grounds. Sacramento is a pretty city. Palm trees largely prevail as shade trees, along the sidwalks, and lawn decorations. One day we made a visit to their fine Art Institute, which is certainly quite a credit to the city Having closed the meetings at Sacramento, I bid farewell to the people, and Bro. Cook accompanied me to the depot, where I boarded the train for Oakland, California, to visit my oldest brother, Thomas Wilson, whom I had not seen for some fifteen years. I found that time had wrought its changes upon him, he being now seventy-five years old, yet quite vigorous for his age. His wife, though much younger, was also changed. She is the daughter of Joseph Cockroft, a former partner of my Uncle Benjamin Wilson, in the printing business at Geneva, Illinois. Mr. Cockroft, is one of the most vigorous old men that I ever saw; although he is now in his ninetieth year, he is still actively engaged in the printing business. My brother's children are all married except Ida. On Sunday we went to Almeda, and took dinner with his son Elmer. Oakland which is across the Bay from San Francisco, is now aspiring to be a rival of that city. Almeda, Berkley, and Piedmont are cities adjoining Oakland, and may yet become merged with Oakland.

My brother took me across the Bay to see San Francisco, which but a few years ago was wrecked and ruined by earthquake and fire; it is now in the main built up again, much better than it was before. On some of the side streets you will occasionally see a ruin. While there we called upon Sister Bingley and husband, and took dinner with them. Sister Bingley (whose maiden name was Smith) and myself were young people together, and were both members of the old Geneva church. This church was the pioneer church of the faith, in the United States, from which the grand old gospel of the kingdom radiated.

After dinner we visited Golden Gate Park and Museum. This is a great and magnificent park to visit, but we could not stay as long as we wished.

We then took a street car for the "Cliff House," "Golden Gate," and "Seal Rocks," in the Pacific Ocean. This was my second visit to the ocean. Guarding the Golden Gate, is the Fort. This is an enchanting pleasure resort, the enchanting beauties of which time would fail me to describe. Night drawing on, we returned to Oakland.

At another time, we went to Mountain View Cemetery, to visit the grave of our aged mother, who died at Oakland, in her ninety-second year. This without exception is the most beautiful spot that I ever visited. It is said to rival the world for its natural and floral scenery. I believe that California without doubt rivals the world in flowers. In towns and cities, it is a common sight to see fences all covered with geraniums in full bloom from top to bottom.

I shall never forget my visit to Piedmont Park. This park is made in the natural woods, with great bluffs and deep ravines; it is romantic in the extreme. This being embellished by art, makes it a sight not soon to be forgotten. Among which I might mention a Palm Promenade. This promenade is ornamented by what I should estimate some two thousand palm trees. Many of these trees would be from four to six feet through the trunk, with some eighteen to twenty feet in circumference. The leaves were some eighteen feet long, and a single tree would cover a space of some 125 feet.

My visit at Oakland being concluded, he accompanied me to the depot, and I departed for Oleander, California. Bro. George Calder met me at Oleander, and took to his home, where I was warmly welcomed by Sister Calder. Sister Calder is a neice of Bro. Albert Balch, whom I used to know in my youth. He was a member of the old Geneva church, in Illinois. He was one of our old time defenders of the ancient faith of the gospel, and still rejoices in it. There are some twelve or thirteen believers here, whom he used to minister to before old age incapacitated him. He is now in his eighty-ninth year, and nearly blind. His memory fails him of nearly everything, except those of an early date. I talked to him about those things, and it pleased him so much. I took dinner with him twice. When I bid him good bye, he said, "May we meet in the kingdom."

On the Sunday morning Brother and Sister Calder, and myself went to Orangeville, where our young Brother Grant lives; he is one of our ministers, who is preaching the gospel of the kingdom. He is an able young man, who bears a good report of all who know him. He made an appointment for me to speak at night in the Methodist church. The first message was received with favor, and a desire to hear more. I preached again the next Saturday night, and twice on Sunday. The interest became intensified after each meeting. I told them, that those who wished to learn more, Brother Grant was capable of instructing them.

The fruit harvest is in the rush, especially that of the peaches. The apricots were previously harvested.

Bro. Grant took us on about a forty mile spin in an auto car, among the orchards and vineyards. One can hardly conceive of the amount of fruit raised here. The peach trees although proped up on all sides, the branches were broken on every hand by the weight of fruit. As for raisin culture, this part of the country is said to rival the world. The grape vineyards were everywhere like the cornfields in Illinois. I saw one vineyard of 900 acres, from which I am told 800 car loads of grapes were annually shipped.

On my return to Oleander, Brother and Sister Calder took me on a drive to the city of Fresno, in which are found some thirty great packing establishments of fruit. We visited some of these, preparing raisins, packing dried fruit, and canning fresh fruit. In one of these institutions I saw about 150 women and girls cutting the peaches in halves, and removing the stones. It would take too much space to write it out, but when I meet you face to face, on my evangelical trips in your several neighborhoods, I will have much to tell you about the Pacific Coast. I enjoyed my visit so much with Brother and Sister Calder. They are in love with the truth, and their sole object in life is, to live and conduct themselves that they make sure of an abundant entrance into the kingdom. May God bless them.

I am now at Tulare, California, meetings are now in progress. I will report later on. My next appointment will be at South Pasadena. Expect to return home about August 15. Send applications for Evangelical work to my home address.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Obituary.

On the evening of Aug. 5, 1910, occurred the death of the infant daughter of Sister Nora Mallory at Cooperstown, Ill. The death of the little one came as a great shock to the family, she having been dangerous ill only a few hours. Brief services were conducted by the writer, after which the little one was laid to rest in Cooperstown Cemetery. May the Lord hasten the time when there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.

J. W. COOPER.

Such resolution either strengthens or weakens our character. When carried out we are made the stronger by it; but if irresolution conquers us, we are weaker for the surrender.

The Lord, as a gracious privilege, lets us work with him. Do not talk as if you needed pity for your work. The child of God does not need the pity of the world.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 17, 1910. NUMBER 31.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

To all Brethren of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus in the United States and Canada.

We the undersigned Presidents of the Conferences of the Churches of God, do hereby ask you to meet with us in a General Conference to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 29th to 31st, inclusive, (Time to be extended if necessary,) for the purpose of discussing our needs as a body, and, if found necessary, organize a General Conference for the purpose of bringing us into a closer unity of the one Faith and work between the different states and territories.

We urge each state to send at least one delegate, and especially urge every brother and sister who can possibly do so to attend and take part in all discussions whether or not a delegate.

Conditions relating to our spiritual welfare are arising that cannot be ignored in the light of Scripture; therefore it is our duty as a body of people to give attention to them. We therefore not only urge but beg you to make an extra effort to be at this meeting that we may endeavor to bring order out of our apparently chaotic condition.

The Iowa State Conference has offered the use of their beautiful campgrounds together with tents and bedding, free, and will furnish meals at 10c each to all who attend, except the regular delegates whose expenses will be met by their respective conferences.

You cannot afford to miss this meeting. Papers relating to vital questions pertaining to our spiritual welfare will be read, and will be followed by a discussion of the subject in which every brother and sister should have a voice.

Plan at once to attend. Could you spend your money in a nobler cause, or to a better advantage than for the purpose of magnifying the Truth we profess to love? Are we really anxious to hand the Truth down to our children in its purity?

In a few more years the place that knows us now will know us no more unless the Lord comes. Can we neglect such an opportunity to increase the Lord's goods and still expect to hear the welcome plaudit of "Well done good and faithful servant" when the Lord comes?

Signed—

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 17, 1910.

LET all interested note the change in time of holding the Nebraska Conference.

COPY from Brother Huggins came late this time, and only a part of it can be given this issue.

THIS week and over next Sunday is the time set for both the Ohio and Illinois Conference meetings. We hope there will be good attendance, that the teaching will be of benefit to all, and that the business transacted will be of such nature as will tend to build up all of us in the Faith.

WE trust there will be a general representation of all the State Conferences at the General Conference that is called at Waterloo, Iowa, after their regular conference is over. It may be some did not favor calling a meeting, but now it is called. let all attend with love and zeal for the cause of Truth. Drop off your little hobby, if you have one, and go to do what you can, not to down your brother in argument, but to help arrange so that more and better work may be done by the Church of God for the Master's cause.

Dear Brother Underwood,

Mr. Wince says "Tell the readers of THE RESTITUTION, that improvement has set in again, and that though still very weak, his breathing is better, he can walk a few steps, can sit propped back in his arm chair, and has a better appetite, and could dictate articles for the dear paper, were he stronger physically." We are very, very thankful that he does not suffer as he did. God is good.

Truly,
S. R. WINCE.

Are We Orthodox?

Strictly speaking, an "Orthodox" denomination is one in agreement with Scripture, and on such grounds the "Church of God" may claim the name. However, the general acceptation among theologians is that to be "Orthodox" one must agree with the views of Scripture entertained by the "Church in general, or by the established Church of any particular nation." Hence, to be Orthodox in England it is necessary to be in agreement with the "thirty-nine articles" as passed by the convocation of 1604, and which were signed as "literally and grammatically correct" by Charles I, in 1628.

In England and Germany all Protestant churches who had for a basis of belief these thirty-nine articles, were termed "Evangelical," to denote antagonism to Catholicism.

"The Evangelical Alliance" had its origin in a meeting convened in Liverpool, England, in 1845. The object sought was a "more practical union among Protestants in order to promote the cultivation of Christian fellowship, and the extension of Christian faith." The organization took more definite shape when in August, 1846, a meeting of some 800 representatives of Episcopal, Presbyterian, Independent, Methodist, Lutheran, Baptist, Reformed and other Churches from Great Britain, France, Germany Switzerland, and the United States, met in London. This "Alliance" of these popular Churches, was bound together by adopting nine articles as "expressing the points of faith considered essential among those who are embraced in the Alliance."

Some of these nine articles the "Church of God" could endorse, such as relate to the divine inspiration, authority and sufficiency of God's Word; justification by faith; resurrection and judgment; blessing of the righteous and punishment of the wicked; the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper, etc. However, some other "points of faith considered essential" the Church of God could not stand for, such as the doctrine of the trinity, Holy Ghost operations, immortality of the soul, divine institution of the ministry, etc.

Answering the question at the head of this paper, "The Church of God" is not Orthodox nor Evangelical according to the common acceptation of theologians. Churches claiming these names believe in the Trinity—the triune God, three in one, God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost. This is contrary to the Word of God, which declares for one God, and sets forth that Jesus Christ is his Son, with perfectly distinct attributes, as well as many in common with his Father. God's Son is represented as having a separate and distinct personality from God, and certain defined work was allotted to him to do when here among men. He is now serving at the Father's right hand as Advocate for his own, and will be sent by the Father back to this earth again to perform a definite work for a given period of time. To confuse him with his Father makes shear nonsense of a large part of God's Word.

Then the Holy Ghost, Holy Spirit, that was to be made manifest after Jesus ascended to his Father, is just as distinct from Father and Son as can be. The Holy Spirit is primarially a Comforter. When Jesus announced that he was to go away, his disciples were sorrowful. He had been with them as leader and guide, as counsellor and director. What would they do without him? He promised he would not leave them alone and comfortless. A "Comforter" should be sent for them. In John xvi. 10, this Comforter is called "the Spirit of Truth," and is described as a guide who should lead the disciples into all truth. This spirit, or power, was given to abide with the disciples of Jesus to act as a guide, a helper, companion and counsellor while they were doing their specific work. When Jesus makes his prayer for his disciples in John xvii. he represents this Spirit or influence of truth as sanctifying, or setting apart, his disciples.

When Paul was writing to his son Timothy he tells him about the value of the Holy Writings, with which he had been familiar from childhood, and tells him that these writings were inspired of God, and explained their fullness by stating they are profitable not alone for doctrine, but as well for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness. The object of having them thus fully given, to cover all the ground, is then stated. The design was that the man of God might be made perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. Now, it ought to be very plain to people in this day, as Paul made it to Timothy, that with the Word of God, the Holy Scriptures, the sacred inspired writings, understood and faithfully followed, the man of God was fully equipped. If a man is perfected for all good works, what more can he get? and if he can get this from God's Word, how does it come that now he must have the Holy Spirit, or God the Spirit, to come and enlighten him as to what he must do and say? No, brethren and sisters, we are not "Orthodox" on the Trinity question.

"Evangelical" Churches are such as are united in belief, and can unite for mutual strength and common work, though differing slightly in Church government. For instance, the various branches of the Methodist Church, and also the Presbyterian with its offshoots, the Congregational, the German Reformed, the Baptist, the United Brethren, the Christian, and others too numerous to mention, can unite for common work in various communities, because the difference between them is largely in forms. They all believe in the doctrine of the Trinity, in the immortality of the soul, in the Church-kingdom, and going to heaven at death theories. Most of them hold to infant baptism, and most any form of baptism is all right with them—some of them even admitting "workers" who have never seen the necessity of any sort of baptism.

The Church of God cannot "unite" with these Church denominations, for the good reason that there is nothing in common between us. The whole plan and purpose of God as declared in his Word is defeated the moment we accept the statement of the serpent in the Garden of Eden when he told Eve the very contrary to what God had told Adam. The theory of the immortality of the soul makes the serpent, who is Satan, tell the truth, and of course accuses God of telling the reverse. We of the Church of God cannot strike hands in a common work with believers in such nullifying theories. Light is essentially different from darkness. Good is ever at variance with evil. Right and wrong do not mix.

But some one asks, Cannot we unite with them for the betterment of humanity, for the uplift of the race? The argument is that "in a way" these people are good people—real good. They are trying to rescue the fallen, to lead those in darkness to the light of God. They maintain houses of worship, and conduct schools and classes where the Bible is taught, and well, they "do lots of good in the world," and it is surely right to encourage all such efforts, as they are so earnest and sincere in their ideas, and surely God is blessing them in many ways for the good they do.

If a mad-dog came rushing along the street, going directly toward some helpless children, and was followed by a policeman who was a rank infidel, you might join with the policeman in killing the dog and saving the children, and it would be all right. But would it be advisable for you to then go with the policeman to an infidel meeting where the name of God would be blasphemed and made light of?

If there is a saloon to be established in your neighborhood that will ruin your son and daughter, and your Methodist and Presbyterian neighbor says to you, Come, join us in preventing the founding of this vile thing in our midst, and you assist them in the work and by your united efforts succeed in keeping it out, is your uniting with them in this work any reason why you should go to their meetings and when they pray that at death their immortal souls may be taken by angels to heaven, you shout Amen, and so sanction the falsehood of the serpent?

If there is some specific work to be done in your town, some enterprise to be promoted that will tend to raise the fallen, better conditions, aid in the cause of charity, "uplift" poor humanity, and you can unite with your neighbor of whatever faith, as man with man, to bring about the desired result, is such united action any reason why you should go a step farther and unite with them in their organization called a Church?

There are all sorts of arguments used. You have no Church of your own faith near. You need a "Church home." Companionship is agreeable, as man is a social animal, you know. Even if we do not agree in all things, there is so much we do agree on in the line of "practical" christianity. Then perhaps my wife, or my husband, is a member of one of these churches. He or she is a good man or woman, and all things consider'd, I can do more work in the good cause inside their church, so I smother my convictions and unite with them.

You argue to yourself that you will never give up your "faith." You will always hold to your belief, and even say that as you have opportunity you will speak it out. You say to yourself that you can likely "do more good" to join them, for if you stand out, you will always be to them an outsider; whereas, if you join them, and pay your money to support their church, they will have to give you the privilege of speaking your views.

Well, how does it operate? Can any one cite us to a case where such a "joiner" has succeeded in doing any real lasting good? We mean to ask you for a case where such a person has succeeded in getting any one to accept the Bible views on these vital questions? Where is one such who has ever succeeded in convincing any one else that there are any "vital questions" to be settled?

It is just a matter of drifting along, a few words contradictory now and then, half-hearted and weak. Or else it is keeping back any peculiar ideas we may have, and plunging into the work of the organization you have joined; giving your time, your influence, your force, your money to a cause that is Biblically essentially wrong.

You say to yourself that you can hold your own views, and that when Jesus comes he can find you there as well as anywhere. Let us reason a little on this and see. When the fit time is come in the Father's mind, to send Jesus the Christ back to this earth, he will do it. When Jesus was here he had a work to do that was preparatory to the work to be done while he was away. Now that he is at the right hand of the Father waiting till all is ready, things are moving on under the plan of God, and certain faithful ones are being developed and chosen, fitted and prepared for partners with Jesus in the work of the next age. This is what the "Truth of God," that sanctified the disciples of old, and set them apart for a definite work, is doing now—"taking out" a people for his name. Selecting out from among the many a few, a "little flock," to whom the Father will take pleasure in giving the kingdom.

In all the centuries since Jesus went away, God has been letting the people of earth manage affairs, but always looking on to the time when he would again send his Son to earth to finish his work. God still wants what he wanted when he created Adam, and set him in the Garden of Eden. He wants this earth to be a Paradise, full of beauty and excellence, and inhabited by holy, happy beings, who will delight in doing his will. The work of this dispensation has been to gather out from among the thousands and millions of human beings that have existed, a few who will be worthy by the characters they have developed in this life, by the tenacity with which they have held to God's Truth, by the good deeds they have done, by their faithful life and fearless death—we say the work of this dispensation has been to select out such to be fellow-heirs and co-workers with Christ in the duties of the age to come.

The argument is advanced that it will do no harm for me to unite with some other Church if none of my own faith be near, and that if I remain faithful the Lord can find me there as well as anywhere. No one will dispute the Lord's ability to find you. Sure he will. He has a question to ask of you. We do not presume to give his words, but here is the sentiment of his question: What report have you to give of your stewardship? I gave you talent to present my cause and claims to others, I gave you time to work in my vineyard, I entrusted you with money to use in my service. How have you used it? Go into your closet alone with God, leaving out all the thought of husband or wife, of position or companionship, and formulate now while you still have opportunity, the answer you will give to God in the Great Judgment Day. A wise decision now will help you when you stand before his throne.

A question is asked in Luke xviii. 8, like this "Nevertheless, when the Son of Man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" The Diaglott says—"When the Son of Man comes, will he find this belief on the land?" What is your answer? Paul said to Timothy "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." What do you suppose Paul meant by saying he had "kept the faith?" The Diaglott says "Guarded the faith." Suppose when Paul was stricken while on his way to Damascus, he had quietly consented at the command of his Lord to cease his persecution of the saints, had submitted to baptism after giving assent to a statement of the gospel, and had declared his full belief in its teachings and precepts, and his abiding confidence in the promises of God. Suppose he had held to this all his life through. Had attended church when the "preacher" was there, but was not much interested in any service other than that. Had paid in money as he happened to have it to spare,—but never gave when it required any real "sacrifice" on his part. Suppose he had lived a quiet life, and had never denied the faith, was good friends with all men, in that he never bothered them with his peculiar beliefs and ideas, but was satisfied with their earnestness and zeal. Just suppose Paul after his conversion had lived such an easy and quiet life as here set forth—just such a life as you are living—uniting with some other church to have a "church home," or because wife or husband wants you to—would Paul ever have "five times received forty stripes save one?" Would he have been three times beaten with rods? Would he have been stoned, and shipwrecked, and subjected to perils on every hand by sea and by land, going about weary and sick, hungry and thirsty, and cold and naked?

Do you think it likely if Paul's Christian life had been of the same sort as yours that he could have told Timothy that he was ready to be offered, that he had fought a good fight and finished the course and kept (guarded) the faith?

When you use your money to aid "orthodox" denominations in promulgating the errors current among them, and wrapping your talent in a napkin bury it, and so do nothing to advance the true faith, but by aiding the other side really hinder the cause of Christ that you once espoused, can you expect any consideration in the judgment day? Come, brother, sister, be honest with yourself, be honest with God. So silly of you to think God will make it all right in the end, and you are worried to know what to do any way, and you will just slide along and trust to God to make things work out as he wants them to. This is just the task he has given you to do, and he expects you to do it.

Again we urge, be honest with yourself and with God. What do you say to the question "When he comes will he find faith (this belief) on the earth?" You have some talent and can tell others of the true faith; you can teach the young; you can write articles of explanation and encouragement to your fellows; you have time to visit the poor and distressed, the widow and orphan, and aid and console them; you have money that God has entrusted to your keeping that will pay the able brother who can go forth and proclaim the Word, and pay the expenses of maintaining a place for worship; you have health that enables you to get out and attend any function you are interested in; you are well equipped intellectually, bodily and financially. God has thus endowed you. What for? Because he wants you to develop a character that will fit you for participation with his Son, your Savior, in the work of a future age. Are you doing anything for his cause? How are you "guarding the faith?" You may not think we have any right to demand an answer from you, and indeed we are not claiming to have any such right. All we are trying to do is to impress on your mind that some day, yes, we will say some day very soon now, this question will come from one who has power to demand an answer. When you see the King coming will you hasten to meet him, glad to welcome him and answer the question joyfully, confident that you have done your utmost; or will you go the other way and call for rocks and mountains to fall on you and hide you from his sight?

It is one or the other, brother, sister. You can't hide in an "orthodox" or "evangelical" church so deep he cannot find you, and if you can step out from such association and declare you have "kept the faith" "guarded the faith," well and good. If you have any doubts in this regard, act now, for Paul says that the Lord said "Come out from among them (referring to infidels and idolators) and be ye separate, and touch not the unclean thing."

One more text and the subject is yours. Peter says concerning those who go astray, and become the servants of corrupt ways, "It had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them."

Instant Decision.

There is a story in ancient Roman history, of a king who was at war with the Romans, to whom a Roman ambassador once came and presented proposals for submission and peace. The king hesitated, temporized, proposed to consider and discuss the matter, and requested time to make up his mind; until at length the ambassador drew a line around him, in the sand where he stood, and said: "Give me your answer before you leave that circle." The monarch feared the Roman power, and he submitted to their demands.

There are times when it seems as if God dealt thus with the sons of men. After waiting long; entreating, pleading, and importuning; he at length brings them to a point of instant decision. "God now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." Unsaved, unthinking men are deferring and dreaming, waiting for a more convenient season; but God calls them to instant decision, to immediate repentance. "To-day if you will hear his voice harden not your hearts." This hour you may settle the question of your eternal destiny. No delay is needful. God calls you, the Holy Spirit convinces you, Jesus waits to receive you and bless you, and why will you delay? "Behold now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation." Let your heart this moment yield to God in instant and affectionate submission to his will. Surrender all things to his pleasure, and trust in him with all your heart and you shall be saved.—H. L. H. in Armory.

Driving With Oil.

I wanted to drive an iron bar through a piece of timber. I bored a hole of the right size, but the bar was rusty, and the hole was rough. I made slow progress, and was beginning to split the wood. Then I thought of the oil can. I oiled the bar; I poured oil into the hole; a few blows of the hammer sent the iron into its place. The oil had not diminished the size of the bar, or enlarged that of the hole. It had only relieved the friction. A few drops of oil were more effective than many blows of the hammer.

How slow some good people are to learn this. They are intensely in earnest, and even morbidly conscientious. Everybody ought to see it just as they do, and whoever does not is hammered at without mercy. Such zeal excites friction. Men will not appreciate the truth when they are repelled by the spirit in which it is presented. Let the reformer be careful to have plenty of oil. Let him speak the truth in love.—Rest and Reaping.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let us Pray.

Our Father, who art in heaven. Hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Thou art worthy to be praised, oh our God! Daily and hourly we are the recipients of thy bounty; oh how great is thy mercy! Thousands are destitute—we have food and raiment and shelter from the inclemency of the weather.

Above all we praise thee for our spiritual blessings in the Anointed Jesus. We know not how to express our gratitude for the exalted position we occupy as the called according to thy purpose. The Glad Tidings have indeed reached us, and we are glad to stand before thee accounted righteous on account of faith in them—and this morning we realize the blessedness of those whose transgressions are forgiven, and whose sins are covered.

Heavenly Father, we praise thee for thy ever ruling providence by which we are priviledged to meet each week to celebrate the dying love of thy greatest gift to man. And we humbly pray that thy blessing may attend these exercises. Oh, that each of thy children may get very near to thee that thy love may be more fully shed abroad in our hearts. May every soul sit under the shadow of the cross, and catch the spirit of him who died for us again. May we follow him by faith into heaven itself where he appears in thy presence for us. May faith reach on to the coming again of thy Son, and thus keep hope in the ascendant, and prevent the cares of this world from choking out the incorruptible seed, thy Word. Tenderly regard the aged and infirm of our number,—and the lambs of the fold,—exposed to the assaults of a thousand satans—Oh Father we pray thee to keep them in the hollow of thy hand,—may their faith fail not,—may they cling to the promises and heed the great injunction to watch and pray, that they enter not into temptation. We pray for those in authority over us that we may still be able to lead quiet and peaceable lives, and pray the seed of the kingdom broadcast—Oh, God this lies close to our hearts; we want to win souls while the last sands of Gentile times are running out—we long to see the fruit of our labor and we plead with thee to be used for thy glory in saving souls. Thou hast blest us in times past bless us again, by melting the soul to the truth. Oh help us to take hold of thy strength today, and so present thy loving purpose and the dying love of Christ that some may yield to thy gracious call. In Jesus' name.

We are pleased to state that through the liberality of brethren and sisters who have donated to "Our Book Fund," we have been able to supply every call from the poor, and still have means to send out more books if the needy will make their wants known.

Gold Dust.

Kind words quiet a wrathful mind.

When we are dead to covetousness we can cultivate the grace of giving.

You must love in order to understand love. One act of charity will teach us more of the love of God than a thousand sermons.

The Bible is the field in which God's children labor, and wherein they find their treasures; while they search it, as often as they will go to it and find wealth, such wealth that the deeper they dig the richer they become.

The common theory of eternal misery involves God, His whole administration and his eternal kingdom in the deepest dishonor that the mind of man or angel can conceive.—Dr. E. Beecher.

OUR BOOK FUND

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

JOHN THE BAPTIST.

John the Baptist was a son of Zacharias, a priest who lived in Judea. Prophets had told of his birth and the angel of the Lord had told Zacharias that his wife should bear him a son and he should call his name John. This son was to be filled with the Holy Ghost from his birth and be great in the sight of God, and many of the Israelites would be turned to the Lord their God.

In early life John betook himself a life of solitude and meditation and lived in the desert far from the homes of men. He was a rare specimen of the ancient Nazarites and had no claim to miraculous powers, but like Samson and Samuel commanded admiration by his life of retirement.

He wore the prophet's mantle of camel's hair fastened to the body by a girdle and lived on locusts and wild honey.

John knew God had sent him to preach to the people and when the time came he went to the river Jordan and startled the nation of Israel by his sudden appearance and preacher of repentance.

Crowds of people came to hear him and he told them that the Savior, for whom they had looked so long would soon come and would save all who put their trust in him and were baptized for the remission of their sins. When he saw many of the Jews come to his baptism he told them that they could not be saved just because they were Abraham's seed but that they must serve God and keep his laws.

While John was at Jordan preaching, Jesus came to him to be baptized. John, knowing that Jesus was Lord of all felt his unworthiness to baptize him, but when Jesus told him that it was right, and that some day he would know why, he was willing to obey. When the Jews sent priests to ask him who he was, he told them that he was not the Christ, so that Jesus might be all in all. This should be the heart's attitude of every Christian.

John was never afraid to denounce sin among all classes of people. The high and the low alike felt the sting of his rebuke, and when John saw Herod's sin he did not worry about losing his own life but told him what was right and left the rest with God. We should also learn this lesson. "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." Matt. xvi. 25.

GRACE H. SCHMIDT.

THE STORY OF JOSEPH.

Jacob the father of Joseph had more than one wife, which was the custom in those days. Joseph's mother was Rachel. He had ten half brothers and one full brother. Jacob loved Joseph more than his other sons and they were jealous of him. They were always playing mean tricks on him. Jacob loved him so, he gave him a coat of many colors for a present.

One night he dreamed that he and his brothers were out in the field tying up sheaves of wheat, each one of them had a sheaf, then all of his brother's sheaves came and bowed down to his sheaf. The other dream was that the sun, moon, and eleven stars bowed down to him. When he told his father and brothers these dreams his father scolded him and his brothers hated him still more.

One day Jacob sent Joseph to Shechem to see how his brothers were getting along with their sheep. His brothers saw that it was a long way off by his coat of many colors. They said "Here comes that dreamer, let's put him down a pit." When he came they were going to throw him in the pit, Reuben, who liked Joseph more than his other brothers whispered to him what they were going to do, and said you must not be afraid. I will come later and take you out by a rope. On their way to the pit they met a band of Ishmaelites and they sold him to them for twenty pieces of silver. They kept his coat and killed a kid and dipped his coat in the blood of it. They took it to their father and said, "Is this not your son's coat?" Jacob said, "Some evil beast has eaten him" and had no doubt he was dead.

Joseph was taken to Egypt and sold again to Potiphar the captain of the guard. And he was a servant for him. God was with him, and Potiphar saw that he had done well his duty and made him ruler of his house. God blessed the house that Joseph ruled and Potiphar's wife had him put in prison.

The guard or steward of the prison loved Joseph and let him act as steward. The butler and baker were put in prison too, for offending the king of Egypt. The butler and the baker both had a dream the same night. They told them to Joseph and he told them what they both meant and they came true that the butler was given his place again, and the baker was hung within three days. Joseph had told the butler in prison to tell Pharaoh about him when he got out but he forgot him.

After the butler had been out of prison two years Pharaoh had two dreams. He dreamed he saw a river, then seven fat cows came out of the river and seven lean cows came out of the river and ate the seven fat cows.

In the other dream there was a cornstalk and seven big ears of corn grew on the stalk, then seven little thin ears of corn that were blown with the rough east wind grew on and ate the seven big ears.

The king told these dreams to all of his servants, and all his wise men, but none of them could interpret it. Then the butler thought of Joseph who was in prison and how he had told his dream. He had forgotten all about him. He told the king his dream and how it came true and he sent for Joseph. He told his dream to Joseph and God interpreted it to him and Joseph told it to Pharaoh. It meant that the seven fat cows and ears were seven years of plenty, and the seven lean cows or seven thin ears of corn were seven years of famine. Pharaoh was so thankful to him for interpreting it that he made him ruler over all his people. But he was higher than him. He put his crown and his royal robes on him and placed the ring and necklace on him.

As soon as the harvest of plenty began Joseph sent many men to gather the grain, corn and wheat, and store it for the next seven years of famine. The famine came and only the people of Egypt had food. Many people came to get food.

The people of Canaan heard that there was plenty of food in Egypt and Jacob sent his sons to Joseph to get food. When they got there Joseph knew them but they did not know him. But after they had gone to him a couple of times he told them that he was their brother. They told their father and they all came to Egypt and bowed down to him, and finally they all moved to Egypt to live.

Sunday School Lesson.

Jesus Entering Jerusalem. Matthew xxi. 1-17.

Golden Text:—"Hosanna to the Son of David; blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; hosanna in the highest." Matthew xxi. 9.

This triumphal entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem is said to have been on Sunday, the day after the Jewish Sabbath, and just before the crucifixion. Jesus was on the west slope of the Mt. of Olives.

History gives accounts of the Roman triumphal processions, where a victorious general entered the city at the head of his army and train of captives. Garlands decorated the way, and flowers and branches were strewn on the road, amid great display of pomp and splendor, with shouting and singing.

For three years Jesus had been showing the people by his acts and words that he was fitted for an ideal king. The kingdom of heaven—governed by laws of love and righteousness. He had shown that he had kingly power. His character was such as to command the respect of everyone—he was a fit example. He had devoted himself to the good of the people. He had cleansed the temple, and purified the worship. True religion was essential to the state. He delivered the people from physical ills and misfortunes, and from sin as well. His laws were the best. His education and training made good citizens. He was not above giving attention to even the little children, and all classes of people were benefitted by his sway.

Jesus, who had been tried in every way now comes to this people as their king. They have an opportunity to accept him as king—it is their last opportunity. Much depends on their decision.

As king he makes his triumphal entry into the capital of the nation. As he proceeds along the road, two disciples are sent to a village near by where would be found "an ass tied, and a colt with her." They were to tell the owner that the "Lord had need of them." They are brought, and some place their garments on the colt and put Jesus thereon. The horse was for war, and this was not for such a purpose. The ass was the common beast for all to ride, and there was nothing degrading connected with it.

A census taken at the time by Nero, says that there were 2,700,000 Jews congregated for the Passover feast, so that there was a "very great multitude" there to see the procession and take part in it. Some spread their garments in the way as an act of homage, and others spread branches of trees before Jesus as he proceeded. Hosanna—"Save, we pray"—was shouted. "Hosanna to the Son of David"—to the natural heir to the throne—to the inheritor of the promises made to David. See 2 Samuel vii 12-16; 1 Chronicles xvii. 10-14. He "cometh in the name of the Lord." He is indorsed by God as his representative—sent by God. "Hosanna in the highest." To the utmost degree. In the highest strains. There is much in all this. Jesus is hailed as king, as the promised son of David, as the king of Israel, as he who cometh in the name of the Lord, to re-establish the kingdom of his father David. Glory in the highest heavens—hosanna in the highest. Honor, adoration, praise, is here.

But there is a note of discord. Some Pharisees are displeased, and ask him to rebuke or restrain his disciples. Luke tells us that as they came in view of the city with all its grandeur and splendor, that Jesus "wept over it." This city was soon to reject him as king. It was to be laid waste by besieging armies, its walls broken down, and ploughed like a field. Hunger and misery was to be the lot of this people, and thousands upon thousands die by famine and sword. An awful destiny awaited city and people. Jesus was the only Savior who could prevent this calamity—and he was to be rejected. Infinite love could not lead them to repentance. Infinite love cannot lead some to repentance even in this day, and as surely as calamity came to those who then rejected their only Savior, will similar disaster overtake those who today are hardened in their sins.

This triumphal march of Jesus is an object lesson, showing the march of truth down the ages. The history of the church is the march of our Lord across the centuries. Dominion over the whole world is the final end to be attained. As the people cast their garments before Jesus as he rode on, so are we to give our talents, money and time to aid his cause, and hasten his success. It is certain that the final consummation of this age only awaits the calling out of a few more—only waits till the straggling ones can be gathered into the fold. Then how determined we should be to do everything that can in any way help the work. All our plans should be with this in view. None of self or the world, all for Jesus and his cause.

The Temple, the home prepared for the worship of God. Where prayer was to be made. Where the spirit of devotion and loyalty and love to the Most High was to be manifested. This place Jesus found unclean, a marketplace for the sale of animals, and the exchange of money. He drove this all out, and overturned the tables. There could be no true worship with such a condition existing—it was out of the question. The very object of the temple was debauched.

John, in describing the New Jerusalem—God's Holy City—says, "there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth." Our hearts must be clear of all evil, all sinfulness, all that is base and selfish, and filled with the love of Jesus and our fellows. Only thus can we be fit temples for God's dwelling place.

The day was ended by giving relief to suffering humanity. The blind and the lame came to Jesus, and "he healed them."

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Bellisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robinson's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Table Talk.

I beseech you therefore brethren by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service; and be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. What are the mercies of God? Psa cxix 156 says, Great are thy mercies, O Lord, quicken me according to thy judgments; and cxlix 9 says, The Lord is good to all, and his tender mercies are over all his works. It is by his mercies that we live and have the opportunity of learning and obeying the gospel. How do we present ourselves acceptable unto God? By doing those things which are acceptable in his sight. In Eccl. it says to fear God and keep his commandments—are acceptable. In Cor vi 2, it reads, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee; behold, now is the accepted time, behold, now is the day of salvation.

In Eph v Paul says, For ye were sometimes darkness, but now ye are light in the Lord, walk as children of light, for the fruit of the spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth, proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. In 1 Peter ii 20 read, For what glory is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently; but if when ye do well and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God. Dear brothers and sisters, let us ever be found striving to do those things which are pleasing in the sight of God, for it is in this life that we must prove ourselves worthy of eternal life. This is the testing time, now is the appointed time, today is the day of salvation, by doing those things we will not be conformed to this world, but will be transformed by the renewing of our mind or changing of our mind from what it was before we obeyed the gospel. May we all be found worthy of eternal life in the kingdom of God when Jesus comes is my earnest prayer.

WILSON TOWNSEND.

"Therefore, or for this reason, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch, or since, ye know that your labor is not in vain" in the Lord. Here Paul is writing to those of like precious faith at Corinth. He has just explained to them the resurrection of Christ, and how they should be made like him, and then in this verse he sums it all up by telling them how to live, and how sure they are of their reward, if they remain faithful to the end. Be ye steadfast or firm, in Chron xv 7, we find, "Be ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak, for your labor shall be rewarded." Unmovable, that is something that cannot be moved, we should not be carried about with every wind of doctrine, but stand by the truth at all times. Always abounding in the work of the Lord. Heb xiii 28 says, "Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever." Since ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord. How do we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord? Because, we can find very plain verses in the "Word of God" telling us it is not, such as Isa iii 10, "Say ye to the righteous, that it shall be well with him; for they shall not eat of their doings. Rev xxii 12. And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. What a just and righteous God we have to give to every one as he shall deserve, something unknown in this present evil world.

In closing I wish to add a few words from 2 Peter iii, "Ye, therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own stedfastness. But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and forever. Amen."

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Jurgensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Blest Be the Tie That Binds.

Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above.

Before our Father's throne
We pour our ardent prayers;
Our fears, our hopes, our aims are one,
Our comforts and our cares.

We share our mutual woes,
Our mutual burdens bear;
And often for each other flows
The sympathizing tear.

Here we must often part,
In sorrow and in pain;
But we shall meet be joined in heart,
And hope to meet again.

The Man Who Got Up.

The car stopped at a corner and a woman carrying a crutch climbed on the front step and came in by the door next to a sad-faced man. She did not seem to be lame exactly, as she held the crutch in her hand while she mounted the step unaided and pushed her way inside, but she seemed tired, and was evidently vexed at finding the car full.

The sad-faced man looked at her for a moment and then he turned questioningly to his fellow passengers, but no one offered the woman with the crutch a seat. After a moment's hesitation the sad-faced man touched her on the elbow and reached for the strap above his head as he stood up and offered her his seat.

She took it without a word of thanks and arranged her gown as the man reached for another strap and swung himself down so that he could still peer through the windows of the car at the passing throng and watch for his stopping place. It came along presently, and as the car slowed up he begged the passengers who had been sitting next him to allow him to get something from under the seat.

They moved their feet restfully aside and one of them reached down and got hold of something, asking the sad-faced man if that was his. Hanging on to one strap with his left hand and stretching out the other, he said it was, and after adjusting a pair of crutches under his armpits and smiling faintly at the woman to whom he had given his seat, he thanked the motorman for helping him off the car and went his way.—Boston Herald.

Drinking Husbands and Fathers

I have studied the laws of heredity, practically and with hundreds of living illustrations, for 22 years, and I have reached a firm conviction that no man is worthy to become a husband or father who is not always sober and clean. By sober, I mean a man who is not familiar with the red cup; by clean, one whose body is pure and healthful.

We are at present developing a race of drunkards. Statistics show that, leaving out the children, there is one drunkard to every 42. This means that nearly one-half the adult people in the United States drink something else than water.

I have sufficient evidence to encourage me in my belief that any man who tipples cannot be a good father; not that the greatest wrong is to himself, but because of the wrong done to his children. I find that nine out of every ten men who drink had drinking fathers or family before them. The father says: "Oh, I only drink a little, you know; it never affects me!" But the father never knows what terrible effects of just drinking "a little" may be revealed in his offspring; what awful influence it may have upon the mind and habits of his child.

You cannot enervate the mind and body and have strength and intellect remain. If you are a father, as you sow strength and intellect in yourself, so shall you reap strength and intellect in your children. If drunkenness and licentiousness go hand in hand, if we are generating a drunken race, then we are producing at the same time an unclean race. Let thinking men and women consider these cruel, hard facts; and, above all, let the wives bring all their loving influence to bear upon their husbands to restrain their husbands from drinking.—Anthony Comstock.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 20-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. ALLARD.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Ohio will be held August 17 to 21 inclusive in the new church 10628 Lee Ave. Cleveland, Ohio.

The church is located in the East end of the city near East 105 Street, a short distance from the street cars.

Please communicate with the Pastor R. G. Huggins and arrangements will be made to meet you at the Depot.

The program will appear later.

J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus of the State of Illinois will be held in Oregon, beginning Wednesday, August 17 and continuing over Sunday the 21.

This Conference will follow immediately the annual Bible School conducted at that place.

We are expecting a greater meeting than ever before. Come.

EMMA L. SMITH, Sec.

The Missouri-Kansas Conference of the Church of God will meet at Severance, Kansas, on Grand Island Railroad, about 40 miles west of St. Joe, August 20-28 inclusive. Business meeting August 22 at 10 a. m. Meetings forenoons, afternoons and evenings. All lovers of free speech and investigation of religious questions are cordially invited to attend. There is good train service from St. Joe, trains leaving for the west about 10 a m, 4 p m. and 8 p m.

By order of the Con. Board,
EUGENE HOWARD, Pres.

The twenty-fifth Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, in the State of Nebraska, will be held in Omaha, Sept. 3rd to the 11th inclusive.

The meetings will be held in a tent. Meals will be furnished at 10 cents and lodging free. Owing to the greater distance those in the west have to come, the Brethren of Omaha have decided to pay three dollars on every one's fare coming from west of St. Paul and Grand Island. Good speakers will be provided and we urge every one to come and help make this Conference a success and enjoy the benefits which cannot help but follow an attendance.

Please read Bro. Adams' report for June, thoughtfully and carefully, and let it test self to see if sacrifices ar really being made. If we are truly looking for Christ's soon return, let us give practical proof of it and put his business before all other business.

Christ has left us in charge of his work for a time and by joining ourselves to him, we have promised to be faithful to the trust and make his business a success as far as we can. In order to make any line of work a success we must concentrate all our energies upon it, and subordinate and bend all things to it. If we have not been doing this, but have been putting worldly business and pleasure ahead, let us begin with this Conference to put Christ's ahead.

During Conference, if attended in the right spirit, faith and strength for the following year's work will be obtained, and we will be better able to wait patiently for his return. Every one make a special effort to be there and do his share toward making a good start for the next year's work. Let us not be shirkers. Every thing possible will be done to make your stay both pleasant and profitable. If further information is desired write Bro. M. D. Newell of Blair, Neb, Pres. of Conference Board.

ALTA KING.

To those of the Household of Faith everywhere, Greeting:

We wish to call to your remembrance the notice given immediately after the Annual Conference, concerning the Bible School which is to convene at Coats Grove, Mich., beginning August 26, for one week, to be concluded by the Quarterly Conference Sept. 2nd-4th. The value of the Bible School has been fully demonstrated, and we wish to urge that all that are interested in its success to plan to attend. Entertainment will be furnished by the Coats Grove brethren, and they desire a full attendance. As soon as possible, notify Bro. A. K. Richardson, R. F. D. 5, Hastings, Mich., that you will be there so that you can be provided for.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay is expected to have charge of the class, which will insure profit to all that attend.

Coats Grove is located in Barry County, about seven miles from Hastings, and is on the C. K. and S. R'y. If you cannot make connections by this route, go to Hastings via the M. C. R'y, notifying Bro. Richardson beforehand, if possible, and you will be met with a rig.

Don't forget the date and place, and come with Bibles, paper and pencil, and a determination to make it the most successful meeting we have held.

Mrs. F. V. BLAKELY, Sec'y.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God of Southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah from October 8 to 16 inclusive. Program will appear later after definite arrangements have been made. We bid all welcome who may come. Anyone wishing further information may write to Lewis Weaver, Route 3, Casey, Illinois.

MRS. C. W. WEAVER, Sec.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second amplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, this paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 24, 1910. NUMBER 32.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Peace.

"They have seduced my people, saying, Peace; and there was no peace; and one built up a wall, and, lo, others daubed it with untempered mortar."—Ezek. xiii. 10.

Peace!
And the worlds, moving in space,
Ready to wreck the weaker that may move
One inch from its own orbit;
And the very earth beneath our feet
Quarreling with itself!

Peace!
And the deep'st Leviathan
Thilling the tiny tribes
The hawk, swooping on prey
Itself the prey of something greater;
The weed choking the flower,
And the giant oak
Crushing to earth, foiled by its protege,
The treacherous parasite!

Peace!
And the child in the street
Smiting its brother child for coveted trifles,
And the man
Bludgeoning his neighbor, as he did of old
But with his wits:
And, with survivor's cunnings,
Hocking the woman with rich, sparkling gems
Bour's teeth strung on her mother's hair!

Peace!
Another name for war!
Will the universe stand still,
Or lives ask his Lazarus to dinner?
Canst dam the flood that wears the rocks?
Or teach
The lion court the lamb?
Not till Millennium!

Rom. vii: 24, 25.

Paul here asks a question in the 24th, saying, "O, wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death; and answers naming the means. "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord, so then with the mind I myself serve the law of God, but with the flesh the law of sin." Now the question we wish to decide is, had Paul considered himself as being already delivered from the body of this death, of which he thanked God through Jesus Christ our Lord, or did he look for this deliverance at some time in the future, as some seem to teach, quoting Matt xvi: 27. "For the Son of man shall come in the glory of His Father with his angels, and then he shall reward every man according to his works."

In order to understand the apostle's meaning as to whether the deliverance he spoke of had already taken place, or that he looked for it at some future time. It might be well to consider the whole subject matter of which the apostle treats in the preceding chapters of this epistle to the Romans. In the first chapter we learn that God had made himself manifest to the world in general. Paul says that this knowledge had been given them, through the things that are made, being clearly seen, so that they were without excuse, and for which cause they were given up by God to do those things which were not convenient. Rom i: 18 to end.

The apostle then directs his attention to the Jews who had received the law covenant, and who boasted of, and rested in the law; considering themselves justified in the sight of God, simply through the knowledge of that law, and without doing the perfect works the law required of them. Paul therefore asks them this question, "Thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them (the gentiles) which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God." Rom ii. 3. And answers, "for not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." verse 13 Hence the promised blessing (eternal life) was only for those who kept the law perfectly. That this is what the law promised may be seen from the Lord's answer to the young man who asked, "good master what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" And our Lord said, "if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." This man asked to know what he should do, that he might have eternal life, and our Lord's answer to him was that in order to be perfect, "he should keep the commandments, and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven (eternal life) and come follow me."

Again that eternal life is promised for keeping the law, see the answer given by our Lord to the lawyer who asked him, "What must I do to have eternal life;" and our Lord asked him "How readest thou," and he answered "thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." The Lord said unto him, "Thou hast answered right, this do and thou shalt live." Luke x; 25-29. Hence it is seen that eternal life is the reward for keeping the law perfectly. This none of the Jews had done, because Jesus said unto them, "Did not Moses give you the law? and yet none of you doeth the law?" John vii: 19. Hence we find Paul also reasoning with the Jews in this epistle, accusing them of falling short of its requirements, also saying, "Behold thou art called a Jew, and rest within the law, and makest thy boast of God and knowest his will and approvest the things that are excellent, being instructed of the law, and are confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them that are in darkness, and instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, having in the law a form of knowledge and of the truth, thou therefore that teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? Thou that preachest, a man should not steal, dost thou steal? thou who gloriest in the law through thy transgression of the law dishonorest thou God." Rom ii: 17-24.

Hence Paul reasons with them that although they were thus favored in having a knowledge of the truth, through the law, still he reasons with them that they could not be justified in God's sight through that knowledge alone, any more than the Gentiles who had not had that knowledge, and consequently were no more righteous in the sight of God, than the Gentiles were, who did not have the law. Hence he asks them this question, "What then? are we better than they? (the gentiles) and He answers saying "No, in no wise" for we before charged both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin, as it is written there is none righteous, no not one." Rom. iii: 9. Hence neither Jew nor Gentile could have any claim upon the promised reward (eternal life) through their having lived up to the requirements of the law, and that by reason of their failure, "Every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may be brought under the judgment of God." Rom iii: 19.

Consequently all the world was, and is under condemnation. None, neither Jew nor Gentile having lived up to the law's requirements. Therefore for this reason, "by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified in his sight." Rom. iii: 20.

The apostle then proceeds to tell them how both Jew and Gentile can fulfill the righteousness of the law, and attain unto a condition of justification and says, "But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets, even the righteousness of God which is by faith in Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe, for there is no difference (between either Jew or Gentile) for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, whom God sent forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood to declare His righteousness for the remission of sins that are passed, through the forbearance of God." And in view of God's having provided for justification on condition of faith in Jesus Christ on the part of both Jew and Gentile, the apostle asks, "where is boasting then?" and answers saying, "It is excluded, By what law, of works? nay but by a law of faith." Rom. iii: 27. Consequently there can be no boasting as the Jews had been wont to do, since both Jew and Gentiles are being justified by faith, without the works of the law. Rom iii: 28.

The apostle however, would not have us understand that, because of this new law of justification by faith, made void the law of works, he says, "nay, we establish the law. Rom. iii: 31. The fact that no one can be justified by the works of the law, does not mean that the law was weak in itself, and that none could get life through obedience to its requirements? No, because we have seen from our Lord's answer to the young man and lawyer already referred to, that a man that keeps the law should inherit eternal life, and also from the language of Paul that, "the doers of the law shall be justified." Rom. ii: 13 and again in Gal. iii: 12. "And the law is not a faith, but the man that doeth them, shall live in them."

He then calls their attention to Abraham, how he had been justified through his exercise of faith, in believing God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness.....and that it was not imputed to Abraham for his sake alone, but for us also, to whom it shall be imputed or reckoned, if we believe on Him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead, who was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification." Rom. iv: 2-25. The apostle in his epistle to the Galatians, gives as the reason why Christ was delivered for man's offences, stating that "God sent forth His Son, made of a Woman, born under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Gal iv: 4, 5. And in view of Christ having been delivered up for our offences, and being raised up for our justification, and in consequence of our faith in God having delivered up his Son, and raising him up he says, "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom also we have had our access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God." (in the coming kingdom) Rom v: 1, 2.

Or as the apostle puts it in his epistle to the Galatians, we "Receive the adoption of sons, and if children then heirs, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ. And because of this hope of the coming glory of God in the kingdom promised to them that love Him, he says, "let us also rejoice in our tribulations, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope," and note the reason Paul gives as the assurance of our future hope, of which he says putteth not to shame "because the love of God hath been shed abroad in our hearts, which was given unto us. When was this love of God given to us? When we were yet weak. In due season Christ died for the godly, while we were yet sinners. Much more then he says, "in other words, how much more assurance therefore have we of being saved from the wrath of God through Him, on account of our faith in Him, seeing that God had already through his love for us (the world) sent his Son to be the Savior of the world. 1 John iv: 14.

"Not that we loved him, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." 1 John v: 10. "And not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. 1 John ii: 2.

Consequently the apostle reasons that after this manifestation of God's love, in sending his Son to be the Savior of the world, we have the more reason of being assured, in being saved from wrath through him (the day of wrath) Rev vi: 17. For says the apostle "If while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God, by the death of his Son, hence it will be seen that the reconciliation was effected while we were yet sinners, by the death of his Son. How much more reason therefore says the apostle, "being reconciled, shall we be saved by his life? and not only so, do we rejoice and hope of the coming glory of God, but we also rejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ by whom we have now received the reconciliation?" which we have seen had already been accomplished through the death of God's Son, while we were yet sinners and enemies. Rom. v: 1-12.

The Apostle proceeds then to tell how that sin entered into the world, and death by sin." That through one man sin entered into the world, and death through sin, and death passed upon all men for that all sinned. Rom v: 12-13. And that this was true of both Jew and Gentiles, Paul said he had proved, "that there was none just, no not one, that they all had sinned and come short of the glory of God." Rom iii: 23. And as the result of the one act, or trespass, the judgment came unto all men to condemnation. And says the apostle, "even so through one act of righteousness, the free gift came unto all men, to justification of life, for as through the obedience of the one shall the many be made righteous." Rom v: 18-20.

It should be noticed the many made righteous through the one act of obedience, has reference to the justification, or reconciliation that came to the world in general, through Christ having been delivered for our (the world's) offences, in short the atonement. The all for, which he gave himself a ransom for, and for whose sins he propitiated for. And not that condition of righteousness to which the obedient believer attains, which Peter speaks of as, "after the trial of faith being much more precious than gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, may be found unto praise and honor and glory, at the appearing of Jesus Christ? receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls," and which the apostle counsels them to "gird up the loins of your mind, be sober and hope to the end, for the grace that is to be brought unto you, at the revelation of Jesus Christ?" 1 Peter i: 5-14. Hence it will be seen that this last grace is one that we are hoping and looking for and which comes at the appearing, or revelation of Jesus Christ, viz., "when the son of man comes in the glory of his Father," the glory of God that Paul rejoiced and hoped for "with his angels and then he shall reward every man according to his works." Matt. xvi: 27.

Paul then proceeds to tell us the purpose of the law's introduction saying, "that the law entered or came in beside, that the offence, or trespass might abound." In other words, without this law, there could be no sinning, for he asks, "What shall we say then, is the law sin? and he answers God forbid, nay I had not known sin, but by the law, for I had not known coveting, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet." Rom vii 7. Hence as the apostle says, "the purpose of the law's introduction was that the offence might abound," but not to bring death to man, for he asks the question again. "Did that which is good bring death unto me? God forbid." Hence as we have said that was not its purpose. No, the purpose of the law, was "that sin might be shown to be sin, working death to me through that which is good, that through the commandment, a sin might become exceedingly sinful." In other words, the law was to show us the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and that where this sin abounded, the apostle tells us, "grace did abound more exceedingly, that as sin reigned in death, even so might grace reign through righteousness, unto eternal life, though Jesus Christ our Lord." Or through the obedience of faith in his name, the righteousness which is through the faith of Jesus Christ. But seeing then that where sin abounded, that grace did much more abound the apostle asks, "Shall we therefore continue in sin that grace may abound? God forbid, and he proceeds to show that all those that were baptized into Christ Jesus, were baptized into his death, therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised from the dead, by the glory of the Father, so we also should walk in newness of life.....they were therefore to reckon themselves to be dead unto sin, but alive unto God through Christ Jesus, and not let sin therefore reign in your mortal bodies, that ye should obey the lusts thereof. If this be done, the apostle says sin shall not have dominion over you, for ye are not under law, but under grace and that this should be the condition of all who have obeyed from the heart that form of teaching, whereunto ye were delivered, and being made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." Rom vi 14-19. The form of teaching to which the apostle alludes, is our burial with Christ in baptism, "being planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Knowing this that our old man was crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, or done away, "that so we should no longer live in boudage to sin, for he that hath died is justified from sin," and says the apostle having been made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end eternal life. Rom vi. From the foregoing it will be seen that the gist of the apostle's reasoning, was to prove that those Jewish converts had not been justified by their law covenant, and as a consequence they should consider themselves freed, or divorced from it, and accept the freely offered justification, redemption, and righteousness, of which God offers to all who exercise faith in Jesus Christ, reckoning themselves dead to sin, but alive to God through Christ, and as new creatures redeemed by his blood, being delivered from the law, that being dead wherein they were held, they should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter." Rom vii 6.

That they had been delivered from the law covenant, the apostle likens the Jews in relation to that covenant, as a woman would be to her husband so long as her husband liveth, but if the husband be dead, she will be loosed from the law of her husband, and free to marry another man, and as he has shown in the 6th chapter, they also had been made dead to the law, through the body of Christ, and that they should be joined or married to another, to him who was raised from the dead, that they may bring forth fruit unto God." Romans vii 1-5.

The "fruit being holiness, and the end eternal life." Rom vi 22. Whereas "when we were in the flesh, or under the law, the sinful passions which were through the law, wrought in our members to bring forth fruit unto death. "But now the apostle says, we have been delivered from the law, having died to that wherein we were holden, etc."

The apostle then proceeds to show that this law that had condemned them, was not a bad law, but on the contrary it was good, wholly just, and spiritual and the reason they had not gained the eternal life it offered, was not on account of the law itself, but that the fault lay in the weakness of their flesh. Rom viii 3. And he aptly illustrates how the fleshly weakness came in conflict with the law, notwithstanding he himself "delighted in the law of God, after the inward man, and of which he approved with his mind, nevertheless when he endeavored to perform its requirements, he said he found a law in his members warring against the law of his mind, which brought him into the law of captivity under the law of sin. Rom vii 23. Because he could not do the things that he would, for he says "the good which I would, I do not, but the evil which I would not, that I do." Now he says if I do that I would not, I consent unto the law that it is good. Now then it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me, for he says that I know that in me, that is in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing." Rom vii 16 21. Not that Paul did not render some obedience to the law's requirements, but because he could not keep it perfectly, and according to the law, "A curse upon every one that continueth not in all things that were written in the book of the law to do them." Gal iii 10; Deut xxviii 15. Consequently it was this perfect obedience the apostle found himself unable to perform which he attributed to the weakness of the flesh, and which was contrary to his mind, desires and wishes, because he says, "he delighted in the law of God." But the law of sin which he found in him found in his members warred against the law which he delighted in with his mind, and thus dragging him down into captivity of the law of sin and death.

Realizing his helpless condition to gain the coveted eternal life under the law covenant, he cries out, "Oh! wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me out of the body of this death," and in view of the deliverance, the justification, redemption and the righteousness that God has freely offered through the faith of Jesus Christ, without the deeds, or perfect works, that that law demanded, as he had already said that God had sent forth his Son to be a propitiation through faith for the remission of sins that are past. Rom iii 24 25.

And as the apostle himself affirms, "that when the fullness of time came, God sent forth his Son made of a woman, born under the law, that he might redeem them that were under the law, that they might receive the adoption of sons." Gal iv 4, 5. In view of this already accomplished deliverance from the law covenant, through the grace of God, in having sent his Son to be a propitiation through faith in his blood for the sins of the whole world, thereby redeeming the world from the sentence of death through the sin of Adam, and also the deliverance of the Jews who were under the law covenant, he says, "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord, so then I myself with the mind, serve the law of God, but with the flesh the law of sin. Rom vii 24 25.

Again, in view of this deliverance, the apostle then informs us, "that there is now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus, having been made free from the law of sin and death. In other words, their fleshly bodies when tested by the law covenant, were found to be dead bodies, because of their weakness, or inability to keep the perfect law. But that God in his great love wherewith he loved us, sent his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and as an offering for sin, he said, "condemned sin in the flesh, that the requirements of the law may be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit." Rom viii 4. Hence it will be seen that those who are in Christ Jesus have been delivered from their dead bodies, because all such the apostle says are not, "in the flesh, but in the spirit. If so be that the spirit of God dwelleth in them, and if they are thus led and walk by the spirit the apostle says, "the requirements of the law are filled in them. Hence the apostle here declares, that all who are seeking to serve the Lord in the spirit are free from the condemnation of the law. And which the apostle affirms was done through God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin condemned sin in the flesh. Jesus therefore being the deliverer from the body of death when he gave himself as a sin offering for the world.

"Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature. Old things are passed away, behold all things are become new," etc., etc. 2 Cor v 17-21.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 24, 1910.

As no paper will be issued next week, we insert the Sunday School lesson notes for two Sundays in this issue.

THERE being five Wednesdays in the month of August, the issue of August 24, and that of September 7, will be consecutive papers. Make a note that no paper will be printed bearing date August 31.

FLORENCE Nightingale, called the "Angel of the Crimea" on account of her services in nursing the sick and wounded soldiers during that war, died at her home in London on August 14, aged 90 years. She was England's most popular woman, being an intimate friend of Queen Victoria for years, and honored by all.

THAT some of our correspondents may see the need of punctuation marks, and appreciate their value, we give the following item as an illustration:—"Lord Palmerston then entered upon his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a dark menacing glare saying nothing."

A CARD from Brother Joseph Williams, while on his way to the Cleveland Conference, says that on Sunday, August 14, he baptized Mrs. Harry Stuart and Miss Gurtha Bramwell, both of whom are now members of the Hillsburg, Ind., church. May Brother Williams be blessed in his work for the Master, and may these new sisters ever prove faithful and have an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God when Jesus comes.

As to the university professor who thinks the New Testament should be worked over and made to conform to the ethics of "our modern life," sundry old fashioned persons maintain that modern ethics should be made to conform to the teachings of the New Testament.—Chicago Tribune.

To the above well-put sentiment we say, Amen, and plead guilty to being of the "Old-fashioned" class.

Trapped by his Ignorance.

A young man was boasting of his infidelity at a campmeeting a number of years ago, and desiring very earnestly to draw some one into a controversy. Father Gruber, an eccentric old German preacher, found his way into the presence of the young man, and said, "I understoud you want to have a discussion on some of these questions." "Yes, sir," replied the young man. "Well," said Father Gruber, "it is not lawful to discuss questions of that kind on the campground. Will you go outside?" And they passed out into the woods. "Now," said Father Gruber, "I am not willing to discuss with anybody that does not understand the Scriptures. Have you read the Bible carefully and thoroughly through?" "O yes," said the young man, "again and again. I have been in the habit of reading it from early childhood, and perfectly familiar with it." "Well," said the old gentleman, "can you tell me where is the Epistle of Peter to Paul?" "O yes," said the young man; "don't think I am such a fool as not to know that it is in the New Testament, not in the Old." "Well," said the old gentleman, "I wish you would find it." He hunted for some time, and as you know did not find it, as there is no such epistle. That ended the controversy.—Bishop Bowman.

Judge George C. Holt of the United States District Court of New York, recently addressed the Wisconsin State Bar Association on "The Extent of Unpunished Crime and the Remedy for It." He declared that the tendency to mob violence and the extent of unpunished crime were the greatest menace to American society. "Probably three hundred thousand persons," he said, "have taken part in lynchings in this country in the last forty years." Every one of these the Judge declared was guilty of murder, provided he acted willfully; yet no person has been convicted of murder for taking part in lynching. The judge estimated that there were one hundred thousand murderers of this type now at large in this country.—"The Christian."

Beautiful is the year in its coming and its going, most beautiful and blessed, because it is always the "year of our Lord."—Lucy Larcom.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 41.

The first ten days of October 1891, saw Auntie Willard the happy guest of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baker at Hammonton; they being the parents of Mrs. Nelson L. Willard. It was just the time of year to enjoy a visit. The warm, balmy days, the mellow sunshine, the noisy flocks of birds gathering for southland flight, the brilliant autumn flowers; the luscious fruit of tree and vine, all served to delight the eye, and fill the heart with melody and praise. And Miss Adaline Baker, "the queenly conductor of her father's house and the tender care-taker of her aged and sick mother," was a most genial hostess, and did everything in her power to make Auntie Willard's stay one of rest and refreshment.

They were intimate friends—these two—and had for years kept up a regular and helpful correspondence. Adaline was a baptized believer in the gospel of the kingdom, and a faithful worker in the vineyard of the Lord, but for some reason there was no family altar in her father's home, so Auntie Willard persuaded her to set one up at once, and entreated her to never let the fire go out.

As usual she was also on the lookout for Berean opportunities to spread the truth. A Mrs. Mansfield was a near neighbor of the Baker's. She "called on her and read and explained the Bible," with what results only eternity can tell.

She "also called on a Mr. and Mrs. Ellis—the latter, wasted away with disease and the former addicted to the drink habit," she "found Mr. Ellis very pleasant, but greatly in the dark as to the way back to God. The dear sick wife had a kind of hope pictured out to herself," but like the hope of multitudes in these days, "there was no Jesus in it;" it was "built on sinking sand."

Auntie Willard "began and preached Jesus unto them" as did one of old. Then she commended them to God, and when she left "was constrained to tell Mr. Ellis, as she took his hand to say good bye, 'My dear friend, salvation is coming to this house,' and was joyful in the thought that it would even be so." Mrs. Ellis seemed delighted over the little meeting, and showed her pleasure by embracing and kissing Auntie Willard, when she went away.

The Word of the Lord had been again sounded out; some seeds of truth had been sown by the wayside; did they grow we wonder, watered and tended by some other hand?

Father was at this time growing rapidly worse, his last poem—

'Awake thee O Watchman, arouse from thy sadness,

being written in this very month of October, 1891. Auntie Willard had an exalted idea of his knowledge and virtue, and grieved that he should be sick, and she not be able to visit him.

At one time she called him her 'Solomon,' and said, "Had I the riches of the Queen of Sheba, I would see my Solomon before the grave covers him from all human sight, but as it is, he must have the short rest "that he so much needs and I must await the gathering of the general assembly and church of the first born which are written in heaven. It was well that she could not come; her tender heart would only have been pained at the sight of his sufferings, as all enjoyment in the visits of his friends, at this late date was about out of the question.

God is good. I question not the "whys" or "wherefores," nor do I lay the agonies that we suffer at his door. We violate the laws of our being and suffering comes; that is all, not as it comes to the wicked, who fling their lives away in a wild round of mad carousals, but as it must come to all who belong to a dying race. "A little while" and it will all be over.

You remember Bro. Harrold who wanted to be an obelisk for Jesus? He did belong to Hammonton and was buried there, Jan. 15, 1892. Auntie Willard attended the funeral, and took her last look at his face until Jesus comes.

She had become much interested in Professor Totten's works at this time, and had many copies of his earlier volumes sent to her friends. It was joy to her that Mr. Wince and myself appreciated his message.

Captain White and wife, whose little runaway boy, Bro. and Sister Willard had taken in and cared for when the captain was off at sea and the mother sick, had a copy of Totten's work on the "Millennium" sent to them, and I suppose enjoyed it and profited by the reading.

The book is mostly made up of a series of letters, that were first published in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, in 1891—a fearless secular journal of New Haven, Conn.

These "Millennium articles attracted the attention of the civilized world." They brought messages to the editors, "from nearly every Christian land, and aroused throughout the United States a renewed and widespread interest in the subject of the Millennium. Nothing bearing on this matter printed in recent times has exerted a wider influence or been more generally read." It was like a second Midnight Cry, but the religious world to a great extent, closed its ears to the warning, and refused to buy the proffered "oil". As a result their lamps have gone out—their faith has been lost—they are found today in the great army of infidels, Atheists and Buddists, with a reign of horror looming up before them which they themselves are evoking by their teachings and from whose indescribable terrors there will be no escape. "The day of grace" is over for the Gentile rulers of the earth, and for all who chose to join them in the "insanity" of unbelief. Those who have their eyes open can see, that in the unprecedented calamities that are falling upon the great centers of wickedness, that "Judgment" is taking the place of "grace," and that "prophecy" is being turned into "fact." Blessed is he who holds fast to "the faith." His ship will ride the storm!

Father died March 23d, 1892; Spurgeon a short time before, and Auntie Willard who loved and admired them both, placed their likenesses and the sketches of their lives side by side in her scrap-book. I do not know what was the subject of father's last sermon, but Spurgeon's was on faith—that "nothing but faith in the Lord Jesus, can save you or me."

Brother Henry Taylor was at this time "nicely fixed in Brother Harrold's house at Hammonton" and as the Christian Endeavorers were to meet in his rooms the 5th day of April Auntie Willard took another flying trip to the old home town that she might meet again with and encourage them and also visit Brother Taylor and other friends. She had a good time, Jesus himself being present in accordance with his promise. But I like not the name of Christian Endeavorers, unless these young people having already become the children of God, had set the word "endeavor" before them as a motto to remind them of their high calling in Christ Jesus their Lord. We have no legal right to the name "Christian" until we get it in the legal way.

May 21st Mr. Charles Rhoads and his wife Beulah, sent Auntie Willard a dozen Bibles and Testaments for free distribution among the poor and so great was her joy over the timely gift that the blessing of the God of Israel, who has magnified his Word above all his name, was invoked upon the givers.

Two Parables of Judgment. Matthew xxi 28-46.

Golden Text.—Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you." Matt xxi 43.

The events of this lesson come on the last day of Jesus' public ministry. It seems to have been one last effort to persuade these unbelieving Jews that he was their Messiah. It must have been a strenuous day. Puzzling questions were discussed. Each time Jesus was able to silence his opposers. The leaders were determined to pursue the wrong course. He could silence them by argument, but their hearts would not yield.

After trying all of reason to convince them he turns on them his indignation, and exposes their hypocrisy. Yet he fails to crush down their bitter prejudice, and they will not turn and repent before it is too late.

Soon the faith of the disciples would be tried, and Jesus gives a lesson from the unproductive fig tree that is calculated to strengthen and sustain them. They must learn by severe lessons that he demands perfect faith, complete trust. Faith that will surmount all obstacles, and triumph over all difficulties.

When the chief priests and elders found Jesus teaching in the temple, they demand what authority he has for doing what he has done in driving out these merchants and money changers. Where did he get his authority to call himself the Messiah, and oppose these regularly appointed leaders. A mere statement of the facts would have done no good. They would have denied them, and made excuse to take him before the Roman court. Jesus refused to answer them, but put a question of his own to them. The baptism of John—Whence was it? from of heaven, or of men? They saw that any way they answered this would only get them deeper in the mire, so they answered they did not know. They were insincere and dishonest.

Next he gives them a parable, by which they could look into their own hearts, and see just what sort of persons they were.

A man had two sons. When he asked the first to go work in his vineyard, he met with a refusal. Later on the son repented of his rashness and went and served his father.

The second son when asked to go work in his father's vineyard, replied that he would go, but failed to do so.

The same question is asked of each son—work in the father's vineyard. The class of persons represented by the first son are such as are opposed to God's service. They refuse to acknowledge any objection to serve the Father. They are out and out scorners of the better way. They care nothing for God and his cause. However, when later on they are brought face to face with a realization of their condition, and see the need of change, and turn and give service in the vineyard of the Lord. The other class profess to serve, but their service is mostly of forms and ceremonies, outward observances. They make loud professions, but within are hypocrites, lacking piety and faith in God. Have no real virtue, are selfish and full of pride.

Jesus asks these Pharisees to decide at once which of these twain did the will of the father. They could only answer that it was the first. Then Jesus makes the application, and they see themselves in the mirror. A bad man, seeing the error of his life, changing and repenting of his sin, ceasing such and entering the service of the Lord, is approved of the Father. Remember, it is not the first part of this man's life that is approved—only his changed life and character. Herein is encouragement and hope for all. Forgiveness is ready to cover the past—hope opens the door before them. Repent and turn from sin. Salvation is from sin—not in sin.

Then we are given the parable of the vineyard and husbandmen. This vineyard was fully equipped, planted and fenced, had press and watchtower. It was given in charge of the husbandmen to care for it, that there might be abundant harvest, the owner going to a far country. At the time for fruit servants were sent to get the results of the harvest. The husbandmen misused the servants, killing some. At last the Master sent his son, thinking they would surely have respect for him, but they laid plans to kill him and seize the inheritance.

The question was, What would the Master do with such husbandmen? The only answer that could be given was that they should be displaced and destroyed, and their place given to others more worthy.

Then Jesus lets them see the force of the parable. They are the counterpart of the wicked and unfaithful husbandmen, in that they have rejected the ones sent as prophets and teachers in time past, and are now rejecting the very son and heir. He tells them that the kingdom will be taken from them, and given to a people bringing forth the fruits thereof.

These parables may seem far away from us, but they contain truths that will do us good. The man who rejects Christ in order that he may get a possession for a brief period, takes a sure road to total loss. The Jewish nation lost the opportunity to get the first place as partners with Jesus the Christ in carrying out God's plan for man, so it is to be given to a people who will show themselves worthy by sacrifice and training to be trusted with the high honor.

May we each take heed unto the truths taught in these parables, and prove faithful servants in the Master's vineyard.

SEPTEMBER 11.

The King's Marriage Feast. Matthew xxii. 1-14.

This lesson is concerning an invitation to a wedding feast, and how the invitation was treated by those who were invited. In this parable the kingdom of heaven is likened to the king who made a marriage for his son. Jesus is still continuing to make these people understand their condition. He wants them to repent of their evil deeds before it is too late. He is giving them every opportunity to make amends for the wrong they have done.

At this feast, all is prepared, and then the king sends his messengers to the invited ones to tell that all is ready.

How was the invitation received?

Some made light of it, and would not leave business to attend. Others treated the king's servants badly, and even killed them.

Then what happened?

The king was angry and indignant. He declares that those who were bidden were not worthy. The invitation is transferred to others. The plan of having the marriage feast was not abandoned. In like manner God's plan is not changed. When God created Adam and Eve there was a distinct plan—a well-defined purpose in the Infinite mind. That ultimate object has not been abandoned or changed by God since. He does not change. What he wanted then he still wants, and as the king in this parable will have guests for his feast, so will God finally have his will carried out—his will shall be done in earth as in heaven.

The king directed his servants to go out into the highways, and such as were there found were asked in place of those unworthy ones. Both bad and good are asked—whoever was willing to come and by such act showed that they wished to please the king.

The wedding feast of God is prepared, the invitation was to a special nation, but they rejected it, and killed those sent unto them. The invitation was transferred, and now whosoever will may come. The invitation is as broad as the world—covers humanity. The call is made, the mansions are prepared, the angels will welcome, the Father will receive with gladness.

But the world is still full of excuses. Peter wanted to know what they should receive. Said they had left all to follow Jesus. Well what had they left? An old fishing boat, some nets and such traps. Still it was all they had—business and home. Yet how small and insignificant beside the promised thrones!! Those who refuse God's offers, make light of his invitations, will be treated as were those who refused the invitation to the wedding feast. There need be no fear that the Lord's cause will fail on account of our failure. If we are unwilling to be used to his glory, others will be found to fill the place offered us. God's plan is made, and will not be altered. He wants us to take a part in his work, and gives us ample opportunity to do so, but will not coerce us. Our own free will must determine that.

In the parable there was one at the feast who did not have on a wedding garment. It seems to have been customary to have each guest wear a distinguishing garment, and this man being without such, was ordered removed.

A simple lesson to get from this is, that if we wish to be accepted guests at God's great feast, we must comply with his requirements. Besides making all ready for the feast, God has provided the garment of righteousness, and this can be put on only by giving faithful service, and being humbly obedient to his directions. No one can get in by climbing up some other way. To do so is to be a thief and robber, and this merits condemnation. Only faithful obedience to God's requirements will answer.

How many are called?

All who hear the invitation are called.

How many are chosen?

Such as obey God's will.

To be one of the called and chosen should be the aim and end of our striving.

Dear Restitution:

Brother C. L. Winchester, of Byron Center, Michigan, came to Eastport Saturday, August 13, remaining over Sunday, preaching three rousing gospel sermons.

Although the congregations were rather small, the best of attention was given.

We hope the good seed sown will fall on good ground and that in due season will spring up and bear fruit an hundredfold.

Your Sister in Christ,
CARRIE CHAMBERLIN.

BROTHER, If you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Obituary.

Leroy B. Cross, son of Bro. and Sister J. E. Cross, of Oregon, Illinois was accidentally hurt while in the performance of his duty with a threshing crew on Thursday, Aug. 11, from which hurt he died the same evening at about eleven o'clock. No one will know how the accident occurred in detail. Roy was walking alongside the machine as it was being moved, and in some way was thrown so that he came under one of the wheels of the machine, which left him unconscious, from which state he did not recover until death relieved him. He was buried on Saturday at the Washington Grove cemetery. All the threshing crews of the neighborhood quit work and the whole community turned out to do honor to one of their fellow workmen who had the reputation of being honorable and upright in all his dealings. Roy leaves a wife and two little children, father, mother, two sisters and a brother to mourn his sudden and untimely death.

Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved family. Bro. and Sister Cross and family are among the most faithful members of the church at Oregon.

S. J. LINDSAY.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 544 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

IN our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10693 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

What a Sermon Should Be.

It should be brief, if lengthy, it will steep
Our hearts in apathy, our eyes in sleep;
The dull will yawn, the clique-banger doze,
Attention flag, and memory's portals close

It should be warm; a living altar coal
To melt the icy heart and charm the soul;
A soulless, dull harangue, however read,
Will never rouse the soul, or raise the dead.

It should be simple, practical and clear;
No fine-spun theory to please the ear;
No curious lore to tickle lettered pride,
And leave the poor and plain unedified.

It should be tender and affectionate
As his, warm theme who wept lost Salem's fate;
The fiery laws, with words of love allay'd,
Will sweetly warm and awfully persuade.

It should be manly, just and rational;
Wisely conceived, and well express'd withal,
Not stuffed with silly notions, apt to stain
A sacred desk, and show a muddy brain,

It should possess a well adapted grace
To situation, audience, time, and place;
A sermon form'd for scholars, statesmen, lords,
With peasants and mechanics ill as words.

It should with evangelic beauty bloom,
Like Paul's at Corinth, Athens, or at Rome;
While Epicurus or stern esteem,
A gracious Savior in the gospel theme!

It should be mixed with many an ardent prayer,
To reach the heart, and fix and fasten there;
When God and man are mutually address'd
God grants a blessing, man is truly blest.

It should be closely well applied at last,
To make the moral and securely fast:
Thou art the man, and then, alone with make
A Felix tremble and a David quake!

Why We Ought to be Baptized.

1. Because being baptized was one of the conditions of salvation proclaimed by Christ's authorized messengers in the first century.

Proof: Peter said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you." Act ii. 38. "He (Peter) commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Acts x. 48. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark xvi. 16.

2. Because all believers of the gospel as preached by the apostles at the first, were baptized.

Proof: "Then they that gladly received his (Peter's) words were baptized." Acts ii. 41. "And many of the Corinthians hearing, believed and were baptized. Acts xviii. 8. "And when they believed Philip...they were baptized, both men and women." Acts viii. 12. "Philip baptized the eunuch." Acts viii. 38. "Lydia was baptized and her household." Acts xvi. 15. "The keeper of the prison was baptized, he and all his straight way." Acts xvi. 13. "When they (twelve men at Ephesus) heard this they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus." Acts xix. 5.

3. Because baptism is the divinely-appointed ceremony for introducing believing sinners "into Christ."

Proof: "Baptized into Christ." Rom vi. 3. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal iii. "Born of water." John iii. 5.

4. Because out of Christ, there is no salvation for any sinner (and all have sinned).

Proof: "In Adam all die." 1 Cor xv. 22. "At that time ye were without Christ.....having no hope and without God in the world." Eph ii. 12. "The Gentiles are alienated from the life of God." Eph iv. 18. "All have sinned." Rom iii. 23. "The wages of sin is death." Rom vi. 23. "But now in Jesus Christ, ye who are afar off are brought nigh." Eph ii 13.

5. Because Christ and the apostles were baptized.

Proof: Jesus was baptized of John in the Jordan." Mark i. 9. "Paul arose and was baptized." Acts ix. 18. Some of the disciples of John the Baptist followed Jesus and became the apostles (see John i. 35 67)

6. Because in baptism, we obtain the forgiveness of our sins.

Proof: "Be baptized for the remission of sins." Acts ii. 38. "Be baptized and wash away thy sins." Acts xxii. 16. "Baptism doth also now save us—by the answer of a good conscience." 1 Peter iii. 21. "Purged from his old sins." 2 Peter i. 9. "The washing of water by the word." Eph. v. 26.

WHAT IS IT TO BE BAPTISED?

But you will say, What is baptism? you may easily ascertain if you will consider the following facts:—

1. It is an action requiring the use of water.

Proof: "See here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized." Acts viii. 36. "Can any man forbid water that these should not be baptised." Acts x. 47. "John was baptising in Enon near to Salim, because there was much water there." John iii. 23.

2. The action of baptism (i. e. water is being buried or [illegible] baptism into death...planted [illegible] in the likeness of his death." Rom vi. 3-5. "Buried with him [illegible] baptism, wherein also ye are risen [illegible] with him. Col ii. 12. "Born of (Greek, out of) water." John iii. 5.

3. In other cases where the word baptism is used, it is with the idea of complete covering over with the thing or element it is related to.

Proof: "Baptized with the Holy Spirit.....it filled all the house where they were sitting." Acts i. 5; ii. 2. "Israel baptized in the cloud and in the sea." 1 Cor x. 2. "Christ's baptism of suffering: it overwhelmed him." Luke xii. 50.

"WHAT GOOD WILL WATER DO ME?"

None, in the sense of your enquiry. It is a question of conforming to the ordinances and appointments of God, who has purposely made use of things in which there is nothing, that His name may be honored in their employment and achievement. 1 Cor i. 27-29. He has appointed and commanded baptism. It is part of His will: and we know what Jesus has said:

"He that doeth the will of my Father, the same is my brother, and sister and mother."—Bible Finger Post.

Infidel Arguments Repeated.

The credibility of God's Word, its authenticity and inspiration are being attacked today; the miracles which are a divine attestation of the divinity, sonship and Messiahship of the Christ are being questioned, and even denied. Open infidelity is not increasing to any great extent if at all; no Paines, Voltaires or Ingersolls are apparently being developed: but the faith of many in the fundamental truths of Christianity is being undermined and destroyed by destructive critics in so-called Christian pulpits, and by professors in colleges and universities! The Bible and Christianity has nothing to fear from honest, careful criticism. They welcome it, but the child of God may well fear the insidious influence of so-called "Higher Criticism," the criticism of those wise above what is written.'

Says P. Brett Morgan, in "Outlines of Eschatology": "Dean Alden Speir in the Advance, of Chicago, the writer says, 'Call it the times, the trend of scholarship or what you will, this movement is headed by men who are directing it toward the overthrow of the Bible and the sooner the church and the ministry understand it the better. They are urging the infallibility of scholarship. We are to believe nothing about the Bible except what scholarship permits us to believe. In a word the common people are to be put where the Hebrew was under the Rabbis and the Christian was under the popes and priests.'"

He also says: "The Truth of New York recently described a scene witnessed at a Congress at Detroit: President Harper of Chicago University, President Andrews of Brown University, and others had been advocating the methods of modern criticism, and saying that the last seven chapters of Isaiah were written by some other man, when Prof. Howard Osgood of Rochester arose to reply. He spoke briefly, completely answered the critics, and then said: 'I have here no article written almost exactly one hundred years ago. I will read it, and then tell you the name of its author.' He then read a criticism on the Bible, and especially on Isaiah, advocating a double authorship of the latter, in almost the exact language of Harper and his friends. He made a few comments upon the clearness of the ideas of the author, and showed his teachings to be identical with modern higher criticism. He then exclaimed, after a long pause, "The author of this paper was Tom Paine, the infidel!"

Thus it is, old infidel assumptions and ideas which have been exploded time and time again, have been revamped and possibly clothed in a more pleasing garb; so now they are being disseminated broadcast throughout the Christian world.

"The infidel has shot his bolts away,
Till his exhausted quiver, nothing more,
He gleans the blunted shafts that have recoiled,
And aims them at the shield of truth again.

We rise by the things that are under foot,
By what we have mastered of good and gain;
By the pride deposed and the passion slain,
And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.

Judah Helpless Without God.

Brother Huggins:

How do you explain this statement to make it harmonize with God's power: "But could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had chariots of iron." Judges i. 19.—

GEO. MITCHELL.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Judah slew the Canaanites of Zephath (Judges i. 17), "took Gaza" (ver. 18) and "drove out the inhabitants of the mountains," because the "Lord was with" him (ver 19.) All things are possible with God (Matt xix: 26) because his power is infinite. When God is "for us, who can be against us" (to any harmful purpose?) Rom viii: 31. As long, then, as "God was with Judah" he was victorious against all foes. Rom viii: 35 39. But when Judah became intimidated at the iron chariots of the valley, the Lord was not with Judah any longer (2 Chron xxviii: 9); and left to himself he "could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley." The Hebrew text literally translated stands: "And was Jehovah with Judah, and he took possession of the mountains; but not to be expelled (were) the inhabitants of the valley, for chariots of iron (were) to them." Even in the English text it is not said that God could not drive them out. "Judah" in both texts is the nearest antecedent, not "the Lord." The lesson here taught and enforced is that even Judah, the best warrior of all the tribes of Israel (Judges i. 1, 2), the "goodly horse" of Yahweh Tz'vaath (Zech. x 3) is helpless and sure to stumble unless ridden and directed by the Lord.

The seven wonders of the world are among the traditions of childhood, and yet ninety-nine persons out of one hundred cannot name them. They are the Pyramids; the temple, the walls and the hanging gardens of Babylon; the Chryselphantine statue of Jupiter Olympus, the most renowned work of Phidias; the temple of Diana at Ephesus, which was two hundred and twenty years in building, and which was 425 feet in length and 220 feet in breadth, and supported by 127 marble columns of Ionic order, 60 feet high; Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, erected to the memory of Mausolus, the King of Carlu, by his wife Artemesia, B. C. 353; the Pharos at Alexandria, a light house erected by Ptolemy Soter at the entrance of the harbor of Alexandria, 450 feet high, and seen at a distance of 100 miles: and lastly, the Colossus at Rhodes, a brazen image of Apollo, 105 Grecian feet in height.

The Edinburgh Daily Review records an amusing conversation which took place in the galleries of the Free Church Assembly lately:

Young Lady—"There's old Dr. A— going to speak. Isn't he a bore?"

Old Lady (laughing)—"Well, I suppose he is; but, do you know, I rather like him."

Young Lady—"I can't bear him."

Old Lady (after some time)—"Who is that nice old gentleman speaking?"

Young Lady—"Ah, that's Mr. B—, of C—."

Old Lady (dissatisfiedly)—"Don't you think he is—rather prosy?"

Young Lady (indignantly)—"No, indeed, I do not. Allow me to inform you that that is my father."

Old Lady—"Oh indeed! Then I am glad that I hit the mark so gently, because 'old Dr. A—' is my husband. So I suppose we have both got a lesson, my dear; don't you think?"

At a microscope exhibition in Boston the sting of a honey-bee was shown upon the screen, and it was so sharp that the point could not be seen. A fine sewing-needle was shown at the same time, and the point with the same power of the microscope was five inches across. "God can make a fine point," said the exhibitor, "but man can not."

Peter said to Christ: "Lo we have left all and followed thee." So it always is. We make much of our sacrifices What had the disciples left? A few old broken nets, and some boats. What will they get in exchange? The kingdom of God.—D. L. Moody.

"There's so much good in the worst of us
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it best becomes the best of us
To praise the best in the worst of us;
And all becomes the worst of us
To look at the faults in the best of us,
Then let the best and the worst of us
Extol the good in the both of us
And hide the faults in the lot of us."

There is no sense in always telegraphing to heaven for God to send a cargo of blessing, unless we are at the wharf to unload the vessel when it comes.—F. B. Meyer.

Children [illegible] perpetually for new ideas. T[illegible] learn with pleasure from the [illegible] parents what they deem dr[illegible] study in books; and even if they have the misfortune to be deprived [illegible] any educational advantages they [illegible] grow up intelligent if they enjoy childhood the privilege of listening daily to the conversation of intelligent people. We sometimes see parents who are the life of every company that they enter, dull, silent, and uninteresting at home among their children. If they have not mental activity and mental stores sufficient for both, let them first use what they have for their own households. A silent house is a dull place for young people, a place from which they will escape if they can. How much useful information, on the other hand, is often given in pleasant family conversation, and what unconscious, but excellent, mental training in lively social arguments! cultivate to the uttermost all the graces of home conversation.

The Name of God.

Is it not singular that the name of God should be spelled with four letters in so many different languages? In Latin it is Deus; French, Dieu; Old Greek, Zeus; German, Gott; Old German, Odin; Swedish, Gode; Hebrew, Aden; Dutch, Herr; Syrian, Adau; Persian, Syra; Tartarian, Edga; Scalvonian, Beig or Boog; Spanish, Dias; Hindoo, Dagi or Zeni; Turkish, Abdi; Egyptian, Aumu or Zent; Javanese, Zain; Peruvian, Liau; Irish, Dieh; Croatian, Dohu; Margarian, Ueve; Arabian, Alla; Dulaltaun, Bogt. There are several other languages in which the word is marked with the same peculiarity.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-3.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Communicated.

Jesus is Coming.

For the Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout, with a voice of the archangel; and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first.

The second coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is a thoroughly established truth in God's Holy Word, and yet how foreign the thought is to the world around us, who move along with a contented indifference, that cannot end otherwise than in condemnation or judgment. According to Jude it is at his coming that he will execute judgment.

But, beloved Brethren, it is his promises to the faithful that we are most interested in. Turning to Col. iii: 4 we read that, "When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." In Heb ix 28. "For unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto Salvation. Also 2 Peter v 4, "And when the Chief Shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

What blessed promises these are, and how weak we seem to be when we come to contemplate the wonderful things God holds in store for those who are patient unto the Coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Brethren may we all continue steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, until he comes, that we may say like Paul, I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing.

Even so, Amen; come Lord Jesus,

OWEN A. POTTORF.

Elder B. W. Woodward was able to go to Raisin Center again last Sunday, August 14, to speak for the church, and after service, Irene West, a very intelligent young lady was baptized into the Christ, making three who have been added to the church during the past year.

Editor Restitution:

Back to Oregon with health much improved. The weeks had formed months, the months had pushed each other aside in forming the years of a humble servant's life, two years of trying to work for the Master was passing during the period in which I spent months as "The Wandering Evangelist." I said so many times, "I will trust God." The good news of the life and the kingdom was proclaimed during the time in Oregon, California, Arizona, Colorado and Iowa. The return trip was made and I am back among the brethren of the Northwest to and for whom I preached literal life and the kingdom for so many years, and among whom I found faithful brethren who brought me courage and confidence. Instead of accumulating wealth as so many of our brethren are doing on the Pacific coast. I have squandered what little I had for the gospel, believing that the time will come when I will be honored by a silent home, where the silence will be broken up by the songs of angels and shouts of the victors.

I am at Eugene where, during my years of evangelistic labor, numbers were obedient. I understand that there are those who are yet faithful.

Appointment has been announced for next Sunday, August 21.

As I wish to return to Arizona this fall, and do all the work I can in California in making the trip, I will be reached by addressing me at Eugene, Oregon.

During July we have been exceptionally busy, preaching 23 times and making many visits trying to interest every one in the conference. In this we succeeded quite well, and expect a good turn out, notwithstanding the poor prospects for a crop in many places.

The attendance during the month was good, and very marked at Holbrook and Moorefield. The most gratifying part was the noticeable good spirits of the brethren. The life of the church is the greatest concern of the true worker, and if he has to keep dosing them with stimulants all the time, he is losing valuable time. But while I believe the church has been let go a little too long without the proper stimulants, I also believe at the present time, she is convalescent. The cry of every evangelist for the last several years has been "Awake thou that sleepest," and as a result the drowsiness of the past has, to a considerable extent, passed away. Jesus had to awaken his disciples on one occasion, and the time finally came when he said, "Sleep on." Let us learn the lesson.

ALMUS ADAMS, Evangelist.

Kindness.

It was a cold, raw morning, and the rain came down in driving sheets, and the chill northeast wind found its way to the very heart of the pedestrian who had ventured forth. The street was practically deserted save for the boxes of ashes set out for removal, and the usual dilapidated ash cart, which came slowly around the corner. The ash man, old and worn, stopped the wagon, and started to deposit the rubbish in the cart, when a thought seemed to come into his mind. He hesitated, looked at the horse shivering in the cold, and then, without a second thought, whipped off his dilapidated overcoat, threw it over the horse's back, and, turning up the coat collar of his threadbare jacket, he went manfully to work.

Obituary.

Benjamin Allard, son of John and Doratha Allard, died at Gladbrook, Iowa, July 12, 1910, aged 84 years, 11 months and 12 days.

Sermon from these words—"In the day of prosperity be joyful but in the day of adversity consider. God also hath set the one over against the other, to the end, that man should find nothing after him." Eccl vii 14.

A landmark will be missed from the community. A residence of 35 years by Brother Allard among us had endeared him to many by whom he will not be easily forgotten. May we not cherish the hope that we may meet where the people shall not say "I am sick" and where death comes no more.

A. J. EVERARD.

[No reason is given for the delay in sending this notice. The post-mark shows it was mailed to us August 16. —ED.]

Eliza Chase was born in New York State, Dec 26, 1828. She was married first to Charles Coffin, May 8th, 1852. Six children were born to them, one dying in infancy. The others all embraced the truth. Three of them are still living. I do not know when Brother Coffin died, but August 28th, 1870, she was married to Hewlett West, who died some years ago. Sister West came to Michigan with her parents, when she was five years old, and at an early age, was converted and baptised by her father, Brother L. H. Chase, who often spoke of the blessed fact that all of his family had been educated in the truth, and baptized by himself. Sister West was a very devoted intelligent believer, always ready to give a reason of her hope.

Her funeral was largely attended, funeral sermon was preached by Elder B. W. Woodward from Ps. cxvi: 15. How we shall miss the dear old earnest face, always in the church, when possible at every church service, she was present and rejoicing in the truth the last time I was there, but now sleeps in Jesus. She died at the home of her son, Levi Coffin, Lowsee Co., Mich. May we all be worthy of the first resurrection.

M. A. WOODWARD.

We do not know whether Brother John Spigles death notice will be sent to the paper or not, and do not know his age, or any dates to use, but this we know, he was a devoted, conscientious Christian man, about middle age.

He leaves a wife, five children, an aged father and mother who were depending on him for support.

He was passing a threshing machine when a large rubber belt broke, hitting his head, and breaking the skull.

He lived seven miles from Raisin Center Church, but was always there with some member of his family. O how we shall miss him. How our hearts ache for the poor wife, parents and little children. A minister was called from near by to officiate, who remarked, "I know of no one who lived out his religious convictions closer than this Brother." God help us all to live worthy of meeting the dear brother when Jesus comes.

M. A. WOODWARD.

Mrs. Bettie Debrule died Friday evening, August 5, 1910, near Scotland neck, N. C., aged 58 years.

She leaves a devoted husband, five sons, and two daughters to mourn her loss. But we should be reconciled as she had faith in God, and hope of the coming kingdom. She was a believer of the truth of God's word. About twelve months ago she was baptized by Brother D. M. Hudler into the faith of Abraham. We will miss her, but hope to meet again at the coming of the Master. She was laid to rest in the family burying ground near her home, to await the resurrection morning. May the Lord comfort the loved ones. And help us all to strive to be worthy to have a part in the first resurrection a special salvation, is my prayer.

A Sister in Christ,

GRACE SIMMONS.

What would Paul Say?

Romance and antiquity have again been knocked sky-high by the installation of an electric light plant in the ancient city of Tarsus in Asia Minor. In a report to Washington, Consul Nathan of Mersine, says that Tarsus now has 450 electric street lights, and some 950 incandescent lights for family use. The power is generated from the Sihun river.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 20-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. ALLARD.

The Missouri-Kansas Conference of the Church of God will meet at Severance, Kansas, on Grand Island Railroad, about 40 miles west of St. Joe, August 20-28 inclusive. Business meeting August 22 at 10 a. m. Meetings forenoons, afternoons and evenings. All lovers of free speech and investigation of religious questions are cordially invited to attend. There is good train service from St. Joe, trains leaving for the west about 10 a m, 4 p m, and 8 p m.

By order of the Con. Board,
EUGENE HOWARD, Pres.

The twenty-fifth Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, in the State of Nebraska, will be held in Omaha, Sept. 3rd to the 11th inclusive.

The meetings will be held in a tent. Meals will be furnished at 10 cents and lodging free. Owing to the greater distance those in the west have to come, the Brethren of Omaha have decided to pay three dollars on every one's fare coming from west of St. Paul and Grand Island. Good speakers will be provided and we urge every one to come and help make this Conference a success and enjoy the benefits which cannot help but follow an attendance.

Please read Bro. Adams' report for June, thoughtfully and carefully, and let it test well to see if sacrifices are really being made. If we are truly looking for Christ's soon return, let us give practical proof of it and put his business before all other business.

Christ has left us in charge of his work for a time and by joining ourselves to him, we have promised to be faithful to the trust and make his business a success as far as we can. In order to make any line of work a success we must concentrate all our energies upon it, and subordinate and bend all things to it. If we have not been doing this, but have been putting worldly business and pleasure ahead, let us begin with this Conference to put Christ's ahead.

During Conference, if attended in the right spirit, faith and strength for the following year's work will be obtained, and we will be better able to wait patiently for his return. Every one make a special effort to be there and do his share toward making a good start for the next year's work. Let us not be shirkers. Every thing possible will be done to make your stay both pleasant and profitable. If further information is desired write Bro. M. D. Newell of Blair, Neb., Pres. of Conference Board.

ALTA KING.

To those of the Household of Faith everywhere, Greeting:

We wish to call to your remembrance the notice given immediately after the Annual Conference, concerning the Bible School which is to convene at Coats Grove, Mich., beginning August 26, for one week, to be concluded by the Quarterly Conference Sept. 2nd-4th. The value of the Bible School has been fully demonstrated, and we wish to urge that all that are interested in its success to plan to attend. Entertainment will be furnished by the Coats Grove brethren, and they desire a full attendance. As soon as possible, notify Bro. A. K. Richardson, R. F. D. 5, Hastings, Mich., that you will be there so that you can be provided for.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay is expected to have charge of the class, which will insure profit to all that attend.

Coats Grove is located in Barry County, about seven miles from Hastings, and is on the C. K. and S. R'y. If you cannot make connections by this route, go to Hastings via the M. C. R'y, notifying Bro. Richardson beforehand, if possible, and you will be met with a rig.

Don't forget the date and place, and come with Bibles, paper and pencil, and a determination to make it the most successful meeting we have held.

Mrs. F. V. BLAKELY, Sec'y.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God of Southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah from October 8 to 16 inclusive. Program will appear later after definite arrangements have been made. We bid all welcome who may come. Anyone wishing further information may write to Levis Weaver, Route 3, Casey, Illinois.

MRS. C. W. WEAVER, Sec.

To all Brethren of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus in the United States and Canada.

We the undersigned Presidents of the Conferences of the Churches of God, do hereby ask you to meet with us in a General Conference to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, August 29th to 31st, inclusive, (Time to be extended if necessary,) for the purpose of discussing our needs as a body, and, if found necessary, organize a General Conference for the purpose of bringing us into a closer unity of the one Faith and work between the different states and territories.

We urge each state to send at least one delegate, and especially urge every brother and sister who can possibly do so to attend and take part in all discussions whether or not a delegate.

Conditions relating to our spiritual welfare are arising that cannot be ignored in the light of Scripture; therefore it is our duty as a body of people to give attention to them. We therefore not only urge but beg you to make an extra effort to be at this meeting that we may endeavor to bring order out of our apparently chaotic condition.

The Iowa State Conference has offered the use of their beautiful campgrounds, together with tents and bedding, free, and will furnish meals at 10c each to all who attend, except the regular delegates whose expenses will be met by their respective conferences.

You cannot afford to miss this meeting. Papers relating to vital questions pertaining to our spiritual welfare will be read, and will be followed by a discussion of the subject in which every brother and sister should have a voice.

Plan at once to attend. Could you spend your money in a nobler cause, or to a better advantage than for the purpose of magnifying the Truth we profess to love? Are we really anxious to hand the Truth down to our children in its purity?

In a few more years the place that knows us now will know us no more unless the Lord comes. Can we neglect such an opportunity to increase the Lord's goods and still expect to hear the welcome plaudit of "Well done good and faithful servant" when the Lord comes?

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two month. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 300 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 7, 1910. NUMBER 33.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Be Patient With the Living.

Sweet friend, when thou and I are gone
Past earth's weary labor,
When song shall be our need of grace
Instead of love to neighbor
And of the trials we coil the cure,
And we with all the sighing
Shall have gained (with death all) we have gained
By—
The verdict of the praise
We can no more receive,
And ev'ry kiss we'd count our smiles to see
Shall no deter deceive;
Then kinder that we could not be a stone
When stones were thick to cumber
Our steps till path, will scatter flowers

Sweet friend, to-day, be patient both you and I,
Love is past forgiving,
Should only the earnest lesson home—
Be patient with the living!
Today's repressed rebuke may save
Our bleeding tears tomorrow;
Then patience, even when keenest edge
May what a sunset sorrow.

Time enough to be people when Death silences shames our clamor,
And easy to discern virtues
Through memory's mystic glamour;
But wise it were for thee and me,
Ere love is past forgiving,
To take the tender lesson home—
Be patient with the living.

—Good Cheer.

The Strongest Incentive to Watchfulness.

I regard personal interest as the very strongest incentive to watchful action that I know of. Let one's personal interest in something he values highly be jeopardized, and he will be very watchful of his interest.

I cannot conceive of any interest so vital as that which is involved in the [illegible] of Christ. Every other interest known to man pales into insignificance when placed in comparison. The Lord left us instruction in Matt. xxiv. 42: "Watch, therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." There are so many points to watch that we have got considerable business on hand if we take care of them.

Not having accurate information as to the time of the Lord's coming, it necessitates careful watchfulness along many lines, that our personal interest may be preserved.

This is conspicuously illustrated in the parable of the ten virgins. They represent the whole company of those who are looking for the coming of Jesus. How many were prepared to meet him is clearly shown in the parable—only one half. The trouble with the other half was they lacked light. Now, why did they need light? Because of midnight darkness. The kind of light that was necessary is found in 2 Cor. iv: 4. "The light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God should shine unto them." Those who are looking for the second coming of Christ walk in darkness; yea, in midnight darkness. They have lamps empty professions—but they do not have any Gospel oil, consequently they do not have Gospel light. Nothing but Gospel light will guide any one through midnight darkness unto the coming of the Bridegroom.

There are some who have gone forth to meet the Bridegroom who are destitute of Gospel light. These need light concerning the essential features which constitute the Gospel of the Kingdom, as preached by Jesus and his disciples on the message of life.

The teaching that will alienate from the life of God will be found in the passage of Scripture which, if not believed, will alienate such a disbeliever from Christ; and, as far as the future is concerned, such a one is in the sad and lamentable condition of being without hope. See Eph. ii, 11 12: "Wherefore remember that ye being in times past Gentiles in the flesh... that at that time ye were with Christ, on account of becoming aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise, and having no hope, and without God in the world."

Not all who believe in the second coming of Jesus have the light concerning the restoration of the commonwealth to Israel. There are some who teach that Israel will never again exist as an independent commonwealth. They say Israel as a nation will never return to the land covenanted to their fathers, but must remain a hopeless ruin. So far as the Covenants of Promise relate to the Land covenanted to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and their seed, the Christ is concerned, their teaching would render such covenants null and void by affirming its destruction by fire prior to its being possessed by those to whom it was covenanted.

The question is: What personal interest can any people have in a commonwealth they would consign to a hopeless ruin? None! They are in need of Gospel oil, that they may have Gospel light sufficient to dispel the midnight darkness which they are in. Without it they will be unable to see clear enough to find the "narrow way" which leads to the coming Bridegroom. Self interest should lead any one to secure the genuine article.

The Scriptures are clear in their statements about the future restoration of the commonwealth of Israel. Listen: "Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen nations whither they be gone, and I will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land; and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations; neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all."—Ezek. xxxvii 21-22. God did not suspend this commonwealth forever. See Ezek. xxi 25-27: "It shall be no more until he come, whose right it is, and I will give it to him."

The cross of Christ cannot be preached independent of the commonwealth of Israel, for Matthew says, in chapter xxvii, verse 37: "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews." Jesus could never reign as "King of the Jews" should the Jews forever remain a dispersed people and disorganized as a commonwealth. Now, there are some who believe, and boldly affirm, that God will not "bring them into their own land," and will not "make them one nation in the land." They strongly affirm that Jesus will never reign over restored Israel as "King of the Jews." They hesitate not in declaring that the exiled sons of Jacob will never, in a national capacity, occupy their fatherland.

This kind of teaching is certainly contradictory to the angelic message to Mary. See Luke i, 31-32: "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Now, David's throne was in Jerusalem, the seat of government over the house of Jacob, "and he whose right it is," and who was "born King of the Jews" will come in all his glory and exercise his authority that was given to him after his resurrection, on the throne of David. See Acts xvi, 16 18: "After these things I will return, and I will build again the Tabernacle of David which is fallen; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up, that the residue of men may seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom My name is called, saith the Lord, who maketh these things known from of old."

In watching we should also watch the national movements of Israel, because Israel is the great signification of the world. Unless we do so, we may find ourselves walking in darkness.

Strict watchfulness along practical lines is also needful.

"Not every one who saith unto me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

The phrase "doeth the will" covers both to believe what he teaches and do what he says.

The virgins who lack oil will seek admission into the Kingdom, for we read: "Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, 'Lord, open to us.' But he answer'd and said, 'I know ye not.'" See also Matt. vii, 21-23: "Many will say unto me in that day, 'Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied (taught) in Thy name? And in Thy name have cast out devils? And in Thy name have done many wonderful works?' And then will I profess unto them, 'I never knew you.'" They were professed Christian people, some of them preachers, but "I never knew you," he said.

The story should be a lesson of solemn warning to all, and see to it that the requisite oil is provided before the cry rings out upon the air: "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh: go ye out to meet him." Now is the time, but when the door is locked it will be too late.

The signs indicate that a great change is at hand. A tremendous crisis is impending. People in general perceive it. Politicians, statesmen, financiers, and men of the world, who know not the prophetic Word, say that things are heading up for some mighty change, but as to what that change will consist of they have but very little conception.

In conclusion, I would say: "Beloved, we are not in darkness: we know what is coming; we know that the dark, ominous storm cloud, now visible in the social and political heavens, will shortly burst and shake terribly the aforesaid heavens and earth. See Heb. xii: 26-28: "Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven." And this word, 'yet once more,' signifieth the removing of those things that are shaken, as of things that are made, that those things that cannot be shaken may remain; wherefore we receive a kingdom which cannot be moved. Let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and Godly fear."

After the storm will come "the King of the Jews," the revival of the commonwealth of Israel, the new life, and the blessing of the nations in Abraham and his seed.

The great concern of all virgins should be: "How about my oil?" Have I a sufficient supply for my lamp? We have all received a sufficient warning that it will be everlastingly too late to lay in a supply after the word comes: "Go ye out to meet Him." The supply must be laid in now or never. A plea of religious profession alone will be of no avail.

Remember His words to the foolish virgins: "I know you not." I entreat you, as one who seeks only your own best interests, to consider well, and meditate seriously, over the statements made in Eph. ii, 11 12. They mean so much. It is the pivot on which our eternal destiny will turn.

Have you a citizen's interest in the commonwealth of Israel? If you have, then jealously watch and preserve your rights. The benefits that citizens will possess over aliens is simply immense, and so we cannot afford to trifle with that interest. It is said of Ephesian Gentiles: "Now, therefore, ye are no more strangers from the Covenants of Promise, and foreigners (aliens), but fellow citizens, with the saints, and of the household of God."

W. O. STEFFA.

Tithing.

Dear Bro Underwood:

I read the article of Brother E. K. Barnhill in THE RESTITUTION, of Jan. 12th, on "Tithing." He invites criticism. The only fault that I can find is, there was not enough of it. I also read Brother D. D. Lathrop's article in THE RESTITUTION of Jan. 26th. He does not invite criticism, but I would like to make a few remarks in love.

If our people that have been so highly favored with a knowledge of the true way of life, was all too generous with their means, in trying to save a soul from death, I would think possibly such a letter would be in order, but while our editor has to beg and coax brethren to pay for the paper so they will not have to go in debt, or discontinue sending out the good news, we should be very careful and not say anything to cause a brother or sister to justify themselves in not helping to spread the good news, no matter how poor they be.

Our brother says, "I do not find that tithing was required of the Gentile, Christian Church after the death of Christ. Neither do I find any rigid command that we should pay the tenth of our income, or suffer the penalty of death, as the children of Israel did for picking up sticks to kindle a fire on the Sabbath day; but if we [illegible] the indispensable kind of love that is spoken of in 1 Cor. xiii. that seeketh not her own, we will cheerfully give at least one tenth of our income, to help save souls from death. Somebody was commanded to go into all the world and preach the gospel, but if I can't preach, and my income is not over five or six hundred dollars per year, am I excusable from works, and can get into the kingdom for faith alone? I think not, for we read in James ii. 17, that faith if it hath not works is dead, being alone. You quote 1 Tim. v. 8, which says, But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel, and you appear to apply that to our temporal needs or wants, while I apply it more to our spiritual needs, for a man that is crippled and disabled from work, can provide spiritual food, which I believe is fully as essential as temporal food. You speak of a man's earnings being $600 00 per year, taking $100 00 for rent, leaving $500.00 and if his family is small and they keep well, by rigid economy they live on $475.00 per year. It appears to me by that statement, that you have always been highly favored with an abundance of this world's goods, consequently know but little about economy on that line; for I know that when I had four children, my family that my total income for several years did not exceed $300.00 per year. Of course we did not live up to a worldly standard, but never had to suffer for food or clothing, as our Savior did, that we might live. I am well acquainted with a woman that was left a widow, with four children, several years ago, that has raised her family, giving them a common school education, the oldest girl has taught two terms of school, the mother washes, cleans house, or any other work that she can get to do, and she said positively to me, that her total income had been less than $300.00 per year; but listen to this, she is called a crank on religion (by some) for being so very careful to save out one-tenth of her income for the Lord's work. When I first read Matt. vi. 31-33, that speaks about food, drink and clothing, and says, Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you, it was nearly a stumbling-block to me, but after I sought in earnest the kingdom of God and his righteousness, instead of wondering why I could not have as much of this world's goods as some of my neighbors, I have often wondered why I was so highly favored, being born in this land of plenty, and of freedom, instead of being born in India.

For several years I have kept strict account of my income, not taking the benefit of a doubt, (if there was any) but have been sure to give a tenth, and I am foolish enough to believe that I have as much, or more of this world's goods now than I would if I had never given one cent.

I have no idea that Jesus often thinks as he said on one occasion, "O ye of little faith."

You speak of the man that earns $500 00 per year, and it costs him $600 00 to live. I would suggest that if that man would get well enough acquainted with God and his Word, to become rich in faith, he would cut his living down to $450.00, thus showing that he had the kind of love that seeketh not her own, and have one-tenth to gladly give to help save a soul from death. In speaking of the man that has an income of $600.00 per year, you say that his family must be educated and if possible he shall save something for his declining years, and for his family in case of his untimely death or disability. I know that is the worldly way of looking at things, but I believe that God's way is far better, which is to lay up for ourselves and families, treasures in heaven, where moth doth not corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. See Matt. vi. 19-21.

It is a fine attainment to have faith in the Lord, but I have known some that said much about trusting the Lord, and thought they were trusting him, but let the husband be one hour after dark getting home, and it was plain to be seen who the wife put her trust in. We have many deceivers to contend with, but none so dangerous as self. I believe if all that have an annual income of $600.00 or less, would quit patronizing the theater, circus, and other things that are not necessary, they could lay upone-tenth or more, where moth doth not corrupt nor where thieves break through and steal, and the manager of the circus would have to go out of business, instead of some of our good proclaimers of the true gospel that we think we believe. Suppose one man concludes that he can spare $10 00 for a Sunday suit of clothes, would he not be showing that he had some of the kind of love that seeketh not her own, by cutting down to $9 00, so as to have $1 00 to save a soul from death, and at the same rate with the man that can spare $20 00 or $30.00 for a suit, and it don't take a great amount of faith to believe that the suit costs one-tenth less, will last as long as the other suit, and judging from the many hard-working Japanese here in California, the most of us would have better health and live longer, if we would cut down one-third on our eating, and with the kind of love that will count when the Lord comes, we would gladly give as much as one tenth, but though we bestow all our goods to feed the poor, and though we give our bodies to be burned, and have not love, it will profit us nothing. 1 Cor. xiii. 3.

So we see by that Scripture that love of self don't count, but it must be love that seeketh not her own, 5th verse. There was no love commanded in Moses' law; it was obey, or suffer the penalty of death in some cases, neither was there a promise of anything higher than this life for obeying that law, so shall we that are so highly favored with a promise of eternal life, for a faith that worketh by love, ever say a word, or write a line, that could possibly cause any one to justify themselves in not giving for the spread of the good news. There may be enough rich people that could well afford to keep all of our good preachers in the field all the time; but the church will suffer if we depend on the rich, for we read in Luke vi. 24, Woe unto you that are rich, for you have received your consolation, and we read in James ii. 5, Hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him. So we must have a live faith, that worketh by love, instead of obeying a tipid command under a penalty of death.

Once more, if the poor are excusable from giving, why did'nt Jesus tell the poor widow that threw in the two mites, (all of her living) to keep that, for you will need it to get something to eat, but instead of telling her that she had done wrong, he called his disciples, and said unto them this poor widow hath cast more in than all they that have cast into the treasury.

We read in 2 Cor. ix. 7, that, God loveth a cheerful giver, and we all want God to love us if we are poor. We read in 1 John iv 18, There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear, or with perfect love we will have no fear of suffering from hunger, if we do give one-tenth to keep people from starving to death for spiritual food.

As I see no end to this subject, I close with lots of love for everybody.

Your brother, in hope of Christ's soon coming.

A Monarch's Sorrow.

Francis Joseph, the venerable emperor of Austria, celebrated recently his eightieth birthday, an age that few monarchs ever reach. He finds himself nearing the close of his long reign practically alone in the world, his consort, to whom he was devotedly attached, dead at the hand of an Italian assassin; his only son filling a suicide's grave; his brother, Maximilian, executed in Mexico when he was deserted by his European allies, and the latter's wife a hopeless lunatic and a burden to herself and to the emperor who supports her. The friends of his earlier years have passed away and he is too old to make new ones, consequently he must passdown to the grave lonlier if possible than he is today.

He sees his empire, which was the dominant force in the world a few centuries ago, when its boundaries included Spain on the one side and the Netherlands on another, dwindling in extent and in power from year to year, each war and each treaty of peace shearing it closer and closer, and only one acquisition, that of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which was annexed by a shameless breach of faith within a year.

When he acceded the throne 62 years ago his nation was the leader of the German confederation, a power to be reckoned with, and he will leave it a mere appendage to the German empire, existing only through the toleration of the latter, and the leadership of the German race usurped by the upstart of Prussia. He has met with humiliation after humiliation, and today his country is seething with discontent, the different races of which it is composed only awaiting the death of the emperor to fly at each other's throats while the vultures of Europe sit around waiting for the feast that cannot long be denied them.

Francis Joseph has had the longest reign in history with the exception of that of Queen Victoria; but while the queen's career was an exceedingly happy one, it may be said of the aged emperor that he is a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief.—Detroit Journal.

Married.

The Illinois Conference which met at Oregon, August 17 21, had quite a surprise in store for them on Sunday afternoon after the sermon by Bro. Conner. A surprise was announced at the forenoon session and guesses as to its nature ran rampant during the noon intermission. As soon as Brother Conner had concluded his discourse, the writer announced his purpose to fulfill his promise of a surprise. Sister Etta Lindsay took her place at the piano and began to play the beautiful strains of the Wedding March by Mendelssohn. As the music started, alleyes were strained to get the first sight of the guilty parties, who had seated themselves conveniently near the rear of the church. With slow march Brother J. M. Glotfelty and Sister Almeda Mitchell approached to the front where they took the vows which united them in the bonds of holy wedlock. After a benediction was pronounced congratulations poured in from every quarter of the large congregation. Everybody seemed to be pleased with the arrangement, and Brother and Sister Glotfelty were assured and reassured of the hearty good wishes of all present. They are among the most faithful of God's dear children, and are thoroughly worthy of the companionship that will now be theirs.

We all unite in wishing them long life and a happy voyage.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Today is your day and mine, the only day we have, the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great world we may not understand, but we are here to play it, and now is our time.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 7, 1910.

MANY inquire concerning Brother J. L. Wince. We have no late news, but resting on the theory that no news is good news, we presume he is no worse else we would have heard it.

THE Editor, in company with Bro. J. H. Willey, left home August 25, arriving at the Waterloo, Iowa, Camp Grounds on Friday morning. We visited the Iowa State Conference until the opening of the General Conference on Monday morning. A full report of the Iowa Conference will be given by the Secretary later. Two young men were immersed on Sunday afternoon. The General Conference was in session two days, and resulted in forming a permanent organization with Brother J. H. Willey as President, Brother J. B. Morse Vice President, Brother O. J. Allard Secretary, and Brother F. Jeffreys Treasurer. A report will be given in next issue.

WHILE in Waterloo, Iowa, it was a pleasure to meet with many whose names were familiar to us, but whose faces we had never seen. When we see your names again there will come remembrance of your faces, and we will again live over the pleasant hours spent in your company. We may be pardoned if we specialize in one instance. The friendships of youthful days are dear to us, and after so many long years to again meet Sister J. W. Appleyard was to us cause for real joy. She spent the winter with her daughter, Sister Loudenslager, in the city of Washington, and both are now with the family of another daughter, Sister Ellis, of Waterloo. Our visit with these dear ones was indeed most pleasant, and we trust we shall meet again soon.

WE wish to call attention of Indiana Churches to the notice of our State Conference to be held at Argos in October. Get ready to attend and help push along the work for next year. This is the Annual Meeting, and much important business is to be attended to. So we urge that all sections be well represented. There is another strong point in favor of your attending this meeting—the Lord may come before another year. If we could just only realize what this means—that it is the last chance we may have of joining hands for mutual aid and advancement of our Master's work, how anxious each one would be to attend. Brother, Sister, watch, for the day is not definitely known, but be assured of this—it is near, he is approaching, and if you are not looking and ready dire calamity will overtake you. If you are on the lookout, straining to catch the first glimpse and welcome your Lord, then the wedding feast is for you. It all depends on how you do now. Solemn thought.

Curing Coleridge.

The English schoolmaster of long ago preferred spoiling the rod to spoiling the boy. When Samuel Taylor Coleridge was about thirteen he went to a shoemaker and begged him to take him as an apprentice. The shoemaker, being an honest man, returned with the boy to Bowyer, his master, who got into a great rage, knocked Coleridge down and turned the shoemaker out of the grounds.

"Why have you made such a fool of yourself?" he then demanded.

"I have a great desire to be a shoemaker," Coleridge replied, "and I hate the thought of being a clergyman."

"Why so?" asked the master.

"Because, to tell you the truth, sir," said the boy, "I am an infidel."

For this, without more ado, Bowyer flogged Coleridge—wisely, as he afterward thought; soundly, as he knew at the time.

"It was my one flogging, and it was just," Coleridge afterward owned. "Any arguing or sermonizing would have gratified my vanity and confirmed me in my views; as it was, all my infidelity was thrashed out of me, and I got heartily laughed at besides."—Youth's Companion.

Sunday School Lesson.

SEPT. 18, 1910.

The time of this lesson is the same day as last Sunday, and is a part of Jesus' last attempt to persuade the Jews to accept his claims to the Messiahship.

After the events of our last lesson the Pharisees, who had been opposing him so long, held a council to lay plans to entangle Jesus in his talk, and we shall now see how some great truths are brought out by this opposition. It seems from Mark xi 18, that the chief priests and scribes—the rulers of the Jews—had decided that Jesus must be made way with, hence their efforts to trap him in word or deed that they might have excuse for accusing him. He must be convicted in the courts.

These Pharisees came now with a political question. They did not come in full force this time. They were schemers. They had disciples, students, learners, in their ranks, and sent these to Jesus as wishing to learn of him. Had the older ones came it would have been evident on the face of it, that it was only an effort to entrap, but sending these students, who would not be supposed to know, was a cunning device.

The situation was peculiar. There were two parties. These Pharisees and their adherents were opposed to the tribute system. They claimed that paying tribute to Cæsar was the same as recognizing him as a God, and they could by their laws only have one God. They were connected with the zealots who swore vengeance on all who transgressed the Mosaic law, and to pay this tribute they regarded as wrong. Then there was a party of Herodians, who owed what power they had to the Roman government, and so favored the tribute law. They were like the Sadducees—skeptical, and like the Greeks in their licentious habits. Mere tools of Herod.

Representatives of both these classes went to Jesus to ask this political question. First they flatter, by calling Jesus Master, and telling him that they know he is true, teaches the way of God in truth, and cares not for any man—does not wish to curry favor with any man. They failed to "size up" Jesus aright. Had they have comprehended him they would have known he was not a simpleton to be easily caught, nor yet vain so as to be flattered. They wanted an answer. Yes or no. Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar?

Should the answer be Yes, then Jesus would be siding with the Roman government, and the people who regarded him highly, and had shouted at his entrance to Jerusalem, and paid him homage, would be turned against him. They had waited for a Messiah—a Deliverer, and had come to regard Jesus as the one, and the first thing they expected this Messiah to do was to deliver them from their foreign power. To answer Yes, would be to forfeit all these friends.

On the other hand to say No, would at once put Jesus in opposition to the Roman government, and he would then be taken as a criminal and treated accordingly. Either way he answered the question his career would be ended.

At once Jesus saw through their scheme, and turning on them asks, "Why tempt ye me?" and calls them hypocrites. He knew they were not honest in their inquiry. He asks them for a penny, and on seeing it asks whose image is is on it, and whose superscription is attached? When they say it is Cæsar's, Jesus tells them to render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's. The Roman government was there, and whether right or wrong, the administration of affairs had to be maintained, roads kept up, and all the public service attended to. Though they might be bad governors, did not make it right for the Jews to be dishonest. Each man had a right to pay his share of the expenses, and this was in the form of a tax. Pay to Cæsar whatever belongs to him.

On the other hand, there is a higher power than Cæsar. God is maker of heaven and earth, and from him comes all good gifts. Even your Messiah will not come till it is God's will to send him. All the good that you can hope for must come by his hand. Hence render "unto God the things that are God's." As Cæsar has a right to his own, so has God a right to his own. You owe him love and respect, faithful obedience and devotion. When duty to God conflicts with demands of secular rulers, we must obey God. Giving to Cæsar what rightfully belongs to him, does not conflict with duty to God. Hence, give to Cæsar what is his, and to God what belongs to him.

It is recorded that when these persons heard what Jesus said "they marvelled, and left him, and went their way."

The Sadducees then had their try, and gave the question as to which of seven brothers who had the same wife, would have her in the resurrection. Jesus gave them such an answer that they too, with the multitude, were astonished at his teaching. The answer was clear and convincing, and brought out the great truth of the reality of a future life—after the resurrection. This answer of Jesus did not teach "the continuity of life now on into the next age." The whole teaching is that man dies—ceases to be—is not, but will be made alive at the resurrection—when Jesus comes again—and then a new life will begin.

The Pharisees, seeing that their rivals, the Sadducees, are silenced, must have one more try, so a lawyer is put up to ask another question. This time it will be to show a conflict of duties. "Which is the great commandment in the law"? There were laws that are called ceremonial, and moral laws or precepts. Now which kind of law is greater?

We learn from reading Deuteronomy v. and vi. that when the law was given by Moses to the children of Israel, that there was to be nothing come ahead of God in the minds of his people. He is jealous in this respect—nothing before him. The fact that "the Lord our God is our Lord," was to be impressed on the mind of the child, they were to have it in mind at home and abroad, when standing up and lying down, it was a sign bound on the hand, and a frontlet between their eyes, upon doors and gates must they write it, and continually everywhere and every time, were they to acknowledge this great truth of the oneness and immutability of God.

Therefore, to a Jew who was versed in the law of his people, there could be but one answer to this question. Jehovah, the God of Israel. He who is the Creator, Source of all that is good, eternal God, the Ruler and Preserver. When well considered this question seems absolutely silly. Without hesitation any devout Jew should answer "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind."

The position this command occupies is unassailable. It is supremely first, for it is the fountain and source of all. Teachers should here bring before their class reasons for loving God supremely. We cannot give all here. Love is the best thing man has to give, and God wants our best.

The second—or rather "a" second—is like unto it. This regards the duty of man to his fellow. It measures the love we must give to others. The practical "Golden Rule." We cannot love God supremely and not love our neighbor as our self.

The Pharisees were gathered wondering how next to proceed, when Jesus asks them a question, "What is your opinion about the Messiah? Whose Son is he?" They answer him, "David's." Then Jesus by quoting their own Scriptures, and asking questions, succeeds in silencing them, so that "from that day forth" no man dare ask him any more questions.

The Second Coming of Christ.

As we are all anxiously awaiting the second coming of Christ, and seeing the sin and sorrow that fills the earth, we feel sure that the time is at hand. Every daily paper tells us of things that happen all over the world. And we cannot help but feel that the time is near.

Syriac New Testament, Rev i 3, Blessed is he that readeth, and they who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep the things that are written in it; for the time is near. Rev i 5, And from Jesus the Messiah, the Witness, the Faithful, the first born of the dead, the Prince of the kings of the earth; who hath loved us, and released us from our sins by his blood. Rev i 6, And hath made us a kingdom sacredotal to God and his Father; to whom be glory and power, for ever and ever. Amen. I am Alpha, also Omega, saith the Lord God; who is and was, and is to come the Omnipotent. Rev i 8, and who liveth and was dead; and behold, I am alive for ever and ever. Amen. And I have the keys of death and the unseen world. Rev i 18, Our Savior warned us of conflicts that were to come upon the earth.

And ye are to hear of conflicts, and the rumor of battles. See that ye be not disquieted; for these things must come; but the consummation is not yet. Matt xxiv 6. For nation will rise up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes in divers places. Matt xxiv 7. But all these are only the commencement of sorrows. Matt xxiv 8, And they will deliver you up to tribulation, and will kill you; and ye will be hated by all nations, on account of my name. Matt xxiv 9. Then many will be stumbled: and they will hate one another, and will betray one another. Matt xxiv 10, and many false prophets will rise up; and they will deceive many; and on account of the abounding of iniquity, the love of many will decline. But he that will persevere to the end, will have life. Matt xxiv 13. Behold I have told you before hand. Matt xxiv 25. If therefore they say to you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not out: or, Behold he is in a secret chamber; give no credence. Matt xxiv 26.

As the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth unto the west, so will the coming of the Son of Man. Matt xxiv 27. And immediately after the distress of those days, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not show her light, and the stars will fall from heaven, and the powers of heaven will be agitated. Matt xxiv 29. And then will be seen the signal of the Son of Man in heaven; and then will all the tribes of the earth mourn when they see the Son of Man coming in on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. Then let us not be like the foolish virgins, but have our lamps trimmed, filled and burning that when the outcry comes, Behold, the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him, that we will be ready to answer the call. Watch, therefore seeing ye know not the day nor the hour. Matt xxv 13, and when that Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all his holy angels with him, then will he sit upon the throne of his glory, Matt xxv 31, and before him will be gathered all nations; and he will separate them one from another, as a shepherd severeth the sheep from the goats. Matt xxv 32, And he will place the sheep on his right hand and the goats on the left. Matt xxv 33, And will the king say to those on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom that was prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Matt xxv 34. Which will you be sheep or goats? Jesus is coming, we know it is true. Who are the chosen, the faithful, the few watching and waiting, prepared for review? Jesus is coming again.

Yours in the hope of the soon coming kingdom.

MARY HELMS.

The Burial of Jesus.

The burial of Jesus, like everything pertaining to him, is very interesting to the truth seeker.

He expired about the ninth hour (Matt xxvii 46) on the 15th of Nisan. When even was come (sunset) there came a rich man of Arimathea named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple; he went to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. Then, Pilate commanded the body of Jesus to be delivered (Matt xxvii 57, 58) and there came also Nicodemus, who at the first came to Jesus at night, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds weight. Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of Jews is to bury. John xix 39, 40. These two disciples of Jesus kindly took him down, in the dusk of the evening and laid his body to rest. Now in the place where he was crucified, there was a garden; and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid. There laid they Jesus. John xix 41, 42.

On the same evening and perhaps at the very time the chief priests and Pharisees came together to Pilate, saying "Sir, we remember that that deceiver said while he was yet alive "after three days, I will rise again." Command therefore that the sepulcher be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night and steal him away, and say unto the people, he is risen from the dead; so the last error shall be worse than the first. Matt xxvii 62, 63.

Pilate told them they had a watch to go and make the sepulcher sure; so they went and sealed the stone that closed the entrance to the tomb and set a watch, that no intruder might come near the grave where the Lord lay. With a Roman guard at the tomb, and the stone sealed, the victory over Jesus seemed to be complete. The disciples in great fear hid themselves in an upper room, and forgot that he told them he would meet them in Galilee, after he was risen, for as yet they knew not the Scripture that he must rise again from the dead. John xx 9.

They began to forget and go back to their vocation. The bold Simon Peter said, "I go a fishing," and the others said, "We go with thee." Had the power of God not been in the cause of Christ it would have perished from the earth. A large majority of men affirm that Christ did not die. They say that he was with the repentant thief in paradise, and preaching to spirits in prison. If we concede that he did not die, we deny that he rose from the dead. One cannot rise from the dead without first being dead. Death precedes resurrection.

Paul, in bearing testimony to Christ's death, says (1 Cor xv 3, 4), For I delivered unto you first of all, that which I also received; how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures. The prophet affirms that "his soul was made an offering for sin," that he "poured out his soul unto death." He was therefore offered up both soul and body and in the act he poured out his soul unto death, for our sins. See Isa liii 10, 12. It is clear, that to deny his death, soul and body included, denies his resurrection, redemption, and power to forgive sins. Jesus testifies to the last apostle that saw him, I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of hell and of death. Rev i 18.

The keys indicate his authority over death, and the grave. He obtained these keys by being obedient unto death. He was made lower than the angels, for the suffering of death, that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death—that is the devil. By dying he opened up a thoroughfare, out of the grave, or death, through the resurrection. The time that Jesus lay in the grave was three days and three nights according to his own word. For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. It will be seen that Jesus was in the heart of the earth for the entire time of his death. It must be remembered that the scribes, priests and Pharisees had spies on the track of Jesus most of the time who reported to them a great deal of what was said and done.

They were aware of the power of Jesus words. On one occasion they were listening to his teaching when his words so impressed them that they reported that "he spake as never man spake." When he raised Lazarus many of them witnessed it. The Pharisees afterwards sought to kill him, because he was a living testimonial to Jesus' power over death. They noted that Jesus' words were clothed with power. They had heard him speak to the lepers and they were cleansed, to the deaf and they heard, to the lame and they walked, to the dumb and they spoke, to the blind and they saw, to the dead and they lived. These supernatural powers disturbed them. They feared that he would rise again "after three days." They thought if they could do away with him, the Roman guard and the sealed stone could hold him there. What anxiety filled their hearts as the allotted time went by. Evening and morning came and went. It is fair to think they passed by day by day, to see if the guard were on duty. They knew he was laid in the grave at about sunset, or when "the even was come," at the close of Nisan 15th. Three days and three nights would bring the close or sunset, ending the Sabbath. Just at that time Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Jesus, reached the sepulchre. The guard lay around as dead men. An angel sat on the stone, who said "he is not here. He is risen," and the greatest triumph that ever took place in this world was accomplished.

H. M. LUCAS.

Let us wipe our tears, lift up our heads and give ourselves to brave and cheerful toil. In due time the release will come: rest so sweet after the toil is over; glory so bright after the darkness is passed; victory so grand that we shall not wish the conflicts to have been less fierce, or the perils of the day less numerous or painful.

The Safeguard of Shame.

There are those who look upon sin as a light and little thing, and, who insist that society shall take little notice of the faults and sins of those who have gone astray. They condone dishonesty, they pass over wrong-doing, they make light of vice, and they complain bitterly of those who are not ready to overlook the sins of those around them.

Of course there is much hypocrisy in the world, much condemning sins to which persons are not inclined, and tolerating others which are more agreeable and consequently more respectable. But there is a difference between right and wrong, and society must protect itself against the incoming tide of evil. All persons, and especially the young, need to know that sin is an awful thing; that criminal acts carry with them direful consequences; that men or women who have gone down or have suffered themselves to be dragged down into the depths of sin, cannot instantly and easily regain the position, the confidence, or the character which they have lost.

God who searches the hearts may forgive the sincere, while he condemns and abhors the hypocritical. But society is not always able to discern between the two, and must feel its way carefully, not allowing any to perish for lack of sympathy, and yet not allowing the innocent to be again imposed upon by the artful and designing. Hence society builds her walls, and an enlightened public sentiment utters its warnings, against sin. Those who refuse to head such warnings will find when it is too late that they were meant in kindness, and that the neglect of them constitutes a fault and sin which carries its terrible curse through this life and often into the life which is to come.—H. L. Hastings.

Announcement.

By invitation of the Argos Church the Annual October Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Argos, Ind. Date of meeting and Program will be published later. This is the first of our Conference year. All the arrangements for the coming year's work for the Master in our State are made at this meeting. I hope all the Churches will be represented by delegates. Brethren, commence making arrangements at once to attend that we may have a good meeting.

The Bible.

Hast thou ever heard
Of such a Book? the Author—God himself,
The subject—God and man, salvation, life,
And death—eternal life, eternal death—
Dread words! whose meaning has no end, no bound!
Most wondrous Book! bright candle of the Lord!
Star of eternity! the only star
By which the bark of man could navigate
The sea of life, and gain the coast of bliss
Securely, only star which rose on time,
And on its dark and troubled billows, still,
As generation, drifting swiftly by,
Succeeded generation, threw a ray
Of heaven's own light, and to the hills of God,
The eternal hills, pointed the sinner's eye.
—Pollok.

Within this ample volume lies
The mystery of mysteries:
Happiest they of human race
To whom their God has given grace
To read, to fear, to hope, to pray,
To lift the latch, to force the way:
And better had they ne'er been born
That read to doubt, or read to scorn.

Report of General Conference.

The General Conference composed of representatives of the various state or district Conferences of the United States and Canada, met as per announcement at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 29, 1910, at 9 a. m.

Meeting was called to order by O. J. Allard, and on motion of Almus Adams, O. J. Allard was made temporary Chairman. On motion of D. C. Robison, A. R. Underwood was made temporary Secretary.

On call of delegates, it was found that out of fourteen states signing the call for a General Conference, the following were represented: Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas Missouri, Nebraska, Washington, Minnesota, Ohio, Iowa. Leaving Michigan, Canada, Oklahoma-Arkansas-Texas, Oregon and Kansas without representation.

The Chairman then appointed the following committees: On credentials—J. H. Morse, D. C. Robison, G. E. Marsh. On Rules: Joseph Williams, R. G. Huggins, A. J. Eychaner.

On motion of R. G. Huggins adjourned till 1 P. M.

Met at 1 P. M. Aug. 29. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The Committee on Credentials, D. C. Robison, Chairman, reported as follows: We, the committee on credentials submit the following report. We have examined the credentials of the following delegates and recommend that they be regarded as members of this body with full voting powers.

Ohio—D. C. Robison and R. G. Huggins.
Nebraska—Almus Adams and M. D. Newell
Indiana—J. H. Willey and A. R. Underwood.
Missouri—J. H. Morse.
Iowa—O. J. Allard and A. J. Eychaner.
Minnesota—J. A. Patrick.
Kansas-Missouri—W. L. Crowe.
Washington—N. D. Tichenal.
Illinois—G. Eldred Marsh.

Committee,
D. C ROBISON.
G. ELDRED MARSH
J. H. MORSE.

The Committee on Rules, Joseph Williams, Chairman, reported as follows;

1. That the Bible be our only Guide in all our deliberations, as shown in the following and like Scriptures. Rom. xii: 8, I Cor. xiv, Acts xv, Matt. xviii.

2. All persons present may take part in the deliberations, but only delegates shall vote.

3. All speakers limited to one address of five minutes until all have spoken who desire to speak, and limited to two addresses on any one subject.

4. It is suggested by your committee that no question of character of members, or doctrines of the Scriptures, shall be decided by a vote of the delegates.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.
A J EYCHANER
ROBT. G. HUGGINS.

Motion by N. D. Tichenal that each rule be taken up separately. Carried.

Motion by A. J. Eychaner that rule 1 be adopted. Carried.

Motion by R. G. Huggins that rule 2 be adopted. Carried.

Motion by A. J. Eychaner that rule 3 be adopted.

Almus Adams moved to amend by inserting that the leader in a discussion shall be allowed to present his subject, and that the one opening the discussion shall have 15 minutes. Carried.

Original motion then put and carried.

Motion by Almus Adams to strike out Rule 4

Speech by A. J. Eychaner against making man-made creed.

Almus Adams states that if any here want to make a human creed, he wishes to withdraw, as he does not want such.

Motion of Almus Adams to strike out rule 4 then put and carried.

Almus Adams presents the following: "That there can be no representation of individual churches, from states having delegates or otherwise. That all delegates must vote one way or the other."

Motion by D. C. Robison that same be adopted.

O. J. Allard placed Jos. Williams in chair and spoke favoring representatives of the individual churches having a voice.

General discussion then followed.

O. J Allard resumed the chair and motion to adopt the rules presented by Almus Adams was carried.

Motion by Almus Adams that O. J Allard be made permanent chairman of this present assembly. Carried.

Motion by J. A. Patrick that A. R. Underwood be chosen permanent Secretary. Carried.

Motion by N. D Tichenal that we vote by Conferences—each Conference being allowed two votes. Carried.

Adjourned till 3 P. M.

Met at 3 P. M., Aug 29.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

W. S. Tomlinson not being present, his place on the programme was taken by D. C. Robison, who proceeded to read the following paper:

OUR NEEDS AS A PEOPLE.

This question to my mind is one of vital importance. Our needs signify a move that will greatly strengthen our position. We need to be more fully developed along the line of the seven Christian graces given by the apostle Peter, beginning with courage and ending with love. We should strive to perfect ourselves along this line. We will never as a people be strong enough to vanquish the enemy until we have developed ourselves individually. The body of Christ is made up of one supreme head, the Christ, and an innumerable number of single units. The head, the Christ, has been perfected and Jehovah has declared him to be his Son by raising him from the dead. The oath was recorded that God would not leave his soul in hades nor suffer his holy one to see corruption. For this reason it was not possible that he should be holden of death. This was the result of perfect obedience. Jesus said that, "I always do the things that please my heavenly Father." Through obedience and suffering he was made perfect. Our life is a life of trial and if we are raised from the dead as was our Head, it will be because we have had the faith of God and developed a perfect character. It was through this perfect faith and character that Abraham was counted righteous. With these few preliminary suggestions I wish to state that our greatest needs lie in a unity of faith and a unity of action. "Without the faith it is impossible to please God," for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Faith in the abstract will not remove our sins and make us the sons and daughters of Jehovah. We may believe that God is the Creator of all things and reject his purpose concerning the ages. To become a part of his purpose and to be privileged to assist in the future we must acquaint ourselves with Jehovah and his plans. This signifies that our faith must be the faith of God, and not just faith in God. This requires that we possess a specific faith. To do this we must study to show ourselves approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth. Again we are admonished to hold fast the form of sound words which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Jesus Christ. The apostle's admonition to the Corinthian church was, Now I beseech you brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry (tillage marg.) ye are God's building. For other foundations can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus the Christ."

Again he says to the Ephesian church, "We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in him." These admonitions bring us to this conclusion, that without a unity of faith our labors will be in vain.

Many object to a prescribed faith, saying that it is too narrow. The faith of God is certainly broad enough for all his loving children. "The foundation of God standeth steady having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his." Have we wisdom enough to see Jehovah's purpose in regard to the earth and man? This purpose has been revealed in the prophetic Word as it is written that, No prophecy of Scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old times by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by Holy Spirit. Dare you say that any man has a right to interpret Jehovah's Word to suit his individual opinion? For my part I cannot. Let Jehovah be his own interpreter. Let it be as it was in the days of old as recorded in Nehemiah. When the book of the law was recovered it was read to the people. So they read in the book in the law of God distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading. Let us imitate them and read the law of the Spirit of Life, that all who hear our reading may understand it.

I would not consider this part of my paper complete if I did not outline this faith as I have gleaned it from the fields so richly strewn. It was written by the prophet Moses unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people. We all agree as to this prophet. He it was who went throughout all Judea preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God. This is the good news concerning the restoration to Israel of the kingdom of David which was overturned in the days of that wicked prince of Israel. Since that time David's throne has been in an overturned condition.

This is the gospel that Jesus sent his apostles out to preach to the whole world. Those who believed and were baptized will be saved. After his ascension his apostles were fully qualified as his witnesses through the baptism of the Holy Spirit to preach this gospel. On the day of Pentecost Peter preached it when he declared that God raised Jesus the Christ from the dead to sit on David's throne.

In Acts viii it is recorded that Philip went down into Samaria and preached to them the Word. It is further stated that he preached Christ unto them. Again we read that when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women. From these Scriptures we can I am sure arrive at a unity of faith. If we as a people stand upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone there can be no schisms among us. The gospel as they briefly outline it is broad enough for all.

It has been our purpose in the above to merely outline what we understand to be the faith of God upon which we must all agree. If we reject the future restoration of fleshly Israel to their land, we reject the gospel. Israel restored will be the kingdom to which will be added the dominion and its greatness. Israel brought under the rod, and into the bond of the covenant will be Jehovah's battle ax. This will constitute the mustard seed kingdom that is to fill the whole earth. It will be the stone cut out of the mountain without hands. It will grind the metalic image to powder. This kingdom as organized with Israel as subjects and the Christ and the saints as rulers will possess the gates of his enemies, and through this seed shall all nations be blessed.

In accepting the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus the Christ we must reject heretical doctrines. Such doctrines as the "Human Paternity of Jesus," the Pre-existence of Christ and the keeping of the Sabbath must be rejected as unsound and unprofitable. After the addition of the 3000 to the church on Pentecost it is written that they continued steadfastly in the apostle's doctrine and fellowship, and breaking bread and prayer. If we succeed we must follow in the footsteps of the early Christians. The unity of action naturally follows that of the unity of faith. The good Father will only bless us when we act in harmony with his purpose. Jesus is today taking out of the nations a people for his name. They are selected through faith in the gospel of the Son of God, a reformation of life and baptism into the name of Jesus the Christ. This Christ body must possess the courage to reject all traditions and erroneous doctrines.

An army when once well disciplined will be directed by one Head. I well remember the condition of the northern army during the first two years of the Civil War. There were several heads. The eastern army was commanded by one general. The western army by several. During these years there was but little accomplished. The time came when the whole army was put under the command of one general. When General Grant assumed the command of the Federal forces and selected his own lieutenants the army became a mighty force. We must remember that in unity there is strength. Conceive for a moment that when Jesus the Christ comes again to this earth that there will be a division of action. The Christ will assume the supreme command and there will be a unity of action. Then and not until then will sin be crushed. It is written that when Napoleon the first planned his campaign into Italy his chief engineer said to him, You can not march your army across the Alps. The reply of this great general was, There are no Alps. The rugged cliffs melted before him, and his army reached the sunny land of Italy. When General Grant with an army of 150,000 men moved on toward Richmond, Va., in 1864 he said, "We will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." His plans were well matured and the army became as one mighty force under this matchless leader. When Sherman started for Atlanta his army overcome every obstacle in its way. General Sherman was its leader and the whole army marched in harmony with his orders. No body of people has ever been successful where its rank has been broken. In order that this condition may prevail, selfishness must be eliminated. There can be no pastorate of individual bodies when it has a tendency to weaken the forces that are laboring to spread the glad tidings of the kingdom of God.

State Conferences can only be parts of one general Conference. Our first thought must be for the cause in general. It is said of President Lincoln that his first work would be to save the Union. If it could be saved without slavery he would save it. If not, he would save it with slavery. Save it he must. This was the dominating thought in his mind. How beautifully we find this thought expressed by the apostle Paul in his Philippian letter, I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered loss of all things, and do count them but dross, that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith; that I may know him and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of his sufferings being made conformable to his death; if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. In this we find the unity of faith and the unity of action beautifully blended. All things lost that he might win Christ The apostle exhibits self-sacrifice that he might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. When we are willing to give our talents, or time and our means to the strengthening of the cause there will be no State lines. There will be no our conferences, at the expense of the cause in general. Conferences and Conference work will be arranged that the greatest good can be done. Brethren, let this thought sink deeply into every mind and let all work for the general good. Less than 10 years ago the churches of Ohio were strangers. A few at Salem labored courageously and unselfishly and called a conference in which all the churches might mingle and become spiritually strengthened. Today we are a band of loving brothers and sisters. The churches extend letters of greeting to each other during the year, and the cause of the Master has been greatly built up and strengthened.

I am pleading for the unity of action throughout the whole world. In 1 Cor xii the apostle Paul compares the Christ body to the human body. As the body is one and hath many members and all members of that one body being many, are one body; so also is Christ. By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jew or Gentile, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit. In this chapter we have illustrated individual action for the good of the whole body. "If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it not therefore of the body? If it destroys its individual usefulness it is totally destroyed. Each member as a unit is important but it must act for the building up of the whole body. Each organ of the body has a function to perform. It benefits itself individually and the whole body generally. The function of the stomach with its juices is to digest the food that it may be taken up by the absorbent vessels and changed into liquid blood or assimilated. Without these processes we could not exist. Secretion and excretion are each alike important. The heart is the engine that forces the blood to all parts of the system that each fiber may receive its strengthening food. Besides this, it has an individual circulation by which its muscles are given strength. Thus we see in the law of individual action that the whole body may be strengthened and perfected. May we all move forward with this inscribed on our banner, The Unity of Faith and the Unity of Action, is my prayer.

D. C. ROBISON.

G. E. Marsh led in the discussion, with a 15 minute talk. This was followed by a general discussion in which A. J. Eychaner spoke five times, N. D. Tichenal, O. J. Allard, W. L. Crowe, three times each, R G. Huggins, J. A. Patrick, Almus Adams twice each, P. Jeffreys, A. R. Underwood, Joseph Williams, D. C. Robison, Bro. Robbins once each.

Adjourned till 9 A. M, August 30.

Met at 9:00 A. M. August 30.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

O. J. Allard advocates that every member of the Church here be allowed to vote, believing that a mistake was made in limiting voting to delegates.

After some discussion, G. E. Marsh moved that we reconsider the rule adopted yesterday reading as follows: "That there can be no representation of individual churches from states having delegates, or otherwise." On call of delegates, 10 were in favor, 8 against. Carried.

A. J. Eychaner moved that Jesse Spicer be seated as a delegate. Carried.

Motion by A. J. Eychaner that this conference be a conference with full powers. After much discussion with many explanations, motion was put and carried.

The next thing in order was a paper by Almus Adams on the subject, "Should we as a Church adopt a Statement of Faith and Discipline?"

A. J. Eychaner entered a protest against said paper being read.

Motion by D. C. Robison that Almus Adams be allowed to read his paper as written. Carried.

Almus Adams then proceeded to read the following paper:—

SHOULD WE AS A CHURCH ADOPT A DISCIPLINE?

In discussing the subject of, "Should we as a Church adopt a Discipline" it shall not be necessary for me to controvert any one on the point of a stated belief or Discipline, because we we all believe that. That God teaches certain things to be believed and that he has ever disciplined his people goes without saying. He corrects and chastises both for wrong doing and believing. This we all believe. Then the only difference which can arise here is, Shall we write out a statement of belief and church government or shall we use the Bible alone?

Our experience in the latter has resulted in every one having a doctrine, a psalm, some for Paul some Apollos, and some Cephas, and a few for Christ. The apostles had delivered the one faith to the church orally and they were not left alone long until the above was the result, which made it necessary for the apostles to write letters of correction, and say we have no such custom neither the Churches of God. 1 Cor. xi. 16.

It has ever been the disposition of man to wander away from the teachings of God, both as to faith and morals. Hezekiah king of Israel found it necessary in the beginning of his reign, to put out of the house of God all the abominations placed there by the former king, and did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. But no sooner had he slept with his fathers than Manasseh his successor restored all the evils of the former kings. So when Josiah began to reign he had all the evils of the fifty-five years of his reign to contend with. He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left. This is said many times of those who did right and pleased God; but now we are asked to step to the right in order to be of a loving disposition and accept the teachings of those we feel sure is contrary to God's Word, and we have no sooner done this when we are asked to step to the left and with a smile of welcome acknowledge another brother with an entirely different doctrine, and about the time we reflect upon our loveliness of disposition in admitting these brethren unshackled and unfettered in every way, we hear a noise and upon investigation find those brethren whom we have taken into the fold, in a heated controversy, and presently love has turned to hatred and we who invited the conflict are soon involved, and when the smoke has cleared away and we look over the battle-ground strewn with the dead and mortally wounded can we still say, and be reasonable, "How lovely." This is not an imaginary nor overdrawn picture. Many of these battlegrounds exist, and the rallies of the conflict are in evidence.

The right thing to have done and to do is to turn neither to the right hand or to the left. The moment we begin to dodge this way and that way to please every one we please no one, and ruin is the unavoidable result.

God told Saul what to do, and he

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the Immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Under dated of September 9, 1910, Brother John L. Wince says, "Since the weather became cooler, my case shows some signs of improvement, though I am confined to my bed a good part of the time, not able to put on my clothing, or to get out of doors. Am longing for our Savior to come." This was dictated by Brother Wince and written by his wife, so it tells just how weak he is. May the Lord soon come and give the sick health once more.

We realize that the report of the General Conference at Waterloo, Ia., is lengthy, but decided to give it in [illegible] issue, that all might have it in exact order as the meetings were held. This will enable each one to form an idea of what was done, as we presume the outcome was watched by many.

We wish to call special attention to one item in the report of the General Conference. In regard to the "Articles of Faith" that were written up, these were not adopted by the Conference. The object of the motion was to have something that could be taken home to the several localities represented, that the brotherhood might sanction, add to, or cull out—the whole subject to be taken up for further discussion at a future meeting a year hence. Let no one get the idea that a "Creed" was made and passed. What was done was simply suggestive—to be thought over, and if deemed best, decided in the future.

The honor of being Secretary of the Waterloo General Conference fell to the lot of your servant, the scribe, and in reporting the proceedings we have endeavored to give record of all that was done as accurately as possible. During the meeting there was much talk pro and con, that does not enter into the report, believing as we do that some of the speakers would not wish their exact words printed. In writing this report, we have endeavored to treat every one who took part fairly, and with no bias of mind. Any one who ever reported such a meeting, (if such a one was ever held before), we feel sure understands the task, and will sympathize. If any one feels aggrieved at any words in the report as given, we are ready to apologize, assuring each that no unfairness is intended.

Report of Labor.

September 0th, B. W. Woodward returned from an eleven days meeting, held in East Hinton, Mecosta Co., where several intelligent people accepted the gospel truths presented to them. George Seutt and Fannie Sweet were added to the body of Christ by baptism, two very intelligent candidates. Others had been previously immersed and needed more time to study, before seeing the necessity of re-baptism. The Bible was studied and Bible questions asked as never before in this neighborhood. I began meetings at this place just before our June Conference, and left them in the midst of much interest with the promise of returning as soon as possible. But hindrances came, and they had no more meetings until the Elder went there Aug. 27th. Just before the Coats Grove Bible school and Conference, two very urgent letters came from them for meetings immediately. What should we do? We had not missed a Conference in Michigan but once in 29 years, was it a duty to miss this one? We thought, and talked, and finally decided more good could be done there than at Coats Grove, where our faithful Bro. Lindsay was instructing them. So I gladly "stayed by the stuff" at home, while he responed to the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us." I was so glad to see him go to this work again after two years spent at home from ill health. The old time enthusiasm took possession of him as the interest increased, and he hopes to be able to go again this fall.

The Grange Hall, four miles from place of meeting was closed that all might attend the meeting. The Ladies' Aid Society began the church building here. They have it enclosed, an organ paid for, and now with the help of the good men of the place are about ready to finish the house. The interest in the gospel work here is due to the earnest, enthusastic words of Bro. and Sister Benjamin Cummings in the Sunday school and community. May the good work go on is our prayer.

invited certain ruin when he turned aside to please the people. God said to Moses when about to make the tabernacle, "See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern showed in the Mount." In perfect keeping with this Paul says "As many as walk according to this rule."

In the face of this how idle to talk of brotherly love and liberty which grants to every one the right to make his own rule and cut his own pattern. Can we ignore the lesson taught by the above and still hope to be right with God? No one is more against human discipline and man made creeds than I, but on the other hand I am just as firm in the belief that God has set principles that must be adhered to, and that we cannot deviate from. Is there an example in God's Word where any one deviated from his command and went unpunished?

When Josiah sent a man to take an accounting of the silver given to repair the house of God, they found the Book of the Law, and when it was brought and read to the king he rent his clothes. It was evident to him that they were not living up to the requirements of this Book of the Law found in the House of the Lord. "Then the king gathered unto him all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem, (similar to this gathering) and the king went up into the house of God (which is now the church) and all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with him and the priests and prophets and all the people, both small and great, and he read in their ears all the words of the Book of the Covenant which was found in the house of the Lord, and the king stood by a pillar (the church is the pillar and ground of the truth and we must stand by that) and made a covenant before the Lord to walk after the Lord and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and all his statutes with all their heart and with all their soul to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book and all the people stood to the covenant." 2 Kings xxiii. 1-3. These people had the Book of the Law but they made a covenant agreeing to keep what was written in the Book of the Law of God. This was preparatory to the next step when the priests of the first and second order and door keepers were commanded to bring out the vessels of Baal, and they were burned in the field outside of Jerusalem.

Here was a general house cleaning. The house of God here was filled up with all kinds of vessels made for Baal. And in the church, the house of the Lord, we are vessels meet for the Master's use, and as these vessels made for Baal were burned out in the field, must we allow the natural man to run his course or burn out in the world, and not drag him into the church. And this is just what the apostle meant when he said, "For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles when we walked in lasciviousness, lust, excess of wine, revelings, banquetings and abominable idolatries." 1 Peter iv. 3.

Here we are taught that while in the world we carry out the above principles, the natural man must be burned in the field (the world) and come in the church a new man. The two first verses of the above Scripture says "For as much then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind. For he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin, that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men; but to the will of God." To suffer in the flesh we learn here is to put down the natural inclinations, and the suffering is in proportion to our love for worldly things.

The church should see then, as the above Scripture teaches, that worldliness be kept out. The church should have the courage to say to those coming in, If you hav'nt finished sowing your wild oats you must stay in the world where you have plenty of ground for it is occupied in here. Could any one doubt in the light of the above Scripture that it would be wrong in the sight of God for us to adopt a discipline and agree to clean house and keep it clean. Worldiness as well as matters of faith at first is confined to individuals, but if let go long enough it will finally be adopted by the church. To illustrate, young people will sometimes ask, Does the church allow dancing? This is asked by those only who like perhaps above all other worldly things, to dance, and if they are admitted with that desire still alive and nothing particularly against it, and no one to enforce it if there was, we finally have a good many with that inclination, dancing, and then the church is compelled to adopt it or lose the number. This is just where the M. E. people are today. They are trying to change their discipline to allow dancing because they have so many individuals who love to dance and they dont want to lose them. And just as soon as the church becomes worldly enough as a whole, which will be about three years hence, at their next General Conference they will adopt it. Thus it is easy to see how the church becomes worldly.

The church needs faithful men and women to stand at the door to guard her purity. In 2 Kings xxiii. 4, we learn that the king commanded the high priest and the priests of the second order and the door keepers to bring out the vessels made for Baal. If the door-keepers and priests had done their duty in the first place those things would not have gotten in there. What is a door-keeper for if not to guard against invasion? You can't get into the show without a ticket unless the door-keeper is off duty. You can't get into the lodge without the pass-word. The door-keepers to these institutions are armed with authority that guards their interests. The door-keeper of the church must be armed likewise, with proper authority to safeguard her interests. Whenever we take the door-keepers off duty, or, if on duty tell them not to question those entering too closely, but to proclaim liberty, you will soon discover the church filled with all kinds of faiths (instead of one) and morals, and the ruin of the church is certain.

The church needs articles of faith and discipline for another reason, to guard against the insincere. This class of people were in in the days of Paul, and cannot be confined to that time alone. In Phil. i. 15, 16, we read, "Some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife, and some also of good will, the one preach Christ of contention not sincerely, supposing to add afflictions to my bonds."

In this same chapter, verse 27, Paul says. "Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you or else be absent I may hear of your affairs that ye stand fast in one spirit with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel." This answers the question of the adoption of a discipline. In the next chapter he says, "If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the spirit, if any bowels of mercies, if their be any of these (then listen) fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like minded, having the same love, being of one accord of one mind."

Liberty of thought and action will never fulfill the above Scripture. In order to fulfill it we must agree to be and do just what it says, and that can't be by inviting differences. It is idle to argue such. In the next verse Paul says, "Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory, but in lowliness of mind." I must be lowly enough in mind to submit to God's ways and get rid of self entirely.

In adopting a discipline we can avoid foolish questions and genealogies and contentions and strivings about the law, and so fulfill the Scriptures, but on the other hand if we listen to those who say that such things are the life of the church, we must ignore this Scripture and the apostle adds "that such is unprofitable and vain." Titus iii. 9, 11.

In a discipline we should cite the church to the above Scripture, making it a rule of the church. Who could object but he who had it in his heart to contend about these very things? Yes, we should adopt a discipline and articles of faith making it obligatory upon the church to enforce the rules of Scripture.

In conclusion we ask, What is the cause of this move? The answer we think is easy. That there has been a marked improvement spiritually in the church the past few years is apparent to all, and the more spiritual we become the more abhorrent will the fleshly be, and as we get our spiritual eyes open the more we will behold the evil that exists among us, and the greater the desire to see it eliminated. So we believe the spirit of Christ is in the move. Let us say to the world what we stand for as to faith and morals, and enforce the standard, become a peculiar people denouncing the spirit of the world and walk in the spirit of Christ. The fruits of the Spirit grow on but one tree, that tree must be rooted and grounded in the truth, hence James says in iii. 12, "Can a fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries?" Paul says to the Romans that if the root be holy so are the branches, so he continues and says the root bears the branches, not the branches the root. To the Colossians he says, "rooted and built up in him and stablished in the faith as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving. We must have the faith before we can be rooted in, stablished in it, and as there is but one faith, that is the one to be rooted in, and not to be moved away from, and to be established in.

But why multiply, everything that is of God argues for definite faith and discipline, and to stand with God we must contend for unity of faith and action.

Almus Adams.

A. J. Eychaner led the discussion with a fifteen minute speech, setting forth his objections, and stating that he should fight to the last against any written statement, even to the copying texts of Scripture in Bible language, as their selection would be of man, and therefore objectionable to him. After a number of others had spoken, the noon hour having arrived adjourned to meet at 1:00 P. M.

Met at 1:00 P. M. Aug. 30.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Unfinished business was stated as the order of the hour, and the chairman called up the further discussion of the paper read by Almus Adams.

The discussion of this paper was taken up and the following brethren made speeches, R. Chown and Bro. Robbins one each, Jos. Williams, R. G. Huggins, N. D. Titchenal, D. C. Robison, J. A. Patrick, O. J. Allard, twice each, W. L. Crowe three times, A. J. Eychaner and L. E. Conner four times each. Discussion closed by Almus Adams with a fifteen minute speech.

Adjourned till 8:00 P. M.

Met again at 8:00 P. M. Aug. 30.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The next thing on the programme was a paper by A. J. Eychaner entitled "What constitutes Church Discipline?" Instead of preparing a paper setting forth his views on the subject assigned, he arose and said, "The method of getting rid of error and sin by the means and the rules or laws laid down in the Bible."

Discussion of A. J. Eychaner's paper was to be opened by Almus Adams, and of course this action of A. J. Eychaner's would either block discussion, or force Almus Adams to take the initiative and outline the subject. This he proceeded to do in a fifteen minute speech, which was followed by short talks by Bros. Conner, Crowe, Williams, Titchenal, Huggins, Allard, Adams, Robison and Eychaner.

D. C. Robison then moved that we dispense with further reading of papers, and proceed with a settlement of the question at issue. That we try and get at a plan to do something definite. Carried.

Almus Adams and R. G. Huggins asked to be allowed to retire for consultation. Granted.

D. C. Robison moved to settle the expenses of delegates as suggested by the call,—put total expenses of all together, and each Conference then pay an equal share of the sum. N. D. Titchenal asked that as he had been in the east for some time and it would be impossible to give his exact expense, that the Washington Conference be left out of the arraugement. With this exception, the motion was carried.

Almus Adams now presents a resolution the exact wording of which cannot be given, as it was not handed to the Secretary's desk. The substance is this: That the Church of God does not stand for the Human Paternity of Jesus theory, for keeping of the Seventh day Sabbath, nor for the pre-existence of Christ theory, but that any action or discipline against those who do so hold, be withheld for a year. It was explained that those holding such ideas be given time to present their views at this meeting, and during the coming year, and at the next Annual meeting, that they might thus have full opportunity to get their theories before the brotherhood.

This was put in the form of a motion and often free discussion, on call of Conference nine delegates were against, eight in favor, and two refused to vote, and the motion was declared lost.

J. H. Willey then moved that a declaration of the principles of our faith be written up, the same to be given to each delegate to take home to their several churches, and submitted for their approval, to be acted on at the next general Conference a year hence. Carried. The chair appointed N. D. Titchenal, J. H. Willey and Almus Adams on such committee, to report same at evening session.

Adjourned till 7:30 P. M.

Met at 7:30 P. M. Aug. 30.

Articles of Faith.

We believe: 1. In one God who is the maker of heaven and earth. Psa cxlvi 5, 6, and all things therein. Gen i 1; Isa xl 28; 1 Cor viii 6; Gal iii 20; Heb iii 4; 1 Tim ii 5; John i 3.

2. That Christ has the right to the literal throne of David, and at his second coming, will sit thereon to rule the world, and over the house of Jacob forever. Luke i 30 to 33; Isa ix 6 to 7.

3. The literal return of the Jews to the land of Palestine. Jer xxxi: Ezek xxxvi 9, 11, 22, 24; Acts i 6, 8. The re-establishment of the kingdom of Israel.

4. That man is wholly mortal, and immortality is obtained only through Christ, and put on at the resurrection. Rom ii 6, 7: Rom viii 11; 1 Cor xv 53, 54; 1 Tim vi 13 to 16; 2 Tim i 9, 10.

5. In the literal resurrection of the dead to a life of everlasting happiness, with Christ upon his throne. Job xix 26; Psa xvii 15; Isa xxvi 19; Isa xxxv 10; Dan xii 2; Luke xiv 14; John v 28, 29; John xi 28; Acts iv 2; xxiv 15; xxvi 8; Rom vi 5, 8, 11; Col iii 34; 1 Thes iv 15, 16.

6. The Church, the bride of Christ, will rule the world jointly with him on David's throne. Eph iii 5; Rom viii 16, 17; Luke i 31, 33.

7. The earth will be the final and eternal home of the saints. Psa xxxvii 9, 11, 29, 34; Prov ii 21; Prov x 30; xi 31; Zech xiv 9; Matt v 5.

8. In baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. Acts ii 38; Rom vi 3, 4; Luke xxiv 46, 47; Col ii 12.

9. In the second personal appearing of Christ at which time will be the restitution of all things. Dan vii 13 to 22; Matt xxv 31; Acts i 9, 11; Heb ix 28; John xiv 3; Acts iii 20; 2 Thes ii 1; 1 Thes i 10; ii 19; iii 13; iv 13, 17; Rev xxii 12.

10. The Law was done away in Christ, and the law of faith established, in which we stand. Rom x 4; viii 1, 4; vii 1, 4; Gal iii 11, 12.

11. In the promises made of God unto the fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, as to our future inheritance, and to David as to rule and kingdom. Gal iii 8, 16, 29; Acts xxvi 6, 7; Luke i 30, 33; Acts ii 29, 31.

12. In the restitution of all things spoken of by the mouth of all the holy prophets, which includes restoration of life, and the earth from under the curse. Acts iii 19, 21; John vi 35; Rom v 17; Rev xxii 3.

13. And as a pre-requisite to salvation, a holy and righteous life. Rom vi 22; Gal v 22, 26; 2 Cor vii 1; Heb xii 10, 14.

14. The Bible to be the only rule for our faith and practice. John iii 39; Isa lxvi 2; 2 Cor x 13; Gal vi 16.

15. The Bible to be the only true Word of God. Mark xvi 20; Col i 25; Titus i 2, 3; John xvii 6; John xiv 17.

16. In the final destruction of the incorrigible wicked. Mal iv 18; Psa xxxvii 10 to 20; Rom vi 23.

A. J. Eychaner objected to the use of the word "coming" in article 9, and with the consent of the committee it was changed to "appearing."

Moved by R. G. Huggins that the report of the committee be accepted. On call of Conference delegates Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska, Washington and Ohio voted two each and Iowa one in favor, making eleven for the motion. Kansas-Missouri, Minnesota two each, Iowa and the Church represented by L. E. Conner each one, making six against. The motion was declared carried eleven to six.

(On Sept. 2, O. Eldred Marsh, mailed at Waterloo, Iowa, a letter stating that he was absent at this meeting, so did not vote, but wishes "Illinois to go on record against it." The result is not changed by this action of the Illinois representative.)

Moved by Almus Adams that the question of expenses for this Conference be reconsidered. Carried.

Moved by Almus Adams that each state bear its own expenses, and relieve Iowa from the burden of the delegates' expenses. Carried.

Moved by J. H. Willey that we elect officers for the following year. Carried.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that we nominate officers by acclamation. Carried.

J. H. Willey and O. J. Allard were nominated for President.

Moved by J. A. Patrick that we elect President by ballot. Carried.

Nineteen votes were cast, of which J. H. Willey received eleven, and O. J. Allard eight.

Moved by G. E. Marsh that the vote for J. H. Willey be made unanimous. Carried.

O. J. Allard was nominated for Secretary, and there being no opposition, the entire vote was cast for him, and he was declared elected Secretary.

J. H. Morse was nominated for Vice-President, and there being no opposition, the Secretary cast the entire vote, and J. H. Morse was declared elected Vice-President.

P. Jeffreys was nominated for Treasurer, and on motion the Secretary cast the entire vote for him, and P. Jeffreys was declared elected Treasurer.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that the time and place of meeting for the next General Conference be left to the discretion of the Conference Board. Carried.

Invitations were extended by Brethren Conner representing his field in Cleveland, Ohio, Brothers Tichenal of Washington, Southwick of California, Eychaner of Florida, Adams of Nebraska, Patrick of Minnesota, and the Iowa Conference.

Moved by J. A. Patrick that each Conference represented be requested to pay $5.00 into the General Treasury, as a sinking fund for the work of the coming year. Carried.

L. E. Conner presented the matter of placing a small monument over the grave of Benjamin Wilson, and a collection was taken amounting to $31. 25.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that a rising vote of thanks be given to the Iowa Conference for their hospitality. Carried.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that a vote of thanks be given to the ladies and "mothers in Israel" for their kindness and service in the dining-hall. Carried.

After short talks by Brothers Willey, Conner, Adams, Eychaner, Crowe and Huggins, motion was made to adjourn to the call of the Conference Board.

The Sneer.

"There are some things," says a thoughtful writer, "that exert an immense power in the world without seeming to have anything in themselves to warrant it. The effect seems disproportionate to the cause. We see changes wrought in people's plans and conduct, important enough to have sprung from some weighty reason, and when we trace them back we find them produced by something so petty and trivial that we can hardly realize the connection. Such an influence in the human life is the sneer. In itself it is insignificant and worthless. It has in it neither argument nor reason, it appeals neither to the authority of long-tried usage nor to the conviction of a new-found truth. It contains neither dignity, sincerity, nor sympathy. It is founded on no serious regard for right conduct, nor righteous displeasure against misdoing; it is, indeed, utterly destitute of a single benevolent emotion or kindly desire."

No one can answer a sneer, or argue with a sneerer. A sneer is beyond the reach of reason or the realm of conviction, and yet how many dare not face a sneer, how many are pierced by it as by an arrow. Satan is often pictured with a sneer upon his face. His sneering children may claim a family likeness.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Just a few lines to tell you that on Saturday, September 3, I baptized into the "all-saving name" Mrs. Catherine G. Wilson of Straitor, Ill. She is a sister to Brother Benjamin Kauffman, and Sister Wilson will soon be 94 years old. She was given the right hand of fellowship at the breaking of bread by the Springfield Church on Sunday morning, Sept. 4, and may this dear sister ever prove faithful and have an abundant entrance into the Kingdom of God when Jesus comes.

Your Brother in the Blessed Hope,
David F. Beck.

Israel's Return.

The scattered tribes of Israel's land,
Will gathered be again;
They'll gathered be to Palestine,
From suffering and from pain.

God scattered them to every land,
And punished them for sin;
But he will bring them back again,
When righteousness comes in.

He'll gather them from every land
Beneath the setting sun.
And gathered to the wilderness
Then rebels there'll be none.

He'll purge out all the wicked ones,
As in the days of old;
He'll bring them back to Israel's land,
And place them in the fold.

The righteous King will rule the earth,
And saints immortal reign;
They'll teach the world what God requires.
For their eternal gain.

Acts Chapter One.

For us to read over the account of their action in the first chapter of Acts, and then say that it was right, or that it was not right, would be highly unjust to them, since it would be but our own opinion, and the apostle's opinion would be equally as good at least, as they, at that time had been given a measure of the Spirit by Jesus. See John xx; 22, 23.

We can only look at some of the facts and evidence on both sides and then be careful to follow what is written.

Evidence favoring the thought that the apostles did not do right:

1. Jesus himself had been with the eleven disciples forty days since the resurrection and since Judas' death, and appointed no one to take Judas' place.

2. The Apostles had received no commission from Jesus to appoint one in Judas' place.

3. The meeting and appointment took place before the disciples had received the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost (according to the writing of the book of Acts).

4. There is no record of Matthias continuing as a witness, as we are told nothing more about him.

5. The disciples took it upon themselves to make their own appointment, whereas God may have chosen another apostle, and this would partly be substantiated by what Paul says in Gal. i: 1. Writing to the Galatian brethren, he begins, "Paul, an apostle, (not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead.)"

Evidence favoring the thought that the apostles did do right:

1. The apostles endeavored to follow what was written in the Prophets, see Psalms cix; 8. "Let his days be few, and let another take his office," and no time being stated.

2. If Peter and the apostles before 120 brethren gathered together made a serious mistake in appointing one an apostle, and their action is recorded with the inspired writing of God—and then left to its readers without a word of God's disapproval; it would be recorded to no profit to those who read it.

3. In Acts ii: 1, 3 and 4 we read: "And when the days of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled the house where they were sitting; And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them:"

Notice it does not say the eleven as in nearly every instance of their meeting together with Jesus. If, (of the then supposed to be twelve apostles by the brethren) only eleven met together, and only eleven were recognized by God and given the power of the Holy Spirit, the writer not only omitted telling us of the fact that Matthias was not recognized, but carries a wrong impression by saying "they were all with one accord in one place," and "there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them." 3rd verse.

4. The apostles had met together and made this appointment before the day of Pentecost, but remember Jesus promise to them was: that he would go away, but that he would send them the comforter, which should guide them into all truth, and the promise of the Holy Spirit made afterward was for an entirely different purpose, namely: "to receive power, and to be witnesses unto Jesus both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and to the uttermost parts of the earth," and was in no way a promise to tell them to do right or wrong; they must work out their own character as before.

5. Paul was not only an apostle, or one of the apostles, but was one of the highest honor, and called to be an apostle by the Lord for a special work which we all know was well carried out; but this will not bear at all on the real question, simply the fact of what brought about the statement in Gal. i; 1. "That he was an apostle not of men, neither by men, but by Jesus Christ." If we will read the account of Paul's missionary journeys and of the churches he founded, we would find the condition among the Galatians then troubling Paul was false teachers, who, going from Jerusalem, said that they must be circumcised to be saved, and that Paul's teaching was not right, that he was rightfully an apostle as he had not been sent from Jerusalem and the other apostles, and Paul's letter was partly to correct this false impression given.

6 Paul himself in 1 Cor. xv; 5, speaking of Christ after his resurrection, "And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve." "After that he was seen of James, then of all the apostles." "And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time." "For I am the least of the apostles," etc.

Now to sum up the account: This meeting took place shortly after the ascension of Christ, verse 15. At the assembly of about 120 brethren, ver. 14, 15, Peter being the speaker, 15th verse. The thought that prompted Peter to speak was, "This scripture must needs have been fulfilled which the Holy Spirit by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus." "For he was numbered with us and had obtained part of this ministry."

"Now this man purchased a field, with the reward of iniquity, and it was known to all the dwellers at Jerusalem, insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aclamada, that is to say the field of blood."

"For it is written in the book of Psalms, 'Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and his bishoprick let another take." 16 to 20th verse.

Jesus had been teaching his disciples before his crucifixion that it was necessary that the scripture be fulfilled in those things written concerning himself, and they had just witnessed that wonderful fulfillment, and they are about to carry on His work. Do we wonder that they said this also must be fulfilled?

Notice now that the two who were chosen were of those who had followed Jesus from the baptism of John to the day of His ascension. 21 and 23 verse. That they asked God in prayer for His guidance in what they were about to do. 24 verse. And that the purpose was "One must be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection." "That he may take part of his ministry and apostle-ship from which Judas by transgression fell." 22 and 25 ver.

"And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles." 26th verse.

Sunday School Lesson.

SEPT. 26, 1910.

TEMPERANCE LESSON, GALATIANS V: 15 26.

Golden Text—"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." Gal. v: 25.

If we walk in the Spirit, are led by the Spirit, we shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh. There is nothing in common between the Spirit and the flesh—they are at war with each other. The flesh tends to excesses and lawlessness, and rebels against the restraint of the Spirit. The flesh struggles for supremacy, while the Spirit prompts to holy impulses. When we submit to the guidance of the Spirit we are not under the law. We are brought out from under the dominion of the old law, and are led by firm yet kindly compulsion of the Holy Spirit.

We have here seventeen works of the flesh given. We can see their importance in verse 21, where we are told that they who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God. This lesson at once resolves itself into one of vital moment to every one. It tells just what practices will shut one out of the kingdom of God.

Let us see what these things are. First we have given sins that are the result of passion—adultery, fornication, uncleanliness, lasciviousness. These come when we will allow our fleshly passions to take full sway. Remember—such workings in our nature shut us out of God's Kingdom.

The next class of sins enumerated relate to religion—worship. Idolatry and witchcraft. There are many kinds of idols. Idolatry is a sin and will keep us out of the kingdom. So we must keep on the safe side and worship God alone—none other. Witchcraft too will keep us out. In this class comes spiritual manifestations, writings, rappings—all such is sorcery, and is here forbidden.

Then there comes a long list of sins against society, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings and such like. All works of the flesh—all together—each separately—able to keep the one who practices them out of the Kingdom of God.

Paul told the Corinthian brethren that, "Whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and division," they were carnal, and walked as men. While one pulled one way after some man, and another went another way after another, thus working at cross purposes, was evidence to Paul that the element of carnality—fleshliness—was not entirely eliminated. Our lesson, which is taken from a letter of Paul to a like people, teaches that "such like" things will prevent inheritance in the Kingdom of God.

Just think a little. The Kingdom of God. What sort of a place would it be, filled with drunkards and revellers, men who were full of envy, practiced witchcraft, and were unclean all through? Would it be any better than the world we live in now? If we are to live hereafter, we want it to be a better condition than now prevails. We cannot conceive of a Kingdom of God filled with such characters. Our whole conception of God's Kingdom implies a selection. All who work the works of the flesh must be taken out. Such "shall not inherit the Kingdom of God."

The next question is, Who will? Answer, Those who "walk in the Spirit." We have seen the sort of works the flesh produces. They lead to corruption and death.

Now what can we find for the Spirit? First we are given to understand that one who walks in the Spirit will bear fruit. The first fruit is love, then joy and peace. Just previous to the lesson the Apostle Paul explained to the Galatian brethren how they were called to liberty, but that this liberty must not be used in the interest of the flesh, "but by love serve one another." He goes on to tell them all the law is fulfilled in one word—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The first fruit of the Spirit is love that is manifested first in adoration of God who gave us being—then to our brother. This cuts out selfishness and all fleshly desires. With this love of God shed abroad in our hearts, by the Holy Spirit, the joy and gladness must necessarily follow, and the "peace of God that passeth knowledge" comes naturally as the next fruit.

Long suffering is named as the next fruit, and implies that there will be injuries wrought against us. Our best motives will be impugned and we maligned by enemies. We must meet this with this fruit of the Spirit called "long-suffering." We are told that "Charity suffereth long and is kind." Gentleness must be shown—not harshness; kindness and not crustiness. Then comes the desire to do good to all men—goodness. Following this fruit of the Spirit comes faith, and this implies faithfulness, trustworthiness. Then we have meekness that does not rail back, but forbears and suffers wrong rather than make reply in kind.

Over all comes the crowning "fruit." Temperance which means self-restraint. Not alone in the matter of strong drink, but every passion and appetite, within or without must be kept in subjection.

These are fruits that grow in us when we "walk in the Spirit." The Apostle tells us that "against such there is no law." They who so walk are Christ's, for they "have crucified the flesh with the affection and lusts."

This lesson is important as a temperance lesson, because the use of strong drink renders one an easy prey to evil. It opens the door for us to work the works of the flesh, and renders us powerless to resist them. No one under such influence can inherit the Kingdom of God. This is a solemn thought. On the other hand he who bears the fruits of the Spirit, belongs to Christ, and if we be Christ's we are Abraham's seed, and so heirs of the Kingdom.

There is a choice for each one to make. Do you work the works of the flesh? Are you walking in the Spirit?

Report of Missouri Conference.

The Missouri Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus convened the evening of August 10, at Morse Mill, Mo., with a sermon by O. J. Allard on "The Faith Combined with Works." L. E. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio, and O. J. Allard of Fort Dodge, Ia., were the speakers, and we were given a great deal of choice spiritual food. Some of Brother Conner's subjects were as follows: "The Kingdom, When, Where and its Nature;" two fine sermons on "Baptism," Its importance, and the danger of delay; a series of three sermons leading up to the text found in Rom. viii; 1-18, that we should grow in grace and knowledge; the principles that govern our lives (Rom. xii), explaining the demand of our lives as sacrifices, not of the sacrifice of our lives. Bro. Allard also talked to us on Rom. xii, in his sermon on the "Holy Place." Other of his subjects were: "The Faith;" "Holiness;" "A Christian's Life; Evidenced First in the Home;" and a grand sermon on the resurrection.

Having Mrs. Eva Stearns, of Ia., with us, we made the most of her willingness to help, and had her conduct several Bible lessons, giving outlines of the work covered.

On Sunday, soon after the afternoon sermon, communion was administered by Brother J. L. Winningham. After the evening services, we repaired to the river, and there, in the moonlight, Bro. Allard assisted ten persons to put on Christ by baptism. On Monday, another one signified her belief in the gospel, thus making eleven to be baptized. They were: A. M. Barrows, Vineland, Mo., Mrs. Jesse Pounds, St. Louis, Mo., Gertrude Tuttle, De Soto, Mo., Mrs. Jos. Wilson, Grover Wilson, Laura Wilson, Ray Williams, James Ogle, Edward Lee, Mrs. Matilda Rogers and Lewis Rogers, all of Morse Mill, Mo.

Saturday, in business session, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; President, J. L. Winningham, Dixon, Mo.; Vice-President, J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo; Treasurer, Steward Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo.; Secretary, Sadie Morse, Valle Mines, Mo. Bros. C. McCulloch, of Morse Mill, and W. A. Cooper of Fredericktown, were elected members of the Board of Managers of the Conference. J. H. Morse was elected as the delegate from the Mo. Conference to the General Conference held at Waterloo, Ia., Aug. 29-30. The Sec'y was ordered to begin subscription fund for the next year. An amount nearly sufficient to meet the expenses of the Conference was collected on the grounds, Sunday, by Bro. James Wilson.

The Evangelistic report for the year is; four series of meetings at Bloub, near Fredericktown; one by J. M. Morgan, of Oklahoma; two by J. L. Winningham, of Mo, and one by L. E. Conner of Ohio; one at Valle Mines, by W. H. Wilson of Chicago; monthly services, since May, 1910, at Morse Mill, by J. L. Winningham, of Mo. Besides these, Brother Winningham has conducted other meetings and baptised several, but no report has been made of them; as yet.

So far, only the two churches, at Morse Mills, and at Bloub, and a number of isolated members, have been represented in our Conference, but the number is increasing, and we will persevere for the good it is doing and may do.

The visiting brethren and those not residing in our county are as follows: L. E. Conner, Ohio; O. J. Allard, Ia.; Mrs. Eva Stearns, Iowa; Kathryn Townsend, Ill.; Lesta Hauson, Lee Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Pounds, St. Louis; W. A. Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo; J. L. Winningham, Dixon, Mo. The services were well attended, both by members and outsiders. On Sunday, there were several times as many as the church could seat.

We desire to extend our thanks to all who participated in this Conference, to the visiting brethern, and to Brothers Conner and Allard, Sister Stearns and Brother Winningham.

Submitted with Faith,

SADIE MORSE, Sec'y.

Report of the Michigan Bible School and Conference.

The school was conducted by Brother Lindsay and was a means of strength and blessing to all who attended. There were twenty-seven in attendance and we hope that the next one may be still larger. If our people would attend once, I think they would be sure to go again, for those who do attend seem to think that they get even more good from the study of the Bible than they do listening to the preaching of the Word.

Brother Lindsay spoke every night to good audiences, and was rewarded for his faithful work by having the pleasure of baptizing five young people into the all-saving Name. We welcome into our midst Brother and Sister Coats, Brother and Sister Chase, and Brother Fred Hall.

It was indeed a time of rejoicing to us all to see these dear young souls taking up the Master's work in the springtime of life. May they ever prove faithful to the trust committed to them.

Work in the Northwest.

Went from Phoenix, Arizona, to Pomona, the last of May and stayed with Brother Helms till the last of July. On August 1st went to Los Angeles, Cal. Heard Brother W. H. Wilson on the 7th. As I received letters from my son in Oregon and daughter in Arizona, advising me to go to Oregon, I left Los Angeles while Brother Wilson was in the midst of his meeting—which he felt fully able to conduct alone, and so I went to Eugene, Oregon. Brother Belshaw came to the city and took me out to his farm. I spoke to an interested congregation on August 21. Dismissed with the one meeting. Two men whom I had immersed ten years ago persuaded me that the meetings should be continued, so on Monday Sister Belshaw and I took a buggy ride through the neighborhood and published meetings to begin on the night of August 23rd. At this meeting my congregation by a showing of hands voted for a protracted meeting. I have announced that with a continued increase of health the work will hold over the next Sunday.

Saturday, August 27th. Meetings are still continued, but under circumstances that might dishearten one with a less determined spirit. The Northwest is divided into the wet and dry seasons, consisting of a rainy winter and an almost rainless summer. This year has been extremely dry. It resulted in a summer of forest fires. It is disagreeable and gloomy both day and night.

Since I have been in the Willamette valley a fire came sweeping through the timber like a race horse and burned completely the village of a sawmill. The sawmill hands fought the fire to the saving of the mill while their homes were being consumed. This was less than 80 miles away from where I am holding these meetings. I wish that all were as loyal to God as these to their employers.

As I purpose on visiting a number of places in the northwest before returning to Arizona I had planned to close meeting on August 28th. This evening brought a full house. After I had dismissed, a young member of the Presbyterian church, who had shown interest by his regular attendance, called the audience to order, and proposed a collection. With thanks, while he engaged in passing the hat I told them that while I did not need as much help as anybody, I needed it just as much, that with all of my years of work I had never asked for a collection, but this would be thankfully received. It amounted to four dollars.

With the hand shakings numbers asked me to return for more meetings. This I may do on my way to Arizona. I hope to be able to engage in work in Southern Oregon and through California in making that trip and will purpose on corresponding with those that are interested in my work. Address me in care of Raphael Skeels, Falls City, Oregon.

Obituary.

Samuel H. Aley was born in Pennsylvania, June 27, 1855, died at Burr Oak, Indiana, September 4, 1910, after an illness of less than twenty-four hours.

He was married to Anna Friend January 28, 1885. His wife and three daughters survive him, Ina's, at home, and Mrs. Jacob VanDerweele and Mrs. Clarence Woods. His mother, his sister, Mrs Landry, and two brothers, David and William also survive him.

At the time of his death he was Post Master at Burr Oak, having held the position for eight years. Before this he had been a car-inspector on the railroad.

There are four grand-sons, three in the VanDerweele family, and one, named for him, in the Woods family.

He was a kind and loving husband and father.

The funeral was held at Burr Oak from the Church of God, of which the wife and all three daughters are members. Services held by Brothers Willey, Van Vactor and the writer.

JOSEPH W. WILLIAMS.

D. L. Moody on Tobacco.

They had agreed to meet at the Tremont Hotel, and at the appointed hour Mr. Moody went down to meet Mr. Wm. Reynolds. They were not very well acquainted. Mr. Moody walked quickly around the office, and not discovering Mr. Reynolds was about to walk out, when Mr. Reynolds jumped up and said:

"Hello, Moody, didn't you see me?"

"No," said Mr. Moody. "I did'nt expect to find you here smoking a cigar."

"You don't see anything wrong in smoking a cigar, do you?" asked Mr. Reynolds.

"No," said Mr. Moody, "but you and I are representatives of the Lord Jesus Christ. Suppose I had come to meet the Lord Jesus here by appointment, do you think I would have found him smoking?"

"No" said Mr. Reynolds; and that was the last cigar he ever smoked.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him onto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Report of Sunday School.

August 28, 1910, through the kindness of our loving heavenly Father who is constantly showering blessings upon his children, we the Sunday Schools of the Churches of God in Iowa are once more permitted to meet together upon our beautiful camp ground to study together the word of God as found in Matt. xxi: 1-17.

After a short song service, Eva L. Stearns, State Superintendent opened up the Study by having the lesson read responsively: prayer by A. J. Eychaner, closing by school repeating the Lord's prayer. The school was then divided into four classes as follows:—Bible Class taught by Bro. Jeffreys of Illinois; Second Bible Class taught by Bro. Adams of Omaha, Neb.; Young People taught by Bro. Jos. Williams of Ind.; Primary Class taught by Susie Todd, Lake Mills, Ia. Total number present 107. Total collection $5.55. General review of lesson as follows. Sister Todd gave illustrated lesson story and said always use familiar objects to illustrate with, that the pupils may easily comprehend the truths taught. Teach simple fact relying on the trust of the young minds to accept.

Bro. Adams took up the prophecies of the lesson from Zech. ix: 9. He said that Jesus no doubt was guided as much by his knowledge of the prophecies as by direct revelation; that teachers should never teach doubt on lesson but obliterate doubt as far as possible by teaching absolute fact. To teach faith, what we believe based on undisputed evidence, especially the evidence of the fulfilled prophecies; Christ's death, burial, and resurrection, being one of the main ones to establish the prophecies. Teach that each prophecy will be fulfilled in its appointed time.

Brother Williams then proceeded to take up the practical side of the lesson saying that the Jews were looking for a king and not a Savior, not rightly applying the prophecies regarding him and therefore rejected him. He said teachers should teath our need of a Savior, as the only way to cure doubt in the mind of the pupil is to make them realize their need of a Savior. Short talks on the need of the Sunday School brought out many good thoughts. The State Superintendent said we should teach the important things in each lesson. First.—Teach knowledge or story of lesson to primary class. Second—Teach Faith to intermediate classes, theirs being the questioning age when you must show convincing evidence. Third—having taught knowledge and faith, now teach works, service to older classes.

Brother Underwood of Indiana said a successful S. S. depends largely on a thoroughly prepared teacher, who should teach self sacrifice as the only practical way of, in a measure, showing our appreciation of Christ's sacrifice. He advocated the study of the International Lessons, as a uniformity of lessons is desirable, in order that pupils may meet others on common ground.

Sister Railsback of Indiana said she believed the Sunday School had saved their home church, should teach practical truth.

Brother Patrick of Minnesota said the children are the foundations of our future, hence the importance of the Sunday School in teaching God's truth.

Bring young people to a thorough knowledge of the Bible, that they may be able to stand against the opposition of the world.

Brother Robison of Ohio said the Sunday School must be made attractive, strong that the pupil may feel drawn and interested, said the Sunday School was the strongest influence in the Church—the main factor in bringing members into the Church.

Brother Huggins of Ohio said we the older members must realize that the sands of our time is nearly run, and the church must be recruited by the Sunday School pupils. Said the most successful plan in their Sunday School has been having each pupil teach their class in turn.

Brother Eychaner of Iowa said he was in favor of the Sunday School because the Bible, the best book in the world was taught there. He said that the Superintendent should fully understand the needs of each class both collectively and separately, said the most successful teacher is the one who makes the pupil think; recommended object teaching.

Brother Morse of Missouri said he did not object to the International Lesson if taught from the Bible, but was very much opposed to the use of the lesson helps as got up by the International Association. He strongly recommended our getting up lesson helps of our own.

Announcement.

By invitation of the Argos Church the Annual October Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Argos, Ind. Date of meeting and Program will be published later. This is the first of our Conference year. All the arrangements for the coming year's work for the Master in our State are made at this meeting. I hope all the Churches will be represented by delegates. Brethren, commence making arrangements at once to attend that we may have a good meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God of Southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah from October 9 to 16 inclusive. Program will appear later after definite arrangements have been made. We bid all welcome who may come. Anyone wishing further information may write to Lewis Weaver, Route 3, Casey, Illinois.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John C. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WANTED — Cosmopolitan Magazine requires the services of a representative in Plymouth to look after subscription renewals and to extend circulation by special methods which have proved unusually successful. Salary and commission. Previous experience desirable but not essential. Whole time or spare time. Address, with references, H. C. Campbell, Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1789 Broadway New York City.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the Seal "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

The Bible.

Hast thou ever heard
Of such a Book? the author—God himself,
The subject—God and man, salvation, life,
And death—eternal life, eternal death—
Dread words! whose meaning has no end, no bounds!
Most wondrous Book! bright candle of the Lord!
Star of eternity! the only star
By which the bark of man could navigate
The sea of life, and gain the coast of bliss
Securely; only star which rose on time,
And on its dark and troubled billows, still,
As generation, drifting swiftly by,
Successive went and came, threw a ray
Of heaven's own light, pure, to the hills of God,
The eternal hills, pointed the sinner's eye.
—Pollok.

Within this ample volume lies
The mystery of mysteries!
Happiest they of human race
To whom their God has given grace
To read, to fear, to hope, to pray,
To lift the latch, to force the way
And better had they ne'er been born
That read to doubt, or read to scorn.
—Walter Scott.

The General Conference composed of representatives of the various state or district Conferences of the United States and Canada, met as per announcement at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 29, 1910, at 9 a. m.

Meeting was called to order by O. J. Allard, and on motion of Almus Adams, O. J. Allard was made temporary Chairman. On motion of D C. Robison, A. R. Underwood was made temporary Secretary.

On call of delegates, it was found that out of fourteen states signing the call for a General Conference, the following were represented: Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas Missouri, Nebraska, Washington, Minnesota, Ohio, Iowa. Leaving Michigan, Canada, Oklahoma-Arkansas-Texas, Oregon and Kansas without representation.

The Chairman then appointed the following committees: On credentials—J. H. Morse, D C. Robison, G. E Marsh. On Rules: Joseph Williams, R. G. Huggins, A. J. Eychaner.

On motion of R. G. Huggins adjourned till 1 P. M

Met at 1 P. M. Aug. 29. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The Committee on Credentials, D C. Robison, Chairman, reported as follows: We, the committee on credentials submit the following report. We have examined the credentials of the following delegates and recommend that they be regarded as members of this body with full voting powers.

Ohio—D. C. Robison and R. G. Huggins.
Nebraska—Almus Adams and M. D. Newell
Indiana—J. H. Willey and A. R Underwood.
Missouri—J. H. Morse.
Iowa—O. J. Allard and A. J. Eychaner.
Minnesota—J. A. Patrick.
Kansas Missouri—W. L Crowe.
Washington—N D. Pichenal.
Illinois—G. Eldred Marsh.

Committee,
D. C ROBISON.
G. ELDRED MARSH.
J. H. MORSE.

The Committee on Rules, Joseph Williams, Chairman, reported as follows;

1. That the Bible be our only Guide in all our deliberations, as shown in the following and like Scriptures. Rom. xvi: 8, I Cor. xiv, Acts xv, Matt. xviii.

2. All persons present may take part in the deliberations, but only delegates shall vote.

3. All speakers limited to one address of five minutes until all have spoken who desire to speak, and limited to two addresses on any one subject.

4 It is suggested by your committee that no question of character of members, or doctrines of the Scriptures, shall be decided by a vote of the delegates.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS
A J EYCHANER.
ROBT. G HUGGINS.

Motion by N. D. Pichenal that each rule be taken up separately. Carried.

Motion by A J Eychaner that rule 1 be adopted. Carried.

Motion by R. G. Huggins that rule 2 be adopted. Carried.

Motion by A J. Eychaner that rule 3 be adopted.

Almus Adams moved to amend by inserting that the leader in a discussion shall be allowed to present his subject, and that the one opening the discussion shall have 15 minutes. Carried.

Original motion then put and carried.

Motion by Almus Adams to strike out Rule 4

Speech by A. J Eychaner against making man-made creed.

Almus Adams states that if any here want to make a human creed, he wishes to withdraw, as he does not want such.

Motion of Almus Adams to strike out rule 4 then put and carried.

Almus Adams presents the following: "That there can be no representation of individual churches, from states having delegates or otherwise. That all delegates must vote one way or the other."

Motion by D. C. Robison that same be adopted.

O J. Allard placed Jos. Williams in chair and spoke favoring representatives of the individual churches having a voice.

General discussion then followed.

O J. Allard resumed the chair and motion to adopt the rules presented by Almus Adams was carried.

Motion by Almus Adams that O J Allard be made permanent chairman of this present assembly. Carried.

Motion by J. A. Patrick that A. R. Underwood be chosen permanent Secretary. Carried.

Motion by N. D. Pichenal that we vote by Conferences—each Conference being allowed two votes. Carried.

Adjourned till 3 P. M.

Met at 3 P. M., Aug 29.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

W. S. Tomlinson not being present, his place on the programme was taken by D. C. Robison, who proceeded to read the following paper:

OUR NEEDS AS A PEOPLE.

This question to my mind is one of vital importance. Our needs signify a move that will greatly strengthen our position. We need to be more fully developed along the line of the seven Christian graces given by the apostle Peter, beginning with courage and ending with love. We should strive to perfect ourselves along this line. We will never as a people be strong enough to vanquish the enemy until we have developed ourselves individually. The body of Christ is made up of one supreme head, the Christ, and an innumerable number of single units. The head, the Christ, has been perfected and Jehovah has declared him to be his Son by raising him from the dead The oath was recorded that God would not leave his soul in hades nor suffer his holy one to see corruption. For this reason it was not possible that he should be holden of death. This was the result of perfect obedience. Jesus said that, "I always do the things that please my heavenly Father." Through obedience and suffering he was made perfect. Our life is a life of trial and if we are raised from the dead as was our Head it will be because we have had the faith of God and developed a perfect character. It was through this perfect faith and character that Abraham was counted righteous. With these few preliminary suggestions I wish to state that our greatest needs lie in a unity of faith and a unity of action. "Without the faith it is impossible to please God," for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.' Faith in the abstract will not remove our sins and make us the sons and daughters of Jehovah. We may believe that God is the Creator of all things and reject his purpose concerning the ages. To become a part of his purpose and to be privileged to assist in the future we must acquaint ourselves with Jehovah and his plans. This signifies that our faith must be the faith of God, and not just faith in God. This requires that we possess a specific faith. To do this we must study to show ourselves approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth. Again we are admonished to hold fast the form of sound words which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Jesus Christ. The apostle's admonition to the Corinthian church was, Now I beseech you brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you' but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry (tillage marg.) ye are God's building. For other foundations can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus the Christ."

Again he sa to the Ephesian church, "We a. his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in him." These admoniti ns bring us to this conclusion, that without a unity of faith our labors will be in vain.

Many object to a prescribed faith, saying that it is too narrow. The faith of God is certainly broad enough for all his loving children. "The foundation of God standeth steady having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his." Have we wisdom enough to see Jehovah's purpose in regard to the earth and man? This purpose has been revealed in the prophetic Word as it is written that, No prophecy of Scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old times by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by Holy Spirit. Dare you say that any man has a right to interpret Jehovah's Word to suit his individual opinion? For my part I cannot. Let Jehovah be his own interpreter. Let it be as it was in the days of old as recorded in Nehemiah. When the book of the law was recovered it was read to the people. So they read in the book in the law of God distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading. Let us imitate them and read the law of the Spirit of Life, that all who hear our reading may understand it.

I would not consider this part of my paper complete if I did not outline this faith as I have gleaned it from the fields so richly strewn. It was written by the prophet Moses unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people. We all agree as to this prophet. He it was who went throughout all Judea preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God. This is the good news concerning the restoration to Israel of the kingdom of David which was overturned in the days of that wicked prince of Israel. Since that time David's throne has been in an overturned condition.

This is the gospel that Jesus sent his apostles out to preach to the whole world. Those who believed and were baptized will be saved. After his ascension his apostles were fully qualified as his witnesses through the baptism of the Holy Spirit to preach this gospel. On the day of Pentecost Peter preached it when he declared that God raised Jesus the Christ from the dead to sit on David's throne.

In Acts viii it is recorded that Philip went down into Samaria and preached to them the Word. It is further stated that he preached Christ unto them. Again we read that when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ they were baptized both men and women. From these Scriptures we can I am sure arrive at a unity of faith. If we as a people stand upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone there can be no schisms among us. The gospel as they briefly outline it is broad enough for all.

It has been our purpose in the above to merely outline what we understand to be the faith of God upon which we must all agree. If we reject the future restoration of fleshly Israel to their land, we reject the gospel. Israel restored, Christ the kingdom to which will be added the dominion and its greatness. Israel brought under the rod, and into the bond of the covenant will be Jehovah's battle ax. This will constitute the mustard seed kingdom that is to fill the whole earth. It will be the stone cut out of the mountain without hands. It will grind the metalic image to powder. This kingdom as organized with Israel as subjects and the Christ and the saints as rulers will possess the gates of his enemies, and through this seed shall all nations be blessed.

In accepting the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus the Christ we must reject heretical doctrines. Such doctrines as the "Human Paternity of Jesus," the Pre-existence of Christ and the keeping of the Sabbath must be rejected as unsound and unprofitable. After the addition of the 3000 to the church on Pentecost it is written that they continued steadfastly in the apostle's doctrine and fellowship, and breaking bread and prayer. If we succeed we must follow in the footsteps of the early Christians. The unity of action naturally follows that of the unity of faith. The good Father will only bless us when we act in harmony with his purpose. Jesus is today taking out of the nations a people for his name. They are selected through faith in the gospel of the Son of God, a reformation of life and baptism into the name of Jesus the Christ. This Christ body must possess the courage to reject all traditions and erroneous doctrines.

An army when once well disciplined will be directed by one Head. I well remember the condition of the northern army during the first two years of the Civil War. There were several heads. The eastern army was commanded by one general. The western army by several. During these years there was but little accomplished. The time came when the whole army was put under the command of one general. When General Grant assumed the command of the Federal forces and selected his own lieutenants the army became a mighty force. We must remember that in unity there is strength. Conceive for a moment that when Jesus the Christ comes again to this earth that there will be a division of action. The Christ will assume the supreme command and there will be a unity of action. Then and not until then will sin be crushed. It is written that when Napoleon the first planned his campaign into Italy his chief engineer said to him, You can not march your army across the Alps. The reply of this great general was, There are no Alps. The rugged cliffs melted before him, and his army reached the sunny land of Italy. When General Grant with an army of 150,000 men moved on toward Richmond, Va., in 1864 he said, "We will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." His plans were well matured and the army became as one mighty force under this matchless leader. When Sherman started for Atlanta his army overcame every obstacle in its way. General Sherman was its leader and the whole army marched in harmony with his orders. No body of people has ever been successful when its rank has been broken. In order that this condition may prevail, selfishness must be eliminated. There can be no pastorate of individual bodies when it has a tendency to weaken the forces that are laboring to spread the glad tidings of the kingdom of God.

State Conferences can only be parts of one general Conference. Our first thought must be for the cause in general. It is said of President Lincoln that his first work would be to save the Union. If it could be saved without slavery he would save it. If not, he would save it with slavery. Save it he must. This was the dominating thought in his mind. How beautifully we find this thought expressed by the apostle Paul in his Philippian letter, I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered loss of all things, and do count them but dross, that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith; that I may know him and the power of his resurrection and the fellowship of his sufferings being made conformable to his death; if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. In this we find the unity of faith and the unity of action beautifully blended. All things lost that he might win Christ. The apostle exhibits self-sacrifice that he might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. When we are willing to give our talents, or time and our means to the strengthening of the cause there will be no State lines. There will be no our conferences, at the expense of the cause in general. Conferences and Conference work will be arranged that the greatest good can be done. Brethren, let this thought sink deeply into every mind and let all work for the general good. Less than 10 years ago the churches of Ohio were strangers. A few at Salem labored courageously and unselfishly and called a conference to which all the churches might mingle and become spiritually strengthened. Today we are a band of loving brothers and sisters. The churches extend letters of greeting to each other during the year, and the cause of the Master has been greatly built up and strengthened.

I am pleading for the unity of action throughout the whole world. In 1 Cor xii the apostle Paul compares the Christ body to the human body. As the body is one and hath many members and all members of that one body being many, are one body; so also is Christ. By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jew or Gentile, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit. In this chapter we have illustrated individual action for the good of the whole body. "If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it not therefore of the body? If it destroys its individual usefulness it is totally destroyed. Each member as a unit is important but it must act for the building up of the whole body. Each organ of the body has a function to perform. It benefits itself individually and the whole body generally. The function of the stomach with its juices is to digest the food that it may be taken up by the absorbent vessels and changed into liquid blood or assimilated. Without these processes we could not exist. Secretion and excretion are each alike important. The heart is the engine that forces the blood to all parts of the system that each fiber may receive its strengthening food. Besides this, it has an individual circulation by which its muscles are given strength. Thus we see in the law of individual action that the whole body may be strengthened and perfected. May we all move forward with this inscribed on our banner, The Unity of Faith and the Unity of Action, is my prayer.

D. C. ROBISON.

G. E. Marsh led in the discussion, with a 15 minute talk. This was followed by a general discussion in which A. J. Eychaner spoke five times, N. D. Pichenal, O. J. Allard, W. L. Crowe, three times each, R G. Huggins, J. A. Patrick, Almus Adams twice each, P. Jeffreys, A. R. Underwood, Joseph Williams, D. C. Robison, Bro. Robbins once each.

Adjourned till 9 A. M , August 30.

Met at 9:00 A. M. August 30.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

O. J. Allard advocates that every member of the Church here be allowed to vote, believing that a mistake was made in limiting voting to delegates.

After some discussion, G. E. Marsh moved that we reconsider the rule adopted yesterday reading as follows: "That there can be no representation of individual churches from states having delegates, or otherwise." On call of delegates, 10 were in favor, 8 against. Carried.

A. J. Eychaner moved that L. E. Conner be seated as a delegate in this conference with full powers. After much discussion, with many explanations, motion was put and carried.

The next thing in order was a paper by Almus Adams on the subject, "Should we as a Church adopt a Statement of Faith and Discipline?"

A. J. Eychaner entered a protest against said paper being read.

Motion by D. C. Robison that Almus Adams be allowed to read his paper as written. Carried.

Almus Adams then proceeded to read the following paper:—

SHOULD WE AS A CHURCH ADOPT A DISCIPLINE?

In discussing the subject of, "Should we as a Church adopt a Discipline" it shall not be necessary for me to controvert any one on the point of a stated belief or Discipline, because we we all believe that. That God teaches certain things to be believed and that he has ever disciplined his people goes without saying. He corrects and chastises both for wrong doing and believing. This we all believe. Then the only difference which can arise here is, Shall we write out a statement of belief and church government or shall we use the Bible alone?

Our experience in the latter has resulted in every one having a doctrine, a psalm, some for Paul some Apollos, and some Cephas, and a few for Christ. The apostles had delivered the one faith to the church orally and they were not left alone long until the above was the result, which made it necessary for the apostles to write letters of correction, and say we have no such custom neither the Churches of God. 1 Cor. xi. 16.

It has ever been the disposition of man to wander away from the teachings of God, both as to faith and morals. Hezekiah king of Israel found it necessary in the beginning of his reign, to put out of the house of God all the abominations placed there by the former king, and did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. But no sooner had he slept with his fathers than Manasseh his successor restored all the evils of the former kings. So when Josiah began to reign he had all the evils of the fifty-five years of his reign to contend with. He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left. This is said many times of those who did right and pleased God; but now we are asked to step to the right in order to be of a loving disposition and accept the teachings of those we feel sure is contrary to God's Word, and we have no sooner done this when we are asked to step to the left and with a smile of welcome acknowledge another brother with an entirely different doctrine, and about the time we reflect upon our loveliness of disposition in admitting these brethren unshackled and unfettered in every way, we hear a noise and upon investigation find those brethren whom we have taken into the fold, in a heated controversy, and presently love has turned to hatred and we who invited the conflict are soon involved, and when the smoke has cleared away and we look over the battle-ground strewn with the dead and mortally wounded can we still say, and be reasonable, "How lovely." This is not an imaginary nor overdrawn picture. Many of these battlegrounds exist, and the relics of the conflict are in evidence.

The right thing to have done and to do is to turn neither to the right hand or to the left. The moment we begin to dodge this way and that way to please every one we please no one, and ruin is the unavoidable result.

God told Saul what to do, and he

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 14, 1910.

UNDER dated of September 9, 1910, Brother John L. Wince says, "Since the weather became cooler, my case shows some signs of improvement, though I am confined to my bed a good part of the time, not able to put on my clothing, or to get out of doors. Am longing for our Savior to come." This was dictated by Brother Wince and written by his wife, so it tells just how weak he is. May the Lord soon come and give the sick health once more.

WE realize that the report of the General Conference at Waterloo, Ia., is lengthy, but decided to give it in full in one issue, that all might have it in exact order as the meetings were held. This will enable each one to form an idea of what was done, as we presume the outcome was watched by many.

WE wish to call special attention to one item in the report of the General Conference. In regard to the "Articles of Faith" that were written up, these were not adopted by the Conference. The object of the motion was to have something that could be taken home to the several localities represented, that the brotherhood might sanction, add to, or cull out—the whole subject to be taken up for further discussion at a future meeting a year hence. Let no one get the idea that a "Creed" was made and passed. What was done was simply suggestive—to be thought over, and if deemed best, decided in the future.

THE honor of being Secretary of the Waterloo General Conference fell to the lot of your servant, the scribe, and in reporting the proceedings we have endeavored to give record of all that was done as accurately as possible. During the meeting there was much talk pro and con, that does not enter into the report, believing as we do that some of the speakers would not wish their exact words printed. In writing this report, we have endeavored to treat every one who took part fairly, and with no bias of mind. Any one who ever reported such a meeting, (if such a one was ever held before), we feel sure understands the task, and will sympathize. If any one feels aggrieved at any words in the report as given, we are ready to apologize, assuring each that no unfairness is intended.

Report of Labor.

September 6th, B. W. Woodward returned from an eleven days meeting, held in East Hinton, Mecosta Co., where several intelligent people accepted the gospel truths presented to them. George Scutt and Fannie Sweet were added to the body of Christ by baptism, two very intelligent candidates. Others had been previously immersed and needed more time to study, before seeing the necessity of re-baptism. The Bible was studied and Bible questions asked as never before in this neighborhood. I began meetings at this place just before our June Conference, and left them in the midst of much interest with the promise of returning as soon as possible. But hindrances came, and they had no more meetings until the Elder went there Aug. 27th. Just before the Coats Grove Bible school and Conference, two very urgent letters came from them for meetings immediately. What should we do? We had not missed a Conference in Michigan but once in 29 years, was it a duty to miss this one? We thought, and talked, and finally decided more good could be done there than at Coats Grove, where our faithful Bro. Lindsay was instructing them. So I gladly "stayed by the stuff" at home, while he responed to the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us." I was so glad to see him go to this work again after two years spent at home from ill health. The old time enthusiasm took possession of him as the interest increased, and he hopes to be able to go again this fall.

The Grange Hall, four miles from place of meeting was closed that all might attend the meeting. The Ladies' Aid Society began the church building here. They have it enclosed, an organ paid for, and now with the help of the good men of the place are about ready to finish the house. The interest in the gospel work here indue to the earnest, enthusatic words of Bro. and Sister Benjamin Cummings in the Sunday school and community. May the good work go on is our prayer.

Report of General Conference.

invited certain ruin when he turned aside to please the people. God said to Moses when about to make the tabernacle, "See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern showed in the Mount." In perfect keeping with this Paul says "As many as walk according to this rule."

In the face of this how idle to talk of brotherly love and liberty which grants to every one the right to make his own rule and cut his own pattern. Can we ignore the lesson taught by the above and still hope to be right with God? No one is more against human discipline and man made creeds than I, but on the other hand I am just as firm in the belief that God has set principles that must be adhered to, and that we cannot deviate from. Is there an example in God's Word where any one deviated from his command and went unpunished?

When Josiah sent a man to take an accounting of the silver given to repair the house of God, they found the Book of the Law, and when it was brought and read to the king he rent his clothes. It was evident to him that they were not living up to the requirements of this Book of the Law found in the house of the Lord. "Then the king gathered unto him all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem, (similar to this gathering) and the king went up into the house of God (which is now the church) and all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with him and the priests and prophets and all the people, both small and great, and he read in their ears all the words of the Book of the Covenant which was found in the house of the Lord, and the king stood by a pillar (the church is the pillar and ground of the truth and we must stand by that) and made a covenant before the Lord to walk after the Lord and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and all his statutes with all their heart and with all their soul to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book and all the people stood to the covenant." 2 Kings xxiii. 1-3. These people had the Book of the Law but they made a covenant agreeing to keep what was written in the Book of the Law of God. This was preparatory to the next step when the priests of the first and second order and door keepers were commanded to bring out the vessels of Baal, and they were burned in the field outside of Jerusalem.

Here was a general house-cleaning. The house of God here was filled up with all kinds of vessels made for Baal. And in the church, the house of the Lord, we are vessels meet for the Master's use, and as these vessels made for Baal were burned out in the field, must we allow the natural man to run his course or burn out in the world, and not drag him into the church. And this is just what the apostle meant when he said, "For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles when we walked in lasciviousness, lust, excess of wine, revelings, banquetings and abominable idolatries." 1 Peter iv. 3.

Here we are taught that while in the world we carry out the above principles, the natural man must be burned in the field (the world) and come in the church a new man. The two first verses of the above Scripture says "For as much then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind. For he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin, that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men; but to the will of God." To suffer in the flesh we learn here is to put down the natural inclinations, and the suffering is in proportion to our love for worldly things.

The church should see then, as the above Scripture teaches, that worldliness be kept out. The church should have the courage to say to those coming in, If you hav'nt finished sowing your wild oats you must stay in the world where you have plenty of ground for it is occupied in here. Could any one doubt in the light of the above Scripture that it would be wrong in the sight of God for us to adopt a discipline and agree to clean house and keep it clean. Worldliness as well as matters of faith at first is confined to individuals, but if let go long enough it will finally be adopted by the church. To illustrate, young people will sometimes ask, Does the church allow dancing? This is asked by those only who like perhaps above all other worldly things, to dance, and if they are admitted with that desire still alive and nothing particularly against it, and no one to enforce it if there was, we finally have a good many with that inclination, dancing, and then the church is compelled to adopt it or lose the number. This is just where the M. E. people are today. They are trying to change their discipline to allow dancing because they have so many individuals who love to dance and they dont want to lose them. And just as soon as the church becomes worldly enough as a whole, which will be about three years hence, at their next General Conference they will adopt it. Thus it is easy to see how the church becomes worldly.

The church needs faithful men and women to stand at the door to guard her purity. In 2 Kings xxiii, 4, we learn that the king commanded the high priest and the priests of the second order and the door-keepers to bring out the vessels made for Baal. If the door-keepers and priests had done their duty in the first place these things would not have gotten in there. What is a door-keeper for if not to guard against invasion? You can't get into the show without a ticket unless the door-keeper is off duty. You can't get into the lodge without the pass-word. The door-keepers to these institutions are armed with authority that guards their interests. The door-keeper of the church must be armed likewise, with proper authority to safeguard her interests. Whenever we take the door-keepers off duty, or, if on duty tell them not to question those entering too closely, but to proclaim liberty, you will soon discover the church filled with all kinds of faiths (instead of one) and morals, and the ruin of the church is certain.

The church needs articles of faith and discipline for another reason, to guard against the insincere. This class of people were in in the days of Paul, and cannot be confined to that time alone. In Phil. i. 15, 16 we read, "Some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife, and some also of good will, the one preach Christ of contention not sincerely, supposing to add afflictions to my bonds."

In this same chapter, verse 27, Paul says, "Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you or else be absent I may hear of your affairs that ye stand fast in one spirit with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel." This answers the question of the adoption of a discipline. In the next chapter he says, "If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the spirit, if any bowels of mercies, if their be any of these (then listen) fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like minded, having the same love, being of one accord of one mind."

Liberty of thought and action will never fulfill the above Scripture. In order to fulfill it we must agree to be and do just what it says, and that can't be by inviting differences. It is idle to argue such. In the next verse Paul says, "Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory, but in lowliness of mind." I must be lowly enough in mind to submit to God's ways and get rid of self entirely.

In adopting a discipline we can avoid foolish questions and genealogies and contentions and strivings about the law, and so fulfill the Scriptures, but on the other hand if we listen to those who say that such things are the life of the church, we must ignore this Scripture and the apostle adds "that such is unprofitable and vain." Titus iii. 9, 11.

In a discipline we should cite the church to the above Scripture, making it a rule of the church. Who could object but he who had it in his heart to contend about these very things? Yes, we should adopt a discipline and articles of faith making it obligatory upon the church to enforce the rules of Scripture.

In conclusion we ask, What is the cause of this move? The answer we think is easy. That there has been a marked improvement spiritually in the church the past few years is apparent to all, and the more spiritual we become the more abhorrent will the fleshly be, and as we get our spiritual eyes open the more we will behold the evil that exists among us, and the greater the desire to see it eliminated. So we believe the spirit of Christ is in the move. Let us say to the world what we stand for as to faith and morals, and enforce the standard, become a peculiar people denouncing the spirit of the world and walk in the spirit of Christ. The fruits of the Spirit grow on but one tree, that tree must be rooted and grounded in the truth, hence James says in iii. 12, "Can a fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries?" Paul says to the Romans that if the root be holy so are the branches, so he continues and says the root bears the branches, not the branches the root. To the Colossians he says, "rooted and built up in him and stablished in the faith as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving. We must have the faith before we can be rooted in, stablished in it, and as there is but one faith, that is the one to be rooted in, and not to be moved away from, and to be established in.

But why multiply, everything that is of God argues for definite faith and discipline, and to stand with God we must contend for unity of faith and action.

ALMUS ADAMS.

A. J. Eychaner led the discussion with a fifteen minute speech, setting forth his objections, and stating that he should fight to the last against any written statement, even to the copying texts of Scripture in Bible language, as their selection would be of man, and therefore objectionable to him. After a number of others had spoken, the noon hour having arrived adjourned to meet at 1:00 P. M.

Met at 1:00 P. M. Aug. 30.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Unfinished business was stated as the order of the hour, and the chairman called up the further discussion of the paper read by Almus Adams.

The discussion of this paper was taken up and the following brethren made speeches, R. Chown and Bro. Robbins one each, Jos. Williams, R. G. Huggins, N. D. Titchenal, D. C. Robison, J. A. Patrick, O. J. Allard, twice each, W. L. Crowe three times, A. J. Eychaner and L. E. Conner four times each. Discussion closed by Almus Adams with a fifteen minute speech.

Adjourned till 3:00 P. M.

Met again at 3:00 P. M. Aug. 30.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The next thing on the programme was a paper by A. J. Eychaner entitled "What constitutes Church Discipline?" Instead of preparing a paper setting forth his views on the subject assigned, he arose and said, "The method of getting rid of error and sin by the means and the rules or laws laid down in the Bible."

Discussion of A. J. Eychaner's paper was to be opened by Almus Adams, and of course this action of A. J. Eychaner's would either block discussion, or force Almus Adams to take the initiative and outline the subject. This he proceeded to do in a fifteen minute speech, which was followed by short talks by Bros. Conner, Crowe, Williams, Titchenal, Huggins, Allard, Adams, Robison and Eychaner.

D. C. Robison then moved that we dispense with further reading of papers, and proceed with a settlement of the question at issue. That we try and get at a plan to do something definite. Carried.

Almus Adams and R. G. Huggins asked to be allowed to retire for consultation. Granted.

D. C. Robison moved to settle the expenses of delegates as suggested by the call,—put total expenses of all together, and each Conference then pay an equal share of the sum. N. D. Titchenal asked that as he had been in the east for some time and it would be impossible to give his exact expense, that the Washington Conference be left out of the arrangement. With this exception, the motion was carried.

Almus Adams now presents a resolution the exact wording of which cannot be given, as it was not handed to the Secretary's desk. The substance is this: That the Church of God does not stand for the Human Paternity of Jesus theory, for keeping of the Seventh day Sabbath, nor for the pre-existence of Christ theory, but that any action or discipline against those who do so hold, be withheld for a year. It was explained that those holding such ideas be given time to present their views at this meeting, and during the coming year, and at the next Annual meeting, that they might thus have full opportunity to get their theories before the brotherhood.

This was put in the form of a motion, and often free discussion, on call of Conference nine delegates were against, eight in favor, and two refused to vote, and the motion was declared lost.

J. H. Willey then moved that a declaration of the principles of our faith be written up, the same to be given to each delegate to take home to their several churches, and submitted for their approval, to be acted on at the next general Conference a year hence. Carried. The chair appointed N. D. Titchenal, J. H. Willey and Almus Adams on such committee, to report same at evening session.

Adjourned till 7:30 P. M.

Met at 7:30 P. M. Aug. 30.

ARTICLES OF FAITH.

WE BELIEVE: 1. In one God who is the maker of heaven and earth. Psa cxlvi 5, 6, and all things therein. Gen i 1; Isa xl 28; 1 Cor viii 6; Gal iii 20; Heb iii 4; 1 Tim ii 5; John i 3.

2. That Christ has the right to the literal throne of David, and at his second coming, will sit thereon to rule the world, and over the house of Jacob forever. Luke i 30 to 33; Isa ix 6 to 7.

3. The literal return of the Jews to the land of Palestine. Jer xxxi: Ezek xxxvi 9, 11, 22, 24; Acts i 6, 8. The re-establishment of the kingdom of Israel.

4. That man is wholly mortal, and immortality is obtained only through Christ, and put on at the resurrection. Rom ii 6, 7; Rom viii 11; 1 Cor xv 53, 54; 1 Tim vi 13 to 16; 2 Tim i 9, 10.

5. In the literal resurrection of the dead to a life of everlasting happiness, with Christ upon his throne. Job xix 26; Psa xvii 15; Isa xxvi 19; Isa xxxv 10; Dan xii 2; Luke xiv 14; John v 28, 29; John xi 23; Acts iv 2; xxiv 15; xxvi 8; Rom vi 5, 8, 11; Col iii 34; 1 Thes iv 15, 16.

6. The Church, the bride of Christ, will rule the world jointly with him on David's throne. Eph iii 5; Rom viii 16, 17; Luke i 31, 33.

7. The earth will be the final and eternal home of the saints. Psa xxxvii 9, 11, 29, 34; Prov ii 21; Prov x 30; xi 31; Zech xiv 9; Matt v 5.

8. In baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. Acts ii 38; Rom vi 3, 4; Luke xxiv 46, 47; Col ii 12.

9. In the second personal appearing of Christ at which time will be the restitution of all things. Dan vii 13 to 22; Matt xxv 31; Acts i 9, 11; Heb ix 28; John xiv 3; Acts iii 20; 2 Thes ii 1; 1 Thes i 10; ii 19; iii 13; iv 13, 17; Rev xxii 12.

10. The Law was done away in Christ, and the law of faith established, in which we stand. Rom x 4; viii 1, 4; vii 1, 4; Gal iii 11, 12.

11. In the promises made of God unto the fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, as to our future inheritance, and to David as to rule and kingdom. Gal iii 8, 16, 29; Acts xxvi 6, 7; Luke i 30, 33; Acts ii 29, 31.

12. In the restitution of all things spoken of by the mouth of all the holy prophets, which includes restoration of life, and the earth from under the curse. Acts iii 19, 21; John vi 35; Rom v 17; Rev xxii 3.

13. And as a pre-requisite to salvation, a holy and righteous life. Rom vi 22; Gal v 22, 26; 2 Cor vii 1; Heb xii 10, 14.

14. The Bible to be the only rule for our faith and practice. John iii 30; Isa lxvi 2; 2 Cor x 13; Gal vi 16.

15. The Bible to be the only true Word of God. Mark xvi 20; Col i 25; Titus i 2, 3; John xvii 6; John xiv 17.

16. In the final destruction of the incorrigible wicked. Mal iv 13; Psa xxxvii 10 to 20; Rom vi 23.

A. J. Eychaner objected to the use of the word "coming" in article 9, and with the consent of the committee it was changed to "appearing."

Moved by R. G. Huggins that the report of the committee be accepted. On call of Conference delegates Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska, Washington and Ohio voted two each and Iowa one in favor, making eleven for the motion. Kansas-Missouri, Minnesota two each, Iowa and the Church represented by L. E. Conner each one, making six against. The motion was declared carried eleven to six.

(On Sept. 2, O. Eldred Marsh, mailed at Waterloo, Iowa, a letter stating that he was absent at this meeting, so did not vote, but wishes "Illinois to go on record against it." The result is not changed by this action of the Illinois representative.)

Moved by Almus Adams that the question of expenses for this Conference be reconsidered. Carried.

Moved by Almus Adams that each state bear its own expenses, and relieve Iowa from the burden of the delegates' expenses. Carried.

Moved by J. H. Willey that we elect officers for the following year. Carried.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that we nominate officers by acclamation. Carried.

J. H. Willey and O. J. Allard were nominated for President.

Moved by J. A. Patrick that we elect President by ballot. Carried.

Nineteen votes were cast, of which J. H. Willey received eleven, and O. J. Allard eight.

Moved by G. E. Marsh that the vote for J. H. Willey be made unanimous. Carried.

O. J. Allard was nominated for Secretary, and there being no opposition, the entire vote was cast for him, and he was declared elected Secretary.

J. H. Morse was nominated for Vice-President, and there being no opposition, the Secretary cast the entire vote, and J. H. Morse was declared elected Vice-President.

P. Jeffreys was nominated for Treasurer, and on motion the Secretary cast the entire vote for him, and P. Jeffreys was declared elected Treasurer.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that the time and place of meeting for the next General Conference be left to the discretion of the Conference Board. Carried.

Invitations were extended by Brother Conner representing his Church in Cleveland, Ohio, Brothers Tichenal of Washington, Southwick of California, Eychaner of Florida, Adams of Nebraska, Patrick of Minnesota, and the Iowa Conference.

Moved by J. A. Patrick that each Conference represented be requested to pay $5.00 into the General Treasury, as a sinking fund for the work of the coming year. Carried.

L. E. Conner presented the matter of placing a small monument over the grave of Benjamin Wilson, and a collection was taken amounting to $31. 25.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that a rising vote of thanks be given to the Iowa Conference for their hospitality. Carried.

Moved by N. D. Tichenal that a vote of thanks be given to the ladies and "mothers in Israel" for their kindness and service in the dining-hall. Carried.

After short talks by Brothers Willey, Conner, Adams, Eychaner, Crowe and Huggins, motion was made to adjourn to the call of the Conference Board.

The Sneer.

"There are some things," says a thoughtful writer, "that exert an immense power in the world without seeming to have anything in themselves to warrant it. The effect seems disproportionate to the cause. We see changes wrought in people's plans and conduct, important enough to have sprung from some weighty reason, and when we trace them back we find them produced by something so petty and trivial that we can hardly realize the connection. Such an influence in the human life is the sneer. In itself it is insignificant and worthless. It has in it neither argument nor reason, it appeals neither to the authority of long-tried usage nor to the conviction of a new-found truth. It contains neither dignity, sincerity, nor sympathy. It is founded on no serious regard for right conduct, nor righteous displeasure against misdoing; it is, indeed, utterly destitute of a single benevolent emotion or kindly desire."

No one can answer a sneer, or argue with a sneerer. A sneer is beyond the reach of reason or the realm of conviction, and yet how many dare not face a sneer, how many are pierced by it as by an arrow. Satan is often pictured with a sneer upon his face. His sneering children may claim a family likeness.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Just a few lines to tell you that on Saturday, September 3, I baptized into the "all-saving name" Mrs. Catherine G. Wilson of Straitor, Ill. She is a sister to Brother Benjamin Kaufman, and Sister Wilson will soon be 94 years old. She was given the right hand of fellowship at the breaking of bread by the Springfield Church on Sunday morning, Sept. 4, and may this dear sister ever prove faithful and have an abundant entrance into the Kingdom of God when Jesus comes.

Your Brother in the Blessed Hope,
DAVID F. BECK.

Israel's Return.

The scattered tribes of Israel's land,
Will gathered be again;
They'll gathered be to Palestine,
From suffering and from pain.

God scattered them to every land,
And punished them for sin;
But he will bring them back again,
When righteousness comes in.

He'll gather them from every land
Beneath the setting sun,
And gathered to the wilderness
Then rebels there'll be none.

He'll purge out all the wicked ones,
As in the days of old;
He'll bring them back to Israel's land,
And place them in the fold.

The righteous King will rule the earth,
And Christ's immortal reign;
The rebels of the world what God requires,
For their eternal gain.

Acts Chapter One.

For us to read over the account of their action in the first chapter of Acts, and then say that it was right, or that it was not right, would be highly unjust to them, since it would be but our own opinion, and the apostle's opinion would be equally as good at least, as they, at that time had been given a measure of the Spirit by Jesus. See John xx; 22, 23.

We can only look at some of the facts and evidence on both sides and then be careful to follow what is written.

Evidence favoring the thought that the apostles did not do right:

1. Jesus himself had been with the eleven disciples forty days since the resurrection and since Judas' death, and appointed no one to take Judas' place.

2. The Apostles had received no commission from Jesus to appoint one in Judas' place.

3. The meeting and appointment took place before the disciples had received the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost (according to the writing of the book of Acts).

4. There is no record of Matthias continuing as a witness, as we are told nothing more about him.

5. The disciples took it upon themselves to make their own appointment, whereas God may have chosen another apostle, and this would partly be substantiated by what Paul says in Gal. i: 1. Writing to the Galatian brethren, he begins, "Paul, an apostle, (not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead.)"

Evidence favoring the thought that the apostles did do right:

1. The apostles endeavored to follow what was written in the Prophets, see Psalms cix; 8. "Let his days be few, and let another take his office," and no time being stated.

2. If Peter and the apostles before 120 brethren gathered together made a serious mistake in appointing one an apostle, and their action is recorded with the inspired writing of God—and then left to its readers without a word of God's disapproval; it would be recorded to no profit to those who read it.

3. In Acts ii: 1, 3 and 4 we read: "And when the days of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled the house where they were sitting; And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them."

Notice it does not say the eleven as in nearly every instance of their meeting together with Jesus. If, (of the then supposed to be twelve apostles by the brethren) only eleven met together, and only eleven were recognized by God and given the power of the Holy Spirit, the writer not only omitted telling us of the fact that Matthias was not recognized, but carries a wrong impression by saying "they were all with one accord in one place," and "there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them." 3rd verse.

4. The apostles had met together and made this appointment before the day of Pentecost, but remember Jesus promise to them was: that he would go away, but that he would send them the comforter, which should guide them into all truth, and the promise of the Holy Spirit made afterward was for an entirely different purpose, namely: "to receive power, and to be witnesses unto Jesus both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and to the uttermost parts of the earth," and was in no way a promise to tell them to do right or wrong; they must work out their own character as before.

5. Paul was not only an apostle, or one of the apostles, but was one of the highest honor, and called to be an apostle by the Lord for a special work which we all know was well carried out; but this will not bear at all on the real question, simply the fact of what brought about the statement in Gal. i; 1. "That he was an apostle not of men, neither by men, but by Jesus Christ." If we will read the account of Paul's missionary journeys and of the churches he founded, we would find the condition among the Galatians then troubling Paul was false teachers, who, going from Jerusalem, said that they must be circumcised to be saved, and that Paul's teaching was not right, that he was rightfully an apostle as he had not been sent from Jerusalem and the other apostles, and Paul's letter was partly to correct this false impression given.

6. Paul himself in 1 Cor. xv; 5, speaking of Christ after his resurrection, "And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve." "After that he was seen of James, then of all the apostles." "And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time." "For I am the least of the apostles," etc.

Now to sum up the account: This meeting took place shortly after the ascension of Christ, verse 15. At the assembly of about 120 brethren, ver. 14, 15, Peter being the speaker, 15th verse. The thought that prompted Peter to speak was, "This scripture must needs have been fulfilled which the Holy Spirit by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus." "For he was numbered with us and had obtained part of this ministry."

"Now this man purchased a field, with the reward of iniquity, and it was known to all the dwellers at Jerusalem, insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say the field of blood."

"For it is written in the book of Psalms, 'Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and his bishoprick let another take." 16 to 20th verse.

Jesus had been teaching his disciples before his crucifixion that it was necessary that the scripture be fulfilled in those things written concerning himself, and they had just witnessed that wonderful fulfillment, and they are about to carry on His work. Do we wonder that they said this also must be fulfilled?

Notice now that the two who were chosen were of those who had followed Jesus from the baptism of John to the day of His ascension. 21 and 23 verse. That they asked God in prayer for His guidance in what they were about to do. 24 verse. And that the purpose was "One must be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection." "That he may take part of his ministry and apostle-ship from which Judas by transgression fell." 32 and 25 ver.

"And they gave forth their lots: and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles." 26th verse.

Sunday School Lesson.

SEPT. 25, 1910.

TEMPERANCE LESSON. GALATIANS v: 15 26.

Golden Text—"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." Gal. v: 25.

If we walk in the Spirit, are led by the Spirit, we shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh. There is nothing in common between the Spirit and the flesh—they are at war with each other. The flesh tends to excesses and lawlessness, and rebels against the restraint of the Spirit. The flesh struggles for supremacy, while the Spirit prompts to holy impulses. When we submit to the guidance of the Spirit we are not under the law. We are brought out from under the dominion of the old law, and are led by them for kindly compulsion of the Holy Spirit.

We have here seventeen works of the flesh given. We can see their importance in verse 21, where we are told that they who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God. This lesson at once resolves itself into one of vital moment to every one. It tells just what practices will shut one out of the kingdom of God.

Let us see what these things are. First we have given sins that are the result of passion—adultery, fornication, uncleanliness, lasciviousness. These come when we will allow our fleshly passions to take full sway. Remember—such workings in our nature shut us out of God's Kingdom.

The next class of sins enumerated relate to religion—worship. Idolatry and witchcraft. There are many kinds of idols. Idolatry is a sin and will keep us out of the kingdom. So we must keep on the safe side and worship God alone—none other. Witchcraft too will keep us out. In this class comes spiritual manifestations, writings, rappings—all such is sorcery, and is here forbidden.

Then there comes a long list of sins against society, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings and such like. All works of the flesh—all together—each separately—able to keep the one who practices them out of the Kingdom of God.

Paul told the Corinthian brethren that, "Whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and division," they were carnal, and walked as men. While one pulled one way after some man, and another went another way after another, thus working at cross purposes, was evidence to Paul that the element of carnality—fleshliness—was not entirely eliminated. Our lesson, which is taken from a letter of Paul to a like people, teaches that "such like" things will prevent inheritance in the Kingdom of God.

Just think a little. The Kingdom of God. What sort of a place would it be, filled with drunkards and revellers, men who were full of envy, practiced witchcraft, and were unclean all through? Would it be any better than the world we live in now? If we are to live hereafter, we want it to be a better condition than now prevails. We cannot conceive of a Kingdom of God filled with such characters. Our whole conception of God's Kingdom implies a selection. All who work the works of the flesh must be taken out. Such "shall not inherit the Kingdom of God."

The next question is, Who will? Answer, Those who "walk in the Spirit." We have seen the sort of works the flesh produces. They lead to corruption and death.

Now what can we find for the Spirit? First we are given to understand that one who walks in the Spirit will bear fruit. The first fruit is love, then joy and peace. Just previous to the lesson the Apostle Paul explained to the Galatian brethren how they were called to liberty, but that this liberty must not be used in the interest of the flesh, "but by love serve one another." He goes on to tell them all the law is fulfilled in one word—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The first fruit of the Spirit is love that is manifested first in adoration of God who gave us being—then to our brother. This cuts out selfishness and all fleshly desires. With this love of God shed abroad in our hearts, by the Holy Spirit, the joy and gladness must necessarily follow, and the "peace of God that passeth knowledge" comes naturally as the next fruit.

Long suffering is named as the next fruit, and implies that there will be injuries wrought against us. Our best [illegible] will be impugned and we maligned by enemies. We must meet this with this fruit of the Spirit called "long suffering." We are told that "charity suffereth long and is kind." Gentleness must be shown—not harshness, kindness and not crustiness. Then comes the desire to do good to all men—goodness. Following this fruit of the Spirit comes faith, and this implies faithfulness, trustworthiness. Then we have meekness that does not rail back, but forbears and suffers wrong rather than make reply in kind.

Over all comes the crowning "fruit." Temperance which means self-restraint. Not alone in the matter of strong drink, but every passion and appetite, within or without must be kept in subjection.

These are fruits that grow in us when we "walk in the Spirit." The Apostle tells us that "against such there is no law." They who so walk are Christ's, for they "have crucified the flesh with the affection and lusts."

This lesson is important as a temperance lesson, because the use of strong drink renders one an easy prey to evil. It opens the door for us to work the works of the flesh, and renders us powerless to resist them. No one under such influence can inherit the Kingdom of God. This is a solemn thought. On the other hand he who bears the fruits of the Spirit, belongs to Christ, and if we be Christ's we are Abraham's seed, and so heirs of the Kingdom.

There is a choice for each one to make. Do you work the works of the flesh? Are you walking in the Spirit?

Report of Missouri Conference.

The Missouri Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus convened the evening of August 19, at Morse Mill, Mo., with a sermon by O. J. Allard on "The Faith Combined with Works." L. E. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio, and O. J. Allard of Fort Dodge, Ia., were the speakers, and we were given a great deal of choice spiritual food. Some of Brother Conner's subjects were as follows: "The Kingdom, When, Where and its Nature;" two fine sermons on "Baptism," its importance, and the danger of delay; a series of three sermons leading up to the text found in Rom. viii; 1-18, that we should grow in grace and knowledge; the principles that govern our lives (Rom. xii), explaining the demand of our lives as sacrifices, not of the sacrifice of our lives. Bro. Allard also talked to us on Rom. xii, in his sermon on the "Holy Place." Other of his subjects were: "The Faith;" "Holiness;" "A Christian's Life; Evidenced First in the Home;" and a grand sermon on the resurrection.

Having Mrs. Eva Stearns, of Ia., with us, we made the most of her willingness to help, and had her conduct several Bible lessons, giving outlines of the work covered.

On Sunday, soon after the afternoon sermon, communion was administered by Brother J. L. Winningham. After the evening services, we repaired to the river, and there, in the moonlight, Bro. Allard assisted ten persons to put on Christ by baptism. On Monday, another one signified her belief in the gospel, thus making eleven to be baptized. They were: A. M. Barrows, Vineland, Mo., Mrs. Jesse Pounds, St. Louis, Mo., Gertrude Tuttle, De Soto, Mo., Mrs. Jos. Wilson, Grover Wilson, Laura Wilson, Ray Williams, James Ogle, Edward Lee, Mrs. Matilda Rogers and Lewis Rogers, all of Morse Mill, Mo.

Saturday, in business session, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; President, J. L. Winningham, Dixon, Mo.; Vice-President, J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo; Treasurer, Steward Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo.; Secretary, Sadie Morse, Valle Mines, Mo. Bros. C. McCulloch, of Morse Mill, and W. A. Cooper of Fredericktown, were elected members of the Board of Managers of the Conference. J. H. Morse was elected as the delegate from the Mo. Conference to the General Conference held at Waterloo, Ia., Aug. 29-30. The Sec'y was ordered to begin subscription fund for the next year. An amount nearly sufficient to meet the expenses of the Conference was collected on the grounds, Sunday, by Bro. James Wilson.

The Evangelistic report for the year is; four series of meetings at Blush, near Fredericktown; one by J. M. Morgan, of Oklahoma; two by J. L. Winningham, of Mo, and one by L. E Conner of Ohio; one at Valle Mines, by W. H. Wilson of Chicago; monthly services, since May, 1910, at Morse Mill, by J. L. Winningham, of Mo. Besides these, Brother Winningham has conducted other meetings and baptised several, but no report has been made of them; as yet.

So far, only the two churches, at Morse Mills, and at Blush, and a number of isolated members, have been represented in our Conference, but the number is increasing, and we will persevere for the good it is doing and may do.

The visiting brethren and those not residing in our county are as follows: L. E. Conner, Ohio; O. J. Allard, Ia.; Mrs. Eva Stearns, Iowa; Kathryn Townsend, Ill.; Lesta Hanson, Lee Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Pounds, St. Louis; W. A. Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo; J. L. Winningham, Dixon, Mo. The services were well attended, both by members and outsiders. On Sunday, there were several times as many as the church could seat.

We desire to extend our thanks to all who participated in this Conference, to the visiting brethern, and to Brothers Conner and Allard, Sister Stearns and Brother Winningham.

Submitted with Faith,

SADIE MORSE, Sec'y.

Report of the Michigan Bible School and Conference.

The school was conducted by Brother Lindsay and was a means of strength and blessing to all who attended. There were twenty-seven in attendance and we hope that the next one may be still larger. If our people would attend once, I think they would be sure to go again, for those who do attend seem to think that they get even more good from the study of the Bible than they do listening to the preaching of the Word.

Brother Lindsay spoke every night to good audiences, and was rewarded for his faithful work by having the pleasure of baptizing five young people into the all-saving Name. We welcome into our midst Brother and Sister Coats, Brother and Sister Chase, and Brother Fred Hall.

It was indeed a time of rejoicing to us all to see these dear young souls taking up the Master's work in the springtime of life. May they ever prove faithful to the trust committed to them.

Work in the Northwest.

Went from Phoenix, Arizona, to Pomona, the last of May and stayed with Brother Helms till the last of July. On August 1st went to Los Angeles, Cal. Heard Brother W. H. Wilson on the 7th. As I received letters from my son in Oregon and daughter in Arizona, advising me to go to Oregon, I left Los Angeles while Brother Wilson was in the midst of his meeting—which he felt fully able to conduct alone, and so I went to Eugene, Oregon. Brother Belshaw came to the city and took me out to his farm. I spoke to an interested congregation on August 21. Dismissed with the one meeting. Two men whom I had immersed ten years ago persuaded me that the meetings should be continued, so on Monday Sister Belshaw and I took a buggy ride through the neighborhood and published meetings to begin on the night of August 23rd. At this meeting my congregation by a showing of hands voted for a protracted meeting. I have announced that with a continued increase of health the work will hold over the next Sunday.

Saturday, August 27th. Meetings are still continued, but under circumstances that might dishearten one with a less determined spirit. The Northwest is divided into the wet and dry seasons, consisting of a rainy winter and an almost rainless summer. This year has been extremely dry. It resulted in a summer of forest fires. It is disagreeable and gloomy both day and night.

Since I have been in the Willamette valley a fire came sweeping through the timber like a race horse and burned completely the village of a sawmill. The sawmill hands fought the fire to the saving of the mill while their homes were being consumed. This was less than 30 miles away from where I am holding these meetings. I wish that all were as loyal to God as these to their employers.

As I purpose on visiting a number of places in the northwest before returning to Arizona I had planned to close meeting on August 28th. This evening brought a full house. After I had dismissed, a young member of the Presbyterian church, who had shown interest by his regular attendance, called the audience to order, and proposed a collection. With thanks, while he engaged in passing the hat I told them that while I did not need as much help as anybody, I needed it just as much, that with all of my years of work I had never asked for a collection, but this would be thankfully received. It amounted to four dollars.

With the hand shakings numbers asked me to return for more meetings. This I may do on my way to Arizona. I hope to be able to engage in work in Southern Oregon and through California in making that trip and will purpose on corresponding with those that are interested in my work. Address me in care of Raphael Skeels, Falls City, Oregon.

Obituary.

Samuel H. Aley was born in Pennsylvania, June 27, 1858, died at Burr Oak, Indiana, September 4, 1910, after an illness of less than twenty-four hours.

He was married to Anna Friend January 28, 1885. His wife and three daughters survive him, Lulu, at home, and Mrs. Jacob VanDerweele and Mrs. Clarence Woods. His mother, his sister, Mrs Lundry, and two brothers, David and William also survive him.

At the time of his death he was Post Master at Burr Oak, having held the position for eight years. Before this he had been a car-inspector on the railroad.

There are four grand-sons, three in the VanDerweele family, and one, named for him, in the Woods family.

He was a kind and loving husband and father.

The funeral was held at Burr Oak from the Church of God, of which the wife and all three daughters are members. Services held by Brothers Willey, Van Vactor and the writer.

JOSEPH W. WILLIAMS.

D. L. Moody on Tobacco.

They had agreed to meet at the Tremont Hotel, and at the appointed hour Mr. Moody went down to meet Mr. Wm. Reynolds. They were not very well acquainted. Mr. Moody walked quickly around the office, and not discovering Mr. Reynolds was about to walk out, when Mr. Reynolds jumped up and said:

"Hello, Moody, didn't you see me?"

"You don't see anything wrong in smoking a cigar, do you?" asked Mr. Reynolds.

"No," said Mr. Moody, "but you and I are representatives of the Lord Jesus Christ. Suppose I had come to meet the Lord Jesus here by appointment, do you think I would have found him smoking?"

"No" said Mr. Reynolds; and that was the last cigar he ever smoked.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Report of Sunday School.

August 28, 1910, through the kindness of our loving heavenly Father who is constantly showering blessings upon his children, we the Sunday Schools of the Churches of God in Iowa are once more permitted to meet together upon our beautiful camp ground to study together the word of God as found in Matt. xxi: 1-17.

After a short song service, Eva L. Stearns, State Superintendent opened up the Study by having the lesson read responsively; prayer by A. J. Eychaner, closing by school repeating the Lord's prayer. The school was then divided into four classes as follows:—Bible Class taught by Bro. Jeffreys of Illinois; Second Bible Class taught by Bro. Adams of Omaha, Neb.; Young People taught by Bro. Jos. Williams of Ind.: Primary Class taught by Susie Todd, Lake Mills, Ia. Total number present 107. Total collection $5 53. General review of lesson as follows. Sister Todd gave illustrated lesson story and said always use familiar objects to illustrate with, that the pupils may easily comprehend the truths taught. Teach simple fact relying on the trust of the young minds to accept.

Bro. Adams took up the prophecies of the lesson from Zech. ix: 9. He said that Jesus no doubt was guided as much by his knowledge of the prophecies as by direct revelation; that teachers should never teach doubt on lesson but obliterate doubt as far as possible by teaching absolute fact. To teach faith, what we believe based on undisputed evidence, especially the evidence of the fulfilled prophecies; Christ's death, burial, and resurrection, being one of the main ones to establish the prophecies. Teach that each prophecy will be fulfilled in its appointed time.

Brother Williams then proceeded to take up the practical side of the lesson saying that the Jews were looking for a king and not a Savior, not rightly applying the prophecies regarding him and therefore rejected him. He said teachers should teath our need of a Savior, as the only way to cure doubt in the mind of the pupil is to make them realize their need of a Savior. Short talks on the need of the Sunday School brought out many good thoughts. The State Superintendent said we should teach three important things in each lesson. First.—Teach knowledge or story of lesson to primary class. Second—Teach Faith to intermediate classes, theirs being the questioning age when you must show convincing evidence. Third—having taught knowledge and faith, now teach works, service to older classes.

Brother Underwood of Indiana said a successful S. S. depends largely on a thoroughly prepared teacher, who should teach self sacrifice as the only practical way of, in a measure, showing our appreciation of Christ's sacrifice. He advocated the study of the International Lessons, as a uniformity of lessons is desirable, in order that pupils may meet others on common ground.

Sister Railsback of Indiana said she believed the Sunday School had saved their home church, should teach practical truth.

Brother Patrick of Minnesota said the children are the foundations of our future, hence the importance of the Sunday School in teaching God's truth.

Bring young people to a thorough knowledge of the Bible, that they may be able to stand against the opposition of the world.

Brother Robison of Ohio said the Sunday School must be made attractive, strong that the pupil may feel drawn and interested, said the Sunday School was the strongest influence in the Church—the main factor in bringing members into the Church.

Brother Huggins of Ohio said we the older members must realize that the sands of our time is nearly run, and the church must be recruited by the Sunday School pupils. Said the most successful plan in their Sunday School has been having each pupil teach their class in turn.

Brother Eychaner of Iowa said he was in favor of the Sunday School because the Bible, the best book in the world was taught there. He said that the Superintendent should fully understand the needs of each class both collectively and separately, said the most successful teacher is the one who makes the pupil think; recommended object teaching.

Brother Morse of Missouri said he did not object to the International Lesson if taught from the Bible, but was very much opposed to the use of the lesson helps as got up by the International Association. He strongly recommended our getting up lesson helps of our own.

Announcement.

By invitation of the Argos Church the Annual October Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Argos, Ind. Date of meeting and Program will be published later. This is the first of our Conference year. All the arrangements for the coming year's work for the Master in our State are made at this meeting. I hope all the Churches will be represented by delegates. Brethren, commence making arrangements at once to attend that we may have a good meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God of Southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah from October 8 to 16 inclusive. Program will appear later after definite arrangements have been made. We bid all welcome who may come. Anyone wishing further information may write to Lewis Weaver, Route 3, Casey, Illinois.

A Letter to A Friend

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WANTED — Cosmopolitan Magazine requires the services of a representative in Plymouth to look after subscription renewals and to extend circulation by special methods which have proved unusually successful. Salary and commission. Previous experience desirable but not essential. Whole time or spare time. Address, with references, H. C. Campbell, Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1789 Broadway New York City.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. No stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Man of Sorrows.

Dear Brother Underwood:

Will you please insert these verses in THE RESTITUTION. I do not know who the author is. I learned them from an older sister when I was quite a child, and have never seen them in print.

Your Sister in faith and hope.

MRS. M. JORDEN.

He is despised, and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief. Isaiah liii. 3.

A poor way-faring man of grief,
Has often passed me on my way.
He sued so humbly for relief,
That I could never answer "Nay."
I had not power to ask his name.
Whither he went, or whence he came.
But there was something in his eye
That won my love—I know not why.

Once, when my scanty meal was spread,
He entered. Not a word he spoke—
Just perishing for want of bread.
I gave him all. He blessed it—broke, and ate.
And gave me part again.
Mine was an angel's portion then,
For while I fed with eager haste
The crust was manna to my taste.

Once, when the winds were out, it blew
A winter's hurricane aloof.
I heard his voice abroad, and flew
To bid him welcome to my roof.
I warmed—I clothed and cheered my guest;
Laid him on my own couch to rest,
And made the hearth my bed, and seemed
In Eden's garden, while I dreamed.

I spied him where a fountain burst
Clear from the rock—his strength was gone.
The heedless waters mocked his thirst.
He heard it—saw it hurrying on.
I ran and raised the sufferer up.
Thrice from the stream he drained my cup.
Dipped, and returned it, running o'er.
I drank, and never thirsted more.

In prison I saw him next, condemned
To meet a traitor's doom at morn.
The tide of lying tongues I stemmed, and Honored him midst shame and scorn.
His smile, and my poor name he named.
Of me this friend has not been ashamed,
These deeds shall thy memorial be.
Fear not! Thou did'st them unto Me.

The Restoration.

What is the meaning of Restoration?

It means to restore something lost.

What was lost?

Israel had lost their land and kingdom.

What had the Gentiles lost?

They had lost their life in Adam and were without hope or God in the world. Eph. ii: 12.

What is offered to the Gentiles now?

Salvation through Jesus Christ, by the gospel, Eternal Life.

Is there any difference in nationality in the gospel?

"There is no respect of persons with God, to the Jew first and also to the Greek." Rom. ii: 11.

Why was the gospel preached to the Gentiles?

"It was necessary that the word of God should first be spoken to you. Seeing ye thrust it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles. For so hath God commanded us.....And as the Gentiles heard this they were glad, and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed." Acts xiii; 40-48. "For God hath visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name," said the Apostle James. Acts xv: 14.

How did Adam lose his life?

By eating of the forbidden fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Gen. iii; 6.

How did it occur?

The woman listened to the serpent who had beguiled her, who gave also unto her husband with her and he did eat, harkening unto the voice of his wife. verse 17.

What was the penalty?

Death.

What is death?

Not to live; Isa. xxxviii; 1; knowing nothing; Ecc. 1; the opposite of living. "To return unto the ground, for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Gen. iii: 19.

How shall man live again?

By a resurrection when Jesus comes, 1 Cor. xv: 51.

What more was said?

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 21, 1910. NUMBER 35.

The animals were cursed, and the serpent above all the rest, while the earth was cursed for man's sake, ver. 19.

Is the Body of Christ restored?

It is a new creation.

Of what class does it consist? Of all the saints since Pentecost.

What is Jesus called? "The beginning of the creation of God."

What is to be restored? "The restoration of all things that God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began." Acts iii; 21.

When are all these things to be? "That he may send the Christ who hath been appointed for you even Jesus: whom the heaven must receive until the times of the restoration of all things." verse 20. Thus making a restoration possible after the manifestation of the sons of God. Rom. viii; 19.

What is the serpent called today? "The dragon (destroyer), the old serpent (deceiver), which is the d'evil (of evil), and satan (adversary)." Rev. xx; 1.

What is he doing now? Deceiving the woman.

Who is the woman? Systems of religious sects claiming to have the truth.

What is the woman doing? Deceiving the people and nations.

What is this d'evil and satan? Any adversary that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, the spirit of the natural mind conceiving evil thoughts which is enmity against God, the prince of the power of the air; head center, pivotal point of disturbance, disease; opposition to the truth and power of the gospel; love of money which gives power and indulgence to the flesh.

What are the believers since Pentecost called? "The body of Christ." "The fulness of God that filleth all in all. Eph. i: 23. "A holy temple, a habitation of God in the Spirit." Eph. ii; 22. "God's own possession."

Of what glory do they possess an earnest? They are bodies of celestial glory. 1 Cor. xv: 40. Like the glory of their Lord. 2 Thess. ii; 14.

What is glory? Brightness, honor, exaltation, immortality.

What is immortality? "As the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." John.

Has the moon light of itself? No.

How long will the moon shine? As long as the sun shines on it.

What did the apostle Paul say about Israel, who did not believe now and yet would be saved? He spoke of the mystery of the hardening in part of Israel.

What glory do they possess? The terrestrial glory.

What will that be? Seven times brighter than today. "For the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold." Isa. xxx; 26.

What is the main thing to be restored? Life, that will never be taken away from man or from any created intelligences.

Is all life the same? All life is from God.

What makes the difference? The formation or construction of the Body, there is no created intelligence without a body.

How did evil originate? Adam was given a law in the Eden garden which he disobeyed, the penalty of which was death. Gen. ii; 17.

How long did death reign? Death reigned from Adam until Moses.

What is the meaning of this statement? That nothing was disclosed or manifested, nothing transpired to show that man would ever live again, until the law that came by Moses.

How long could a man live who kept the law? Forever.

Why could it not be kept? Because of the weariness of the flesh. Rom vii; 8. "Had there been a law given which could make alive, verily righteousness would have been of the law." Gal. iii; 21.

Then the law was a failure? God forbid; We would not have known the sinfulness of sin had it not been for the law, neither is the law against the promises of God, but our tutor until Christ, that we might be justified by faith. For now are we all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus. (Gal. iii; 24-27.) and as many as have been baptised into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to promise. verse 29.

What happened to those Jews who would not believe in Christ? Many were miserably destroyed at the destruction of their city, while those who were not killed were led away into captivity.

Are we under law today? We surely are under law.

What law? "The law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus." Rom. viii; 2. The apostle said, "I am not without law to Christ." Jesus, "If ye love me keep my commandments."

Have we any modes in baptism? No, only the way laid down in Scripture. Buried in baptism. Rom. vi; 4. Into one name, (Acts iv; 12) Jesus, Lord (Acts xix; 5)

What did the apostle say of certain men who had not received the spirit? "Into what then were ye baptized?" Acts xix; 3.

What is the experience of Pentecost? "They then, having received his word, were baptized." Acts ii; 41. Verse 42, "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles teaching and in fellowship, in the breaking of bread and in prayers."

Will the Gentiles suffer? "Behold evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great tempest shall be raised up from the uttermost parts of the earth, and the slain of Jehovah shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth." Jer. xxv; 32.

What does the apostle Paul say about the glory of the different "Bodies"? God gave flesh four kinds of bodies, men, beasts, birds, fishes. There are also celestial bodies and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. 1 Cor. xv; 40. while each star differeth in glory. So is the resurrection of the dead.

What is the apostle teaching here? That these things we see are figures of four general classes after the resurrection, two celestial conditions, two terrestrial conditions; namely, all the saints who believed God's promises, walking by faith from the beginning of the world to the end, are of the celestial glory; the "Body of Christ," having the preeminence over all the angels last; the terrestrial which will be glorious, consisting of Jews or all Israel when their name is changed from Jacob, and the nations last.

What did the Apostle say about the saints before Pentecost? "These all died in faith not having received the promise, God having provided some better thing concerning us, that apart from us they should not be made perfect." Heb xi-40. It means that although we are perfected and glorified together, yet the glory of the saints after Pentecost excelled the glory of those before, having now an earnest of our inheritance waiting for the redemption of the body.

What was said to Nebuchadnezzar? He was driven from men to live with the beasts of the field, "Till thou knowest that the heavens do rule." Dan iv 26

Who were the heavens that ruled the children of Israel? The angels. Do the angels rule in the age to come? "For not unto angels did he subject the inhabited earth of which we speak." Heb ii 5.

To whom is given the reign? The Body of Christ.

How can a sinner get into this body? "Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, unto the remission of your sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Acts ii 38

Will every one be saved who does this? It is necessary first to hear the gospel preached by one sent of God, and then to keep the faith firm unto the end.

What will the believer do when he hears the Word of that which Christ accomplished by his death and resurrection? He will confess with his mouth Jesus as Lord, having believed from the heart that God raised Jesus from the dead.

What is done then with the believer, immediately or as soon as possible? Has he him into water into one name, Jesus, and end of all.

What position does he occupy in the body of Christ? A babe in Christ Having received the spirit he is sanctified in the spirit, adding to his faith knowledge, etc., separate from worldly desires of money making and other lusts of the flesh, praying continually, not forsaking the assembling together, partaking of the cup (the fruit of the vine), a participation in the blood of Christ; partaking of the one loaf, a participation in the body of Christ, being in the Spirit discerning the Lord's body, loving all the brethren, especially those who are spiritual. There is healing in the proper observance of this communion of the body of Christ, and disease and death in its abuse; "For this cause many are sickly among you and some sleep." 1 Cor xi 30.

Is the coming of the Lord the end of the world? It is the end of this age. It is the beginning of the reign of the body of Christ, of which he is head—a kingdom of prophets, priests and kings. The judgment of the nations, the restoration of Israel. The closing of the door to the body of Christ. When the terrible day of the Lord begins with great destruction of human life.

What are some of the workings of error and strong delusions of the last days? Teaching the hope of the Jew for the hope of the gospel.

Teaching going to heaven at death, when the heaven is not prepared, because our obedience is not fulfilled.

Teaching blessings instead of "Christ in you the hope of glory." Sanctification as a blessing instead of separation from the worldly spirit, and abstaining from fleshly lusts.

Teaching prohibition for gospel.

Teaching Pentecost or baptism of the Holy Ghost when it is simply "Received ye the Holy Spirit when you believed;" and retain it by obedience.

Teaching immortal soul of the natural man.

Teaching baptism into three titles and three immersions, when Christ died and was buried once.

Teaching a triune God when God is the head of Christ. Christ the head of every man. The head of the woman is the man.

Saved means being reconciled to God. There is no other way to be saved or reconciled to God than to hear the good news of what God hath accomplished through the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ and then be buried with him into baptism into water into the one Name, and come up to walk in newness of life, calling on the name of the Lord. You have then put on Christ, and are Abraham's seed and heir.

God gave the plan to Jesus; Jesus gave it to his twelve apostles, and afterwards sent an especial apostle to the Gentiles, who said, "If any man or angel preach any other gospel let them be accursed Not that there is any other, but let man and angel beware.

Eagle Grove, no record, paid $43.00

Marathon, sermons 38, paid $87.32

Sac City, sermons 17, paid $167 92

The following officers were elected:—

President, C. J. Allard, Fort Dodge.

Vice President, A. J. Eychaner, Cedar Rapids.

Secretary, Eva L. Stearns, Sac City.

Treasurer, C. P. Allard Jr., Fort Dodge.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Ada Moran, Clinton.

State Sunday School Superintendent, Eva L. Stearns, Sac City.

Avon,—Myrtle Fisher.
Waterloo,—Maggie Moore.
Laporte City,—R. O. Herrick.
Hickory Grove,—Isaac Fish.
Gladbrook,—Sadie Clark.
Irving,—Ida Marsh.
Eagle Grove,—A. M. Jones.
Sac City,—Alma Roose.
Marathon,—E. R. Beardsley.

The following motions were carried:

1 That the side walk laid in front of the camp ground be accepted. The total cost was $94 88, to be paid in eight payments with interest at six per cent.

2 That the action of the President in making two payments on side walk be approved by the board.

3 That we charge 10 cents a night for comfortables and blankets for the first five nights and fifty cents for ten nights.

4 That we charge 35 cents for cots.

5 That all visiting brethren be invited to participate in all business deliberations, but voting be restricted to Iowa brethren.

6 That we charge 25 cents a night for a bed composed of springs, mattress, blankets and comfortable for one night or anything less than five nights.

7 That the Board grant Ministerial Certificates to those whom they deem worthy.

8 That we hire a pastor to give churches regular services, other time and money to be devoted to Evangelistic work.

9 That we pay $75 00 a month and expenses to Evangelist.

11 That we appoint a Committee to try to secure a history of the Conference of Iowa. Committee appointed as follows:—

A. J. Eychaner, Susie Todd, Ida Marsh, Mrs. Isaac Fish, [illegible] Allard.

12. That C. J. Allard and A. J. Eychaner be elected as delegates to the General Conference.

13. The following resolution be adopted, Whereas—We have appointed two delegates to the General Conference, we think it proper to express our position as a Conference, in regard to the formation of a written creed and discipline. Therefore—Be it Resolved, That they be instructed to stand for the Bible and the Bible alone as a sufficient creed and discipline and the standard of our faith and Christian conduct.

14. That C. J. Allard be appointed as a committee of one to write to those who are like us in many points of faith, to see if a union of some kind can be effected, especially on, "Life only through Christ."

The Conference owns and has on hand: Tents 23 springs 50, Mattresses 50, comfortables 36, blankets 36.

Registration Committee reported 297 in attendance. Total collection on bedding $50.25. Among others in attendance from other States were: J. H. Willey, Pres. of Indiana Conference; J. H. Morse, Pres. Missouri Conference; M. D. Newell, Pres. Nebraska Conference; J. A. Patrick, Pres. Minnesota Conference; Sadie Morse, Secretary Missouri Conference; Alta King, Secretary, Nebraska Conference; Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Secretary of Indiana Conference; A. R. Underwood, Editor of THE RESTITUTION; Mrs. Chas. Crowe, of Present Truth; J. F. Williams, Fred and Catherine Williams and Belva Wilson of Morse Mills, Missouri; Mrs. Rabe, Mrs. Chambers and Forest Chambers of Blackwell, Oklahoma: Mrs. Morrison of St. Paul, Nebraska; Mr. Story of Holbrook, Nebraska; and many others, who by their presence and helpfulness contributed to the success of the Conference by making it interesting, and aided in giving many pleasant hours to those present. We feel much indebted to these from other States and wish to thank them and extend to them a hearty invitation to come again.

During the last year the Ladies of Aid Society at Marathon gave to Conference Fund, outside of regular subscriptions $43 50. This year they subscribed $48.00. We want to thank these ladies one and all for their many hours of loving service. I think this is the only Aid Society of Iowa, connected with this church. Also the Ladies on the Dining Room Committee gave $25.00 toward the new kitchen built upon the Conference grounds this year.

Those baptized through the year and at Conference were Leland Roose, of Sac City; Franklin Findley of Fort Dodge; Mary Evans, Mabel Evans and Eva Evans, Jessie Fisher, A. H. Ogden, Mrs. A. H. Ogden and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crumb of Avon, Ia.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Study pure and holy walking, if you would have your confidence firm, and have boldness and joy in God.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 21, 1910.

We are compelled to leave both the Illinois and Nebraska Conference Reports for next issue, together with other important matter.

GET ready to attend the Indiana State Conference October 20 to 23, at Argos. The place is easy to reach by railroad, the Lake Erie & Western, and the Nickle Plate both reach there, and there should be a good attendance.

NOTICE the appeal elsewhere in this paper for funds to publish a book written by Brother Jas. W. Wilson. The appeal explains fully the gist of the proposed book, and why money is asked for. If Brother Wilson gives an idea of what amount is needed after he makes his estimate, it will be to the point, and the brethren who can aid in this work, will know what has to be raised to accomplish it. Surely a book of this nature will be a good addition to our literature, and while we have not seen the manuscript, we have no doubt of its worth, as the author is fully capable of writing well on the topics given. All who can—act Now.

AT the annual meeting of the permanent committee of the "Young Egypt" party, held September 14, at Geneva, Switzerland, action was taken that may mean something later. You who are looking for signs in the movement of nations, note this one. It may possibly unfold. This party in Egypt is similar to the "Young Turk" party in Turkey, that caused a radical change. This new party has for its aim autonomy—the power and the right of self-government. This committee sent a telegram to the British government at London, demanding the immediate evacuation of Egypt. Of course they did not move, and just what may result remains to be seen. There may be something under the surface.

AT the opening of the fall semester of McCormick Seminary, Chicago, last week, George L. Robinson gave an address on "The Permanent Value of the Old Testament." In view of the stand taken by certain wise (?) professors regarding the Bible as a whole, this lecture was awaited with much anxiety by many.

Dr. Robinson asked the question—"Is the Old Testament a part of Christianity?" and then says among other things, "Many people have considered that the Old Testament is as a millstone about the neck of Christianity, just as the cross is to the Jew. We, too, often study the Old Testament from an esthetic standpoint, and then again many are given to study it purely from the scientific view point. But we are called on to study it from both these angles. The institutions of the Jews who were used in the Old Testament's making are the truths of our Christianity, and it also is our duty to rediscover the truths of the Old Testament as they are made to live anew in the New Testament. The modern prophet, unlike his Jewish prototype, often is remiss in failing to be a conscience for his people. The Jew was the originator of Christian endeavor, and the projector of patriotism. The modern critic has been content to find many flaws in the Scriptures, as well as in the practices of the people of Old Testament times, but they forget that polygamy is a darker blot on present day civilization than it ever was upon the times prior to the coming of the Christ. The Old Testament is incomplete without the New Testament to give it interpretation, and the New Testament is lacking, if it has not the Old Testament as a background. There never was a suggestion in the teachings of Jesus that the Old Testament should be revised or corrected, and it will live on as long as there is true religion in the human heart."

Conduct and Belief.

REGARDING conduct there is little or no question raised. All concede that the excesses and frivolities of worldly life are not for the people of God. No question whatever but what a godly life is essential. An ungodly man is not acceptable with God. God does not want such in his kingdom—will not have them.

How did we find this out, and become so sure of it? Why from reading the message God has given us—the Bible, of course. There is nothing regarding conduct that is spurious and ought to be cut out, or that needs to be corrected by us wise critics of this day. We feel indeed thankful to God that in his wisdom, power, might and love he has been able to convey this much to us all right and pure. Don't you feel glad of this too? Real glad that this much of God's mind concerning man is clear and definite.

What of Belief? How sad our heart is that our loving Father—God, the All-Powerful, should signally fail in this point. Don't it make your heart ache to think that God, whom we have often called the Infinite One, has not been able to give us a clear path in what to believe as well as to do? It lowers God so. Why, we hardly can recommend what such a weak Being says of conduct. Seems awful to us! Not long since we met a man who is classed as very religious, loving and kind, a minister, in short a model for many. We heard him say "A man's ideas, his belief, his thought on a subject, make up what is essential for his salvation." Another man we met, a preacher and leader among his people, declared "A man's works—not his faith, or what he believes—is what counts with God." Now, what do you think of that? Both these men think—nay, they are sure—than God's Word is clear cut and unmistakable in defining man's conduct. However, coming to Belief, each is left free by God to follow his own ideas, his own thoughts, and as he concludes in his own mind, so is he bound to arrange his belief. Speaking in simple words, that all can understand "So long as a man is sincere it matters not what he believes."

What a pity God did not leave the matter of Conduct open. Had he so done, we would have it "So long as a man is sincere it matters not what he does." How nice that would make it. Do and believe as you please, and be saved any way. Nothing but sincerity counts.

Now brethren, for men who have spent a life-time in the study of God's Word, posed as ministers of the proclamation of that Word, this shows a degree of in-sincerity that is alarming. Some other motive than love to God and to our brother, prompts such sentiments to be expressed, and we must let the associates of these men say what it is.

The hour is hastening when Jesus, our Savior, Redeemer, Lord, will come again to this earth. The indications, the signs, the portents, are seen on every hand. Long ago, in view of the eminence of this event, a question was asked relative to the Christ on his return being able to find "the faith" on the earth. It had been predicted that there would be a falling away, hence the question. Would any be left who could be called faithful—such as had held to the true belief. Bear in mind it does not ask if Jesus will be able to find those whose conduct has been all right. That is taken for granted, so the question relates to the belief, the "faith." Query: If what a man believed way back there was important, how does it come that now "what a man believes is of no value in the sight of God," as one of the men quoted above said?

Brethren, we appeal to you to stand fast on the Rock. Yes, investigate, and be sure to get on the Rock, and stand there—'tis the only safe place. Make no mistake, for sandy foundation is shifting, and will not abide. Only a short time till the glorious light of eternal day will break forth.

When Jesus comes will he find the faith on earth? It all depends on what you can answer him. Are you satisfied that you are in accord with God's mind as expressed in the Word his Holy Spirit gave us. We declare unto you in all confidence than Only what God's Word says counts. Man's ideas and "think-so" is utterly valueless. So don't be deceived by smooth words and soft platitudes.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Sunday School Lesson.

OCTOBER 2, 1910.

THE WISE AND FOOLISH VIRGINS. MATTHEW XXV. 1-13.

Golden Text: "Be ye therefore ready also; for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not." Luke xii 40.

The time of this lesson is the last day of Christ's public ministry. He had left the temple, and was on his way to Bethany. He gives final instruction to his followers. His work with the Jewish leaders who had tried to trap him so many times is over, and he gives his disciples who are soon to be left to themselves, a last lesson, in an effort to so stay their minds that they will be true to his cause.

This lesson, like others, is taken from Oriental customs, and was understood by those about him, even better than we can understand. The main feature of the whole lesson is Preparation.

Jesus had told the disciples how hypocritical the Pharisees were, and that the temple and city would be destroyed. They were amazed—could not understand it all, and asked when these things should be? They wanted to know what would be the sign of his coming again, and of the end of the world, or age? After explaining all he could to them, Jesus gives them some lessons by parable again, thus illustrating what he has told them. Our lesson today is one of these, and is a warning to Watch, being fully prepared. The changes that were to come, and in which the disciples would be involved, were of such a nature, and so varied, that full details could not be given. Many things would come unexpectedly, and Jesus wanted to warn his followers to be on their guard constantly, so they would not be deceived.

There was just one thing the disciples could be real certain of—they must be fully prepared. So to show them by an illustration that was familiar to them, they are given this parable of the ten virgins.

It is an Oriental Wedding that is pictured for them. The bride will be clothed with her white robe, jewels will flash, girdle and veil and garland will adorn her. She will be prepared to meet the Bridegroom. In his best attire he will leave his father's home, attended by his friends, musicians, and torch bearers, and proceed to the home of his bride. The marriage over, he will return with his bride to his own home, and as the gorgeous procession approaches, the cry will be made by those on watch, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh."

Among the friends of the couple are ten virgins, who wait to welcome them, and go in to the marriage supper. As the exact time of arrival was never known, it was necessary to be on the watch, and above all to be ready. It appears that it was essential that these virgins carry lighted lamps, and as the Bridegroom had tarried long at the home of his bride, these watchers had become weary, and slept. The cry awakened them, and as the procession came on the lamps must be trimmed so that the lights would show. Those who had made due preparation and were supplied with oil soon had their lamps ready, but those who had failed to get a supply of oil were in despair, for they had no light. They ask the thoughtful ones for part of theirs, but find that if they divide all will be in darkness, and they are compelled to go and buy oil. Meanwhile the procession comes, and those who are ready go in with the bridal party, and the door is shut.

When the foolish virgins come they ask to be let in, but the Master of the house refuses them admittance, disclaiming knowledge of them.

Jesus says to his disciples, in view of this to them a familiar picture story, "Watch therefore, for ye know not the day nor the hour."

Jesus was to be betrayed and put to death, but he was to rise again, and he did. He was taken away for a time—while a work of selecting a people to be partners with him in a future age—but he said he would return, and the angels said he would, and we believe that just as certain as he was here once, and went away, he will come again in the Father's own time.

Watch for the coming of the Lord. Why? Why did the virgins want to enter with the bridal party? There was joy and gladness, happiness and the best of life there; and they wanted to be sharers of it all.

The coming of the Lord is of value; that is why we watch for him. There will be blessing and honor for all who watch and are ready. Like the wedding festival, the best will be there. Something far better than what we now have—transcendantly better than this life.

How are we to watch?

In the lesson the watchers are divided—wise and foolish. They all slumbered and slept—while the bridegroom tarried. No fault is found with this, as being weary they must have rest. With them the shouts of the coming crowd would wake them, so there was no anxiety on that score. The wisdom of some was shown in being prepared—they had oil. The foolishness of others was shown in ignoring the future. They rested in a false security, having made no preparation. The wise and prudent, thoughtful ones who look ahead and take every precaution, are sure to be ready when the call comes.

Those who took oil in vessels are like people who really live what they profess, who practice what they preach, who form characters that shine as the flame of their lamps. Those who have no supply of oil are like people who have but a surface feeling, no depth to their professions. The seed springs up quickly, but is as quickly blasted. They have no abiding principles.

Watchfulness implies preparation for any emergency. Every duty is calculated. We watch not only by having our eyes strained and nerves set in expectation, but by being prepared when an event does occur. We watch for Jesus to come by always living as we would like to have him find us when he does come. We watch for the future enlarged life beyond this in God's coming kingdom, by doing the things and learning the lessons that enable us to live in this. Oil, which is the source of the flame, must be stored up for the crisis when it comes. Then it is too late to buy or to make preparation.

The real difference between the wise and foolish virgins was not wholly in lack of some to have oil in their vessels. Rather it lie in the importance that each had given to the marriage itself. The foolish virgins saw only a "jolly good time" before and at the wedding. The wise virgins had considered that there lie their deepest hopes—the reality of their expectation.

Many successes of this life are gained by this idea of watching by being prepared.

Some have tried to get sympathy for the virgins termed "foolish," saying that when a sister in distress asks for aid, none but the hard-hearted could refuse her. This is all right, and is well meant of course. But this is not the point. Material aid in the hour of need can be given a man. However, it may not be wisdom to do so. The man may have wasted his time when he could have earned at honest labor what would have carried him through the hard time. His brother with less capacity, may have labored for his bread and stored it against this time. He is more deserving of help, yet you see the distress of the one because he expects to work on your sympathy and get his bread without earning it. You can help the foolish one by feeding him, but you cannot transfer to him character. He will do the same again. So it is questionable if your charity is well-directed. This does not do away with our duty to aid the poor and unfortunate. They deserve it. Character is a personal achievement. The critical hour is not always when the event transpires, but in the previous hours of preparation.

"And the door was shut." The opportunity came, and the prepared ones went in. Who shut the door against the foolish ones? Who was to blame for they not entering? Who was at fault that they had no oil? We shut the door against ourselves. Only ourselves are to blame for us not going in, for we have failed to make preparation. The unworthy by their own act are excluded.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I just wish to express a few thoughts on the subject of Conference. If there are any brethren who think a Conference an unnecessary expense—a great deal of responsibility and work—please read over carefully this little article and see if all I have named, flies away as an air-bubble, compared to the glorious outcome of three Conferences I am to speak about. The first one—three years ago—my eyes were opened to the beauty of the Christian fellowship. All faces were so full of the brightness of the blessed Truth, that one on the outside could not help but see and feel the joy of such a belief. We are told to let our light shine—not to hide it and the sisters and brothers at that Conference let this light so shine that I was able to see their good works and glorified our Father in heaven. After a few months of careful reading and with words of encouragement from the mother and father who have been in the faith over fifty years, and our faithful Bro. Robison, I was willing to bury the old man and rise in newness of life—was that Conference worth the expense, responsibility, work and worry?

The next one held in Salem, Ohio—another one impressed just as I, seeing the light shine in the faces of true believers, Bro. Ashford Lehman, no longer able to stand on the outside of the door—walked through by being buried with Christ in baptism—Did that Conference pay?

And now we come to our last one held in Cleveland, Ohio—a worthy young man was helped to obey the Truth by the Christian spirit manifested among the brethren—they did not hold their light under a bushel—they let it shine—the current was of the brightest light, not a glimmering candle light—and Bro. Newman Smith was brought out of the darkness into his marvelous light. Has it paid, brothers and sisters, to have these Conferences? Don't let us be selfish with our beautiful promises that have been given to us, but help others to join the little flock. Because some of you are old, firmly settled in the Truth is no reason why the young shouldn't be strengthened, and filled to overflowing with the spiritual food we can have by attending these blessed Conferences. We young folks follow the example of the older ones—so brethren see to it that your example is well pleasing unto the Lord, 'and now let us do as Bro. Ashford Lehman said at the Cleveland Conference—plan now to attend the one at Troy next year, and then when the time comes it will be easier to go, than to stay away. May God bless the workers in his vineyard whose efforts in organizing the Ohio State Conference, have been and will continue to be the means of bringing others into the fold. Brothers and sisters, Jesus is coming. Rejoice and again I say rejoice.

Justification.

What is justification? It is a gracious act of God, whereby he pardons, and accepts of sinners, on the account of Christ's righteousness, imputed to them, and received by faith. Rom. v; 16, 19. It was confirmed and ratified by the resurrection of Christ. Rom. iv 25. And it is manifested by the good works of believers. James ii: 2 to 26. And by thy words thou shalt be justified or condemned. Matt. xii; 37. Then the man that accepts God's commands and does them is justified; but the one that thinks the law is the word of God, is not justified. Why? For by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified. Gal. 2: 16; Rom. iii: 20; Acts xiii: 39. A man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law. Rom. iii: 28. No man is justified by the law in the sight of God. Why? Because the just shall live by faith, and the law is not of faith. Gal. iii: 11. The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ. Why? That we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come we are no longer under a schoolmaster, or the law. Whoever thinks they are justified by the law, are fallen from grace, and Christ is become of no effect unto them. Gal. v: 4. The Christian is justified by faith, by works, by grace, and by the blood of Jesus Christ our Lord. He cannot be justified by faith alone for faith without works is dead. It is God that justifies. Then do God's will, believe his gospel, accept his plan of salvation, live in such a way that he will justify you, and you will be rewarded with eternal life in the ages to come.

Yours in Hope,

Does it Pay to be a Christian?

The above is certainly a very serious, and also an important question, and should be carefully considered by everyone.

Should we judge by the actions of so many people, I think their opinion would be, it will pay better to accumulate much gold and silver; but alas! there is a great day coming, when they would gladly change their verdict, were it of avail to do so then.

The above caption is the title of a manuscript written by Brother James W. Wilson, with the intention of having it printed in a book. This manuscript has been placed in my hands by his relatives with the request that I estimate the cost of printing and binding the same. I find that it will make a book of about the size of page of "Student's Text Book", with about 96 pages to be bound in cloth.

The following topics are to be considered: Does it Pay to be a Christian; Inducements to Become a Christian; What is Death and Resurrection? How, and in What Body are the Dead Raised? Surety of the Resurrection; What is Eternal Life? Blessings that Accompany Eternal Life; Nature of the Reward; The Kingdom of God; How Christianity is Profitable in this Life; How Nature Eliminates the Drunkard; Tobacco vs. Christianity; The Social Evil; Christian Privileges; How to Become a Christian; What is the Gospel; Forgiveness of Sins; All are Sinners; Resurrection of Jesus; Resurrection of the Dead; Eternal Life; The Coming of Christ; Inheritance of the Saints; What to Do; Repent or Reform; Be Baptized; Question of Rebaptism; Church Organization; Christian Life. The consideration of the above topics, will show the drift of the book, and the need of such a work.

Shall the book be printed, or shall it not? is a question that now rests with the reader. And why so? The answer is, because since our brother wrote this manuscript, affliction has laid its hand heavily upon him, and he is stricken down with a sickness that no human help can cure.

He is utterly prostrate, and as to how long he can be with us, is a question of how long his organism can endure the strain put upon it; he is growing weaker and weaker; he can only converse with a person but a few moments, when he is exhausted. He has a desire to see the book in print while yet alive, but has no means to do it with.

He has no knowledge whatever that I have written this appeal. I have done so at the request of others who have a wish that he should see his work printed while yet alive, and that it may be sent forth on its mission of good. In order to do this it will require immediate action. I am requested to ask donations for this purpose. Those making donations, if they so desire, can receive books to the value of their donation, which they can use for the Master's cause.

The price of the book is as yet not definitely known, but I think that it will not be over thirty cents per copy, bound in board and cloth.

They wish me to print this book before I go on my Southwestern trip this coming winter. In order to do so, I should start on it within a week from the publication of this appeal. So if you mean to aid in this work, do so at once.

I have no financial interest in this book. Send all money and letters to Lelia E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St. Austin Sta., Chicago, Ill.

In Blessed Hope,

W. H. WILSON.

Butting Sheep.

"When a boy," says the editor of the Michigan Advocate, "we used to be scared by the butting sheep. In later years we have stood in wholesome dread of the butting church-member. Oh, how he does like to lower his head and sail into every proposition made! Almost every church has one, and some afford two or three. And he isn't always a man, he's sometimes a woman. And we are in doubt which can knock things to smithereens the quicker. All we can advise is to stand clear when the butter is around, and if possible keep him tied up out of the field of official power and influence."

Some of these sheep seem to have been brought up on "goats' milk"—indeed, some of them act as if they had been suckled by wolves; and food will tell as well as blood. Christians who are fed on froth, fog, folly, frivolity, moonshine, pride, politics and worldliness will be very likely not only to butt, but to bite and kick and smite. If you do not want butting sheep beware of goat's milk, but feed them on "the sincere milk of the Word."

Ten Virgins.

Ten virgins soundly slept
But still a watch was kept
At midnight came the cry,
"The Bridegroom draweth nigh."

In haste their lamps were seized
And five were greatly pleased,
Their lamps stood trimmed and bright
All ready for to light.

But five were in a plight
Their lamps they could not light,
No oil was to be had,
Which made them very sad.

They had neglected the
And lost eternal bliss.
Their garments too were stained
And many weeds they gained.

The wise ones entered in
Beyond the gates of sin,
They had obeyed his Word,
And now were ever with the Lord.

A. WALLACE MASON.

Through an oversight the writer's name was omitted from the article in last week's issue, "Acts, Chapter 1." The writer was Sister Jennie Salisbury.

After an absence of three weeks in the west, we are again at home. Happy to report that both wife and baby are well.

A bit of news worth noting, and which occurred too late for Sister King to inclose in her report of the Nebraska Conference, is that Sunday following the meetings at Benson, Sept. 17th, two worthy men disowned the world and confessed Christ, and were immersed into the name of Jesus Anointed: William Gould, and F. Thrush.

Owing to the lateness of the Nebraska conference this year many young people engaged in School work were deprived of the privilege of attending. What few young people that were there, however, became Charter members of a Berean Society; and if the Lord blesses their work this year as we have reasons to believe he will, by next Conference we shall see a great work accomplished by them.

The Law.

By the way some people speak of the commandments and laws by which the Jews were governed as the "moral law" and the "ceremonial law," it would seem as though these terms were of frequent occurence in the Bible. But such is not the case, as neither of them are mentioned there. We read of "the law," "the law of Moses," "the law of the Lord," "law of faith," "law of liberty," "law of sin and death," "law of the Spirit of life," and the "royal law," but nowhere do we read of the "moral law," or the "ceremonial law," nor of "two laws." These are terms coined by man, and not by the Lord.

The context, as well as the object of a writer, together with the subjects addressed, in every case determines the thought in the mind of the writer, so that the reader may clearly understand which law is referred to; whether the law by which the Jews were governed, or the law under which we as Christians live.

The ten commandments are, in the Bible, nowhere called "the law" exclusively, but inclusively they are. The ten commandments are but a part of "the law," and in importance they were not considered the greatest by the Lord Jesus. When he was asked, "Which is the great commandment in the law?" he said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." Matt. xxii; 36-40. But neither of these two commandments are numbered among the ten, and yet these are greater than they, because the ten and all others hang on these two.

That the ten commandments were no more sacred than any others that God has given to man is evident from the penalty inflicted when they were trespassed. A reference to Adam and Eve (Gen. iii; 16-19); to Lot's wife (Gen. xix: 17 26); to the death of Uzzah (2 Sam. vi: 6 7); to the disobedient prophet (1 Kings xiii); and to the man stoned to death for picking up sticks on the sabbath day (Num. xv: 32-36) is proof sufficient. In every case the penalty was death; and only in one of these instances cited was the ten commandment law violated. All of God's commandments are holy and binding upon all to whom they are given.

The term "law," under the old covenant embraces the entire system by which the Jews were governed; including the offering of sacrifices, circumcision, paying of tithes, and the ten commandments. These all, collectively, were indiscriminately called "the law," "the law of Moses," and "the law of God." In Luke ii: 22 we read of "the law of Moses"; verse 23, of "the law of the Lord"; and in verse 27, of "the law"; all referring to the purification of Mary and the circumcision of Christ. In Mal. iv: 4 we read: "Remember ye the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments." This "law of Moses," given in Horeb included the ten commandments. In Neh. ix: 13 we read: "Thou camest down upon Mount Sinai, and spakest with them from heaven, and gavest them right judgments, and true laws, good statutes and commandments; and madest known unto them thy holy sabbath, and commandest them precepts, statutes, and laws by the hand of Moses the servant." From this we learn that God's law, given by Moses, included commandments, statutes, and judgments, and these were interchangeably called "the law," "the law of the Lord," and "the law of Moses." Nowhere are they known distinctively as two laws—one moral, the other ceremonial.

The ten commandments, together with the statutes, precepts, and judgments, which God gave to the Jews, were binding upon them, and upon no other people. The law was born with that people; it lived with them, and it died with them. In Gal. iii: 24 Paul argues this, and says: "The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith." Notice here whom he was addressing; not Christians from among the Gentiles, but from the Jews. The law had been their schoolmaster—the tense is in the past—and now that they were justified by faith, they were no longer under that educator. The law had taken the Jews and brought them to Christ. Christ had come as predicted of him; he was born under the law, and he lived under it, he made it glorious, and, having fulfilled it, he "took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross." Col. ii. 14. And now that that schoolmaster—law—or tutor, having completed its mission, having brought the Jews along until Christ fulfilled it, is discharged. Like the staging of a building when it is completed, it is taken "out of the way" as being of no further use.

In Gal. iii; 19 the apostle further tells us the object and the time for which the law was intended. "Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made. Here we learn several things: (1.) That there was sin in the world before the days of Moses. "For until the law, sin was in the world." Rom. v; 13. (2.) That the law was added to the promise God made to Abraham, "till the seed should come," which "seed" was Christ. Gal. iii; 16 (3.) The adverb of time, till, limits its duration. The law should be of force only "till the seed should come;" and Christ having come, its limit was reached.

In Heb. 7; 10 12 Paul shows this truth most positively: "If therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law,) what further need was there that another priest should arise, after the order of Melchisedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron? For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law." Here we notice: 1st, That the law was given to the people of Israel when the priesthood was instituted, and not prior to that time 2nd, A change was made of that law and not in the law already made; and 3rd, The change of the law was made because of the priesthood being changed from the Aaronic to the Melchisedec order.

That this law was given to the Jews and to no other people is further taught in several Scriptures, as I intend now to show, as also all the covenants, commandments, statutes and precepts under which the Jews lived. In Ex. xx we learn of the people to whom they were given: "I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage." Then follows the commandments, statutes, and laws. Every one may see, if he will, that these commandments cannot apply to Adam and Eve, to Noah, to Abraham, Isaac or Jacob, nor to the Gentiles as a people, as none of them ever were in bondage in Egypt. They were no more under the law as promulgated in Ex. xx, and onward, than the people of the state of Iowa; or the people of the United States are under the laws of Great Britain.

When teachers of the Mosaic law seek to enforce its observance upon the people in this dispensation, they should state upon their charts or blackboards the address as it is in the Book: "Hear, O Israel." But this they do not do, and they dare not do, because the address itself would contradict all their conclusions. A letter addressed to my name, and delivered to me, belongs to me. Its contents are for me, and apply to me, and to no other party. Just so with the law. It was given to those who had been in bondage in Egypt, and it cannot be enforced upon any other people.

But hear the apostle: "For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law are a law unto themselves." Rom. ii; 14. "Unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; to them that are without law as without law, (being not without law to God, but under the law to Christ,) that I might gain them that are without law." 1 Cor. ix; 20, 21. Here Paul states: 1st, That the Gentiles had never been under the law with the Jews; and, 2nd, That the Gentiles were without the law, and not as the Jews; 3rd, He himself was not without law to God, but under the law to Christ.

But the claim is made that because it is said in the fourth commandment, "Remember the sabbath day to keep it holy," therefore this entire law has been in force from the days of Adam, and even before—in heaven among the angels. If this be true, it must have fallen upon celestial ears with a peculiar strangeness when they were told: "Honor thy father and thy mother;" "Thou shalt not commit adultery;" "Thou shalt not steal;" "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife;" etc. The absurdity of this claim is apparent to all, as all can at once see that such language can apply only to those who had been in bondage in Egypt, and not to angels, Adam, Noah, nor the Gentiles. That the decalogue as a code of laws was not in existence in heaven or on earth until it was promulgated to the Jews, in Horeb, some 2,500 years after creation, is evident from the statement made in Deut. v: 22, and Exodus 20th chapter and onward; because the conditions did not exist which made them necessary or made their appropriateness possible.—J. August Smith in "Our Hope."

The Rage and Meditation of Sinners.

PSALM II. 1.

Having now the historical and prophetical scope of the psalms in mind, we are ready to "rightly divide" (2 Tim. ii. 15) them by textual review. "Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing?" This passage is a monograph of sinners. Who they are is expressed by the words "heathen" and "the people;" and the particular "motions of sins" (Rom. vii. 5) of which they were guilty, by the words "rage and imagine." The thoughts expressed in a sentence cannot be properly comprehended unless we understand all the words used in it. In order therefore to give the reader a "perfect understanding of all things" (Luke i. 3) contained in this text, we invite him to consider with us:

1. The persons meant by "heathen" and "people."

This consideration is an important one, for the reason that usage has stamped upon the word heathen a meaning quite different from its original sense. With us a heathen is the most ignorant, the lowest and basest of men; and we always think of them as living in China, or somewhere else always a long distance from home. But the Hebrew word goi, and its corresponding Greek word, ethnos (Acts iv. 25,) translated heathen, means "a nation." 2 Cor. i 20; Gal. i. 16; iii. 8. In Matt. vi 7, we have hoi ethnikoi, "those belonging to nations." Distasteful as it may be to enthusiastic politicians, the word heathen is national rather than individual in its meaning. Individually, "the people imagined a vain thing;" nationally, "the heathen nation (nation, goi) raged." The thought here is, the Lord and his Anointed were opposed by the people as individuals, and by the heathen as nations. Hostility was expressed both individually and nationally. The nation was as guilty of the Lord's death as were the people who composed the nation. How sad it is, what a necrosis it is to every heart throbbing with the love of God shed abroad in it by the Holy Spirit, to see professed brethren of Jesus, the One the world hated and killed, loving the world so much (Jas. iv. 4) they are at the polls on election day, pragmatic politicians! Trying to love Jesus and the world at the same time, Luke xvi. 13. Trying to "stand in" with two masters! Denouncing individual sinners, abhorring the use of tobacco in all forms, shunning the "appearance of evil" so far as immoral impurities go, and yet identified with all this evil in its organized and governmental form? O consistency, you precious lijon, where are you? Having noticed the individual and national rage of transgression, we must now observe the

2. Manner of their sin.

The word "rage" is from the Hebrew word ragash, and means "to assemble." (Young.) Chemath, another Hebrew word translated rage, means "to have heat, fury, poison." Dangerous waves of the sea are said to be "raging waves," Jude 13. Nebuchadnezzar when provoked to wrath, performed deeds of cruelty "in rage and fury," Dan. iii. 13. It was when Naaman became "wroth" that he "went away in a rage," 2 Kings v. 11, 12. It is when men become full of "heat, fury and wrath" that they burst out in a "rage" of anger. The word "imagine" is from the word hagah, which means "to meditate, utter, mutter." The Greek word logismos, translated "imaginations" in 2 Cor. v. 10, means reasonings. So when "the people" reasoned and "meditated deceits all the day long" (Psa. xxxviii. 12) "against the Lord, and against his Anointed" (Psa. ii. 2,) "the heathen" (nation) "tumultuously assembled" (Psa. ii. 1, see margin,) and took counsel together (v. 2.) The result was that by "putting their heads together," they succeeded in devising a diabolical plot in the wisdom which is "earthly, sensual, devilish" (Jas. iii. 25,) and serpentine (Gen. iii. 1.) With the "heat, fury and poison" of the serpent, they bit the promised seed in the heel (Gen. iii. 15)—only inflicted a temporary wound. Within three days God liberated their victim from the power and dominion of death, because he was an "Holy One" (Acts ii. 27) "Death has no more dominion over him" (Rom. vi. 9;) sin cannot "sting" him to death any more, 1 Cor. xv. 56. He has bruised the serpent on the head, so far as he is personally concerned. Before long he will come and take "the earth for his inheritance," Psa. ii. 8, bind the serpent power a thousand years, Rev. xx. and then give it the fatal blow of extermination. "The God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly," Rom. xvi. 20.

The Psalms as History and Prophecy. Psalms ii: 1.

Having established the prophetical and messianic character of the Psalms in general, and the second chapter in particular, we now inquire as to the time of their fulfillment. Are the psalms history or prophecy? Fulfilled or unfilled prediction? Have they become history or are they yet to be written on the page of history? We take the position that they are largely historical; but as historical events have only incipiently fulfilled them, we claim that in order to give them plenary scope and illustration, they will have in the future their full accomplishment in the person of Christ, and the events of his governmental reign. That they are both historical and prophetical will be made evident to the reader as we proceed.

"Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against his anointed." That this language was applicable to the Messiah, and to the people of his day, and describes their wicked opposition to him, is made plain in Acts iv: 24 28. After quoting the Psalm now under review, the Spirit remarks: "Of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together." Here "the kings of the earth" who, according to prophecy, were to "set themselves" "against his anointed," are mentioned by name. The "rage" of Christ's enemies, when they had "tumultuously assembled" (See margin of Psa. ii. 1,) the "vain" thought they had of getting rid of Christ by killing; the 'counsel" the officials had with each other—of all this it can be truly said: "Of a truth against thy holy child Jesus," this prophecy is written history. While kings and rulers and a raging populace were thus treating Christ, in putting him to death, "he that sitteth in the heavens" laughed (Psa. ii. 4,) and immutably declared: "The Lord shall have them in derision." And he did. On the third day he said to Christ: "Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee," v. 6. Subsequently Paul declared at Antioch: "And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promise which was made unto the fathers, God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is written in the second Psalm, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee," Acts xiii. 32, 33.

The Old Testament is often quoted by Christ and his apostles; but this is the only quotation found in the New Testament where the chapter of the book is given from which the language is taken. The part of the 2d Psalm here quoted by Paul, he says "God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children." Almighty power revived Christ from the dead the third day, "no more to return to corruption." Acts xiii. 34. To the great "derision" of his enemies he was brought to life eternal by the resurrection of the dead, "after the power of an endless life," Hebrews vii. 16. The people who said "Let his blood be on us and on our children" were spoken to in God's wrath, and vexed in his sore displeasure, Psalm ii. 5, by the desolating army, which destroyed the temple and scattered the Jewish offenders through out all the earth. In a literal manner "God hath fulfilled" the words of his servant David.

Now, while we have historically expounded and applied much of the 2d Psalm, bear in mind that we regard fulfilled prophecies, or many of them, as being capable of duplicating, or fulfilling again. By this we mean that there is first an incipient, partial or natural fulfillment, and afterwards a second, plenary or spiritual fulfillment. To illustrate my meaning by a Bible example: 'When Israel was a child, then I loved him, and called my son out Egypt," Hos. xi. 1. The Israelites were only God's son legally and nationally, and their call out of Egypt was followed by their sin and fall in the wilderness. "First the natural; afterwards the spiritual," 1 Cor. xv. 46. From the historical narrative of Israel's deliverance from Egypt, we "afterwards" get the spiritual interpretation in the life of Christ, Matt. ii. 15.

Prophecy is history written before it is performed on the stage of life; "history repeats itself," and is, therefore, prophetical in its nature. We read the history of Moses as given in the Old Testament, and then turning to the New Testament, we are told "a prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me," Acts iii 22. This affirmation, that Christ is to be "like" Moses, fills the account of Moses' life and history, as given in the Old Testament, from the obscure, individual, state history of a man and dignifies it with prophetical importance. So, while we apply things written in the second psalm to the first coming of Christ, we do it fully aware of the prophetical significance of history. That it will have its full and complete fulfillment at the Lord's second coming, is plainly seen from the following considerations:

1. The "kings of the earth" and the "rulers" of the people "rage" in wrath and war against Christ, when he comes the second time. Psa ii 1-10; Zech xiv 2.

2. They "set themselves" and "take counsel together" in opposing Christ's enthronement as King on the "holy hill of Zion," but they are broken "like a potter's vessel" by divine power. Psa ii 1 10; Dan ii 44; Rev xi 15.

3. With only a "little" wrath the wicked "perish from the way;" the kingdoms of this world are overthrown; and Christ as a "man of war" takes "the earth for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession." Psa ii 6-12; Hag ii 22; Rev xi 15.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Editor Restitution:

My father, W. L. Skeels, reached the town of Falls City, Oregon, on Sept. 3, having traveled from Pomona, Cal. On his way he made visits with the brethren at Los Angeles, and Eugene. At the latter place he held a week's meeting, making his home during the time with Brother Belshaw. Coming down the beautiful Willamette Valley as far as Albany he stopped off a few days to visit his brother and family. Here he had a good visit and a fine feast of fruit and melons. He has come here to this little city to visit his son for awhile, during his tour from the Southland to the Northwest. On his arrival he was informed that the pastor of the Christian Church desired him to preach in his pulpit. On Sunday the pastor made arrangements with my father (his health being poor) and so announced that if his health would permit, he would preach on the succeeding Sunday, leaving it optional with my father at which hour, morning or evening.

The next Sunday evening found him in sufficiently good health to deliver a discourse. He took his text from 1 Cor xiii 13, delivering a very forcible sermon on faith, hope and love. The discourse made a very favorable impression on the congregation. At the close of the services the warm greeting and general approval of the audience made him feel that his sermon had been well taken by the Christian people.

He contemplates at an early date going further north, visiting different localities along the way. Arrangements have already been completed for him to go to Palida, Wash., to hold meetings but the date of beginning has not yet been determined upon.

The brethren of Southern Oregon & California are requested to open a correspondence in regard to arrangements for meetings on the return trip to Arizona later in the fall or early winter. The correspondence should be addressed to Falls City, Ore.

Yours in hope.

S. RAPHAEL SKEELS.

Always Before God.

In some personal recollections of a minister's life, recently published in The Christian Endeavor World, F. D. Power, of Washington, gives this experience:

"Riding one day on a train, I was half asleep in the seat, having been up all the night before, when I heard the conductor talking to someone just behind me, and using every little while an oath.

"Turning about, I faced him, and said, 'Captain, are there any regulations on this road with respect to the use of profanity on the part of its employees?'

"'How is that sir?' he asked.

"I repeated.

"'Yes, sir,' he slowly answered.

"I resumed my silence, and there was silence everywhere.

"Presently the conductor came to me and said: 'I hope you will excuse me for using profanity in your presence. I did not know you were a minister.'

"'You do not know I am a minister,' I said, 'nor does that make any difference. Do you talk that way before your wife and children, or your mother?'

"'No, sir, I do not.'

"'Well, remember, you are always before God.'

"I never saw a word have greater effect."

If Christian men would bear similar witness much might be accomplished toward the lessening of this present evil.

Wesley said if you seek for anything outside of the love of God, you seek wide of the mark. You say you need patience, love embodies patience. You say you lack faith, love "believeth all things." Love is the embodiment of all the graces. Therefore get more love.

Have courage to review your own conduct, to condemn it where you detect your own faults, to amend it to the best of your ability, to make good resolves for your future guidance, and to keep them.

God will take care of our troubles; we can rest in him. He will settle all accounts and right all wrongs when he comes.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works; nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Growing In Grace.

Peter tells us to grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Let us take nature as a similitude. After a seed is put into the ground it bursts, and as it receives moisture and warmth it takes root and begins to grow. The oftener it gets nourishment, the quicker it will grow. The Scriptures say, "No man cometh to God except the Father draw him. Now God draws us by his Word and the seed of the kingdom is sown in our minds, and when we understand and love the truth, we obey it by baptism. This might be compared to the bursting of the seed, so now we must take root. 1 Pet ii 1 and 2. Wherefore laying aside all malice, evil speaking, etc., as new born babes desire the sincere milk of the Word that ye may grow thereby.

Let us return to the little plant we have started, if it continues to live, it will send out small green sprouts and leaves and increase in size until a future time when flowers and fruit will appear. Remember, though we only see the outward appearance, the roots are spreading out and growing in proportion to the other part of the plant. After our baptism if we are alive, some signs of it must appear. Our attendance and interest at all the meetings is a good sign of growth, seeking the companionship of those who love the truth, willing to help in the duties or service of the church, denying ungodliness and worldly pleasures in our every day life. Paul told Timothy to give attention to reading, to exhortation and doctrine, to meditate upon spiritual things that his profiting might appear to all.

Our text said, "grow in grace and knowledge," etc. The means then to get our nourishment is by becoming more acquainted with God through his Word and communion in prayer. As we study, we will continue to grow in doctrine familiar with our heavenly Father's will and the power of exercising it.

Paul says to the Col ii 6, 7, We are to be his co-workers, priests and kings in the age to come, and if we do not strive to fit ourselves for it, we surely will never attain to it. There is danger of growing to a certain stage and remaining in that condition. If we try to take hold of the world in one hand and enjoy its pleasures and still serve God with a divided affection, we must look out for the sentence that Jesus pronounced upon the fig tree when he came expecting to find fruit on it, lo, there was nothing but leaves, he cursed it, and it withered away. Jude speaks of such as trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots. We want to be like the tree that is planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season, his leaf shall not wither and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. Do you say, What man is that, why he whose delight is in the law of the Lord and in his law, doth he meditate day and night. Such an one keeps himself away from worldly temptation and enjoys his Christian life.

The only way our roots can grow is by studying the Scriptures and striving to apply them. In them we learn of God's great love to mankind and that love with which brethren should love one another; of the disposition our Savior exhibited through his life, kind and courteous, doing good to all, reviling not when he was reviled. Also of faith and trust, without which it is impossible to please God. As surely as we read and digest these thoughts, they will affect our conversation and conduct, for as David said, Thy Word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against thee. We must abide in the true vine, our great Teacher said, "I am the vine, ye are the branches, he that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit, for without me, ye can do nothing." Another teacher says to add to our faith virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge temperance, to temperance brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity or love. It is not meant that we should add all virtue to faith, and all knowledge to virtue and so on, but these virtues are acquired a little at a time. We must keep up a steady growth if we are to be found in Christ, without spot or blemish, found increasing and bearing fruit for the Master's use.

HATTIE P. SANFORD.

The habit of viewing things cheerfully and of thinking about life hopefully may be made to grow upon us like any other habit.

Announcement.

By invitation of the Argos Church the Annual October Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Argos, Ind. Date is Oct 20 28, and Program will be published later. This is the first of our Conference year. All the arrangements for the coming year's work for the Master in our State are made at this meeting. I hope all the Churches will be represented by delegates. Brethren, commence making arrangements at once to attend that we may have a good meeting.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God of Southern Illinois, will be held at Moriah from October 8 to 16 inclusive. Program will appear later after definite arrangements have been made. We bid all welcome who may come. Anyone wishing further information may write to Lewis Weaver, Route 3, Casey, Illinois.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WANTED—Cosmopolitan Magazine requires the services of a representative in Plymouth to look after subscription renewals and to extend circulation by special methods which have proved unusually successful. Salary and commission. Previous experience desirable but not essential. Whole time or spare time. Address, with references, H. C. Campbell, Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1789 Broadway New York City.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 1 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 300 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowman to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

O Thou, whose Compassionate Care.

He doth not afflict willingly. Lam. iii. 33.

O Thou, whose compassionate care
Forbids my soul heart to complain,
Now graciously teach me to bear
The weight of affliction and pain.
Though cheerless my days seem to flow,
Though weary and wakeful my nights,
What comfort it gives me to know
The kind hand of a Father thus smites.

A tender Physician thou art,
Who wounds but in order to heal,
And comfort divine dost impart
To soften the anguish we feel.
Oh, let this correction be blest,
And answer thy gracious design;
Then grant that my soul may find rest
In comforts so healing as thine.

Christian Fellowship. What is it?

The apostle Peter classifies the followers of Christ as "a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar (purchased) people." This takes them out from among all others. There can be but one Christian fellowship. This fellowship can be among but one class a peculiar (purchased) people. The apostle says, "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Spirit hath made you overseers, to feed the Church of God which he hath purchased with his own blood." Acts xx 28. We are the purchased ones and are distinct and separate from all people. We are the called out of the nations as a people for his name, (the Yahweh name). Christian fellowship can only exist among the followers of Christ. There is a fellowship among religionists based upon one common faith, viz: The immortality of the soul. With such we can have no communion or fellowship. Christ stands at the head of the new creation and is the head of the body, the church. As the head controls the body so must the Christ control the body that is to become his bride. There is but one way by which his body can be controlled. That is through the Word which he has given us. We are to have the mind of Christ. Our thoughts are to be brought into captivity to the mind of Christ. Christian fellowship must rest upon the foundation of faith. That faith must be found in the Word of the living God. No human faith can answer as a foundation for Christian fellowship. Therefore let us note where this fellowship began and under what conditions. Jesus directed his apostles to tarry at Jerusalem until they should receive the comforter which the Father had promised.

This Spirit was to make them competent witnesses of the Christ. They had been with him from the beginning and could speak of his wonderful works and were given power to perform miracles. This power was given them on Pentecost. Upon that occasion Peter declared the true faith. First that the Jews had put to death the Prince of Peace, and that Jehovah had raised him from the dead and exalted him to his right hand. Jehovah had given him, Jesus, all power in heaven and on earth. He also declared that this same Jesus, the Christ, would sit on David's throne. That is what Luke afterward calls the apostle's doctrine.

I desire that our readers note that fellowship is in connection with this doctrine. Then they that gladly received his Word were baptized; and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls. And they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' Doctrine and fellowship and in breaking of bread and in prayer. Acts ii 41, 42. Is it not plain that Christian fellowship can only be effectual in connection with the apostles doctrine? If we depart from this doctrine we fail to have true Christian fellowship. It matters not how honest and sincere we are. We must as true followers of the Christ exclude from our fellowship those who have not this doctrine. How can a member of the Christ body take in his fellowship one who denies or rejects the literal restoration of David's throne. This implies that Israel will again be restored to Jehovah's favor. The kingdom proper relates to the promise made to the fathers.

Again, can we fellowship those who deny the literal resurrection of Christ by asserting that his body was not raised? Further can we fellowship those who deny the efficacy of water baptism? Who state in plain words that they do not believe that baptism is necessary.

I wish to state that to fellowship such characters is to profane the name of the Lord. We have been pained to see those calling themselves God's people do these things. May they see their error and repent of it is our prayer.

The question is often asked, What is Christian fellowship? An agreement in doctrine and practice. Unity of faith and unity of action. Note what the apostle writes, "I beseech you brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." 1 Cor i 10. When fellowship began with the apostolic church there could have been no divisions, as the whole number heard and believed the same day and continued steadfastly in the same doctrine. Here was perfect Christian fellowship. Those who came into this fellowship were required to walk uprightly. The body of sin was destroyed and they must produce the fruits of the spirit and not the works of the flesh. By so doing they continued in fellowship, otherwise they did not. They become diseased members and must either be cured or amputated. If ye serve God, serve him. If ye serve Baal, serve him. Let there be no mixing of the two as Jehovah will not bless those who do. The night of his arrest Jesus instituted a memorial that by it his followers might memorialize the events of his death and coming again. This memorial was given to his apostles and to those who would receive the "apostolic doctrine," and remain steadfastly in it. God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ. I Cor i 9. That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. This fellowship is on the basis of the things declared and believed.

Young translates the word "koinonia" communion or fellowship. In I Cor x 16, 17, the apostle applies fellowship to the communion of the blood of Christ and the communion of the body of Christ. When this was instituted Jesus stated that the wine was his blood of the New Testament which is shed for many for the remission of sins. The bread is his body broken for many. This communion or fellowship can only be effectual to those who are in the Christ doctrinally and obediently. It is our duty to exclude all who do not sustain this relationship to the body and the blood of Christ.

With love to all and malice toward none I am laboring for the crown that fadeth not away.

May 1, 1892, Auntie Willard talked a Miss Bancroft and a Miss Cox, whose institution for the sheltering of helpless little children had been burned, and who had had another purchased and presented to them by Mr. Lippincott of Philadelphia, to be theirs during their natural lives.

I cannot quite understand, but think it was while they were still in the old home, that one afternoon, when they were to have the usual Sunday School, they heard that Mr. Lippincott was coming. "At first they felt that they could not have it in the presence of this gentleman, as they had been very busy and had made no preparation, but Miss Bancroft went upstairs and asked God to help her, and then concluded to go on with the school, trusting in God for help and he did help them, "for that very season was the means of so interesting Mr. Lippincott in their work that he resolved then and there to place his little feeble minded daughter, Daisy, under their tuition and care." "I was the first Mother had to tell home, and he thought their singing and teaching wonderful.

But what if they had not been faithful to God in the performance of duty? "They would probably never have seen Mr. Lippincott again," would not have been helped by the gift of another Home, nor have had the honor and privilege of caring for his child.

May 12th Auntie Willard says, "Perfectly happy this morning. Not a burden upon my mind, no more than if we were all in heaven, glory to Jesus." This experience showed her the meaning of Philippians iv 6, "Be careful for nothing," that is, that "she was not to be full of care for any thing," but was to "let the morrow take thought for the things of itself."

And again, "My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning, I say more than they that watch for the morning." Psalm cxxx 6

"Think of the shipwrecked mariner holding on in the darkness, watching for the first streaks of day, fearing to take the first step lest he fall and perish. So does my soul watch for the coming of Jesus, watch in the darkness lest it go and take a false step, Oh! the surrounding enemies that watch for my halting—'that make a man an offender for a word.' Isaiah xxix 21.

Aug. 21st of this same year she says, "Such a weariness came over me this evening, as I threw myself into an easy chair and wished in my heart that some one else of the six who had assembled for family worship would take my place on the sofa by the window and with joyful heart, lead the service. We sang and Lizzie May—Rowland's oldest daughter—read the 148th Psalm. This revived my sinking spirits and amid my unobserved tears my heart responded to the praise, yet when the moment to kneel came I arose, and with still gushing tears—unmuted I trust—mechanically fell upon my knees, ardently wishing and wondering why some one else could not do it, at the same time reproaching myself lest my unfaithfulness had been the cause. But God came to the rescue and gave composure and freedom and blessing.

The following night I awoke and was wondering over the circumstance, when my vow, made before the Lord, when my eldest son, Nelson L. Willard—was an infant in his cradle—1837—and I, 23 years old, came into my mind. The vow was made upon Ezekiel xxii 30, 'And I sought for a man among them that should make up the hedge and stand in the gap for Me for the land, that I should not destroy it, but I found none.' The question came to me with great force as I sat rocking that infant's cradle—will you do this for your family? 'Make up the hedge and stand in the gap for Me? With much emotion I arose and fell upon my knees over that unconscious child, but three months old and said before the Lord, 'I will.'

My frame shook and my tears flowed as I said over and over again, by thy help I will. God has held me to my promise and stood by me all these years. This is the secret."

This experience of Auntie Willard's so simply and plainly told, is I think, the experience of all Christians. Was it Elizabeth Akron Allen who wrote the little poem, "Too Tried to Pray?"

A like weariness once came over me when a friend asked me to bow with her in prayer, and I said, "O I can't pray now," and threw myself on a rest on the floor. But usually, I find rest in the precious words of the sweet old chapters, and quietness and peace in prayer.

I give these little extracts from Auntie Willard's diary, because they show so vividly the actual hues of her inner life.

The infidel may "watch for the halting" of such an one, and may "make her an offender for a word." But with such tender conscience, such careful keeping o. vows, such holding fast to the faith did not God approve?

Conference Report.

The report of the Illinois Conference has been delayed owing to the absence of the secretary, who was a delegate to the General Conference, and an attendant at the State Conferences of Iowa and Nebraska.

The Fourteenth Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus in Illinois, convened in the city of Oregon, August 17 to 21, 1910. The following ministers were present and divided for us the Word of God: Almus Adams, State Evangelist of Nebraska; L. E. Conner, Cleveland, Ohio; F. V. Blakely, President of Michigan Conference; and S. J. Lindsay and G. Eldred Marsh of Oregon, Ill.

The first service of the Conference was held Wednesday evening, when Brother Adams delivered an excellent discourse on first principles. This was the first time that the brethren of Illinois have had of hearing Brother Adams and was thoroughly appreciated by all.

Thursday morning occurred the formal opening of Conference. After an invocation by Brother Adams, President John E. Cross delivered a short but impressive address of welcome, in which he expressed appreciation of the work done during the past year by our evangelists, local churches, and various auxiliary societies. Especial mention was made of the services rendered by the Bereans and their efficient officers. The work of the coming year was then dwelt upon to some length, and, judging the future by the past, Brother Cross declared the outlook was satisfactory in every respect. After the appointment of various committees the meeting adjourned until Friday at 10 A. M.

Friday morning the Conference was called to order by the President, and after devotional exercises the business of the session was taken up. A committee on finance was appointed consisting of L. E. Conner, E F. Gesin and J. M. Glotfelty. A short address was then delivered by Brother Conner in regard to the raising of funds for Conference expenses, and to meet the unpaid balance on the salaries of the evangelists.

Reports were called for and read.

The Treasurer's report showed a deficiency of funds to meet the indebtedness of the Conference to the evangelists, but before the meeting closed the entire shortage was met, and a small balance remained in the treasury.

The following report was read by State Evangelist S. J. Lindsay and approved by the Conference:

"Annual Report of State Evangelist for Illinois, ending August 20, 1910. Number of places visited 24; number of discourses preached 267; number of funerals preached 8; number of baptisms 35. Collections above subscriptions $542.63. Total expenses $166.83. Balance reported to treasurer $375.80. Amount due for one year's salary $900 00. Amount received from treasurer $310.00. Amount received from quarterly reports $375 80. Amount credited for self $50 00. Amount from Warren Smith $5 00. Amount from S. P. Renner $10 00. Total $750 80. Balance due $149 20.

Faithfully submitted.

S J LINDSAY, State Evangelist."

The following report was read by Assistant State Evangelist, G. Eldred Marsh, and approved:

"Annual Report of Assistant State Evangelist G. Eldred Marsh for year ending August 20, 1910. Places visited 16 Miles traveled 4485. Sermons delivered 154. Baptisms 5. Marriages 3 Funerals 6. Total services 172 Total expenses $110 59. Salary $725 00 Expenses and salary $835 59 Received from Conference treasurer $387 76. From Nebraska Conference $32 00. From Iowa Conference $19 00. Irving, Iowa, Church $8 00. Chicago Church $21.00. Marshall Church $28.00. Individuals on subscription and otherwise $370 00. Total received $799.76. Balance due $35 83.

Submitted in love,

G. Eldred Marsh, Assistant Evan.

Reports from the churches at Lanark, Adeline, Dixon, Oregon, Salem, Morlan, Chicago, Plum River, Ripley, and Antioch were given and generally showed an excellent spiritual condition existing.

The report of the Bereans as made by the President, Sister Anna Drew, told of very good work done during the year, and emphasized the value of this society in furthering the work of the Church.

The Ladies' Aid societies of the various churches reported successful work, and good interest manifested in the welfare of the societies by the brethren everywhere.

A nominating committee was appointed by the President to nominate candidates for the following offices: President, Vice President, and an Executive Board consisting of five members. Adjourned until afternoon.

At 2 P. M. the Conference was called to order in continuation of the business session. The committee on nominations reported as follows: "We, your committee on nominations submit the following report: for President John E. Cross, for Vice President J. M. Glotfelty, for the Executive Board E. F. Gesin, J. M. Glotfelty, F. H. Knodle, Earl Koontz and Lyman Booth."

On motion of Brother Gesin the nominees were voted on individually, and resulted in the following officers being elected for the coming year: President John E. Cross, Vice President J. M. Glotfelty, Executive Board, E. F. Gesin, J. M. Glotfelty, F. H. Knodle, Earl Koontz, and Lyman Booth.

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows:

"Whereas during the past Conference year Sister Andrew of Chana, Sister Ford of Dixon, Brother Mitchell of Lanark, and brother T. H. Lindsay of Oregon have fallen asleep in the Lord: Be it resolved that this Conference of which they were members express their sympathy to the sorrowing relatives and friends; for while they sorrow, their sorrow is not without hope. We recommend them to God and to his Word which is able to afford them consolation through our common hope in the resurrection. And be it resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the families of those who sleep in the Lord.

Be it further resolved that this Conference express their sincerest sympathy and love to their beloved President and his family in their recent bereavement.

Also that it be further resolved that the Conference of the Churches of God convened at Oregon, Illinois, send letters of greeting and brotherly love to our revered former President Brother James W. Wilson, to Sister Clara Chaffee, and to any other invalid members of the Conference body; also letters of sympathy and love to such members as have passed through tribulation during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,
Leila E Whitehead,
Ida Ordnung,
Verna Wood.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions was approved.

On motion of Sister Verna Wood a vote of thanks was extended to the Berean Societies for bedding donated for the Conference hall.

A vote of thanks was also extended to Sister Viola Eaton for her efficient work as matron of the Conference hall, and to Brother Marsh the head of the commissary department.

On motion Conference adjourned.

At the first meeting of the newly elected Executive Board Brother G. Eldred Marsh was unanimously elected Secretary, and William Hardesty treasurer. A petition presented by the Oregon Church that Brother Marsh be allowed to remain in Oregon as local pastor was allowed to pass for the present. A motion was made to engage Brother Marsh as State Evangelist for the coming year, and his salary fixed at $800.00 and expenses. The motion was carried. The following standing committees were then elected:

Finance: E. F. Gesin, J. M. Glotfelty, and Lyman Booth.

Evangelist: J. M. Glotfelty, F. H. Knodle, Earl Koontz.

On motion it was decided that the Bible School should begin on the Monday nearest the 10th day of August, and continue ten days, and the annual Conference to follow immediately after the Bible School. It was also decided that the Bible School should be under the supervision of S. J. Lindsay as heretofore.

The date of the first quarterly Conference for the new year was set for the last Saturday and Sunday in November.

Adjourned.

THE WORD OF LIFE. JOHN VI. 63.

Jesus said unto his disciples, It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing. The Words that I speak unto you they are Spirit and they are life; but there are some of you that believe not. Verily I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life. Whoso keepeth his Word, in him verily is the love of God perfected. Man shall not live by bread alone; but by every Word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Jesus said unto them, I am the Bread of Life. He that cometh to me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst, and this is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son and believeth on him may have everlasting life and I will raise him up at the last day.

What a glorious promise. May we all be there.

BLESSED IS THE MAN THAT ENDURETH TEMPTATION. HEB. IV. 15.

For we have not a high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are yet without sin. He was despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrow, and acquainted with grief, and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised and we esteemed him not. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him. Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God; for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man, but every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lusts, and enticed. The Lord knoweth how to deliver the Godly out of temptation, and reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life a essential for final salvation.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 28, 1910.

IN this issue of our paper is an article by Brother John L. Wince, dictated to his wife who sent it to us. Brother Wince is still quite poorly, and we know that his life work is nearly done and his reward for faithful service is sure. We have no desire to criticise, but only to say a few words that we hope and trust will be taken in kindness and love.

The subject of the article is one that has been up for discussion many times, and that all do not see alike. It seems to us that often much time is given to questions that are not vital to salvation, and that merely give a chance to vent our individual opinion. The conviction in my mind that I am a sinner in the sight of God, investigation to see what can be done to get me away from sin, my repentance, acceptance of the promises of the gospel, yielding myself obedient to God's requirements, living a proper life thereafter in accord with the Divine will—these are elements that enter into my salvation when Jesus comes to this earth again, and the kingdom of God is again established here. Just what will be done with some of my ancestors, who may have been members of the established Church of England, what God will do with the "heathen," the idiot, the innocent little child,—what will become of the man who never had the Bible, or with the man who has the Bible and is blinded by a blind leader and cannot understand it; just whether any or all of these will have a chance, "another chance," or a "fair chance" in some coming age—whether such are all blotted out and never see light again—any opinion I may form or conclusion I may come to, can in no wise affect my salvation. But some brother will say God's Word is not contradictory, and both these theories cannot be taught. One only can be right. Very well, we have no quarrel on that score. What we contend for is that in neither theory is there any element that makes for the salvation of a human being.

We talk about the soon coming of Christ. That it is near, and we should look for him any time. The angel may at any moment herald his approach. Do we believe it? Yes! Then what is our duty? Is it to give vent to some fine spun (to us so perfectly plain) theory that expresses our opinion on some matter that God has kept wholly in his own hands—has not asked us to help with at all? My opinion gleaned from sources perfectly satisfactory to me, that only the righteous will be raised; my opinion that the resurrection will include the "just and unjust" whatever my definition of these terms may be; my theory, so clear to my mind, that "all" will be raised—What are my opinions worth anyway? Does God value them any? If I define "just and unjust" as "righteous and wicked," and this fills out the "all" of resurrection I am asked what about that large and varied class of beings who are not righteous because they never knew what righteousness was, and were not wicked because they never knew what wickedness was. Well, I won't do anything with them. You may blot them all out, and declare that God makes no account of such, that the innocent babe snatched from its mother by the enemy death, is but a blasted apple-blossom, to fall to the earth and rise no more. Or you may tell of the tender love and compassionate kindness and mercy of God and Jesus our Savior, and comfort the mourner that as weeping Rachel was told her children should come from the land of the enemy, so will this babe of yours likewise. With this whole question we prefer to do nothing, simply because God has not asked for it, and therefore we not presume to give it to him. Such opinion from us would have no influence with God anyway, and we are glad of it, for we would not want the responsibility of settling it—we might go wrong.

So brethren, why not continue in the work that Jesus left for his disciples to do when he went away? He wanted them to go out and preach to dying men the gospel, tell them how to get into him and how to stay in him, and what the reward would be for so doing. By this means a company of faithful ones are to be gathered, who will be used by God in the work of a future age. Brethren, we submit to you this: When we have told the things of the kingdom and name of Jesus—the gospel—the Glad Tidings of Salvation through repentance, reformation, acceptance, godly life, by resurrection in Jesus name at his coming—when we have explained this to all men, and have told of the blessings promised for faithful service—when there is no one else in all the world to tell this message to, then we can count our work done, and take up the pleasant pastime of speculating on how God will arrange matters when he establishes his rule and reign on earth. But if we really believe Christ's return in near—very near—seems to us our duty is plain and clear. Preach the gospel that is God's power now of Salvation. Use All the time you have for this work. It is the only legitimate business you have in this age. The next age is in God's hand.

Sunday School Lesson.

The Parable of the Talents—Matthew xxv, 14-30.

Golden Text—"His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things; ater into the joy of thy lord." Matthew xxv, 21.

This lesson follows that of last Sunday—that one teaching us to ever be on the watch for our Lord's return, and this one demands that we employ our time in faithful service till he comes. Jesus is giving final instructions to his disciples, at the end of his last day of public teaching.

A man is going to a far country, and calls his servants to whom he entrusts his business. He gave talents to each according to his several ability; thus recognizing that some have more natural ability than others.

Before starting to study this parable of the talents, it may be well to warn against confusing this with the parable of the pounds in Luke xix. A difference in many points makes it difficult of comparison.

The man going to a far country may represent Jesus, who was about to leave his disciples, and go to his Father. He was fitting the disciples to carry on the work while he was away. The rulers of the Jews had been entrusted with talents but had proved unfaithful, and Jesus had predicted the overthrow and destruction of the city and nation, with dire punishment as their lot. They were to lose the power to become a blessing to the world, and their place was to be taken by those who would be called out by the faithful followers of Jesus in this period when he, as the man in the far country, would be away.

The talent of that time was not a coin, but a weight rather, and there were light and heavy talents, gold and silver. The value in money was about $1,000 or $2,000, and the worth of money then as compared with now, was ten to sixteen times greater, so that these sums given these servants were large.

Jesus was trying to impress his disciples with the weight of the matter in hand. The Jewish nation having proved unfit to longer be trusted with the message of salvation to mankind, the task was to be given into other hands. The Church—the Christian Church—those who would be picked out and banded together in this work—this business—that the Anointed of God was to soon leave in their hands. This Church, this company of seemingly despised men, were to take up this work, and carry it forward.

Will they prove faithful, or will they fail as has the city that lies before them? Jesus is warning them. Will they take heed and be faithful? This whole lesson is on rewards for faithfulness. Not rewards for success—not prizes for great things accomplished. Faithful service, according to ability, is what is demanded, and for this is reward promised and sure.

The man with five talents enters into business with his master's money, and in honest, legitimate trade, doubles his capital. He does not cheat or drive sharp bargains to increase his means, but made good fair bargains, in which both sides gain. Each gets in the trade what he can use in his business to increase his wealth. Such trading, such bargaining, is good for both sides. So this man wrought with diligence, skill, hard work, sacrifice of self, faithfully and with business ability.

For this faithful service what is his reward?

1. His capital increases. His capacity is enlarged, his ability grows. He can do more work, his sphere of action is expanded. His zeal and sense has made him a factor in the business world, and his power is greater, so that while his money has multiplied his ability has increased in a like proportion.

2. When his lord saw what he had done, he gave his approval. Not the added amount of money—not success measured in a financial way—but because he had been good and faithful, his lord approves. He tried, he attempted. For this he is approved by his lord.

3. Having been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things. So this man is rewarded by being given larger opportunity. His sphere is enlarged. Had the Jews accepted Jesus as their Messiah, their sphere of influence could have been enlarged, and they been the means of blessing the world, but they rejected him. These few disciples of Jesus must take up the work, and by faithfulness to his cause their sphere is made the greater, their ability expanded.

Were they faithful?

[illegible] is made Peter, a rock. He denied his Master—but faithfulness afterwards made his death that of a martyr, his later life having been consecrated to preaching Christ. Faithfulness in a small capacity will lead to greater achievements. Faithfulness is not shown in efforts to get ahead of your fellows—this is only selfishness. True faithfulness to God and Christ leads us to want to do more for the cause. More this year than last, this week than last week, now than ever before. This simply means getting ahead of Yourself—not of your brother. Such service was that given by the man who increased his talents, and larger opportunity was given him as reward for faithful service.

4. Enter into the joy of thy lord. Not simply that some little element of joy comes into the heart of the faithful servant. Where the Lord is there is happiness, gladness, peace, joy, and this the faithful servant is invited to enter into. Participate, share in, the same joy the Lord feels. In a small measure the faithful may feel this joy now, but when the Master comes back, and full account is rendered, then fullness of joy will be the reward of the faithful servant.

Besides his increase in capital, his lord's approval, the greater opportunities given him, and participation in the joys of his lord, there is another reward still for the faithful servant.

5. The talent of the unfaithful servant is taken from him and given to the faithful one. He is able by his increased ability to take upon himself more than the real increase of his talents.

The man with two talents, the man with average ability, was rewarded the same as the one who had a larger sum, because he did faithfully the work given him to do. His ability was not so large as the first man, but he was equally faithful in his sphere, and by use his talents increased in like proportion. He was rewarded for being faithful and diligent in his lord's service.

He that had the one talent hid it in the earth, and when his lord came he returned it to him as it was. He explained his action by accusing his lord of being hard and exacting, and reaping where he had not sown. Accused his lord of wanting to take what was not his. Simply of being unfair and dishonest in his dealings. His own returned in full was all he deserved of service. So being afraid to incur the displeasure of such a master by risking the loss of the money in business, he kept it hid.

Were the excuses good?

The Master thought not. He called him wicked and slothful. In his effort to keep safe what he had, he forgot the moth and rust. There was actual loss. He did not do what he could. His own words condemn him. "I knew thee" etc. He admits that he knew his master demanded service.

The little that God entrusts in the hands of the weakest is of value. It is of the same proportionate value as that entrusted to the very strongest. Many a man with but one talent has increased it many fold by faithful service. It will not do for a Christian to sit down, and hugging himself plead that he has enough to do to save himself, let alone trying to save others. We are to be the salt of the earth, flavoring, preserving, purifying those we come in contact with. In a large degree it is true that the idle, slothful, careless workman is apt to feel hard toward his master.

What did this man lose?

He lost his place and found no favor with his master. The talent he had was taken from him, and he lost the opportunity to use it. Even if he had been given another chance, he had lost his ability to use the talent. An unused arm loses power.

What became of this unfaithful servant?

Cast into outer darkness. Why? For lack of service rendered.

Why cast into outer darkness?

There is no other place for him. He brought it on himself. No one but himself to blame. He had the opportunity, but did not use it. He could not be accepted in the company of the faithful ones, because he was not a faithful one. The master would have only faithful servants, so dismissed the unfaithful. He was not a servant, so had no part in the joy of his lord.

This parable starts by saying "the kingdom of heaven is as" this man who went to the far country. When Jesus comes again he will find those who have been faithful—some with five, two, one talent—and each such will be approved and enter into his joy. The idle, slothful, selfish servant will not be permitted to stand with the [illegible]

Take notice. The punishment for not bearing fruit to God, is being cut down—losing power and opportunity to bear fruit.

Don't deceive yourself by saying you are willing to rest your case on the goodness, mercy and love of God. Why bless you! God's Word does not promise goodness, mercy and love to any but his faithful servants. So how can you expect it? If you are not serving him, you have no ground to stand on. To the least is given one talent, and he must use that for his Master faithfully. Then he will be approved and rewarded. Failure in this he ceases to be a servant of God, and opportunity is gone.

What a lesson! How it must have impressed the disciples of Jesus when they heard it.

Obituary.

Mrs. Agusta A. Drew died at her home on Palmyra Avenue, Dixon, Ill. Sunday morning, September 18, 1910, at half-past eight o'clock, aged 70 years, 3 months and 21 days.

Augusta Andrews was born in Dunkirk, New York, May 27, 1840, moving with her parents to Dixon in 1854 from which time Dixon has been her home. Here she was married Sept. 16 1860, to Alvah D. Drew, long since deceased. Six children were born to this union, five of whom survive; They are William D, Mrs. Emma L. Kelly, Bertha A, Ernest Fred, and Mrs. Mercy E. Scott, all of Dixon; a second son, Omar A. died July 9, 1890. Two sisters are also left to mourn her loss—Mrs. Elizabeth Garnsey and Mrs. Alice Rohn, both of Chicago.

Sister Drew was a woman eminently devoted to life's duties. Through 32 years of widowhood she was thoroughly devoted to her family. In this she is rewarded in the hour of death by the love and esteem in which she is held by her children and the further fact that they are all with her in the faith she loved so dearly, and for which she fought so valiantly. Her devotion to her friends has won from them all the well-known title of "Aunt Gusta," and her devotion to the cause of truth has not only endeared her to the hearts of all the brethren, but we confidently believe that in it all she has the smile of God's approval, and that in that bright and gladsome resurrection morning she will be crowned with eternal life.

She but sleeps. There will be an awakening.

The writer spoke upon "the life that now is and that which is to come" to an audience that filled the house to overflowing. We bade her farewell at the beautiful Dixon cemetery, soon to say "good morning" when the Life Giver comes. Children and brethren, let us be faithful. Our God will not disappoint us.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Editor Restitution:

Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, accompanied by Brother George Herrick of Iowa, came to Eastport, Mich. September 13, commencing meetings on Wednesday evening September 14, continuing over Sunday.

On Monday morning Brother Lindsay received a telegram calling him to Dixon, Illinois, to officiate at a funeral. It was much of a disappointment to have the meetings close, as interest was being aroused, and we believe good would have resulted.

We hope to have the brothers with us again some time in the future, and that the good work may be continued.

Your Sister in Christ,
CARRIE CHAMBERLIN.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Let us put each piece of material in the divine temple exactly in its proper place, and put on all the force we have, and the work will triumph. Because of the misplacing of some part of the machinery I have seen a thresher blow and wheeze, and choke down and stop.

ISA. XXVIII 11.

It is sometimes said that no man can be an acceptable minister of Christ in these days unless he is educated for the position. But if by this is meant a certain course at school or college it is not true. Beyond question the more a man knows the better; but the only knowledge essential for a minister of Christ is knowledge of God, and we constantly find men whose education has been prolonged but who are of no value whatever for preaching the gospel. They are like a "dress" sword—smooth and polished and making an excellent appearance on parade, but have no cutting force, and are useless in the presence of an enemy.

During a revival in a certain church there was one humble, ignorant church member who night after night sought for lost souls and led them to Christ. His success was far beyond that of any of the ministers connected with the meeting, and at last one of them said to him, "What is the secret of your power? you know you don't speak very distinctly; you stammer in talking, and I don't see how you produce such an effect." "Sir," said the stammerer, "I can tell you how it is; I just give the Word of God and it don't stammer at all."—H. B. Hastings.

Singing for Health.

The time will soon come when singing will be regarded as one of the great helps to physicians in lung diseases in their incipient state. Almost every branch of gymnastics is employed in one way or another by the doctors, but the simple and natural function of singing has not yet received its full meed of attention. In Italy, some years ago, statistics were taken which proved that the vocal artists were especially long-lived and healthy, under normal circumstances, while of the brass instrumentalists it was discovered that consumption never claimed a victim among them.

Those who have a tendency towards consumption should take easy vocal exercises, no matter how thin and weak their voices may seem to be. They will find a result at times far surpassing any relief afforded by medicine. Vocal practice, in moderation, is the best system of general gymnastics that can be imagined, many muscles being brought into play that would scarcely be suspected of action in connection with so simple a matter as tone production. Therefore, apart from all art considerations, merely as a matter of health, one can earnestly say to the healthy, "Sing, that you may remain so," and to the weakly, "Sing, that you may become strong."

A Cheerful Giver.

In a certain church a man regularly gave every Sabbath five dollars for the support of the church. A poor widow, who supported herself and six children by washing, was as regular as the rich man with her offering of five cents, which was all she could spare from her scant earnings. One day the rich man came to the minister and said the poor woman ought not to pay anything, and that he would pay five cents for her every week. The pastor called to tell her of the offer, which he did in a considerate manner. Tears came to the widow's eyes as she replied: "Do they want to take from me the comfort I experience in giving to the Lord? My health is good, my children keep well, and I receive so many blessings that I feel I could not live if I did not make my little offering to Jesus."

If a man were to offer you today, and no farther, a tract of 160 acres, with a mansion thereon, finished and furnished, for ten dollars, would you make trifling excuses for not accepting the valuable home? Would you say: I am not feeling well, or I am expecting company today? Well, the Savior offers us a home in the everlasting city today, not even demanding the ten dollars, but he restricts the offer to today, and multitudes cast the precious prize away! And many such will soon be sitting on the brink of the grave weeping over lost opportunities, but weeping there will not bring back those golden days.

There are three classes of persons who are not much in the way of the gospel; those in the cradle, those in the asylum and those who have not the courage to speak out in favor of their true convictions.

No man is calculated for every calling, but every responsible man can fill one position.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

At the General Conference Brother Adams, that battle-scarred soldier of the Cross, introduced this resolution: "We the delegates of the General Conference believe that the doctrines of Christ's human paternity, Sabbath keeping, and partial inspiration, are opposed to the gospel of the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, but suspend disciplinary action until the next annual meeting of the Conference." The words "disciplinary action" were very offensive to some; they preferred to have it read, "We will discuss, investigate, these questions at the next annual meeting." What questions? Oh, "Jesus Christ, [illegible] son is he? Are we under the [illegible]age of the law or the liberty of the gospel? The Bible—is it inspired? These are the questions in dispute—the questions from which it is demanded that all "disciplinary action" must be excluded. We can "discuss" and "investigate" them forever, but never must we presume to decide upon them or take any "action" of a disciplinary nature in regard to them. In the words of an inspired apostle we must be uncertain—"always learning but never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." The idea of discussing and investigating these Bible doctrines and yet at the same time exclude "disciplinary action," resolves itself into this compromise of truth and absurdity of principle: "investigate" the question of Christ's Sonship, but do not decide that he is the "only begotten" (Jno iii 16) Son of God, and that only believers in his sonship can have eternal life. (v 36). Such a decision would logically necessitate "disciplinary action"; to avoid this, if you decide as a result of "investigation" that Christ is indeed the Son of God, then you are to grant to all others the "freedom" to believe that he is the Son of any one else they care to imagine! You may "discuss" but you must not decide whether we are under law or grace. And while "forever, O Lord, thy Word is settled in heaven" (Psa cix 89), not an angel there during to question the authority of his Word, but all with one accord "harkening unto the voice of his Word" (Psalm x 3, 20), this question needs to be "discussed" and "investigated" on earth. "Settled in heaven" the question has not yet been "settled" on earth! "Settled" with the angels; up for "investigation" on earth—not "settled" in the Church of God! And the only way proposed to settle it is for every man to "settle" it for himself—and leave everybody else to believe as they please.

From the report of the Nebraska Conference in this issue it will be seen that the brethren of that State voted to "stand with the States and ministers which uncompromisingly take a stand against these heretical doctrines." That eliminates the heretics, does it? Yes. Sorry? Yes; but eliminating heretics does not make me feel as sorry as to see heretics eliminating the Scriptures. Nebraska not only eliminates heretics but all who do not "uncompromisingly stand" for the truth. That "eliminates" many who theoretically believe the truth. The man who knows and believes the teachings of the Bible on Christ's sonship, the law of Moses, and inspiration, and yet with this knowledge of truth compromises it for the sake of dirting with heretics, is a worse man the heretics themselves. They may be ignorant, blinded; but the enlightened man in spite of the light he has acts as if he had no light.—therefore he has the greater sin. We thank God for the "uncompromising stand" taken by Nebraska, Ohio, Indiana, and Washington, and pray that other States may soon see the necessity of standing valiantly for the truth. Jer ix 3.

Organization of the Nebraska Bereans.

During the State Conference of the Church of God, held at Benson, Neb., the young people in attendance met Sept. 8, 1910, and organized a Berean Society by electing the following officers: R. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, President; Mrs. Carrie Free, of Blair, Neb., Vice President; and Z. E. Adams, Holbrook, Neb., Secretary and Treasurer.

Initiation fee, 10 cents; Assessment 10 cents per month.

Only members of the "Church of God" shall be eligible to office.

Duties of President: Preparing of lessons and mailing the same to Secretary by first of each month.

To him all answers are to be sent for revision and returned if not published.

Duties of Secretary and Treasurer: To make a list of membership, mailing to each member one copy of lesson by 10th of each month.

Duties of members: To have all answers ready to mail not later than the 17th of the month. To pay a fine of 25 cents if answers are mailed later than the 17th, with an increase of 5 cents per day.

To pay all dues to the Secretary.

We organized with a charter membership of eleven, and extend a cordial invitation to all (whether members of the Church or not) to join our band of loyal workers and thus help us to further the spread of the gospel.

Any one wishing to join may do so by sending their name and address with the initiation fee to the Secretary. Address Holbrook, Neb.

MISS ZOE ADAMS, Sec.

Conference Report.

The 25th Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Nebraska, was held in Benson, Nebraska, from September 3 to 11 inclusive, with a good representation from all churches in the state, the approximate enrollment of members being sixty. We were very glad to meet with Brother Renner of Iowa. The meetings were well attended by outsiders.

The ministers present were:

Brother R. G. Huggins, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Brother G. E. Marsh, of Oregon, Illinois.

Brother Almus Adams, of Omaha, Nebraska.

Brother M. D. Newell, Blair, Nebraska, President.

Brother John Adams, Holbrook, Nebraska, Vice President.

Sister Alta King, Kearney, Nebraska, Secretary.

Sister Emma E. Davis, Omaha, Nebraska, Treasurer.

Brother Almus Adams was elected State Evangelist.

The following resolutions were passed by the Conference:

Resolved:—That as Divine Providence has called from life this year Sister Lizzie Johnson, of Blair, Nebraska, Mary Wolf, of Boxelder, and Brother W. A. Moore, of Freedom, Nebraska,—We feel deeply the loss of these faithful ones, yet in the midst of our bereavement we know that God doeth all things well, and submit ourselves with perfect resignation to the Divine will and Disposing, recommending to all the example of conduct and soundness of faith of our loved and deceased ones.

In view of the fact that we need able and courageous men to present and defend the Truth, be it therefore

Resolved:—That this conference extends to Brother R. G. Huggins their thanks for his late book, "The Bible, and its Principles and Texts." Be it further

Resolved:—That the Conference extend their thanks to visiting ministers for their valuable assistance during the meeting.

As we believe that the doctrines of Christ's human paternity, Sabbath keeping, and partial inspiration, are opposed to and destructive of the gospel of the Kingdom of God and the Name of Jesus Christ, (Acts viii. 12,) be it

Resolved:—That this Conference stand with the States and ministers which uncompromisingly take a stand against these heretical doctrines, and be it further

Resolved:—That we urge the General Conference to ultimately eliminate these doctrines from the Church. Be it further

Resolved:—That as THE RESTITUTION, of Plymouth, Indiana, stands for and advocates the Truth without compromise, that we adopt it as the official paper of our Conference and pledge to be loyal in its publicity and support.

We feel that God has been with us in the work of preparing a statement of faith and discipline, and that both individually and as a church, we are made stronger and better able to defend the faith first delivered to the saints. We are proud to stand by a Creed embracing the essentials of salvation and based wholly on plain statements from the Word of God.

The meetings, with a few exceptions, were noticeable for the unity of faith and action manifested by the brethren and we hope this is the beginning of a perfect unity of faith among all true followers of Christ.

By the time we convene again we hope to have a permanent conference ground selected and paid for. The general interest shown will make this possible. Almost $250.00 worth of shares has been taken at this writing.

The increase of interest among the members during the past year enables each to begin the new year's work with greater zeal and firmer faith that Christ must triumph.

For almost the first time we closed the year's work, not only without a debt, but with a few dollars on hand. We hope to make still better progress during the present year, for the brethren are becoming more and more awake to their responsibility in pushing the cause of Christ.

That we all may become fully awake to the near coming of the Lord and hence to the absolute necessity of perfect union in faith and action is our prayer. Christ can have no part in an incomplete body. Let us work for our Leader and his principles of government more earnestly than political parties of the world work for theirs—for we know ours are the right and are the only means of bringing universal peace.

ALTA KING, Sec'y.

The Sabbath of the Decalogue.

That a law regarding the observance of a seventh day rest was in existence before it appeared as a law among the ten commandments, we do not deny, but contend that it was. But when and where was it first made known and enforced? Not from creation, nor from the exodus, but from the first day of the rain of manna in the wilderness. We read of the Hebrew people: "And they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came into the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt." Ex xvi 1. From this we learn that one month had passed since their leaving Egypt, and so far not a word is recorded about the observance of a day of rest.

But after this we read that the Lord said unto Moses: "I will rain bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather a certain rate every day, that I may prove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no. And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in; and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily." Ex xvi 4 5. "And it came to pass that on the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses. And he said unto them, This is that which the Lord hath said, Tomorrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto the Lord." Verses 22. 23 And Moses said, Eat that today; for today is a sabbath unto the Lord; today ye shall not find it in the field. Six days ye shall gather it, but on the seventh day, which is the Sabbath, in it there shall be none. And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none. And the Lord said unto Moses, How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws? See for that the Lord hath given you the Sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days: abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day. So the people rested on the seventh day." Verses 25-30.

From these Scriptures we notice, (1) that in verse 23, when the definite article "the" occurs before "rest," and "Sabbath," the R. V. has the indefinite article, "a"—"a rest," "a holy Sabbath," the same as in the text of the 25th verse "A Sabbath." This is because it was the first rest ever divinely commanded, and observed by man.

(2) The count began with the first day of the rain of manna, and not the day of creation. Lastly, that this seventh day rest was never before observed, and was new; because, "there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather and they found none." It was entirely unusual.

This first seventh-day rest, was not necessarily a corresponding or recurring seventh day from creation, but was the seventh day of time since the rain of manna. That the seventh day rest had been commanded and kept from creation onward to this time is not a fact. It is true that God rested the seventh day, counting from creation, but he did not sanctify it, i. e., set it apart, until 2500 years afterward. This is clearly shown by Moses' record made of it. "And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made." Gen. ii, 3. Notice the statement "had rested." Not that in it he did rest, nor that in it he rested, but "had rested;" showing that the sanctification of the day was some time after the rest.

This seventh part of time set apart for all Israel's benefit and observance, was given them for two reasons. First, because they had been in bondage in Egypt, and he gave it to them as a memorial of the deliverance. Deut. v. 15—"Remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord thy God brought thee out of thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm: therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the Sabbath day." That the children of Israel crossed the Red Sea on the same day of the week that was afterwards set apart for a memorial rest, cannot be questioned. Their first Sabbath was on the 22nd day of the second month. But, seven days before [illegible] were thirsty, and came to Sinai. Exo. xvi. 1 And thus, by tracing their journeyings back to the 17th day of the first month we discover that they passed through the Red Sea upon the same day of the week that they afterward observed as a memorial day of their liberty. The second reason assigned why they should observe the seventh day, was because it was given as a memorial of creation; and because God had rested on the seventh day from all his works. Exo. xx. 10, 11.

"The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath," says our Savior in Mark ii. 27. This is another proof that man existed before the Sabbath. It was made as clothing was made for the man, and not man for the clothing, i. e. for his benefit. But what "man" is this of whom the Savior speaks? This "man" is the same "man" that "did eat angel's food," in the wilderness. Psa. lxxviii. 25. It is the same "man" that God talked with, and gave the two tables of stone at Horeb. Deut. v. 1-24. The Israelitish people alone are spoken of as "man" in these Scriptures, and not mankind in general. The Sabbath, a seventh part of time, was required of this Jewish man as a health measure, and as a memorial of their deliverance from bondage, and to remind them of what God had done at creation—resting the seventh day.

That this is the true meaning and spirit of that law, is proven by the commandments being given, not only for them and their servants, but for the benefit also of their cattle, their oxen and their asses. That these "may rest as well as thou," is the Word of the Lord. Deut. v. 14. All work on that day was prohibited to both man and his beast. Therefore God caused a day of rest to be observed after each six days of labor. This law protected all alike, both man and his beast. The commandment made no exception.

But let us go back to the giving of that law At the same time and place, and to the same people, beside the ten commandments, the Lord commanded, saying: "Six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof; but the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard and with thy oliveyard. Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest; that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed." Exo. xxiii. 10 12. "Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year. Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days," etc. "And the feast of the harvest," etc. "Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord God." Exo. xxiii. 14 17.

Now I ask, what right have men to select one out of these several commandments, and say that it alone remains binding, while all the others have been done away? Who repealed the law of the seventh-year-land-rest? Who repealed the law of circumcision? Who repealed the law of animal sacrifices? Did God? If so, where is it recorded? Where has God stated that only one of the above commands has been retained and all the balance have been abrogated? They were all commanded to the same people. They all began together. They ran parallel with each other, and when one expired they all expired. "For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law." Heb vii 12 God gave the law, he made it binding upon the children of Israel for a limited time, and when that epoch was reached he had the right to discontinue it, and this he did.

That the seventh year land-rest was as holy, and binding, so long as the Jews lived in the land of Canaan, and under the Sinaitic law, is proven by the severe penalty inflicted upon them because they violated it. In Lev. xxvi. 34 35 God says: "Then shall the land enjoy her Sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye be in your enemies' land; even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her Sabbaths. As long as it lieth desolate it shall rest; because it did rest in your Sabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it." The Jews disregarded the Word of the Lord as above stated. The punishment came as predicted, and the record of it is preserved: "And them that had escaped from the sword carried he away to Babylon, where they were servants to him and his sons until the reign of the kingdom of Persia: to fulfill the Word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed her Sabbath, for so long as she lay desolate she kept the Sabbath, to fulfill three-score and ten years." 2 Chron. xxxvi. 20, 21. The word Sabbath means rest, nothing more, and here we learn that the land kept Sabbath for seventy years, because they had broken the law of the Sabbath-land-rest.—J. August Smith in "Our Hope."

A Statement of Faith and Discipline, officially passed by the Nebraska State Conference, Benson, Sep. 10, 1910.

WE BELIEVE:—

1. In one God, who is the maker of heaven and earth, and all things therein. Gen. i. 1; Psalms cxlvi. 5, 6; Isaiah xl. 28; Galatians iii. 20; 1 Tim. ii. 5; John i. 3; 1 Cor. viii. 6; Hebrews iii. 4.

2. In Jesus Christ the Son of God, who was begotten of God, born of a woman, and is the Savior of the world, and who existed only in the mind and purpose of God prior to his birth. John i. 34; iii. 18; x. 36; Matt. xvi. 15, 16; John i. 14; 1 John iv. 9; Gen. iii. 15; John iv. 42; Acts v. 30-31.

3. That Christ has the right to the literal throne of David, and at his second coming will sit thereon to rule the world and the house of Jacob forever. Luke i. 30-33; Isa. ix. 6-7.

4. In the literal return of the Jews to the land of Palestine and the re-establishment of the kingdom of Israel. Jer. xxxi; Ezek. xxxvi. 9, 11, 22-24; Acts i. 6 8.

5. That man is wholly mortal and immortality is obtained only through Christ, and put on at the resurrection. Rom. ii. 6-7; 1 Cor. xv. 53-54; 1 Tim. vi. 13 16; 2 Tim. i. 9-10; Romans viii. 11.

6 In the literal resurrection of the dead to a life of everlasting happiness with Christ upon his throne. Job xix 26; Psalm xvii. 15; Isa. xxvi. 19; Dan xii. 2; Luke xiv. 14; Isa. xxxv. 10; John v. 28 29; xi. 23; Acts iv. 2; xxiv 15; xxvi. 8; Rom. vi. 5, 8, 11; Col. iii. 4; 1 Thes. iv. 15 16.

7. The Church, the bride of Christ, will rule the world jointly with him on David's throne. Eph. iii. 6; Rom. viii 16-17; Luke i. 31-33.

8. The earth will be the final and eternal home of the saints. Psalms xxxvii. 9. 11, 29, 34; Prov. ii. 21; x. 30; xi. 31; Zech. xiv. 9; Mat. v. 5.

9. In baptism (the immersion of a believer) for the remission of sins. Acts ii. 38; Rom. vi. 3-4; Luke xxiv 46-47; Col. ii. 12.

10. In the second personal appearing of Christ, at which time will be the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets. Dan. vii. 21-22; Matt xxv. 31; Acts i. 9-11; Hebrews ix. 28; John xiv. 3; Acts iii. 20-21; 1 Thess. i 10; ii. 19; iii. 13; iv. 13, 17; Revelation xxii, 12.

11. That the law of Moses was done away in Christ, and the law of faith established, faith in the promises of God. Rom. x. 4; viii. 1, 4; vii. 1, 4; Gal. iii. 11 12.

12 These promises were made by God unto the fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Gal. iii. 8, 16, 29; Acts xxvi. 6 7; Luke i. 30 33.

13. In the restitution of all things spoken of by all the holy prophets, which includes restoration of life and the earth from under the curse. Acts iii. 19-21; John vi. 35; Rom. v. 17; Rev. xxii. 3.

14 As a pre-requisite to salvation a righteous life. Rom. vi. 22; Gal. v 22 26; 2 Cor. vii. 1; Heb. xii. 10. 14.

15. The Bible is to be our only rule of faith and practice. John v. 39; Isa lxvi 2; 2 Cor. x. 13; Gal. vi. 16.

16. The Bible to be the only true written word of God Mark xvi. 20; Col. i 25; Titus i. 2 3; John xvii 6; xiv. 7.

17 In the final destruction of the incorrigibly wicked. Mal. iv. 1-3; Psa xxxvii. 10, 20; Romans vi. 23.

18. The devil is the personification of evil, each person having in him the adverse principle to good, which is his adversary. Matt. xvi. 23; 2 Cor. xi 14; Rev. xii. 9; xx. 2.

CHURCH DISCIPLINE.

In selecting officers for the local organizations, Elders are first in order. It shall be the duty of such organizations to select their Elders according to 1 Timothy iii. 1-7; Titus i. 5-9. They must be chosen entirely from the standpoint of fitness, and in disregard to worldly position, wealth or any other cause, reminding them of the sacredness of the office, and not to look upon it as a mere honor.

1. Duty of Elders—It shall be the duty of the Elders to look after the Church's welfare in general. To have a general care of the doctrines and morals of its members; and to fail in these matters shall be considered sufficient grounds for removal. Such proceedings must be in strict accord with the Scripture. Matthew xviii. 15 17; 1 Peter v. 1-4.

2. Duty of Deacons—The Deacons shall be chosen according to 1 Tim iii. 8, 13, and shall be assistants to the Elders in looking after the sick and poor, and whatever may be for the good of the Church. The Church must remove a Deacon from office for failure in duty.

3. Duty of the Ministery—Those who preach the Word are not to suppose they have a direct call from God, but shall be sent out or chosen according to their ability. 1 Timothy iii. 2-6; iv. 14; 2 Timothy ii. 2; Romans x. 15 And they are to preach sound doctrine, Titus ii. 8. Be diligent, Acts xviii, 25; 1 Corinthians ii, 4; xiv, 9; iii, 2; 2 Corinthians xii, 15; iv, 2; Mat xxiv, 45; Jeremiah xxiii, 28; 1 Tim iv, 16; 2 Timothy ii, 15. The above Scriptures refer to those who preach the word and must be read by them and by the Church as well, that they may know what to expect of their ministers.

4. Duty of Hearers—Those who hear the Word of God and those who obey should read the following Scriptures: Psalms lxxxiv, 1 4; xxvii, 4; cxix, 18, 11; Proverbs viii, 34; Deuteronomy vi. 6-7; Ephesians vi, 18 19; Acts ii, 38; xvii. 11; Luke viii, 18; Hebrews ii 1; iv, 2; Luke viii, 15; 1 Peter ii, 1 2; 1 Thess ii, 13; 2 Thess ii, 10; Jas i, 21.

5. Baptismal Candidates—The following Scriptures are to be read and studied to know who are fit subjects of baptism: 1 Cor xii, 13; Rom vi, 4; Acts viii, 36 37; ii 38-39.

6. After baptism read the following Scriptures: Rom vi, 3 6; Phil iii, 7 11; Gal iii, 26 27; Rom vi, 22.

7. Prayer—The efficacy of prayer for others and ourselves is taught by many Scriptures, and is not to be neglected, for they who neglect it, plainly neglect their duty. For the forgiveness of a wrong act read Gen xx, 7; 1 Sam vii, 5; xii, 19. The duty of the servant to the people, 1 Sam xii. 23. For good things received of God, 2 Sam vii. 27; 1 Kings viii. 30; 2 Chron vii, 14 15; Ezra vi. 10; Psa iv, 17; Jer xxix, 12; Mat v. 44; ix, 38; 1 Cor xiv, 15; 1 Thess v, 17-25; 1 Tim ii, 8; Jas v, 16; Acts xx, 36; xxi, 5: Prov xv, 8-29. Who the Lord does not hear, Prov xxviii, 9. What we eat is sanctified by prayer: 1 Tim iv, 3-5; Psa v, 1-3; lxxviii, 13. Laughter is an expression of joy or happiness, and is conducive to health, but should never be reduced to giddiness. Life everlasting and a home in the kingdom of God, should be looked upon as a very sober matter: 2 Cor v, 13; 1 Thess v, 6-8; 1 Tim iii, 2; Titus i, 8; ii, 2-4, 6-12; 1 Peter i. 13; iv, 7; v, 8; Romans xii, 3.

8. Meetings—Meeting together must frequently is plainly taught, and must not be neglected: Mal iii, 16; Heb x, 25; Psalms lxxxix, 7; cvii, 31-32; Lam ii, 6; Ezek xiii. 9; James ii, 2.

Superiors in the Church commit a great sin when they take honor to themselves, and should not be countenanced by the Church of the living God: Ezek xxxiv, 2 4; Phil ii, 21; Jno v, 44. To prove worthiness as a superior or leader, one must fulfil the following Scriptures: 1 Peter ii, 17; Rom xii, 10-16; Gal v, 26; Matt xx, 15 27; Prov xxii, 24 25.

These Articles of Faith and Discipline are submitted to the Church of God for unity, love, and good fellowship. As they are based entirely on the Word of God, the human is entirely eliminated, and in accepting or rejecting them we either accept or reject God's Word.

In love of the Brotherhood, God, and his Word,

Leave One Question That Will Come Up.

It is difficult for Bible readers to dismiss from their minds all concern about the fate of the countless millions of Adam's race who died without a knowledge of Christ and a saving name, and equally so of the millions now living in pagan lands without a knowledge of the conditions of mercy. Most thoughtful men have settled the question in a way satisfactory to themselves; some, one way, and some another, some believing that the Bible is utterly silent as to their destiny of opportunity, so to speak, while others hold that a portion of them will be saved, by following the dictates of their conscience.

These quote and misapply a text. According to this theory most all of these ignorant millions will be saved, for they follow their conscience more closely than enlightened people do, but the trouble is, their conscience is badly educated. To preach the gospel to them would imperil the salvation of the majority of them, providing that view is true, so the theory is utterly untenable either by reason or revelation.

There is another theory held by honest men which I think equally unscriptural which is that of the millions of wicked, that only a small portion called apostates, will be held responsible, will come up, or be raised from the dead to meet their doom in the second death. The texts quoted in support of this view are Rev. xx. 5, "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished," and John v. 28 29, "Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice; and shall come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation."

It is confidently affirmed that these two texts prove that only apostates of the evil-doers come up to judgment. Neither text affords any proof of the claim, neither one affirming or implying it. The conclusions are non-sequitors of what does not logically follow the premises. Any number of such conclusions prove nothing. This view is not only contradictory of those texts, but goes directly in the face of God's plainly revealed purpose of Christ's death and resurrection, which is, that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John iii. 16. The word "world" in this text comprehends more than just a few Jews and Greeks and Romans and of the Ten Tribes scattered through the Roman Empire.

There are several texts that prove God's purpose in the death of his Son. One of these is found in Heb. ii. 5, and reads as follows: "But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honor; he by the grace of God should taste death for every man." Every man does not mean a few men, and it is declared in John ii. 2, that "he is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only but for the whole world." Propitiation has reference to sin and its offensiveness to God, incurring his displeasure. It means "to appease." So by means of Christ's death God's favor was secured for the fallen sons and daughters of Adam on conditions to be made known. It is an admitted fact that to the few who were fortunate enough to hear this good news from inspired lips and from faithful men to whom the Word would be committed it meant opportunity of learning the conditions of pardon and eternal life. Now what the purpose of his death meant to the fortunate few, it meant for all for whom he died of the whole Adamic race.

It must be admitted that the world whom God loved could not have embraced less than the living population of the globe at the date of Christ's death, and, reasonably, much more. Taken in a limited sense, countless thousands of these died before apostles and evangelists could reach them with the message of love. Will death of these prove a barrier to God's love and intercept the plainly declared purpose of Christ's death and resurrection?

The only obstacle in the way of God's love reaching them was the lack of proclamation. Death as a contingent is a small matter in the way of God's declared love and purpose. This proclamation must be made at some time, to be accepted or rejected.

"By the offense of one (man) judgment came upon all men to condemnation, even so by the righteousness of One the free gift came upon all men to the justification of life." Rom. v. 18. To use a homely figure here, "The plaster is as large as the sore."

The Adamic sentence is the sore, the plaster is the reversal of the sentence—the manifestation of God's love towards a fallen race. What this grace was toward the few it would be toward the many; to the few it meant opportunity as all admit to hear of pardon and eternal life. It has been said by those holding a different view that the promise of the seed of the woman meant an extension of mercy to a fallen race. It can mean nothing less than the opportunity of hearing of pardon and life, granted on conditions. This involves resurrection or bringing to life the untold millions of Adam's race over whom death has spread his sable curtains. We will leave it to the great Judge, the conducting of the resurrection and judgment scene. He is not obliged to raise all at the same moment. But that he will raise all is not universal salvation, it is only universal opportunity, exhibiting fair treatment of responsible creatures by a self-consistent God.

A Letter to A Friend

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. U. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WANTED—Cosmopolitan Magazine requires the services of a representative in Plymouth to look after subscription renewals and to extend circulation by special methods which have proved unusually successful. Salary and commission. Previous experience desirable but not essential. Whole time or spare time. Address, with references, H. C. Campbell, Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1789 Broadway New York City.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

IN our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will send it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. C. Huggins, 10923 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Poetry.

An Hour With Thee.

My heart is tired, so tired to-night—
How sad seems the storm
Day after day the rain comes
O'er this weary life;
I cease to lay the burden down
That oppresseth me.
[illegible]
[illegible]
Or, lovingly, to rest
The anxious thoughts that crowd my life.
The buried hopes of years;
Forget that life's weary toil
My patient care must be,
A tired child, I come to-night
To spend an hour with Thee.
Dear Lord, to spend an hour with Thee.

A foolish, wayward child, I know
So often wandering,
A weak complaining child, but O,
Forgive me on morning,
And lead me to Thy breast,
Thou who most died for me,
And let me feel Thy grace to rest
A little hour with Thee,
Dear Lord, one little hour with Thee.

What is the Office of the Holy Spirit?

There is possibly no Bible subject so little understood as that of the Holy Spirit. Christendom has gone astray on this doctrine as on all others. It is proclaimed that it is an independent agency by which God is now converting the world to Jesus the Christ. The Word which is the result of the Spirit is of little value in their creeds. The Spirit is the Agent that saves according to their theology. In these last days conversion is of little importance. The "Second Blessing" or sanctification through the influence of the Spirit is sought and believed by a large number of the religious world. That this is unscriptural and God-dishonoring is as true as the Word that our Father hath sent by the angels, prophets and his Son is true. Let us inquire into the Scripture and determine what is the Spirit and its office. In Gen i 2 we read, The Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

In the further examination of this chapter we find that "The Spirit of God" was the power used in the adjustment of the heavens and the earth and the creation of all things. We then conclude that the Spirit was the power used by Jehovah's agents to perform his purpose. The Scriptures plainly teach that the Spirit is a power delegated to agents. The agents that created all things were the elohim or angels of Jehovah. To them was given the Holy Spirit as a power. Is it not written in Psa civ 42. He maketh his angels (elohim) spirits (powers); his ministers a flaming fire. Jehovah has used a different means through which he communicated with his creatures.

1. He sent his angels as his messengers. They formed man of the dust of the ground and made him a living soul. Our first parents were privileged to converse with these messengers as we are now permitted to converse with each other through the Word. They delivered the message and man was required to believe and obey it. Jehovah sent these messengers to Noah and directed him to prepare an ark by which he saved the race. Again he sent them to Abraham stating that Sarah was to become the mother of Isaac through whom the seed would be called. They conversed with Abraham concerning the destruction of the cities of the plains.

Many other incidents could be given showing that the angels of Jehovah ruled the world previous to the prophetic age. One more incident of this character will suffice. In Ex xxiii 20, 21 it is written that Jehovah sent his angel before Israel to keep them in the way and to bring them into the place which he had prepared. Beware of him and obey his voice, provoke him not for he will not pardon your transgressions; for my NAME is in him.

The above all plainly teaches that angels were Jehovah's messengers with the Holy Spirit power.

2. Jehovah has used his prophets as his messengers and to them he delegated power to do his work. It is needless for us to give Scripture in proof of this statement. However we will cite. God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spoke in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son Heb i 1 2. Now Peter declares that no prophecy of the Scriptures is of any private interpretation for the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. This Spirit was the power that moved the prophets as Jehovah's messengers. We wish to make plain the truth that the Holy Spirit has never been used as a messenger, but as a power delegated to messengers who have been real personal beings. Jesus was God's anointed as a messenger to preach the gospel. See Isa lx 1 and Luke iv 17. He was so acknowledged at his baptism. This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him. He was the prophet like unto Moses whom they were to hear. It is further recorded that the Spirit (power) was given to him without measure. Thus far we find that the Spirit has been given to agents as a power and was not an agent as taught by the so-called Christian world. Jesus selected and prepared his twelve apostles as his witnesses who should go out and preach the gospel. They were with him during his ministry as witnesses. "Ye shall bear witness because ye have been with me from the beginning."

They were prepared through Holy Spirit baptism to preach the gospel and perform miracles in support of their commission.

Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. Acts i 8. Fifty days after his resurrection the apostles were baptized in Holy Spirit on Pentecost after which they became Jesus' messengers to preach the gospel and confirm it by signs and wonders and the power of the Holy Spirit. During their ministry they are preparing the WORD which is the agency through which the Holy Spirit is sent to us. The Jews were made recipients of the gift of the Holy Spirit through faith, repentance and baptism into the NAME of Jesus the Christ. They were commissioned to preach this gospel on the same conditions to all the world. Jesus says, My WORD is Spirit and life. The gospel is his Word in which the Holy Spirit dwells and will give to believers eternal life. The apostle says, The Word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you 1 Pet i 25. This is the incorruptible seed. It is the begetting power through which we become members of the Christ body. He that heareth the Word of the kingdom and heareth fruit is his disciple. To bear fruit is to crucify the flesh, for it profiteth nothing. The works of the flesh must be destroyed; now the works of the flesh are hatred, wrath, strife, seditions which must be changed to love, peace, joy and temperance. In John xvii 17 we read, Sanctify them through thy truth; thy Word is truth. These things are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name. John xx 31.

In concluding permit us to say that the world has been under the administration (1) of the angels (2) under the prophets, (3) under the Son (4) under the apostles (5) under the Word or gospel preached (6) under Jesus the Christ and his saints who will rule the world in righteousness and judgment. He who rules over men must be just ruling in the fear of the Lord. Brothers and sisters, let us look forward to that time when we will not only receive the Holy Spirit as the power to rule, but when mortality will be swallowed up of life. When sin and the curse that rests upon the earth and the race will be destroyed and nothing shall hurt in all my holy mountain, thus saith the Lord.

Your brother in expectancy.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES NUMBER 44

Sept. 9 1892, 9:15 A. M., found Auntie Willard at Sister Conley's in Pittsburg, Pa., where she spent many happy weeks revising the manuscript for her book, preparatory to its publication. Its title was to be, "A Voice from the True Vine, or a Record of Leadings and Doings of Jesus in our Household. By Mother." It was to contain the story of her life, many articles from her pen, and lovely sketches of the earlier years of her three grandchildren—Elizabeth May, Clara and Rowland Willard, Jr., but for some reason—perhaps for lack of the necessary means, the book never came out, save as I have been giving it to you—or portions of it—in THE RESTITUTION.

It was a delightful place at Sister Conley's for work of this kind. She could write as she chose in the quiet of her own room, and when weary could come down, and find in Sister Conley a pleased and appreciative listener, ready to help over the tangled places, and to suggest needed alterations in the text. She could enjoy in the evenings the society of the gathered family, could share with them in their devotions, and on every first day could go with them to the place of prayer, and anon visit with them the beloved Brother and Sister Best, of whom mention has been before made in these articles.

Auntie Willard was at this time corresponding with Bro. M. Joblin, who had just written "The Manifestation of God's Love," for publication in THE RESTITUTION. When the article appeared she liked it so much that she sent for quite a number of copies for distribution among her friends. And Bro. Joblin also sent her five of his pamphlets and one of Bro. McLaughlin's which she was highly pleased to receive, being always on the alert to help in every good work.

Sister Sallie Roter was now in Mount Ranier Hotel in Chicago, vainly struggling to secure a competence while the great World's Fair was going on; but instead of making anything, she found herself involved in debt, and was forced to appeal to her foster child—Louis Roter—a nephew of her husband's, to help her out of her troubles, which like a dutiful son he promptly did.

Dec. 6, 1892, found Auntie Willard on the cars, en route for Pierceton, Indiana. On the way she made the acquaintance of Mrs. Frederick M. Magee, of Pittsburg, Pa., and of Mr. D. Clouse of Oregon City—the latter a pronounced infidel. To each of these she soon afterward sent "The Inspiration of the Bible" by H. L. Hastings, but with what result she never found out. We are commanded to "sow our seed in the morning, and in the evening to withhold not our hand, because we know not which will prosper, this or that."

An Englishman recently said, "The New Year's Banner of Israel for 1909 changed the whole course of my life. Before I read that Banner I was an Agnostic, but with such an array of identifications I could not adopt the usual tactics and plead coincidences but simply had to acknowledge the truth of God's Word. My life, which was disgusting in the extreme, was turned completely by the efforts of a friend and the reading of that one banner. May others be brought to study this wonderful subject." Do not be discouraged, dear sisters, Iona and Evelyn. In due time you shall reap if you faint not.

Thomas Chalmers went to visit an atheist twenty four times and was refused admission each time. He went again and the door was opened, the sick man explaining that he could no longer refuse admission to one who felt deep enough interest in his soul to come the twenty-fifth time after having been shut out on every previous occasion.

Great results are brought about only by the most persistence. Thousands of instances could be related showing this to be the constant experience of the devoted child of God.

A young boy went to a deserted church, prayed at stated intervals for months; then God sent a minister. Meetings were held and many were brought to believe and obey the gospel. Then godly women did the same for in an ungodly neighborhood and in due time, the same blessed order followed.

All must say fields have been won by patient waiting. And anyway, "whether others hear or whether they forbear," and whether our fellows are faithful or no, our duty is plain like Anna Willard, we must keep at the work.

I think she reached Pierceton the same day she started from Pittsburg, though it was late in the evening, Mr. Winne meeting her and bringing her out to our home.

She remained with us until sometime in March—seemingly very happy in what she was pleased to call "her other home," the time being spent in further revision of her manuscript, writing letters, reading, study of the Bible, helpful converse, light work, and in sending out literature to rouse the sleeping ones to renewed activity in the cause of Christ.

A new book by Professor Totten had just come to hand, and that we read alone rejoicing together, in that God was fulfilling his Word to the letter. I was studying the Prophecies of Daniel during her visit, and while she was employed at her work, wrote three articles for THE RESTITUTION on "Nebuchadnezzar's Religion and the Image of his Dream." With these articles she was greatly pleased and ordered quite a number of copies to be sent to her friends.

"All things are yours" was her text for Jan. 3, 1893. It was not a fantasy, "All that Bro. Conley, Bro. Best or I," Whose possessed was hers, and she knew not a care about it. She could eat and drink and sleep, go in and out, receive calls and make calls, look upon all, enjoy all, walk or sit in the parlors, help herself to the books in the library, enjoy the reading, no care for the dinner, all brought in, all cared for, no help to hire or oversee, all is mine save the care the toil."

It was a note of praise to God, for giving her such blessed havens for rest and enjoyment.

She was much interested in Omar while here, and said that "it was the resolute laying hold on God's strength and walking in his power day by day, that had made us able to bring him up from almost infancy to manhood's estate;—to speak to him in softest tones and tenderest manner, and to so thoroughly instruct him and throw about him so spiritual an atmosphere, that at the early age of ten years he asked for baptism."

She thought him very conscientious, and listened with pleasure to letters he had written for "The Youth's Examiner" and "Young Pilgrim," and also to those he had received from Mrs. Carrie Williams, Sister Abbie Howard and others. She also enjoyed hearing him read in his own sympathetic voice at family worship. We had established a little Sunday school in our home—partly for Omar's benefit, and in this work for Jesus, Auntie Willard was a pleased participant.

I think it was about the 13th of March that she left here for Plymouth, Ind., to visit the friends and brethren there. She left Plymouth May 5th, and spent the interval up to June 6th at Warsaw and Bourbon, returning at the latter date to Plymouth to attend the Antioch Conference. Bro. Roberts taking herself and four others down. I was not there but she reported it as being a very enjoyable meeting.

She made her last flying trip here the 24th of June, (Saturday) and on Monday, with tearful eyes, we bade her good bye, sorrowing that we should see her face no more in this present state. She took the train at Warsaw that same day—the 26th and reached Haddonfield the evening of the 27th.

Dear Bereans:

The regular attendance at Pleasant View, Warren Co., Ind., is about 12, they run to 21 sometimes. Hope there will be more attendance some day. We have preaching each month by Bro. Joseph Williams of Frankfort, Ind. We have a very good number who never there is preaching.

Yours in the faith.

Dear Bereans:

I have chosen for my subject, The Overcomer. This subject should interest all of us who have named the name of Jesus, for we are all striving to be overcomers.

Now, to be an overcomer, we must know what we have to overcome and how. In Rom xii 21 we read, Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. 1 John v 4, 5, also tells us how to be overcomers. For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world, and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith, who is he that overcometh the world but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?

By these passages of Scripture we see that we are to overcome or conquer evil, the world, or the lusts of the flesh by our faith. There are great promises for the overcomer and it is well to look forward to them but often we need help when we are in the trial or when we are overcoming. In this, as in all things, God is not found wanting. He has supplied us with promises all along our journey of life. 1 Cor xi 13 has always been a very helpful and encouraging promise to me. There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man, but God is faithful who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able, but will with the temptation also make a way of escape that ye may be able to bear it.

Just think, God promises that we shall always be the victor, the overcomer if we continue faithful. We must remember that we cannot do these things by ourselves. Phil iv 13 says, I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

The trials of this life only confuse and bewilder us when we forget God and his precious promises to us. Here are a few of the things promised to the overturner. He, (the overcomer) shall be clothed in white raiment and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels. Rev iii 5. To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the paradise of God. Rev ii 7.

And he that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations, and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers even as I received of my Father. And I will give him the morning star. Rev ii 26 28

To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne.

May we all be overcomers and gain an entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Your Sister striving to be an overcomer.

UNSELFISHNESS

Let us be unselfish, as no one can be a Christian doing the work which our loving Father has given us to do if we remember self. Was not Christ a noble example of unselfishness? In all the thirty-three years of Christ's life he was continually working for others; never giving any thought of self.

When we see some one with a cheerful, happy face do we not very often find that they are thought'ful and unselfish? Looking to the comforts and enjoyments of others rather than themselves. Forgetting self the become contented and happy.

When in our prayers we ask that God's will be done, how many will do God's will, when they think themselves too good to associate with a brother; or will oppress some one who is weak; or has laid up worldly goods? For as Christ taught the disciples in Luke xii 34. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. Are not all of these sins caused by selfishness. To be unselfish is to be ready to do a kindness whenever there is an opportunity. And we need not even wait for opportunities to come for we can make many if we will. Smiling is a great help to be unselfish, for there are few people who are not cheered by a smiling face. Practising, if we forget to frown, then we do not give our smiles only to a few.

Another help is kind thoughts. When we won't think of people's faults let us remember, every good quality instead. For we seldom know what cares and temptations they have to cause them to do those things that we would condemn them for.

God can never help us to fulfill his commandments so long as we will be selfish. Thinking I am too tired and cannot deliver this message of love. Or I am too sleepy, the explanation for the misunderstanding we have had with a member of our family or a friend, can wait. And we often then neglect to do it at all; or wait until it has caused much sorrow.

Love will make us unselfish as in God's commandment: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. Luke viii 27.

Kind thoughts and love will cause us to speak kind words, which are fruits of unselfishness. For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. Luke vi 45. All of God's commandments are for us to follow. So if we know only a few and apply them in our daily life it is better than if we knew every commandment and do not apply them at all. It is not how much we study but how much good we get from what we study. As Christ was unselfish let us be likewise.

Your Sister in Christ,

ELLA BRYAN.

Mary Fish Kauffman died at her home near Springfield, Ohio, Sept. 27, 1910; born in Dayton, Ohio, July 9, 1838, being 72 years, 2 months, 18 days old. She was married to Benjamin Kauffman Dec. 13, 1857. They lived and loved together 52 years, 9 months and 14 days. Sister Kauffman was the mother of six children. Four survive her. Two sons and two daughters, Frederick and Owen and Mamie and Jessie. One grandson Freddie. Sister Jessie is in Riverside, Cal., having gone there two weeks ago. She is an instructor in physical culture. Sister Kauffman has been afflicted for several years. She was the eldest of a family of eleven children. There are four still living, one brother and three sisters.

Sister Kauffman has been a firm and intelligent believer in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ for more than 50 years. None came in contact with her but felt her strong and loving character. The gospel of Christ was to her the power of God unto salvation to every one who believes. She was a true helpmeet to her husband and a loving mother to her children. She was loved and tenderly cared for by all her family. Her hope was that she may awake with the likeness of her Savior. The writer spoke words of encouragement from Psa xvii 15. We are assured that our sister will awake with the sound of the trumpet and the shout of the archangel when our Lord shall descend from heaven to gather together his jewels. May those who have not yet named as name remember that it is the only name that will bring them salvation and the privilege of again seeing the one whom they have done so much for.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the fact "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Obituary.

John Laight Wince was born in Culpepper County, Virginia, December 21, 1832, and died at his home near Pierceton, Indiana, October 4, 1910.

When he was less than a year old, his parents moved to Muskingum County, Ohio, making the trip with wagons, coming along the old National Road that extends from the Cumberland to Vandalia, Illinois. They finally reached a point in Hopewell Township, ten miles west of Zanesville, the county-seat. Among these hills and rocks they settled on a farm, and the subject of this sketch was thus early inured to hard work.

The schools were poor, and boys of that time must work, hence his school days were limited, and up to his fourteenth year he had made but little progress in book lore. He was, however, studious and determined, and when nineteen years old engaged in teaching, and during early manhood taught three terms in Ohio, one in Illinois and six in Indiana. Just before the war of the Rebellion he attended the Columbia City high school for one and a half terms, this completing all the school advantages he ever had.

His parents were not church going people in his early years, hence he was unacquainted with religious ways up to his eleventh year, when he first heard a Baptist minister. With such surroundings what could a young mind do but grope for something in the darkness.

In the spring of 1851, he attended a series of meetings held by a Baptist minister named Benjamin Thomas, who graphically pictured the under world, and his audience could almost see the damned writhing in hell, and hear the screaming of tortured souls. Here John L. Wince "got religion" and was baptized by Thomas. He was ignorant of God's plan, but had a heart full of the desire to be good and useful to others.

In the autumn of 1853 he came with an aunt to Whitley County, Indiana, and during the winter taught school nine miles south of Columbia City, his aunt settling near Clay ville, seven miles west. During that winter two men came into that neighborhood and advocated man's mortality, and challenged any one to find a passage of Scripture affirming the soul's immortality. An honest man such as Brother Wince could do nothing but investigate, and this he did, soon discovering that the Bible taught no such thing. Soon after he got in company with William T. Gaffin and one or two more who had heard these men preach, and with their aid and some books they put in his hands, he got an insight of God's Word that materially changed his views from the Baptist faith.

He returned to Ohio in the spring of 1854, and let his Baptist friends know of his changed belief, but for some reason he was not turned out by them. Coming back to Indiana in the fall of 1854, and hearing some preaching on the fundamental doctrines of our faith, he was baptized, and united with the Church of God at Claysville, and soon after was urged to begin preaching, which he did, conquering a feeling of embarassment, until he became one of the honored and respected advocates of the faith.

Brother Wince was a farmer, and much of his study and thought was done "between plow handles." He was an ardent lover of nature, and by out door life and simple living, no doubt prolonged his life, as he was naturally of weak constitution.

On March 13, 1867, he was married to Miss S. Roxana Chaplin, daughter of Brother S. A. Chaplin, formerly Editor of THE RESTITUTION. To them was born one child, Stedman Philip, who died in infancy.

Of his immediate family he leaves two sisters and two brothers, William and Alfred, Mrs. Mary Young and Mrs. Mattie Smith. These with his beloved and devoted wife, are left to mourn.

Brother Wince was ever of a studious nature, being possessed of a profound mind and deeply reverential. For years he has preached the gospel, leaving his wife at home to care for the farm, he would go to points that could be reached. The Church at Plymouth was for several years his special care.

His life work is done, but he leaves behind an influence that proves the world was bettered from his having lived. He sleeps in Jesus awaiting the trumpet call that an angel from the throne of God will sound to awaken him to a life that will not end, and where no sad parting will come. May the Lord hasten that day. The funeral was held at Pierceton, where a large concourse of friends had gathered, some coming from Claysville, Huntington, Argos, North Salem, South Bend, Plymouth, and other places.

The sermon was by Brother J. F. Wagoner, of Rochester, an old time fellow laborer. The text was of his own selection—"Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ," and was full of comfort for the stricken ones, and of admonition to all who heard it, after which Brother Wince was laid in the grave to sleep until the dawning of the glad day for which we long. The pall bearers were six nephews of Brother Wince.

It will not do to close this sketch without saying something of the last days of our beloved Brother Friend.

He had not been feeling well for a number of months, preaching his last sermon at Plymouth on the evening of January 16, 1910. Last May he got able to go the Sanitarium at Battle Creek, Michigan, for treatment, but was not permanently improved, and returned home early in June, and lingered on through the summer until death conquered. Before he died he talked with his beloved wife and those about him of his faith and confidence in God. He thought of those with whom he had labored, and left words of comfort and cheer for them, urging steadfastness and earnest contending for the faith. He was not afraid to die, so confidently did he rest on the promises of God to bring him back to life again. His wife said that his death was truly a triumphant one. As Paul had run his race and finished his course, and was sure of the promised reward, so could Brother Wince face death, knowing that the enemy could not hold dominion over him for long, but that the King would soon come and break death's power, giving life to all the sleeping saints. Till then we bid our Brother farewell, and pray we each so live that we may have the same confidence, that we will be awakened in the glorious resurrection morning.

The attention is called again to the date of the Indiana Annual Conference next week at Argos. Business of importance should come up, so it is desired that every church in the state be represented. See to this, brethren, and bring in the report of your home church, according to the blanks sent out by the State Secretary.

The king of Portugal is deposed and a republic established. On February 1, 1908, King Carlos and his oldest son the crown prince Louis, were both assassinated, and the younger son—Manuel, was made king. This new king will not be twenty one years old till next month. Trouble has been brewing all the time, and now the navy and part of the army is with the revolutionists. The king and members of the royal household have fled to Gibraltar where they are protected by the British flag, while the new flag of the Republic of Portugal floats over the public buildings of Lisbon. The country is yet to hear from, and may not sustain the revolutionists. Meanwhile bloodshed and riot will be the order of the day for some time. The pope favors the side of the monarchy.

Dear Restitution:

The church at Blair enjoyed a short visit from Bro. Adams from Thursday Sept. 29, until the following Monday, during which time he preached three most excellent sermons, and conducted one Bible reading. Bro. Adams has served us faithfully for more than twenty years as our state evangelist, and was elected again for the coming year. This was his first visit since Conference, and we feel greatly strengthened and encouraged looking forward to the time when, if we are faithful, we may hear the welcome plaudit, well done good and faithful servants—enter in to the joy of thy Lord.

A Partial Resurrection.

The doctrine of a universal resurrection is contrary to the plain teachings of the Word. The whole Bible cannot be harmonized upon this view. Between the two extremes of the resurrection of the whole human family, and the resurrection of none except the righteous, we believe the truth lies. We believe in the resurrection of all responsible men; but, before a man can be justly held responsible, he must have the light of Revelation. It requires as much light to make a man amenable to the penalty of the law, as it does to save him. To condemn a man without giving him a fair chance for salvation, would be the acme of injustice. Christ lays down the standard of responsibility to God, viz: light. He says, "And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil." John iii. 19.

No man can be responsible until the means of light shall have come within his reach. Light and responsibility go hand in hand. One cannot exist without the other. Paul says, "for by the law is the knowledge of sin." Rom. iii 20. Again he says: "for where no law is, there is no transgression." chap. iv: 15. And John says, "whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law, for sin is the transgression of the law." 1 John iii. 4.

The foregoing texts show conclusively, that light must precede responsibility, and law must precede criminality in the sight of God. This position is pre-eminently just. How can God condemn men for rejecting a plan of which they never heard, and concerning which they had no means of informing themselves?

Paul has revealed the destiny of all irresponsible sinners. He says, "For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law." Rom. ii. 12.

These heathen may do that which would be a violation of the law of God, if they had known it, but not being acquainted with the law they are not amenable to it; and therefore not responsible. Paul says they shall perish, and so we believe. They live as unconscious of any revelation from God as the beasts of the field; and like them they die, and that is the end of them. David speaking of this class, says, "Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them:..... and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling. He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light. Man that is in honor, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish." Psa. xlix. 14, 20, also verses 12 and 19. It is positively affirmed that they are "laid in the grave like sheep; that they shall never see light; that they are like the beasts that perish. When all the beasts which have lived since the creation shall again see the light of day, then, and not till then, shall these heathen lords and their countless hordes of subjects see the light. No, inspiration says they shall never see light; and I am simple enough to believe it.

Hear what the Prophet Isaiah says, concerning the heathen lords, who, besides the Great Jehovah, had ruled over his people: "O Lord our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us; but by thee only will we make mention of thy name. They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise; therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish." Isa. xxiv. 13, 14. It is just as plainly affirmed of these heathen dead men, that they shall not live, as it is affirmed of God's dead men, that they shall live, at the nineteenth verse of the same chapter. It is no where more positively affirmed that any dead man has or will be raised, than it is here affirmed that these dead men shall not rise. If the foregoing testimony can be figured away, then farewell to the literal rule of interpretation. The great God says, concerning the princes, wise men, captains, rulers and mighty men of ancient Babylon, that he "will make drunk her princes, and her wise men, her captains and her rulers, and her mighty men; and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not awake, saith the King whose name is the Lord of hosts." Jer. li. 57. How could language reveal more definitely the non-resurrection of these men? It just as unequivocally teaches that they shall never awake, as Daniel teaches that many shall awake, (Dan. xii. ii.) or David, that he expected to awake from the sleep of death. Psa. xvii. 15. The phrase "a perpetual sleep" is equivolent to the phrase, "an eternal sleep;" thus contrasting the sleep of these dead heathen with the everlasting life of the immortalized Saints. If these dead men should ever awake, then the language of him who cannot lie will prove true! Not only does the word teach that a certain class of dead men will never live again, or be raised, but it positively teaches a partial resurrection from among the dead.

The following is the testimony of the angel Gabriel, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Daniel xii. 2. Many sleepers are not all the sleepers. Nothing is gained by using the noun multitudes instead of the adjective many. Multitudes of sleepers are not, by a fair construction of language, all the sleepers. The phrase "multitudes of men" does not include all men, nor does the phrase "multitudes of them that sleep in the dust," include all the sleepers in the dust. No matter, therefore, which of these translations we may choose, a partial, or limited resurrection is plainly taught.

The prophet Obadiah teaches that death resolves the heathen back into their original elements from which they will never emerge. Addressing the descendants of Esau he says "For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the heathen drink continually; yea, they shall drink, and they shall swallow down, and they shall be as though they had not been." Obadiah 16. This text settles the question in regard to the destiny of all the heathen. When they shall have returned to dust they sustain the same relation to the endless future, they would have done had they never existed. Who will affirm that in this case, they ever could be the subjects of a resurrection? Had they never existed, of course they could neither be the subjects of death nor resurrection. Such will be their condition from the time they shall have returned to dust; they will be as though they had not been.

We will now leave the Old Testament Scriptures and listen to the testimony of the New.

Christ teaches a partial resurrection in the very text adduced by some to sustain the opposite view. He says in his discourse at the pool of Siloam: "Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation," John v. 28-29.

If the indefinite adjective all, had been used without qualification, it would obviously favor the idea of an unlimited resurrection from the dead. But such is not the case. The two pronouns are equivalent to the adjective all. They cover precisely the same ground the adjective does. With these limitations affixed by Christ himself, the text would read "The hour is coming in the which all the good and all the bad shall hear the voice of the Son of God and shall come forth. But the heathen world not having had the law, have done neither good or bad, and therefore belong to neither class; they are not the subjects of the life promised or of the judgment threatened; not having the law they perish without law. None, except those who have the written word, and have developed characters by it, are held amenable to law, reward, or punishment. They are neither just or unjust, but belong to a third class, who are no more responsible than the beasts, that, like them, perish.

Paul refers to the same two classes of which Christ in the foregoing verses speaks. He says "that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust," Acts xxiv. 15. But as before shown the heathen are neither just or unjust; they therefore are not included among the dead who shall be raised.

The first clause of Revelations xx. 12-13 is adduced to prove a universal resurrection. "And I saw the dead small and great stand before God..... And the sea gave up the dead which were in it: and death and hell (grave, margin) delivered up the dead which were in them."

But the remainder of the 13th verse which was not quoted, qualifies the dead of which John speaks. It reads thus: "and the books were opened: and another book was opened which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of the things which were written in the books, according to their works." The phrase "the dead" includes none except those who had the written word and developed characters by it.

Can the heathen, who never heard of the books, be judged out of the things therein written, according to their works? Certainly not. Have infants works according to the things written? No. The small and the great therefore must be those of high and low degree, and not adults and infants.

It is claimed, that the destruction of the last enemy, death, necessitates the deliverance of all his captives from his domain; that the King of terrors will live while there remains one subject over whom he reigns. It might be answered, that he ceases to reign when he ceases to kill, or when his ravages shall forever cease. Then death himself must die, for want of food, or victims upon whom to prey; the same as fire goes out when it ceases to be supplied with fuel. Death is not an entity to be destroyed like fuel, or dissolved like compounds. It is merely a negative condition, or an effect whose cause is the most deadly of all maladies, viz: mortality. When the last mortal being shall die, then death itself shall die for want of material upon which to prey. Remove the cause and the effect will cease.

This can only be done by one of two processes, viz: To either make the whole race of Adam immortal, or by reducing all to dust from which they shall never emerge. The first process would place man forever beyond the reach of death. An immortal being may forever challenge the sting of death and the trophies of the grave. In this sense the last enemy death, will be destroyed, (as far as all the righteous shall be concerned) "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. xv. 52-57. Thus, death will be destroyed as far as the righteous are concerned, by having rendered them absolutely invulnerable to his attacks. This will render him as powerless as the scorpion's sting when deprived of its poison.

When all mortal men shall have been made immortal or remanded back to dust, then death can no more exist than it could have existed before a mortal being had been created; for immortality can furnish no food upon which death could live; and when the last mortal man shall have gone back to his original elements, then all the dead will be as though they had not been, and to all eternity will be as far beyond the power of death as the unconscious dust out of which they were made was before the first man emerged therefrom. By these two processes all the causes of death will have been removed; and death itself can no more exist, independent of the cause or causes which produced and have perpetuated it, than a stream can be perpetuated independent of the fountain which produced and supplied it. Destroy the causes of death, and their effects must cease. Sin and the penalty of the law are the causes of death, according to the foregoing extract from first Corinthians, fifteenth chapter; When the law shall have attained the end for which it was given, it will forever cease; and when the last sinner shall have forever perished, and the last sin shall have been effaced from the universe, together with the everlasting impossibility that either should ever again recur, then death, as an effect, must cease, because it can not survive all the causes by which it was produced, and by which it has been perpetuated. This grand and glorious end will not be reached, according to 1 Cor xv 23-26, until Christ shall have reigned, until all the enemies of God and man shall have been put down or destroyed, leaving death as the last in the series. This reign will extend over a period of one thousand years subsequently to his coming, and a little season beyond. Revelations twentieth chapter.

In perfect harmony with Paul, John represents death as having been destroyed after all other enemies had perished, (Rev. xx. 14;) and to show that the destruction of death was complete, final, and irrevocable, it is represented as having been cast in the same lake in which the devil and all his allies had perished, or in which the wicked had died the second death. If this lake of fire is a symbol of the destruction of the wicked, then it is equally a symbol of the destruction of death. If death does not cease to be, then the devil and sinners will not cease to be; and we shall have the death that never dies, and the life that never lives. But if the casting of death into the lake of fire does not denote its destruction, then there is not a symbol in the Bible that denotes destruction. Mark, this lake is or produces the second death, not the first. The latter, instead of being the last enemy, was among the very first enemies which attacked the citadel of man. But according to the Revelator, Christ had reigned for one thousand years, after which he had just consumed, with descending floods of burning fire, the assembled nations of earth, gathered under the leadership of Great Gog; had summoned from all lands and seas the guilty dead, judged them out of the written books, according to their works, preparatory to casting them into the lake of fire—that great symbol of destruction, which is the second death; the same as fire has been the death of millions. Or if it should be urged that the first death will be destroyed at the end of the thousand years, by a resurrection of the dead, it may be replied:

I. That it has been proven that the phrase, "the dead," only denotes responsible men who had the written Word and developed character by it, and who shall be judged by it according to their works. It only proves the destruction of the first death upon this class of dead, and not the unnumbered millions of heathen who "shall not live," "shall not rise," "shall never see the light," "shall sleep a perpetual, and not awake," etc.

II. Can it be said that the last enemy, death, is destroyed just a few hours or days before it recaptures and remands back to the dark prison of death all the criminals who had escaped? Who kills ungodly men a second time if the last enemy, death, is destroyed? How can they die a second time if the last enemy, death, is destroyed? No; the last enemy, death, cannot be destroyed until the happy day shall be ushered in, which immediately succeeds the casting of all sinners, and death and the grave, into the lake of fire; in which day there shall be no pain, or sighing, or death. Did John intend to convey the idea that death and the grave would be cast into the lake of fire before all the millions of apostates and sinners should die the second death; whereas, as many graves will be needed as before they were all thus destroyed? A mortal resurrection, to die again and to go back to the grave cannot truthfully be called the destruction of the last enemy, death, nor be fitly represented by casting death and the grave into a lake of burning fire. The resurrection only gives these ungodly men a brief furlough from the grave. But when the glorious period shall be reached, that there shall be no more death, and no more graves upon this planet, then, and not till then can it be affirmed, with any show of truth, that the last enemy, death, is destroyed, or that there are no more graves as represented by casting death and the grave into a lake of fire. That this blessed era will dawn immediately after the resurrection and second death of the wicked, at the end of the thousand years, will be seen by reference to the glowing description of the next scene which was presented to the holy seer.

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely."

From that bright era onward there will be no more death: for the last enemy, death, will have been forever destroyed. Amen!—J. M. Stephenson, in 1869.

Earnest contention for the faith is scriptural conduct, Jude 3, only we must be careful not to have more contention than faith.

Frank W. Sanford, the "Elijah" of the holy ghosters, of Durham, Me., has decided to sell Shiloh, the headquarters of his sect, and set up his communistic colony on an island in midocean.

The Bible tells us to "avoid," "reject" and "withdraw" from the impure in faith and morals, Romans xvi. 17; Titus iii. 10; 2 Thessalonians iii. 6. "Let them cut themselves off," says the duty-dodger. "Let them die off," says the coward. "Let us do what God says," says the man who "trembles at his Word." Isaiah lxvi. 2.

Some things stick to you no matter how hard you may try to shake them off. By many a creed is hated, denied, repudiated, and shaken off, only to be shaken on again. Not long since a Conference voted that it stood "against a written creed." The Conference no doubt thought that by this action it was voting a creed clear out of creation and existence. Only think a little, however, and you will see that in repudiating a "written creed" the Conference unconsciously and unintentionally but for that matter just as really recognizes, implies, and admits a creed that is not "written." After all, there is your "creed" right along by your side. You can hate, deny, repudiate and pass all the resolutions you please against creed, but when the dust settles, you will see that creed, like the horseleech, still sticks.

Growth.

"Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ," 2 Pet. iii. 18. A creed, we were told by some at the General Conference, is dangerous because it is opposed to growth. Bro. Adams explained what growth is to the satisfaction of all who had "ears to hear." Matthew xiii. 9.

Growth with some means "change." They formerly believed that Jesus was the Son of God; that the law of Moses ended in Christ; that the Bible was wholly inspired. Now then they have "changed;" they now believe that Joseph was the father of Jesus; that the law of Moses is still binding; and that the Bible, at least such parts of it as clash with their theories, is erroneous. Because they have changed therefore they have grown!

If "changing" your belief is growing "in knowledge," then the oftener you change your views the more you grow. No change, no growth; the oftener you change, the more rapid your growth.

Now for years and years our growing "changing" friends have been teaching the mortality of man. They have been preaching this old stale truth over and over—they have not for the last fifty years "changed" on this point an iota—that is, they have not grown a bit! They must feel somewhat ashamed of this. Perhaps that is why they voted "against" the adoption of a statement of faith at the General Conference. In that statement one article says that man is mortal. This they have believed for years, and still believe, unless they have grown out of it recently. Yet they voted against what they have for years believed and preached to be true! Were they to adopt a statement of faith setting forth the mortality of man, they would have a creed on that one point; and as a creed stops growth, and as growth means "change," they would be left without the "liberty" to "change" therefore to save themselves the "freedom" to grow or to "change" from man's mortality to the immortality of the soul, they voted contrary to their convictions!

Brother Adams, I repeat, showed clearly by appealing to "nature itself" (1 Corinthians xi. 14) what growth is. Plant a grain of corn; watch it grow; let "nature itself" teach you what growth is. "For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear." Mark iv. 28. The seed of corn planted grows, and this growth has progress or stages; the blade, ear and finally "full corn." But from the time the seed was planted until it had grown to "full corn," it was Corn All the Time. Corn all the time, but in different stages. The seed was corn, the blades corn, the ear corn. Its growth did not "change" the blades to blades of oats; or the ear into ears of barley!

Suppose one of our growing brethren were a farmer and tried to grow corn as he is trying to grow in the truth. He plants a grain of corn. It comes up and grows "first the blade." He would say: "Strange this corn does not grow; I am getting tired of these 'blades.'" Later "the ear" appears; and pointing to it we say "Your corn is growing nicely." "Growing," he says gruffly, "not at all; I am tired of blades and ears—I want a 'change.'" Then we point to the "full corn" in the ear; but he only says "It's nothing but corn; it began in corn and has ended in corn—corn first, middle, last and always corn! I want corn to grow —'change'"—and to make the change he would have to pull out the corn by the roots and plant grapes; for corn never by "nature" changes to grapes! Such a man would make as good a farmer as a theologian. According to the analogy of nature we may grow in knowledge, not by "change" but increase. We can grow in doctrine only by "abiding" in it (2 John 9); never by growing out of it.

"Till."

"Then his Lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me: Shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellowservant, even as I had pity on thee? And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him. So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Matt xviii 32 35.

This is the conclusion of Jesus' teaching in Matt xviii 21 35. The lesson of the section is that we ourselves are determining by our own course of action the way in which God will treat us; that it is necessary to forgive others if we ourselves would find forgiveness from God.

But the statement, "And his Lord was wroth and delivered him to the tormentors," coupled with the assurance, "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you," has caused the passage to be reckoned by some as teaching eternal torment. Yet neither the word eternal nor any similar word occurs in this passage, and the duration of the torment referred to is carefully limited by the clause, "till he should pay all that was due unto him." If he was able to pay the debt, the torment would cease as soon as payment was made.

The promise, "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you," includes the limiting clause as well as the fact of torment. The paying of the debt, the paying of the penalty attached to sin, ends the torment. The Bible is not vague concerning the nature of the penalty. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ezek xviii 4, 20. "The wages of sin is death." Rom vi 23.

Some tell us that man is deathless by nature and as he cannot die the torment must be endless. But the Bible says that God "only hath immortality," (1 Tim vi 15, 16), and that this deathlessness, instead of being a present possession of all men, is a prize to be sought for (Rom ii 7) and will be bestowed on those who are worthy when Jesus comes. 1 Cor xv 51 55. Believing this, the statement that sinners will be tormented till they have paid all that is due, is simply another way of saying that they will be tormented till they die. There will be suffering enough to satisfy the demands of justice, but not enough to transform the Bible God of love into an unspeakable monster, inflicting endless creatures. It is in the most literal sense a life and death matter whether or not we are following Jesus. —Alice M. Goodwin.

Why is it?

There are some persons who plead, in excuse for their own irreligion, that in secular affairs religious men are no better than other people. If they are not, they ought to be. I believe as a rule, they are. If not, how is it that when a religious banker has been guilty of using securities entrusted to his keeping, the whole country rings with his crime, and there is so much suffering and triumph at the expense of religion itself? We do not make such a stir when a man who makes no profession of faith in Christ is guilty of the same thing. We do not put articles in our religious newspapers, headed in large capitals: 'Doing of an Irreligious Banker.' How is it if a minister is betrayed into grievous sin the scandal of his fall is kept alive for years? If another man commits the same offense it is soon forgotten. Hundreds of men were hung for forgery in the last century; I doubt whether ten of my readers could tell me the name of any one of them except Dr. Dodd. Of the people that fill our jails, that are sent to our penal colonies, that are brought up before the magistrates for drunkenness and disorder, I wonder whether one in a thousand is a communicant in any Christian Church! —R. W. Dale.

Gold Dust.

"The small courtesies sweeten life; the great ennoble it."

"The true calling of a Christian is not to do extraordinary things; but to do ordinary things in an extraordinary way. The most trivial tasks can be accomplished in a noble, gentle, regal spirit, which overrides all petty, paltry feelings, and which elevates all things."

"To those whose spirits are kindred to our own, it is easy to manifest affection; but if daily we are drawing from the Fountain we shall find it also easy to render acts of benevolence and justice to our enemies."

"We are on the eve of the Master's return, who then is standing with his loins girded and his lamp burning? Not sleeping; not at ease; not adding house to house, and barn to barn, but ready and watching to go forth to welcome the royal Bridegroom."

ANNA DREW.

God's Love to Man.

Where shall we go for manifestations of the tenderness, the sympathy, the benignity of God? The philosopher leads us to nature, its benevolent final causes, and kind contrivances to increase the sum of animal happiness, and there he stops, with half his demonstration. But the apostle leads us to the gift bestowed by the Father for the recovery of man's intellectual and moral nature, and to the cross endured by the Son on this high behalf. Go to the heavens which canopy man with grandeur, cheer his steps with successive light, and mark his festivals with their chronology; go to the atmosphere which invigorates his spirits, and is to him the breath of life; go to the smiling fields, decked with verdure for his eye, and covered with fruit for his sustenance; go to every scene which spreads beauty before his gaze, which is made harmoniously resplendent to his ear, which fills and delights his imagination by its glow or its greatness. We travel with you, we admire, we feel and enjoy with you, we adore with you but we stay not with you. We hasten on in search of a demonstration more convincing that "God is love," and we rest not till we press into the strange, the mournful, the joyful scenes of Calvary, and amid the throng of invisible and astonished angels, weeping disciples and the mocking multitude, under the arch of the darkened heaven, and the earth trembling beneath our feet, we gaze upon the meek, the resigned, but fainting sufferer, "Herein is love!"—herein and nowhere else is it so effectingly, so unequivocally demonstrated, "not that we loved God, but that God loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins."—R. Watson.

REVIEW LESSON.

Golden Text—"And it came to pass, when the days were well nigh come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, and sent messengers before his face." Luke ix. 51.

A review to be of any value should be a real review of the period studied. In this case it covers Matthew xvi. to xxv. The time covered is from the summer of A. D. 29 to the next spring—possibly about nine months, and takes in the last of the Galilean ministry of Jesus, the Perean ministry beyond the Jordan, and the last four days of his public ministry in and near Jerusalem.

The last review lesson was July 10, so this review starts with July 17—Peter's Confession. This lesson may be used to impress the necessity of making a confession. It was concerning Christ—Who was he? and the vital point is What think ye of Christ? Peter made a confession, and was blessed for it. Peter had reasons for making his deductions concerning Jesus Christ. Do you have good reason for your ideas of him?

Let us bear in mind during this review that Jesus Christ is our perfect pattern, and we may safely imitate him. Copy him.

The lesson of July 24 was the Transfiguration. Three of the disciples were given sight of the glory that will surround the risen Christ—that will obtain when the kingdom of God is established, and they beheld the King in his beauty. The thought for this lesson was that those disciples with Jesus, were approved of God. Have we God's approval for all we do and say?

July 31, was a lesson on Forgiveness. How long shall we forgive a brother who injures us? The true spirit of forgiveness prompts us to do good to him who wrongs us. Let the heart be full of kindness, love, desire to aid another, and the number of times we forgive will not matter very much. You cannot get clean by throwing dirt at another. There is no such thing as an unforgiving Christian.

August 7, Jesus on the Way to Jerusalem. He blesses the children, and says "of such (those possessed of such traits of character) is the kingdom of heaven." The young man in this lesson had kept the law perfectly, yet he lacked one thing. He was shown what he lacked, but was unwilling to make sacrifice. When Jesus says "Come and follow me" what is our answer?

August 14, was The laborers in the Vineyard. We learned that the Master has the right to settle with his people as he sees best. We cannot choose our reward, nor have we the right to question what is given our brother. The spirit in which we serve is what counts. The words "well done" will only be spoken of such as have really done well.

August 21, Jesus Nearing Jerusalem. Who will be given high position in the kingdom of God? Those who are trained to the required service. Are we willing to be trained? That man is greatest who does greatest service to his fellows.

August 28, Jesus Enters Jerusalem. An opportunity is here given the Jews to receive and accept Jesus as their Messiah. It is their last opportunity in this age. They chose to reject his claims, and now a people is being selected one by one to fill the places God wants occupied. Infinite love could not move these Jews from their hatred of him. Infinite love does not move many now. Has it moved your heart and caused you to enter Christ's service?

September 4, Two Parables of Judgment. A last effort is being made to persuade these unbelieving Jews of the truth of Jesus' claims. Which son in this lesson was approved of the Master? Each was asked to go work in my vineyard. The one who acted—not the one who only professed—was accepted. Faithful servants receive high honor.

September 11, The King's Marriage Feast. Many are called, but few chosen. This lesson is a warning. God will be first in our hearts. Our own affairs must be secondary. No one can get in by "climbing up some other way." Only faithful obedience to the requirements of God will answer. How many hear the invitation and are called? All. How many give heed—are chosen? Only such as obey God's will.

September 18, Three Questions. The Pharisees come with a question to try and trap Jesus, and when his answer is given "they marvelled, and left him and went their way"—beaten fairly. The Sadducees next try it, and by an exemplification of the Golden Rule he puts them to silence. Jesus to end the matter then puts a question to them, and by quoting their own Scriptures so completely gets the best of the argument that "from that day forth" no man dare ask him any more questions.

September 25 was the Temperance lesson that is put in each quarter. The kingdom of God will not be filled with drunkards and revellers. Not one of this sort can inherit the kingdom of God. Only those who bear the fruits of the Spirit can. Each must make a choice.

October 2, The Wise and foolish Virgins. This is a lesson on Preparation. Part were ready, and part were not ready. Watching does not always mean standing on the tower gazing intently, but it has an element of preparation for the emergency whenever it does come. Each duty calculated. The foolish virgins failed to recognize the true value of the Wedding Feast. "The door was shut." Opportunity came, the prepared went in—the unprepared did not get in. The unworthy by their own act are excluded from the feast.

October 9, Parable of the Talents. Talents are entrusted to the servants during the Lord's absence. Reward is not given because of the great success attained, but for Faithful Service rendered. Punishment was meted out for unfaithfulness. The punishment for not bearing fruit to God, is being cut down—losing power and opportunity to bear fruit. Each one is given a talent of some sort. How are you using yours?

October 16, The Last Judgment. Assurance is given the disciples in this closing talk, that a day of judgment is surely coming. A day of separation. One class will go to the right hand—the other to the left. The class on the right are invited to enter the kingdom which has been in the mind and purpose of God from the beginning. The ones on the left cannot enter, as they are not worthy, and are told to "Depart from me." There are but two ways mentioned by Jesus. Each must take one or the other to be considered at all. Which of the two ways do you choose?

Watchfulness, Preparation, Faithful Service. These are what count in this quarter's lessons. Then the end shows a loving warning given, with the assurance that sin will banish from the Lord's presence, and righteousness will bring companionship with Jesus and the angels in the everlasting kingdom of God.

Next lesson The Anointing of Jesus, Matthew xxvi. 1-16.

The Bible School Work.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I want to add my testimony to that already given concerning the work and worth of the Bible School.

To any one whose work calls him out among the brethren as mine does, the need for Bible teaching is made doubly apparent. There is no other work I do in the course of the year that brings such good results as does this work. One Bible lesson, well taught to student with Bible in hand, is worth far more than a sermon through which the student sits passively.

The brethren of Indiana now have a chance to clinch this work for the future and I trust it may be done. To encourage the venture, I will again make the proposition which I made before the school this year. I had already promised to give ten dollars, which promise still holds good, and in addition to this, as long as my instruction in the school is desirable, I will give such instruction free until the school house is paid for.

I do not make this offer for the purpose of fastening my services upon the brethren, but because it is a service I can perform and because I cannot give much of this world's goods because I do not possess much.

I am satisfied that if the brethren of Indiana could have been at the school this year to see the hundred or more earnestly at work studying God's Word, it would have had a tendency to loosen up the strings on the pocket books.

Brethren, "Come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

ALMUS ADAMS,
Evangelist.

It is great wisdom not to be rash in thy proceedings, nor to stand stiffly in thine own opinion.—THOMAS A. KEMPIS.

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen.—Emerson.

The best sacrifices are the prayers of faith.—Hall.

Know Your Own Duty.

There are some people who seem to think themselves very well acquainted with the duty of other people. They are ready to give advice on the slightest provocation. They are perfectly willing to resolve, and legislate, and control the affairs of others; but in many instances they give painful evidence that they themselves are not always clear as to the course which they themselves should take, and the duties which they themselves are called to do.

Every Christian man should know his own duty better than he knows the duty of any one else. He should have such acquaintance with his God and with himself, that he will not wander from the right path, but will be under divine direction and divine commandment. The Lord is very willing to teach us the right way, if we will only walk in it. He will keep us and uphold us, if we are only willing to be led and controlled by him. But it must not be a trial of strength with the Lord. It is not for us to quarrel with the Lord's appointments, nor argue the case with him, nor persuade him that we know better than he does what should be done; but if we will only wait on the Lord, submit ourselves to his control, study his Word, obey his precept, and listen to his call, we shall surely hear that still small voice behind us, saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it; and shall find that his ways are pleasantness and all his paths are peace."—Christian.

A Steadfast Purpose.

There are many purposeless people, who are carried about with winds and drift with the waves. They cannot be depended upon, for they have no fixed, steadfast purpose of heart. Such men make little impression on the age in which they live. They are not anchored, they are creatures of circumstance. They talk of environment, and they yield to the influences which surround them; while the man of God, strong in the strength of the Lord, and full of a divine purpose, is not carried about by every wind of doctrine, or swayed by every adverse current, but rather stands fast in the faith, and is "steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord."

Thus Daniel had a purpose; he "purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself" with the Babylonish food; and God honored him in his purpose, and blessed him in carrying it out, and made him a blessing to the nation and to all generations. So the Hebrew children are strong in their purpose to do right, and to obey God; and the whole Babylonian Empire swung around upon the pivot of their faith and decision. So from time to time down through the ages there have been men whose steadfast and determined faith has held them firm amid the world's allurements and assaults, and they have been strong, for God was with them.

If our hearts are fixed trusting in the Lord, we need not fear the world's opposition, for "If God be for us, who can be against us?"—H. L. Hastings.

King Edward and the Well.

The value of a human being compared with a sheep is determined by the possibility of its being lost. In a small town in Canada during the year of the coronation of King Edward, when the town had been decorated for the celebration and all the people were preparing to enter upon a gala week, a poor and unknown laborer, through an accidental caving-in of a well, was buried at the bottom, but protected by beams which had fallen, so that his voice could be heard. The well was very deep. The caving-in had carried down an immense quantity of debris which must be dug out very carefully in order to save the man's life. The entire town took turns in doing the work. The festivities in honor of the king were abandoned. For several days all interest of the place centered about this unknown human being at the bottom of this well who might be rescued. No one had valued him, apparently, when he was alive and well, but the possibility that he might be saved from death at once placed him in a position of great importance, even above that of the king himself.—Christian Herald.

Something to Think About.

How about that neglected opportunity? What excuse will you give for it?

How much reward do you think you will get for picking at and finding fault with other people?

Would you do what you are doing now, did you know that Christ would come to-day?

It will make you feel better to talk something good about your neighbor than to talk foul about him.

A Gentleman.

A gentleman is just a gentle man—no more, no less—a diamond polished that was first a diamond in the rough.

A gentleman is gentle.
A gentleman is modest.
A gentleman is courteous.
A gentleman is slow to take offence, as being one who never gives it.
A gentleman is slow to surmise evil, as being one who never thinks it.
A gentleman refines his taste.
A gentleman controls his speech.
A gentleman deems others better than himself.

If our principles are not worth living and dying for, what are they good for?

WANTED.

By the Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, copies of the Christian Hymnal, edited by James W. Wilson and F. L. Robertshaw, and published by The Restitution in 1887. Send postal to the undersigned stating how many copies you can supply, condition of books, and price wanted. Address, Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Brother H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

The Restitution is only $1 50 per year. Try it a year.

A Letter to A Friend

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, post paid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult BibleClass meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. Thompson, Sec'y., 544 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

The article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen. Barberton, Ohio.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1.50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

Lelia E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station. Chicago, Illinois.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

The Bible: its Principles and Texts

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible:" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught: the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you homes to The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post office has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper. He failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in The Restitution. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter prited in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" Poetry.

Providence.

[William Cowper was born at Berkhampstead, Hertfordshire, England, Nov. 26, 1731, died at East Dereham, Norfolk, April 25, 1800. He was subject to long periods of mental gloom, which at times bordered on insanity. It is said that he was possessed of a delusion that he would die [illegible] the river Ouse, and during one of these seizures he ordered a cab and directed that he be taken to the river, intending [illegible] A dense fog caused the cabman [illegible] and finally return to the poet's door. That evening Cowper wrote this hymn.]

God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform:
He plants his footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm.

Deep in unfathomable mines
Of never failing skill,
He treasures up his bright designs
And works his Sovereign will.

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take,
The clouds ye so much dread,
Are big with mercy, and will break
In blessings on your head.

Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace;
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face.

His purposes will ripen fast,
Unfolding every hour;
The bud may have a bitter taste,
But sweet will be the flower.

Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan his work in vain;
God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain.

Selections.

[Selected by D C Robison]

A Mixed Resurrection False.

Having shown that the Bible teaches a partial, or limited resurrection, we will now endeavor to prove that none except the righteous will be raised from the dead at the appearing of Christ, or during the Coming Age. A mixed resurrection of just and unjust, either raised cotemporaneously, or during the thousand years subsequent, I do not understand the Word of the Lord to teach. Our Savior's reply to the Sadducees, is, to my mind, utterly irreconcilable with this view. "And Jesus answering said unto them, the children of this world (age) marry and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, (age) and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more, for they are equal unto the Angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Luke xx 34-36

I. The present age is spoken of in contrast with the future age.

II. All who shall be accounted worthy to obtain that age will be equal unto the angels, and cannot die again, because they are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection. It does not read, they that shall be accounted worthy of that age, but worthy to obtain that world. If they obtain that age at all, they will have been accounted worthy, otherwise they would not obtain it.

Suppose the father of a large family of sons, should inform them that they who should be accounted worthy to obtain his estate should have it when he died, and suppose when his will should be read it should be recorded that all the sons had shared equally in their father's estate, would not the primafacie evidence be that the father had accounted all his sons worthy to obtain his estate, or he would not have bequeathed it to them? Just so in regard to Christ; he must consider the unjust worthy to obtain that age, if he raises them during it. But, if they do obtain that age they will obtain the deathless nature of angels. There is no avoiding this conclusion

III. They that shall be accounted worthy to obtain that resurrection, "they shall be equal unto the angels, neither can they die any more; for they are the children of the resurrection." If the just and the unjust are included in the dead of whose resurrection Christ speaks, then we may read these words, instead of the phrase "the dead," and they will convey the correct idea. Let us try it. The just and the unjust will be accounted worthy to obtain that world and the resurrection of the dead; neither can they—the just and the unjust die any more: for they—the just and the unjust—are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection The application of the foregoing position is fair, and the conclusions legitimate from the premise.

That the fifteenth chapter of first Corinthians teaches the resurrection of but one class will be seen in the light of the following conclusions:

I. The Apostle Paul limits the dead of whom he speaks, to those asleep in Jesus. He says, for if the dead rise not, then is Christ not raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. Verse eighteen. Are the unjust asleep in Jesus? If so, they must have died in him; and if so, the Spirit says concerning them "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Rev xiv 13. And Paul says, "If any man be in Christ Jesus, he is a new creature." And again he affirms that "there is no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus." Rom v 1. If therefore, the unjust are asleep in Jesus, then they are blessed, they are not under condemnation, and belong to the new creation. Again the Apostle gives as the reason why Christians should not sorrow without hope, the fact that their deceased friends are asleep in Jesus. 1 Thes iv 13, 14. But if apostates are asleep in Jesus, their friends must sorrow without one ray of hope. These testimonies are sufficient to demonstrate that none but Christians are asleep in Jesus. Paul therefore refers to the resurrection of none except Christians.

II. Christ's resurrection as the first fruits represents the resurrection of none except the righteous. Verse eighteen. In the type to which Paul refers, the first fruits and the harvest were just alike. One was a perfect sample of the other. If the first fruit was pure, unmixed wheat, the harvest was the same, not part wheat and part tares, which it must have been if it fully represented the just and the unjust. Christ is a perfect sample of the great harvest of the resurrection of which he is the first fruit. But, is he a type or sample of the worst class of sinners who have ever lived, viz: apostates? It is blasphemy thus to say.

III. To be asleep in Christ, and dead in Christ, are phrases of the same import. Verses eighteen and twenty-two. If one should be translated by or through, so should the other. To say that the saints have fallen asleep by or through Christ is to make him the author of their death, or rather to substitute Christ for him who has the power of death—the devil. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." A person must be in Christ to die in him, and die in him to be made alive in him. In the next verse the order of the harvest is clearly defined, together with a representation of the class who will be raised when Christ comes. "But every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." Verse twenty-three. If the unjust are included in the dead in Christ at his coming, and if they are "Christ's," then are they "Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise." This is Paul's language in Gal iii 29 We must either abandon the theory that the unjust are included in the dead who will be raised when Christ comes, or admit the conclusion that they are Christ's, and, per consequence, Abraham's seed, and joint heirs with the righteous to the same glorious promises. This will be further apparent as the Apostle moves forward with his masterly argument. Having introduced the similes of different kinds of flesh, and different degrees of glory, among the earthly and heavenly bodies, with which to illustrate the difference in nature and position between the body buried, and the body raised, he then makes an application of these figures thus: "So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption: it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power: it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body." 1 Cor xv 42-44.

If the phrase "the dead" does not include the just and the unjust, then no phrase in the chapter includes these two classes; and if it does include them, then the just and the unjust will be raised incorruptible and glorious, honorable and spiritual; for these glorious promises are associated with all the dead to whose resurrection Paul refers. Again he says, "we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." Verse fifty-one. If the first personal pronoun includes the just and the unjust, then both classes, whether living or dead, must all be changed, and if it does not, then the unjust are not included in those dead ones concerning whom the Apostle speaks. Again, when speaking of the dead in the most unlimited sense in which he uses this phrase in the fifteenth chapter of first Corinthians, he says, "for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible." It matters not how many stages there may be in the resurrection, the dead shall pass through them all, and if the just and the unjust are included, then both classes will be raised incorruptible; both classes may challenge the sting of death—the trophies of the grave, and shout victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. But admitting it includes none except the righteous in the resurrection spoken of in this chapter, and all is plain and harmonious. Then none except the saints are asleep in Jesus; Christ is the sample of none except the righteous, who will be his at his coming—be raised incorruptible, glorious and spiritual, immortal; triumph over death and the grave, and shout victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Again, the Apostle exclaims, "for the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." 1 Thes iv 16 18.

If the just and the unjust are included in the dead in Christ, then they will be caught away to meet the Lord, and so shall they ever be with the Lord. These would be comforting words indeed to apostates. The dead in Christ are all who are raised when the Lord descends from heaven, and they, together with us (having been defined to be the dead in Christ) are caught up, or away, to meet the Lord, "and so shall we (the just and the unjust if both are included) ever be with the Lord." But that none except the just are included is evident, first, from the fact that they had been "asleep in Jesus," or dead in Christ. Second. The Apostle had given this fact, in the previous verses, as a reason why their surviving friends should not sorrow without hope; which they most assuredly could do, if an apostate, just as much as the most faithful Christian is asleep in Jesus; third, because the Apostle tells his Thessalonian brethren to "comfort one another with these words." Every word therefore, the Apostle had spoken, was full of comfort for the faithful believer. If these glorious promises do not belong to the righteous exclusively, then there are none in the Word of God that do.

If the just share in the same resurrection, or are raised at the same time, then why does Christ use the qualifying phrase, "The resurrection of the just," as the time when, and the means by which, those who aid the poor shall receive their recompense of reward? Luke xiv 14. Why not say at the resurrection, instead of this qualifying phrase "the just?" If both classes have part in the same resurrection, then the qualification is not only superfluous, but is calculated to deceive.

If the just and the unjust shall obtain a like resurrection, or be raised at the same time, then why should Paul labor so abundantly, and sacrifice everything that he might obtain a resurrection from among the dead? According to the above theory if he had done nothing but remained idle, or had he only apostatized, he would have obtained a resurrection from among the dead just as soon. These objections rest with equal force against the Christadelphian view of the resurrection.

Next article, I will continue to suggest and notice the texts adduced to prove a mixed and simultaneous resurrection of the just and the unjust.—J. M Stephenson.

Sunday School Lesson.

OCTOBER 30, 1910.

The Anointing of Jesus, Matt. xxvi. 1-16.

Golden Text—"She hath done what she could." Mark xiv. 8.

This lesson tells of a conspiracy by the chief priests and others to take Jesus and kill him. Then comes the anointing of him by the woman who used a precious ointment, and is found fault with for the waste. Jesus then upbraids the fault finders, and defends the act. The traitor makes a bargain to betray his Lord.

Jesus had done all he could to induce the Jews to receive him as the Messiah, and when they persistently refused, he denounced them, pronouncing "woe unto you," for your rejection of me. Now unwilling to repent, they seek to put Jesus out of the way. Those engaged in this plot were the chief priests, the scribes or religious teachers, the elders, and Caiaphas the high priest, who called the assembly which we named the Sanhedrin, together. The scheme was to take Jesus by some trickery, as secretly as possible, so as not to arouse the people. Their determination was to kill him, but they did not want to raise an uproar, for that would cause the Roman authorities to interfere and free him.

Jesus had gone to Bethany, where he was an honored guest at a feast at the house of Simon the leper, so-called to distinguish him from others of the same name. He was likely one who had been cured of the disease by Jesus.

During the feast "there came unto him a woman"—named Mary in other accounts—having a box of ointment that was very precious, very valuable. She opened the box and anointed Jesus with this ointment. John says that "the house was filled with the odor." According to John's account she not only anointed his head, according to a custom at Oriental feasts but his feet also, and used her hair—"woman's chief ornament," to wipe his feet.

Our lesson says that when the disciples saw what was done, they said "To what purpose is this waste?" From John xii. 4, we learn that it was Judas Iscariot who was spokesman and asked the question, saying that the ointment could have been sold and the proceeds used for the benefit of the poor. John explains that Judas was not honest in his desire to help the poor, but as he had charge of the finances, he wanted to get the money into his own hands. Such a desire has caused trouble to many since the day of Judas, and men who are always watching to see if they cannot get to handle the money, are often the kind who are least to be trusted with it.

It may be that the argument of Judas, calling this a useless waste, had merit. To use such an amount of this "very precious ointment" on one person was certainly extravagance, in the sense that it was not necessary. It might have been used to do much good toward the poor who were so numerous at that time. But the value of a rebuke often depends on who does the rebuking. This Judas who found fault is a type of many who have followed since then. Fault finding is usually poor business, and because we often do not understand the motives of our fellows, nor what prompts to an action, we ought to be very careful in this regard. We may get into the habit, and become like the man who saw the mole on the angel's face, but failed to see the angel at all. In this case we have the arguments of a bad man in a good cause. The one who would betray the Master for two-fifths of the value of Mary's gift is here seen pleading for the benefit of the poor. There are men who are to be feared even while they bring gifts. Let us not become so narrow in mind that we see only the faults and failings of others.

How did Jesus like this criticism of Mary's act?

He defends her. Self-sacrifice, humility, showing a strong and lasting love, was the underlying principle that prompted her, and Jesus says "She hath wrought a good work upon me," "She has rendered me a kind office"—Diaglott. Give the words "a good work" or "a kind office" the sense of a noble and honorable work, and see how it helps out the lesson taught. The spirit in which an offering is made shows its true value. It is not so much what we give, but the sacrifice we make to do it. Emotions that prompt us to admiration are nothing unless they move us to acts of adoration.

In this case the woman's act was better than she supposed it was, for Jesus says "she did it for my burial." Jesus had reached a crisis in his life. He was to be himself offered up as a sacrifice, and this act of self-sacrificing love, showing such strong affection, at a time when even his disciples who had been with him and witnessed the wonderful works of his love, could be influenced by the arguments of a traitor—was proof to him that one heart beat true to him. It was a woman's heart, and is another example showing that women are in some respects at least, superior to men.

Jesus explains that in this act of affection for him, the gifts to the poor need not be changed. He would not be with them long, but they would have opportunity to give to the poor always. If the principle that inspired Mary's gift would dominate the heart of man, the poor would have ample aid. It is the lack of love—not of money—that causes the poor to have to suffer.

How was Mary rewarded for her act?

"Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached." This story has been translated into every known tongue, and is told "for a memorial of her." The Pyramids of Egypt are not so enduring as is this monument to the memory of that simple hearted woman. The precious ointment she poured out is an endless stream, whose fragrance fills all lands, and animates the heart of thousands to deeds of kindness and love. A fable tells of a fountain whose each drop of water was the source of another fountain, and so Mary's act of sacrifice is being multiplied over and over again. What a monument to her memory! We cannot measure its scope.

What about Judas the fault-finder?

He felt the reproof. He had failed to get his hands on the money that this ointment would have brought. Disappointed and chagrined he seeks the chief priests, and agrees with them for a fraction of the value of Mary's gift, to betray his Lord and Master to them.

Behind is a monument of infamy, and his name and "traitor" are synonyms.

Dear Brother Underwood,

My time to pay for THE RESTITUTION is passed, and I am glad I can now pay for it, and you will also be glad. You will find the money herewith.

THE RESTITUTION is the best Bible teacher we know of, and we always peruse it well. It is a paper of great benefit to our Church, and it will lend nobody wrong who reads it outside the Church. Oh, let God's Word be our daily bread.

We send love to you and to your family, and pray God to bless you, the paper, and our Church.

Yours in the hope,
S. E & M. E. BAIRD.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Was It This Way?

Ten young virgins start with garments pure and shining white, to meet the bridegroom. All pray "lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil," and start with high hopes for the journey.

Half of them fail to follow the lead, and tread tightly in the tempter's wake. Half? Yes half. Beware! Soon the trembling fear of the tempter's wiles pass away, and they sail forth on the broad way, wasting their [illegible] in fruitless speculation and questionable conduct. Not much wanted for light on that road. Occasionally the conscience gets a bump in making some shadowy pass. Then more oil is wasted in soothing the pains of a guilty conscience, (trying to believe faith alone will excuse conduct). No care for how much is wasted; therefore by the time the oil is out, the conscience will be free from pangs.

Well, they say, we want a good time. We go this road but once, and despise the little old narrow-minded way. We are for freedom and progressiveness.

Imagine their consternation when the discovery is made, why! our oil is all gone and our lights are dying into darkness. The ray of hope is rekindled when they look over to "the strait and narrow way," and see the other five (old fogies) with a firm and steady step, making straight for the goal. They will lend us of their oil. They have kept the strait and narrow way, and ever walked by the foot lights, Psalms cxix. 105, for the sake of having oil, and lamps aglow when the cry is made.

They are a peculiar people. They prize the washing of their robes so highly, they fear to turn to the right or the left of the narrow way pointed out by their Leader, lest they soil their garments.

O! they will lend us oil. They have a care for us, they have suffered with us and for us. They have rebuked, admonished us, and plod with us to keep the narrow way, with our lamps trimmed and ready. They'll not fail us in this trying hour, when we are a part of the body, even half of the party who started out to meet the bridegroom.

Can you imagine the consternation and despair of the foolish, when the cry is made "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" as the five wise virgins, waiting with eager faces, radiant with hope, and with lights brightly burning, waiting for the great door to swing back for their welcome. They scarcely heed the cry "Lend us of your oil, our lamps are gone out." With mind and heart absorbed in coming joy, the answer comes, Go to them that sell and buy, lest there be not enough for you and us.

They go, but return only in time to see the door close between them and the five radiant faces, where the very air rings with angel harps and songs and Alleluias of the blood-washed throng. "Without is weeping and gnashing of teeth."

If we would keep our lamps trimmed and ready, we must make careful research for, and thoughtful obedience to, the Father's revealed will, and be ever watchful.

SADIE SKEELS.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed money order for two dollars. Send six copies of "A Letter to a Friend" to address below. The little book has converted this lady. She was raised to believe in the immortality of the soul, but was immersed a few weeks ago. She asked to have one of the little books sent to her brother, and we thought best to have a few sent to her direct, and the balance to our address.

We are not enough in numbers to support a minister, but we can scatter Sister Woodruff's good sermon, and be thankful she ever wrote such a letter. She will have stars in her crown of life surely.

Yours in the blessed hope,
MRS JOHN HELMS.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, OFFICE EDITOR

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 19, 1910.

This is the week of the Argos Conference. Let all who can attend do so and make it the best ever held in the state.

THERE is at present a current of unrest in various quarters of the globe that portends a mighty shaking soon. Will some able brother who is watching events, give some articles on this line.

BRETHREN, we often speak of some classes of religionists as neglecting certain things that we claim are very important elements. The Coming of the Christ, where all hope is centered. We say we never hear sermons on this and kindred topics from Orthodox pulpits. The statement is true. The breaking of a text is by many popular ministers considered unnecessary. Some novel, or a political or scientific subject, furnishes material for the tickling of ears now-a-days. For some time we have been wondering if the same disease was afflicting "our people." Do our ministers in a large degree follow this same bent? Do our brethren write articles that teach the fundamentals of our faith? We have no articles on hand that are on subjects along the lines of the Gospel. Brethren, there is something radically wrong, and if we really believe the Lord is soon coming, we ought to set about it at once and "get right."

Let us suggest a little. Scolding is not intended, and it has been said that the positive side is preferable to the negative. We need articles on The Gospel—What is it? What message does it convey to us? Penalty for neglect. How is it allied to salvation? Who first preached it? Who now should preach it? The hope for which Paul was bound with a chain—the hope of Israel. How does it relate to the obtaining of eternal life?

The Kingdom of Christ—Will it ever come? When will it come? What will occur then? Will it be a literal kingdom? How far will it extend? The elements—King, rulers, subjects, capital, territory.

Kingdom of God—Is it set up now? When will it be, and where? How is it related to Christ's kingdom. How came it to be overturned? Will it be restored? and when, and by whom? Who is commanded to tell about this kingdom to be set up? What will be done for the believer in this good news of the coming kingdom? What about the man who disbelieves it?

(Please note—It is the ones who believe, and the ones that disbelieve. We may have various and sundry opinions on what will be done with a "big other class." We are only asked to deal with the believer and disbeliever, and if God ever wants us to deal with other class he will quite likely give us definite instruction, just as he has in regard to the first two classes.)

What sort of a being is man? What his nature? Is he now mortal? If so how did he become so? Will he ever be made immortal, and when? Man at creation was given a high position. From this he fell. Does God plan to restore man to his lost estate? By what means? Through what medium? Does he demand Faith? What is saving faith? Is obedience necessary? What are acts of obedience? How do we obey God? What will become of those who deny the faith and do not obey God?

Who are the wicked? What constitutes a just man in God's sight? (We mean not our idea of God's sight—but in the light of his revealed will as given in his Word.) What constitutes an unjust man? The destiny of the righteous—what is it? The destiny of the wicked—what is it?

Is Baptism necessary? Is it commanded? Who are subjects? Is there more than one "mode?" What is the design of baptism? Meaning of Holy Spirit baptism. Does Holy Spirit baptism exempt from water baptism?

What is God? Is he material? Has he intelligence? Has he body and parts? What is his form?

What is Jesus Christ? Is he God's Son—is he like his Father?

What is man? Who created him—when and how? Is he now as he was when created? What has he lost—what does he lack? How can he get back what he lost—what he lacks?

Brethren, articles on these and allied topics, with a long list on practical Christian life, will do good, will build up the body, will instruct the student and seeker, will strengthen and encourage, give us something to hand to those without that will give light. In every way possible to look at the matter, (except one little direction) articles on real Gospel topics will do writers and readers good. To get the benefit of other articles we must seek for a motive that has an element of Self in it.

Brethren, take this whole matter to your closet—lay your whole heart open before your God, and be guided by what is there shown.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 45.

There is sorrow in all lives, testings and grievous troubles that we can tell only to bosom friends and to Jesus. Auntie Willard was not exempt from these, and at one time said "she would be glad when these grieving thorns and pricking briers were passed forevermore," but not once did she falter in the race, the very next sentence being a quotation from the 19th Psalm, "More to be desired are they than gold, yea than much fine gold, sweeter also than honey and the honey comb," alluding to the statutes and judgments of the Lord, and expressing in this very quotation that the delight and happiness of her life was found in these statutes and that the ill was over balanced by the joy. When trials came she "went right on as if nothing had occurred, great peace in her heart and praising the Lord of Hosts in deed and in truth,"—voice and hands ever working together for him. It was wonderful, or would be, did we not know the secret of her peace. Let me copy this little gem from the latter part of her proposed book. She heads it

"NIGHT WHISPERS."

"How precious at all times and under all circumstances, is the Word of the Lord to the believing, trusting heart. At one time it comes in the stillness of the night and whispers to the listening ear, 'Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial that is to try you as though some strange thing had happened unto you, but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings that when his glory is revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy."

"At another, when the heart is bitterly oppressed and knows not what course to take, it comes so soothingly with these words 'Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath; for it is written, Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord. Therefore, if thine enemy hunger, feed him, if he thirst give him drink, for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome of evil but overcome evil with good.'

"How instantaneous the relief this cordial gives! The path of duty is now so plain; shut up to acts of kindness only leaving all avengement to him who will do justice to all.

"How easy now to pray for our enemies; to turn to them the other cheek also, and to go the second mile. We forget the sin and love the sinner, whether he be a worldling or a misguided brother or sister in Christ.

"How this proves the religion of Jesus to be from heaven and not of man. It helps us trace all evil back to its original source—the father of lies, and to know that the erring one is deceived by his delusions and therefore knows not what he does, and like Jesus we can say, "Father, forgive them.'"

"Little deeds of kindness
Nothing do they cost;
Yet when they are wanting
Life's best charm is lost.

Little deeds of kindness
(Richest gems on earth)
Though they seem but trifles,
Priceless is their worth."

"MAKE YOUR RECORD CLEAN,"

is another gem from her pen, that I am sure will be helpful to my readers both young and old.

"Make your record clean." These are said to have been the last words of John B. Gough.

Make your record clean, first for yourselves, and then by example and precept, help others. I set example first. Precept is usually set first, but to me, example comes first. Your precept may be good, but if your example kills it the precept falls to the ground and all is lost.

We are doing a great work! Think not that I now refer to the saving of drunkards or any one else but ourselves.

Beloved sisters, what kind of lives are we living at home? What do they think of us at home? O how deeply has this thought laid itself upon me for the past year! and how every power of my soul has been brought to consider this matter and to lay it out before me as my first and great work, moment by moment, hour by hour, day by day." Children to live before, grand children,—quick and sharp, watching every word and look, without experience to make allowances, —to live before, and above all, a God to live before who knows the thoughts and intents of the heart.

Day by day we are building our house upon the sand or upon the Rock! We are doing it; we are actually doing it. Now which is it? What kind of a record does every day tell for us individually? Scolding, fretting, murmuring, censuring all about us, making the worst instead of the best of everything? Turning things into bitterness and gall and making heart-aches? Is this our record, christ! the reverse of all this? Is the eye glad when it sees us and the ear when it hears us? Does our presence give relief and comfort instead of fear and dread [illegible] living hap-hazard lives hoping [illegible] later sometime in the future? Ah! this will never do. It is satan's snare to wake us up to ruin when our house falls upon our heads in the great judgment hour—now fast approaching. "Awake to righteousness and sin not." This beloved, I am endeavoring to do, yet "I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Now as to evangelistic work; this by the grace of God, is the joy and rejoicing of my heart. It begins in my family which consists of my son, his wife and their three children. We have regular morning and evening service of reading the Scriptures, singing and prayer. We all read in the morning—except the youngest—in the New Testament; in the evening, in the Old Testament, one only reading.

This latter service is especially gratifying to the children, 'Read more, read more' is often their earnest cry.

By a simple method following the morning service they have memorized many portions of Scriptures without effort to themselves.—for instance the Beatitudes or a Psalm—reading them over in concert until they can repeat them. It is surprising how soon they are able to do this. These portions of Scripture are very convenient to repeat in the evenings when we are weary or time is limited. Pray for us, my beloved sisters, that in the day of the Lord we may be found on the right hand of the Judge of quick and dead, having been faithful in that which is least."

Selections.

The Resurrection.

"If a man die, shall he live again?" Job xiv. 14.

The language of the Bible is so explicit, so clear, full and complete on this point, that we hardly need to multiply words by way of argument, when we have more than one "thus saith the Lord," and if any believe not this testimony, it will be too late for their benefit when they are convinced by the evidence of their senses, when they are eye-witnesses of the resurrection.

The testimony of Job is to the effect that he is fully assured of final deliverance from the state of death, though he says, "If I wait, the grave is mine house." And though in the grave his body should be destroyed, yet he says "in my flesh shall I see God whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another." In Isaiah xxvi. 19, we read "thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."

By Hosea also the Lord speaks and says: "I will ransom them from the power of the grave, I will redeem them from death; Oh, death, I will be thy plagues; Oh, grave, I will be thy destruction." Hosea xiii. 14. Behold, oh my people, I will open your graves and cause you to come up out of your graves And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, oh my people, and have brought you up out of your graves, and shall put my Spirit in you and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land." Ezekiel xxxvii. 12-13. Daniel is also assured that after a season of rest (in the grave) he shall stand in his lot, at the end of his days.

At the grave of Lazarus, Jesus said to Martha "thy brother shall rise again, in the resurrection at the last day." Jesus said unto her, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

When the Jews were persecuting Jesus, and seeking to kill him, he declared to them this doctrine of the resurrection, and said, "marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation," John v. 28, 29.

The language of Daniel, also, corresponds with this, when speaking of them that sleep in the dust of the earth, he says they "shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."—Daniel xii. 2.

When Paul was pleading his cause against his accusers, before Felix he said I have hope toward God (which they themselves also allow) that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust."—Acts xxiv. 11-15.

Let us labor that we may not fail of the grace of God, and that we may have a part in the "First Resurrection."

With All Boldness.

There are chains that enslave the preacher. His tenderness makes him weak. His attachments bring him in bondage. His personal intercourse, his obligations to his people, all tend to hamper his freedom and restrain his deliverances. The prophets were charged not to be afraid of men's faces. Unawed they were to declare God's truth without apology, timidity, hesitancy, or compromise. The warmth and freedom of conviction and sincerity, the fearlessness of a vigorous faith, above all the power of the Holy Ghost, are helpers and elements in boldness.

Meekness and humility are virtues of the first importance in the preacher, but these do not militate against boldness. This boldness is not the freedom of passionate utterances. It is not scolding. It speaks the truth in love. Boldness is not rudeness; roughness dishonors it. It is as gentle as a mother with her babe. Fear, in the mild and innocent form of timidity, or in the criminal form of cowardice, has no place in the true ministry; humble, but holy boldness, is of first importance.—St. Louis Advocate.

Great Blunders.

In the Crerar Library, Chicago, five hundred different persons have written down their "Great Blunders in Life," and the following are a few of them that are worthy the consideration of our young people:—

"The greatest blunder in my life was gambling."

"Was to fool away my time when at school."

"Not keeping my position, but grew slack in my work."

"Thinking that my boss could not get along without me."

"Refusing a steady position with a good firm."

"Would not listen to the advice of others."

"Not saving my money when I was young."

"Beating some one out of money."

"Did not not stick to anything."

"Careless about religious duties."

A reckless man in a Zoological Garden once seized a venomous serpent by the nape of the neck, and held it up before his companions. The man thought he had the serpent wholly in his power. But it began to coil its long body about his arm, and then slowly tighten its grasp till the man in agony was obliged to drop his hold of its neck. Quickly then it turned and bit him, and soon the man was dead. He thought he was strong enough to play with the serpent and then thrust it from him when wearied of the play. Many think they are strong enough to play with temptation of any sort, but they find sooner or later, that the temptation has mastered them. "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation," said Christ. It is entering into temptation which is to be guarded against.—Tarbell.

A man's time when well husbanded, is like a cultivated field, of which a few acres produce more of what is useful to life than extensive promises, even of the richest soil, when overrun with weeds and brambles.—Hume.

The End of the Wicked.

What shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God? No question more solemn and important than this. Every unconverted person has a vital interest in it, whether they realize it or not. Let us search the Scriptures of truth reverently and in godly fear, for an answer. David was once very much interested in this question, and almost backslid when he saw the prosperity of the wicked how they increased in and had everything heart could wish; he could not understand it until he went into the sanctuary of God, when the end of the wicked was revealed to him. "Surely thou didst set them in slippery places; thou castest them down into destruction." Psa lxxv 18. Read the entire Psalm and see what God revealed to David concerning the end of the wicked.

In the thirty-seventh Psalm we are told that "the workers of iniquity shall soon be cut down as the grass and wither as the green herb;" that the evil-doers shall be cut off.) but the arms of the wicked shall be broken; that the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs; they shall consume into smoke; that the transgressors shall be destroyed together. This language does not sound much like the wicked being preserved so that they can live forever in conscious suffering. The word perish is used in more than twenty texts to represent the end of the wicked. In the Bible the word perish always implies death, corruption, destruction, and loss of being. Peter tells us that the wicked shall "perish in their own corruption." Jesus also said of certain ones: "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Jesus came into the world to open a way to save men from perishing. Jno iii 16.

Again, in thirty texts we are told that God will destroy the wicked. To destroy means "to demolish; to ruin; to annihilate; to bring to naught; to kill; to put an end to." The wicked can escape destruction by forsaking his way and accepting God's offer of salvation and receive an abundant pardon for his past sins and have the blessed prospect of eternal life.

Eleven times in the Scriptures we are told that the wicked will be devoured. This word, when applied to the wicked, implies their total consumption. Once more the wicked are to be consumed. To consume, implies to waste away; to cause to pass away; to burn up. Twenty times is the word consumed used in regard to the wicked. This language may sound harsh to some, but they are plain statements of Scripture. To spiritualize them does not improve matters, so we had better take them at their face value.

God has told us that he has no pleasure in the wicked, but that he should turn from his wickedness and live. God sent his Son to save men from all these things, that by believing him they might not perish but have everlasting life. Reader, which will you have? Life or death? May God, in his mercy, help you to decide aright.—Herald of Life.

Have You Engaged Him?

When one goes to a lawyer to engage him in a case, it is not expected he will make an eloquent oration. A simple statement of facts is all that is requisite. This may be given in broken sentences and ungrammatical expressions; it is the advocate's duty to put things in order, and do the best he can for his client. So it is with us in our approach to Christ—the appointed and recognized "Advocate with the Father." Our prayers may be broken and language weak, but if we put our case in his hands and leave it there, all will be well.

Important to Remember.

This world is too small to afford a place of safety to the man who disobeys God.

The more faith men have in God the more faith they will have in one another.

To persuade one soul to lead a better life is to leave the world better than you found it.

It is hard to find people who are willing to give up some sins, but the tug comes when they are asked to give up all sin.

If there were any chance for salvation after death, the devil would'nt work so hard to get men to put off praying until the last minute.

Grace and glory differ but as the bud and blossom. What is grace but glory begun? What is glory but grace perfected!—Mason.

Enough for Him.

A gentleman accustomed to take his morning glass, stepped up to the bar of a saloon and called for whiskey. A seedy individual stepped up to him and said:

"I say, squire, can't you ask an unfortunate fellow to join you?"

"I am not in the habit of drinking with tramps," was the answer.

The tramp replied:

"You need not be so cranky, my friend. I venture to say that I am of just as good family as you are, have just as good an education, and before I took to drink was just as respectable as you are. What is more, I always knew how to set the gentleman. Take my word for it, you stick to whiskey and it will bring you to just the same place as I am."

The gentleman set down his glass and turned to look at the tramp.

His eyes were bloodshot, his nose blunted, his boots unmated, his clothing filthy.

"Was it drink that made you like this?"

"Yes, it was; and it will bring you to the same if you stick to it."

Picking up his untouched glass, he poured its contents upon the floor, and said, "Then it is time I quit!" and left the saloon.

The Crystal Depths.

There are ponds in the woods of the North whose waters are so clear, and whose bottoms are so clean, that they can with truth be called great pools. I have gone to them every year, not to fish in them, not to hunt their shores, but simply to gaze into them. I have gone to them by day, to see the mountains in them; to see the sun and the sky, and the white clouds; the trees on the borders, and the flecked rocks that line their banks. I have gone to them at night to see the stars and the moon, and the dark blue mystery of the firmament when the brightness of its cerulean, gleam as it glistens at noonday, was tempered and shaded to a sober and more grateful tone. And in these pools—these great pier-glass mirrors of nature—leaning over the sides of my boat, I have seen the world and the sky stand out with a splendor, a beauty, a suggestiveness of appearance, that the open vision of the day could not bring me.

The New Testament is such a pool, in the spiritual world. The great mountain-like truths of God's being and conduct; the evergreen growths of his daily providences; the sober but majestic fulfillments of the old prophecies; the star-like facts of life; the blue dome of the destiny of the race; yea, and the cloud-like passages of his eternal decrees, lifted high above human analysis, moved on by invisible currents of his ordering, all these are reflected from the pure depths of the teachings of Jesus. And all these you can see, I can see, all men can see, if they will but contemplate with earnest, prayerful, soul-seeking vision the sayings of the Son of Man.—W. H. H. Murray.

When We Dislike Others.

Whenever we find ourselves feeling bitterly against any one, this is probably accounted for by the fact that we have been unfair, in some way, to that one. The truth of this is suggested by the following from the Washington Star:

"What makes that man dislike you so much?" "I haven't the faintest idea," answered the student of human nature. "Probably he has played me some underhand trick that I don't know anything about." We are so uncomfortable over our own wrongdoing in being unfair to a fellow-man, that we try to relieve our minds by assuming that he is wrong and therefore a fit object of our dislike. It is a good deal like the ostrich's sensible move for self-protection by hiding its head in the sand. Let us have the good sense to look for the cause of our personal dislike in ourselves, and when we have located the particular injustices of our own that give rise to them, let us have the courage and the character to make the handsomest amends that we can. No dislike can survive such heroic treatment.—S. S. Times.

I stand near the end of my life's course. And what a wholly different measuring-rod will be used upon our earthly careers in the future world from that used in this! The value of a human life will be determined, not by the glory of success, but by the purity of motive and the faithful perseverance in one's duty, even where the events have seemed of little consequence. What a wonderful rearrangement of the high and the low will take place at the great review.—Moltke, on his eightieth birthday.

David's Throne.

God took David from the sheepcotes
And placed him on a throne;
He had an "unfailing" God,
He trusted God alone.

But ole Baal he has crossers
Forsook the living God.
They worshiped some heathen gods,
And wicked paths they trod.

For their sin God overturned that throne,
And it is (not) there now;
Messiah's Son will come again,
All kings to him will bow.

He'll rule the world from gole to gole,
(illegible)
(illegible)
To His Heavenly Father's Son.

A. WALLACE MYERS.

Through one who believes Jesus is Joseph's son, we are informed that he has come to mind the "evolutional great schools." He tells us he now doubts the authenticity and inspiration of many parts of the Old Testament. On the other hand Paul says he believed "all things which are written in the law and in the prophets" Acts xxiv 14. "All things." This from the apostle Paul, and he an "educated gentleman," too!

Paul, the "great scholar" Paul, "expounded and testified the kingdom of God, and persuaded them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets" at Rome for two whole years in his own hired house, and he did it with "all confidence"! Acts xxviii 23, 30, 31. How could he preach the kingdom and Jesus "out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets" "with all confidence" unless he had "all confidence" in their writings? Those writings wherein Paul had "all confidence," our Higher Critics have no confidence at all!

"There is not," says one of these whenevers, "there is not in the New Testament any recognition of the New Testament Canon." Yet Peter intimates that after his "decease" his epistles would pass down through generations, and would "stir up" the minds and keep in the memorial of believers his teaching—that they would have them "always in remembrance." 2 Pet i 13, 14, 15. And in chapter 3, verses 15 and 16, he says that "all" of Paul's epistles were in the New Testament Canon, with "other Scriptures." O ye wise men, see how foolish God has made your wisdom. 1 Cor i 20.

A Brother writes that while he thinks "disciplinary action" is justified by the false teachings that are current, "yet would it not have been wise to have omitted that insinuation from Brother Adams' resolution?" he asks. No. "Hidden things of dishonesty," craftiness and deceit are positively condemned by the Apostle, 1 Corinthians iv. 2. We fully mean "disciplinary action;" and to have omitted "that insinuation" from the resolution would have concealed our intentions. Policy is all right in its place; but we must stand clear of deceit and hypocrisy.

The Old Covenant Sabbath a Sign.

The seventh day sabbath, was a sign between God and the children of Israel. "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." "Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death; for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people. Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generation, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever: for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh he rested, and was refreshed." Ex xxxi 12-17.

Here I wish to digress a moment and recall a commandment which runs parallel with that above cited; namely, the offering of sacrifices as recorded in Exodus xii 14—"This day (of the passover) shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations: ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance forever." The forever here runs as long as the forever in the observance of the seventh day rest of Ex xxxi 17. Both were to be perpetual for their generations. These both began together, and they ceased together, for when the priesthood ran out, the law also ran out. Heb vii 12.

That the seventh day rest was a "sign" between God and the children of Israel, we notice further: "Wherefore I caused them to go forth out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness, and I gave them my statutes, and showed them my judgments, which if a man do, he shall even live in them. Moreover also, I gave them my sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them, Eze xx 10-12. "Hallow my sabbaths, and they shall be a sign between me and you" verse 20.

In the Colossian letter Paul shows that the sabbath with all other observances of the Mosaic law were a "shadow" of things to come. A shadow is a sign, a type, a symbol, and he further shows that this shadow was cast by the Lord Jesus Christ, because they were all types of him; and now that Christ had come, the substance was reached and the "shadow" had disappeared—it vanished because of Christ fulfilling them. But hear him: "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross..... Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath day (a sabbath day, R. V.) which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ." Col ii 14-17. The seventh day rest was a sign, a type of Christ, and shadowed forth our rest in him. In Christ the believer finds rest. In him we cease from our own works as God did from his. Heb iv 10. "Come unto me," says Christ, "and I will give you rest." Christ is the believer's sabbath. "For we which have believed do enter into rest." Heb iv 3.

But while the sabbath pointed forward to Christ as the believer's rest in him, it also typified that eternal rest for the people of God in the future. Heb iv 9, with margin. Everything under the old covenant pointed to and foreshadowed Christ and the blessings promised in him. In Col ii 14 Paul speaks of things in the old covenant as being "against us," and because of this Christ took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross.

That the law of the weekly rest and the seventh year land rest, were not united to all people, and in all countries, but only to the Jews while they dwelt in the land of Canaan, is clearly shown in the very commandments themselves. "These are the words which the Lord hath commanded, that ye should do them: Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work therein shall be put to death. Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath day." Ex xxxv 1 3. "Six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof; but the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still.....In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard and with thy oliveyard.....Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord God" Ex xxiii 10-17.

How under heaven could these commandments be lived up to and obeyed, scattered as are the people of God today? Could all the males appear before God in Jerusalem three times in each year? Could all nations allow their land to rest and lie still every seventh year? Could we—even we—in this country, obey this weekly sabbath law to "kindle no fire" in our habitations on that day? And who would inflict the penalty by stoning, if it were in force and were violated? A law without a penalty is worthless. Thank God the penalty as well as the law of the old covenant is dead, and buried forever.

But further: let it be remembered that the Jews did not count their days by hours as we do, but "from even unto even shall ye celebrate your sabbaths." Lev xxiii 32. Pray how could a Christian, living in a northern country, who has continuous darkness for three months, obey this commandment? "From even unto even" would mean to him a period of three months. Now anybody can see that these things were "against us," they were "contrary to us," and, blessed be his holy name forever, Christ "took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross."—J. August Smith in "Our Hope."

"He who only hopes is well-nigh hopeless."

Nothing.

The immortal soul of the popular churches that does not die when the body expires, that goes to heaven then, is glorified, saved, and is happy throughout eternity; this soul of such vast importance both here and hereafter, when they define it turns out to be nothing. It is an immaterial substance, they say. Conceive of a "substance" that is not material if you can. And they add further that it is uncompounded, indivisible, intangible, immortal, and cannot come into contact with matter." In other and plainer words, it cannot be touched, seen, heard, tasted nor smelt! It never comes into contact with matter; if it did we might form some idea of it. But since it is distinct from matter, and never comes "into contact with matter" for a moment, and cannot be discovered with the five senses, this soul of tradition—the thing and the only thing about us of importance, since it is the part that is immortal, regenerated, saved, glorified' and "ushered" into heaven before the Lord forever—is Nothing—not a thing!

We reject without hesitation this indescribable nonentity of popular creeds. The Church of God teaches the great truth of Conditional Immortality. And when we are asked what the conditions of salvation are, we can confidently reply upon Scriptural authority, an understanding, belief, confession, and obedience of the gospel; repentance for sins, baptism for their remission, and a holy life ever after to make our calling and election sure. Friends of the world dislike these conditions very much; they are mortified particularly because baptism for remission of sins is placed in the list. They think of thousands of "good people" in the world who are not baptized. They seem to think they present an unanswerable argument when they say: "Baptism as a condition of salvation 'cuts off' from eternal life so many 'good people.' Do you mean to tell me all these 'good people' are lost?" Thus they would sympathize away this saving ordinance of God. These same people profess to believe that faith and repentance are essentials of salvation. But we can turn on the tears and make them give up every condition of redemption they claim to hold. You say that faith is essential to salvation? If you dare say "yes," then I can say with tears streaming down my cheeks: "There are thousands of 'good people' in the world that have not believed. Faith as a condition of redemption excludes all these 'good people'—how awful!" Under the pressure of this cogent argument(?) we get from them the concession that it "makes no difference what we believe." And of course if it does not matter "what" we believe, it is immaterial whether we believe anything. From this standpoint there is not one single thing taught in the Bible—not one doctrine in all the Book of revelation that is a condition of salvation. As with faith so it is with conduct. You say that repentance is necessary to our redemption? If you do I will say to you with hot tears trickling down my distorted face and in the sobs of a broken heart: "Think of the thousands of 'good people' in the world that have not repented. How awful that all this host of people—'good people'—must be lost, forever lost!" This sympathetic appeal wrings from them the confession that it "makes no difference what we do, just so we are sincere!" Thus you see, reader, that it will not do to say there is any thing to believe—not a thing. If one single thing, it "cuts off" all who do not believe that thing. It will not do to say that there is one single thing to do—not one thing. If there be one single thing to do, it "cuts off" all who do not do that thing. From this standpoint the Bible requirements of faith and morals are devoid of authority. Apostate Christendom when asked by a sinner, "What must I believe?" must answer, "Nothing, No—thing!" When he asks then, "What must I do?" the answer must be "Nothing, No—thing!" Faith and morals have disappeared—both have evaporated, and we are left with Nothing. The theory of Universalism has eaten out the very life of the modern church, and the message it is now giving to the world is comprehensively and exhaustively expressed in the words "Believe nothing; do nothing. There is nothing to believe—not a thing to do!"

These strictures on popular theology—how nearly are they strictures on the Church of God? A lack of consistency on our part, a failure to enforce Bible discipline, has resulted in the development of an element within our body that claims "freedom" in thought, belief, and duty. "Make all the creeds for yourselves you want to," they say to us, "but you cannot make a creed to bind us." That means you can believe what you please; I will do the same. That grants to each member of the Church the right to believe what he pleases. That liberty would tolerate every doctrine, however false, that has been, is, or ever will be, promulgated under the sun.

Upon this liberal platform unity of faith is impracticable; there is not an essential doctrine within the covers of the Holy Bible; and in the last analysis the theory whirls us right back into the old theological quagmire, and we take up once more the song we abandoned when we came into the truth—"It makes no difference what we believe." If asked "What must I believe?" you must answer, "Must?" You "must" believe nothing; but you have the "liberty" to believe any thing you please!! All the great saving fundamental doctrines of the gospel are trembling to this compromising representation, and into the dust as valueless, as nonessential, as speculating prognosticating dreams.

Duty as well as faith must be sacrificed to this God of Liberty. One of its devotees said recently in a public discourse: God is the Great Disciplinarian; no mortal man can discipline me." Thus with one brush of the hand this man ignores and denies God's government as ordained in the Church. The Church has the divine right to withdraw from members for doctrinal and moral reasons (Romans xvi. 17; 1 Corinthians v. 6); it is the highest tribunal on earth. From its decision there can be no appeal; the man who is in a dispute with his brother, if he will not "hear the Church," the Church has the power to put him back among the "publicans and heathen" from whence he came into her fellowship. Matthew xviii.

God's laws, like all other laws, are inoperative unless executed by human agency. Therefore when this "good man" says that "no mortal" can discipline him, he means to say that all church officers are only so many popes, and he refuses to obey God's laws because they have human administrators. These administrators of God's law are popes! Reader, had you ever noticed that people who are always shouting about church officers being popes, murmuring about this or that man being a pope; had you ever noticed that these people are themselves the greatest popes? In detracting from the influence and power of the Church they have the satisfaction of enhancing their own standing and authority. These "good men" will belittle the Church every opportunity they get.

Notice the under-current in this incident: Recently I heard one of our ministers say—he made the suggestion in all gravity: "Let us ask these men if they hold that the doctrines of Joseph's fatherhood, keeping of the Sabbath, and partial inspiration of the Bible are essential. If they so hold, let them have the right to preach, but not as representing the Church of God." Consult these "good men;" see what they think—never mind about the Church. No matter what she thinks! If they think these doctrines are essential, we the Church don't, still they have the "right to preach," and to preach these doctrines of course; yet even with the "right" vested in them to preach, they would "not represent the Church of God." Certainly not; you cannot represent nothing! When the writer urged in an exhortation that the Church should enforce the discipline of the Bible was told that it would only cause division. These "good men" would refuse to submit to the dictation of the church, and would, consequently, cause division. These men would call all ministers who urged this Bible action popes, of course; and while they repudiate God's law as to faith and morals, and defy God to his face so far as his requirements are concerned, yet they are "good in all" Such men are superior to the church. Even a Brother who admits they are wrong, unconsciously conceded that they were head and shoulders above the church. This Brother, winking at God's discipline as taught in the Scriptures, winking at the supremacy of the church over its members, suggested that if we would ignore God's commandments just a little longer (!) these "good men" would soon go the "way of all the earth."

From this statement the reader will see again that men are superior to the Church; the hands of the Church are tied, she sits helpless, and her only hope is that these men will die. Your Church, powerless to discipline your children, you must sit silent in mourning and prayer—praying that you may have some funerals soon.

In conclusion we wish to say a few words to those brethren in the Church of God who believe the truth but who compromise what they believe with error. The states of Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska and Washington ask you to take an "uncompromising stand" for the doctrines of Christ's Sonship, the sufficiency of his law and death, and the plenary inspiration of the Bible. As states, Illinois, and even Iowa, believe that we hold the truth on these Bible doctrines. As states they are in agreement with us; but they hold (as they were represented by their delegates at the General Conference), that these doctrines can be compromised for the sake of convenience. Illinois, "our state," the very Churches where we formerly labored—your delegate at one time voted your state "neutral;" within five minutes he changed your vote to "against." Why such fluctuation? Are you drifting? Be careful. Preaching Christ and the "things concerning the name of Jesus Christ"—(Acts viii. 5, 12) essentials certainly, involve preaching the Sonship of Christ, Acts ix. 20. "Believing on the Son," is a condition of eternal life, John iii. 36. Without a belief in Christ as the "only begotten Son" we are doomed to "perish," John iii 16. The man who says that Christ was not the "only begotten Son," but there have been millions of sons begotten just like he was; that he was only son of God as we are sons, are not such "cutting off" themselves from the plenteous redemption that is in Christ? When they say that the law is of faith, right in the face of Paul who says it is not (Galatians iii. 12); that we can be and must be justified by the law, right in the face of the inspired statement that "no man" can be justified by it (v. 11); when these lawkeepers shelve Christ and make his sacrifice nugatory, by representing that Christ has died in vain (Gal. ii. 21), are you going to ask these teachers if they consider these doctrines essential, or are you going to use your own brains?

When they teach that the Bible is no guide—that there is not now in the world an inspired Bible—that the Bible is full of errors, interpolations, and the like, representations which, if they be true, forever knock out all certainty in every statement in it from Genesis to Revelations, I ask you brethren, you who have the same faith as we on these questions, we ask you in all candor, What are you going to do? With the "good men" who hold these erroneous views we have a good bit of patience and forbearance. We think they are wrong, fundamentally wrong, dangerously wrong, but we respect them as having honest convictions. But for brethren who know better, but who vote for what they do not believe, standing against what they believe is right—for men who thus compromise the truth and stultify their convictions, we can have no respect. We suggest that they hasten over into agreeable company, where they can work out the law and honestly merit salvation without the sacrifice of Christ. As each one can save himself, like Jesus the son of Joseph, they can organize a church, and out of honor to Christ who was the first man to show by example how each one can become his own Savior, they can call it the Church of Joseph's Son. Then if any one asks them what they believe they can reply "We have no creed—no belief. We believe (?) nevertheless, in everything in general, and nothing in particular." If a sinner should ask them what he must do they can reply "We have no discipline, so we do everything in general, and nothing in particular." With nothing to do and nothing to believe, they will have all the "freedom and liberty" they want—and very consoling thought (to them) they will be nothing—no-thing!

Closed Up Adventist Chapels.

In the World's Crisis of Oct 5, 1910, Eld. G. H. Wallace writes in part as follows under the heading "How is This?"

"All over this broad land we hear of closed-up Adventist chapels, where years ago good, interesting services were held with interested congregations. We well remember some of those places and services, into which no stranger could come for even a single service without hearing the difference between Adventism, or in other words up to-date gospel, and the soft toned twaddle of the age."

The writer then goes on to make these remarks which come very near answering his own question: "The Chapels are rotting down under a retrograde interest which holds the truth in light esteem. Said one young preacher in whom I have felt a fatherly interest: "I have been with my church so many months, naming the number, and I have not preached a single sermon on the Coming of the Lord."

Holding up the "Advent Christian Hymnal" to the congregation he said this, substantially: "This book is so filled with hymns on the subject of the Second Advent and the judgment message that I have no use for it." Of course he has, with some others of the same mind, reached the logical conclusion of his own argument, and is now in a denomination whose hymns he likes better to sing, and with whose theology he more closely agrees."

You are right, Eld. Wallace. What little truth the Adventist once had has been held in such "light esteem" that it has not been held at all. They have objected to Creed, a definite faith; they have opposed discipline; and they are now reaping the harvest of their foolishness. Rotting Chapels all over this broad land are telling the sad story eloquently. Here is a lesson for the Church of God. May we profit by it.

Some time since Professor William James, the Harvard psychologist, left a $1 000 prize with the Metropolitan Psychical Society to be given to the spiritualistic medium who would make known the contents of a letter which he wrote shortly before his death to the secretary of the society. Fifty mediums have thus far tried to reveal the contents of the letter, and get the $1,000. In the Cleveland Leader, Oct 6th, the secretary says:—"Every one of the fifty who have attempted to tell the contents of the letter has failed in every particular. Most of them begin with 'Dear Sir: Since I have been in the spirit plane,' and the expressions used are similar to those of professional mediums since the day of the Fox sisters. None of the letters has the slightest trace of any expression used by Professor James in his life. There are references to various relatives of Professor James, mostly inaccurate."

Gold Dust.

"Keep the highest ideals always before you if you would rise high."

"There is some place in which we may all work—rich and poor, young and old. Coveting earnestly that best of all gifts, love, we shall not be long in finding opportunities."

"No stream from its source flows seaward, however lonely its course, but that some land is gladdened. No life can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife, and all life not be purer and stronger thereby."

"The Saviour alone can cleanse from sin, but each of his disciples must follow his example in assisting others to walk in his footsteps, and to try to rid themselves of every defiling influence."

"Obedience is better than sacrifice. Be not ashamed to do the will of God, and he will honor you with life everlasting and a crown of glory."

ANNA DREW.

"I'm Not Very Bad."

Yes, that is the way you look at yourself: measured by your standard, by the standard of worldly men, you seem to be quite near perfection. But are you approved of God? Are you a praying man?—a praying woman? Do you do anything for God? You may be negatively good; that is, you may refrain from doing many wrong things, because of the shame and disgrace that would come upon you from doing them, but do you do the things that are well-pleasing in God's sight?

It is not enough to have started in the Christian race, not enough to have come by the door into fold. The race is all before you, the character yet to be formed, that is to fit you for the companionship of angels; the prize still to be won. You may not be "very bad," but are you pure in heart—are you holy? Have you clean hands? Are you seeking first of all "the kingdom of God and his righteousness?" If not, in what is your hope? In the righteousness of Christ? You must keep his commandments to abide in him. Jesus is the Vine, you the branches; the Father the Vine-dresser. No pruner of vineyards leaves worthless branches on the vine. So will the Father lop off, if you bear no fruit.

You are not to be satisfied with not being "very bad." You must grow in grace and in knowledge, and bring forth fruit unto everlasting life.

Press forward. God "sees all your ways, and counts all your steps." Follow Christ, be like him, then may you have hope.—S. H. Wines.

Announcement.

By Invitation of the Argos Church the Annual October Conference of the Church of God in Indiana will be held at Argos, Ind. Date is Oct 20-23, and Program will be published later. This is the first of our Conference year. All the arrangements for the coming year's work for the Master in our State are made at this meeting. I hope all the Churches will be represented by delegates. Brethren, commence making arrangements at once to attend that we may have a good meeting.

A Pertinent Prayer.

President Finney was well known for clearness of ideas as well as plainness of speech; and his prayers were not altogether destitute of point and directness.

One Sunday, after the choir at Oberlin had sung without distinctly pronouncing the words, he in his prayer, alluded to the matter as follows: "O Lord, we have sung an anthem to thy praise. Thou knowest the words, but we do not. We do pray thee that those who thus led us may open their mouths that we may know what they say, that we may join in thy praise. May they not sing to be heard of men. May they not mock thee and offend thy people, or the house of God, by making a display of themselves."

We fear there are places where such a prayer might frequently be offered with good results, and some of the people would be likely to say Amen!—Armory.

WANTED.

By the Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, copies of the Christian Hymnal, edited by James W. Wilson and F. L. Robertshaw, and published by The Restitution in 1887. Send postal to the undersigned stating how many copies you can supply, condition of books, and price wanted. Address, Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Brother H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

Please don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Any one desiring pictures of Illinois Bible School or Conference can secure them of the undersigned at 30 cents each for 5 x 7 size, postpaid. Post cards of Bible School 5 cents each or 45 cents per dozen, postpaid. F. V. Blakely. 627 So. Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A Letter to A Friend

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. Thompson, Sec'y., 544 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

The article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1.50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

Lelia E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

The Bible: its Principles and Texts

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this request can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it, both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in The Restitution. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $3.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith, by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 288 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" "THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCTOBER 26, 1910. NUMBER 38.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

The Christian's Glory.

[The author of this poem was Joseph Grigg, born in London, in 1728, and died in 1768. He was a mechanic, and afterward a Presbyterian minister, showing signs of poetic power early in life. This was first published in the Gospel Magazine in 1774.]

Jesus, and shall it ever be
A mortal man ashamed of Thee?
Ashamed of Thee, whom angels praise,
Whose glories shine through endless days?

Ashamed of Jesus! sooner far
Let evening blush to own a star;
He sheds the beams of light divine
O'er this benighted soul of mine.

Ashamed of Jesus! that dear friend
On whom my hopes of life depend?
No; when I blush, be this my shame,
That I no more revere his name.

Ashamed of Jesus! yes, I may,
When I've no guilt to wash away;
No tears to wipe, no good to crave,
No fears to quell, no soul to save.

Till then—nor is my boasting vain—
Till then I boast a Savior's pain;
And O, may this my glory be,
That Christ is not ashamed of me.

Editor Restitution:

Seeing in RESTITUTION of Oct. 12, 1910, a selection, by (Bro. D. C. R.) entitled, "A Partial Resurrection," purporting to have been written and signed by that able writer, and earnest advocate of truth, now sleeping in Christ—Eld. J. M. Stephenson.

The article commences, "The doctrine of a universal resurrection is contrary to the plain teachings of the Word," then goes on to fortify the statement, with quite as much seeming plausibility, as any advocate thereof, before or since.

My allusion to it is not for the purpose of criticising the article in any manner, but simply that those not so well acquainted might not be misled as to the true attitude of the author. If the selection was made for the purpose of establishing "partial resurrection," then, Charity would say, the selector had no acquaintance either personal or by his writings, of the author's attitude later, after mature investigation and deliberation on the subject. Having had intimate personal acquaintance with Bro. Stephenson, as well as by his writings, during at least a quarter of a century of the latter part of his life, I feel that in justice to his memory I should testify as to his attitude in the later years of his life—which would also be verified by many living witnesses. At one time he advocated Sabbath (7th day) keeping, was identified with that people—was editor of their paper, but after learning the gospel founded on the "promises made of God unto the Fathers" he was energetic in showing the "shadow was of Christ" therefore we are no longer under the law (of Moses). When I first became acquainted with him he was an earnest advocate of partial resurrection (those only having been tried) thinking to would harmonize the testimony by showing the fallacy of the non-resurrection of the wicked theory. But later on (whether correctly or not) he became convinced that only universal resurrection from Adamic death, could harmonize all the testimony as to resurrection, of which he was an earnest advocate, both orally and with his pen, for many years during all the latter part of his life, of which any one can find incontrovertable evidence by consulting his masterly book "God's Plan of Salvation" written in 1877 (of which the selector of this article, surely could have had no knowledge) containing 33 chapters and appendix—"Rules for the Investigation of the Bible."

It is unnecessary, and space would not permit lengthy quotations of his arguments, only citing a few statements of his conclusion as to resurrection, chap 3, "Christ the restorer" at the close, after giving many quotations, sums up thus (page 28) "Surely the foregoing is amply sufficient to prove to all who take the Word of God as the rule of their faith that as far as temporal life is concerned Christ will restore to man all that was lost in Adam."

Again chapter 4 "Hope for the race"—in which at page 35, I read—"Christ as the second Adam will restore the race from death and give them back the life they had lost in Adam." But this is sufficient quotation to show that he had entirely abandoned his former belief as to extent of resurrection. To the common mind this change would indicate progress in growth in knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, rather than retrogression. But be that as it may, dear reader, in either case it would be an insufficient guide, to form a basis of faith, in the matter, for you and I. We should search and find the harmony of the testimony for ourselves, not that eternal salvation depends upon our decision in this matter of extent of resurrection, but full assurance of mind in such a momentous matter concerning the Adamic race, might prove to be a comfort in faith. Rules for obtaining such assurance, are clearly set forth in the appendix to Bro. Stephenson' Book—"God's plan of Salvation" which rules to the Bible student, are many times more valuable than the price of the whole book, the adoption and rigid adherence to them have brought to me much solid comfort during my latter years. May we all thus strive together for unity, "proving all things and holding fast that which is good." Amen.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES NUMBER 46.

The first letter received from Auntie Willard after her return home, was written Aug. 30th, 1893, and was addressed both to my husband and myself, as "one, in faithfulness of purpose to do God's will."

She was "glad the Lord had let her live with us three months and three weeks to behold our lives, and, when she must leave, to hear the kind words from our lips, 'Why need you ever go?'"

She was just home from a meeting of the W. C. T. Union, where she had read a paper, selected from The Primitive Catholic, on 'Protestant Leprosy,' describing how the churches are infected with the doctrines and practices of Catholic Rome, and had followed this paper by President Grover Cleveland's letter to the Pope.

The members enjoyed both, but seemed disgusted at the President's attitude toward 'the Man of Sin'—the deadliest foe of this country and her liberties that walks the earth,—"the enemy of all righteousness," and the vindictive opponent of the Bible, of Christ and of God.

Sister Conner had just died, but over her we said "we were not going to weep." "Let her sleep in untroubled rest till the morning comes of eternal day." "But the God of heaven,"—said Auntie Willard,—"Support Bro. Conner! How I see him on Sunday morning, preaching in a crowded house, with babies crying on all sides and a general confusion, but he, like a man a mowing for very life pouring forth the words of truth and soberness, heeded none of it, but gave his message as a dying man to dying men until his task was accomplished."

The year 1893 was a sad and disastrous one to some at least of Auntie Willard's friends. I think I have spoken of the beloved Brother and Sister Fay, who were brought into the truth at a camp-meeting held at Camden, New Jersey.

Their home seems to have been at a place called Lindenwald, New Jersey. Brother Fay was bereft of his reason February 1893, and was removed to Kirkbride's in West Philadelphia. Sister Fay was at Haddonfield, staying for a time with Auntie Willard. When the next letter came, January 6, 1894. Brother Fay was then, "just the same, did not know nor speak to his wife when she went to see him." He died in March, greatly mourned, for his loss was an irreparable one to the little flock.

Nov. 12, 1893, our house, large library, and many other things, had been destroyed by fire, and Dec. 24, 1893, Sister Sallie Roter's house in Southwest Kansas—new carpet just put down, things all packed in drawers and cupboards and nearly everything they would want for the winter laid up—shared the same fate—Sister Roter, being still in Chicago, just ready to come on and join her husband in the new home.

Auntie Willard said "With a groan I clapped my hands to my eyes and wept in agony of heart, when Brother Wince wrote, Our scrap-books went up in the flames." O Roxana, how can you endure this? and yet you are so brave, not a murmur from either of you. I had hoped the scrap-books were saved, (two volumes were) I knew better than most what those scrap-books were worth to you for the hours I spent over them last winter in that cosy home taught me their value. How in my heart I did congratulate you on their possession."

Auntie Willard divined rightly that the burning of these scrap-books was counted as one of our greatest losses four volumes having been written by my beloved father's pen, and held in my heart as beyond all price. Another contained my earlier poems and prose compositions—all dear because of association with precious friends—and also—the sweetest and best of the religious poems of our papers that had appeared during a period of nearly forty years.

It was very large—a book of that size being priced at five dollars, but never could this book be duplicated,—never could those sacred strains from a thousand pens be gathered up again.

"When one member suffers all the members suffer. It was so now. Auntie Willard wept with Sister Fay. She sympathized with us, and with her beloved Sallie, and so did many others. We have not forgotten the kind and helpful words and substantial help.

But many joys intermingled with the shadows as time went on. The little grand-children were growing fast and were a constant source of pleasure, Lizzie May and Rowland, Junior, standing very high in school—he getting the highest per cent of any pupil in the 3rd grade in the County. Lizzie May had begun washing dishes at 25 cts a week in 1891, May 2nd, 1893, she was twelve years old. She graduated in the Haddonfield High School, June 15, 1897.

July 26, 1894, a telegram was received that the long absent son and his wife were on their way back from England. They had been gone ten years, and were very glad to see the familiar scenes of dear old Haddonfield once more, having arrived there in good health and spirits, Sept. 5th. What a season of joy it was to dear Auntie Willard!

But I have missed a letter of June 8, 1894. It describes the graduating exercises of a class of fifteen, the largest ever graduated in that school. It made Auntie Willard "feel almost young again—the white dresses with youth and beauty and innocence and flowers, making her think of similar scenes in her experience long years ago in Cincinnati."

"Once" she said to her son on coming home, "I was as young and pretty as any of them, and could have been examined beside the best of them!" "I believe it" said he, and that comforted her, for she had caught the reflection of her face in the glass as she came in and, contrasting it with her former—self had said, "Poor mamma! how she looks!"

All the graduates did honor to themselves, but what pleased me most was the way the professor exhorted his pupils, honoring God by making large use of Bible language. They were cautioned not to "walk in the counsel of the ungodly, stand in the way of sinners, or sit in the seat of the scornful."

Aug. 31, 1894, Auntie Willard says—"One question on your last page, struck me—'Are you expecting Jesus?' You might as well ask me if I am expecting anything on earth. The coming of Jesus is all my expectation and my desire, without that I have none!"

Again you say "Let not the conflict between good and evil trouble you." Whoever heard of a travailing woman not having trouble? When the conflict is over I sh. ll rejoice and that will be when Jesus comes. This is our travailing time. I am in pain to be delivered and so are you, Sister Wince .....He upholds and sustains me in my conflict and when I cry to Him with all my heart he hears and [illegible] bless[illegible]! But the enemy [illegible] is ever ready to pounce upon me, or shoot his fiery darts into my soul and make me think and do and say wrong things, but when I humble myself God hears and forgives and strengthens me for the coming onset, a thousand times repeated and which will endure to the end—here is the trial, he only departed from Jesus 'for a season' but he—the Holy One, never sinned.' 'There remaineth a rest for the people of God' who a this Travailing World with Coxy's army and the strikers and all suffering humanity will cease to groan, then shall you and I enter into rest."

[Selected by D C Robison.]

A Simultaneous Resurrection of the Just and Unjust.

Daniel, twelfth chapter, first and second verses, and John, fifth chapter and twenty-eighth verse, are relied upon by the advocates of a simultaneous resurrection of just and unjust as their very strongest testimonies. The last verse of the eleventh chapter of Daniel contains the predicate from which the conclusions, in the first two verses of the succeeding chapter, are [illegible] these three verses must be [illegible] connection to be intelligible. "And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him. And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people, and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation, even to that same time; and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Please observe:

I. The first phrase, "at that time," qualifies the standing up of Michael; the second occurrence of this phrase, qualifies the time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation.

II. If we shall make the second verse eliptical, and supply this elipsis with the phrase, "at that time," then we will have two classes in the conclusion, whereas, there is only one class in the premise, viz: Daniel's people, every one of "whose names shall be found written in the book."

If there is only one class in the premise, it is not admissible to introduce two classes in the conclusion. It is illogical to include a single element in the conclusion which does not pre-exist in the premise. If the above position is correct, then King James' translation necessitates a false conclusion; but Prof. Bush's translation obviates all difficulty. It reads thus: "And multitudes of sleepers shall awake (at that time) these to everlasting life; but those (who do not awake at that time) to shame and everlasting contempt." According to the previous verse, the demonstrative adjective "these" would refer to Daniel's people, every one of whom should be written in the book; and the adjective "those" would refer to just the opposite class; hence the adverb "not" should negate the resurrection of those who are not Daniel's people at the time Daniel's people shall awake; thus: "And at that time shall multitudes of sleepers awake from the dust of the earth; these—that awake—at that time—to everlasting life; but those that do not awake, at that time, to shame and everlasting contempt. Or, if we do not repeat the qualifying phrase, "at that time," in the second verse, then the copulative conjunction "and," would refer to future time indefinite, when the many who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake. This conjunction may introduce an event following in immediate succession, or one separated by thousands of years. The same parity of reasoning which would prove that many who sleep in the dust will awake synchronously with the time of trouble, because the conjunction "and" adds the resurrection thereto, would prove that Christians are rewarded when they die. Christ authorized John to say to all believers, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Rev ii 10. Or the following language of our Savior, after his resurrection, "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory." Luke xxiv 26.

Did Christ suffer, and enter into his glory at the same time? The same language proves that Christians are rewarded when they die, and that Christ suffered and was glorified at the same time, that is adduced to prove that many that sleep in the dust will awake synchronously with the time of trouble, because the conjunction "and" adds the resurrection to the time of trouble. This criticism holds equally good in regard to the time that shall intervene between the two resurrections. The conjunction "and," which separates the resurrection of these two classes, may just as appropriately extend over one thousand years, as over one hour. It is merely affirmed that many sleepers "shall awake." The first future tense of the verb, denotes future time indefinite. Again, the record says, "Some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." It does not follow because some shall awake to life, and some to shame and contempt, that therefore both classes shall awake at the same period of time. And if a moment of time shall elapse, then, as far as the grammar is concerned, a thousand years may as well elapse.

Again, it is affirmed that the Hebrew adjective "olahm," which qualifies the noun "contempt," should be rendered "age lasting;" thus, "age-lasting contempt." It may be replied that the same adjective measures both the "life" and the "contempt." These antithetical lines run through the same period, or periods of time, or eternity. If one is age-lasting, so is the other. Thus, "Many that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to the age-lasting life, and some to the age-lasting shame and contempt." It is not at all necessary that the wicked should be alive to be the subjects of contempt. God holds bad men in contempt. Benedict Arnold has been the subject of contempt, by all loyal men, just as much since his death as he was during his life. Commence the resurrection of the wicked, one thousand years subsequently to that of the righteous, and let them be the subjects of everlasting contempt, in the estimation of all loyal men, to all eternity, and there is perfect harmony between Daniel and John.

The following language of Christ is also adduced to prove a mixed resurrection of just and unjust, at the same time: "Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." John v 28, 29. It does not follow because the "hour," or time, is coming in which both classes shall hear his voice and come forth, that therefore they shall both either bear, or come forth at the same time. It might be affirmed that the hour is coming in which we must all die; but would such language imply that all must die within the same period of time? Sixty years might intervene between the death of the first and the last; and yet, if the time should ever come when all of the class specified shall have died, this language would be technically true. Just so in regard to the good and the bad; if the time shall ever come when both these classes shall hear his voice and come forth, then the language of Christ will prove true. If both classes shall be raised simultaneously, then why, in their ordinal relation to each other, does the resurrection of the just always precede the resurrection of the unjust? Why, whenever the resurrection of both classes is referred to, are these two resurrections successive? Why speak of the resurrection of the just and unjust, the good and the bad? Why not say the resurrection? Why speak of a first resurrection, if both classes shall be raised at the same time? All such phrases are calculated to deceive, upon the hypothesis that all will be raised simultaneously.

The advocates of a mixed resurrection can adduce only two texts, except parables, which have any show of plausibility. They seldom make an effort to harmonize the many plain texts on the other side of this question. The twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew is relied upon as one of the strong supports of this theory. But resurrection is not the subject of the chapter. It says nothing concerning resurrection, but is a sublime description of God's dealings with the nations during the future age of probation. It is a national gathering, and a national probation. That nations are called sheep and goats, to distinguish between the good and the bad, or the loyal and disloyal, please read carefully the thirty-fourth chapter of Ezekiel. This opens the way for the investigation of a subject which does not come within the range of the one under present consideration. I will, therefore, waive the subject with the foregoing remarks:

The parable of the net, which is represented as having gathered a mixed multitude of fish from the sea, is also a beautiful representation of the same great truth—the separation, or gathering of Israel from among, or out of the great sea of nations, kindreds, tongues and peoples, (Rev xvii 15,) "into the wilderness of the people," and the separation of the good from the bad. In support of this position, please consult the following testimonies: Jer xvi 14 17; Ezek xx 33-38, and xxxvii 21-28. This parable has no reference to the dead, or their resurrection at all. Neither does the parable of the servants refer to the resurrection of dead men, but it finds its fulfilment in the kingdom age. You will notice that these parables all relate to the "kingdom of heaven," and not to any period or dispensation this side of that grand epoch; and are illustrative of things to transpire during the reign of Christ over the nations of earth, and not of the condition of a few saints and apostates at the coming of Christ before the establishment of the kingdom at all.

According to Luke's version of the same parable, those slothful servants are represented as saying, "We will not have this Man to reign over us." Lu xix 14. Christ acknowledges their position as subjects, and not as associate rulers. He says: "But bring those mine enemies who would not that I should reign over them, and slay them before me." Who will be the subjects in the kingdom of God—the immortalized saints, or the mortal Jews? Christ is the King of the Jews. All the saints will reign with Christ, and not be reigned over by him. The gospel, in this age, proposes to make kings, not subjects. This third class belongs to those from among whom subjects will be selected, viz: the Jews. But no Bible doctrine is dependant upon parables to sustain it.—J. M. Stephenson.

God's patience with the proud boasters of this world is truly marvelous. Sometimes he answers in judgment as in the case of Nebuchadnezzar. A man who stood upon a hill-top during a fearful thunderstorm defying God to strike him dead, died in great distress shortly after from the sting of an insect.

It is said that if the British Empire were cut into a strip a mile wide, it would reach around the world 450 times.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 20, 1910.

THE Conference at Argos has now passed into history. We will not try to trespass on the province of the Secretary who will in due time give an account of the proceedings. We will say however, that a most excellent time was enjoyed. Good feeling prevaded during the entire meeting. Most of the preaching was by Brother H. V. Reed of Chicago, and many who heard him years ago, can testify that the eloquence, fire and convincing argument that characterized his earlier work, is most wonderfully retained. He held his audiences, listening intently that nothing escape them. We sincerely hope that Brother Reed will be enabled to devote a large portion of his time to this service. The cause of Christ needs his help. Brother Wagoner and Williams were there and had their part on the programme, which was pleasing to the people. Brother Halstead was not physically able to attend, which was much regretted by all. There was the largest representation of Churches of any Conference for several years, and good interest was manifested in the business as well as the preaching.

WE would call attention to the articles from the pen of Brother J. M. Stephenson, selected by Brother D. C. Robison. These articles were published in the Herald of the Coming Kingdom of 1860, then edited by Brother Thomas Wilson, who then printed them without editorial strictures. Attention is likewise called to the article by Brother D. T. Halstead in this issue of our paper. He shows that before Brother Stephenson's death, he materially changed his position, adopting the theory of universal resurrection, which is attested by his later writings and preaching. It does not of necessity follow that because our lamented Brother Stephenson saw fit to go from one extreme to another at a single bound, that therefore his first "opinion" regarding the extent of resurrection power was incorrect. Nor does it make his later "views" on this question correct. There is a bare possibility that at some point between the two points may be found "truth." Some even hold such an "opinion." In justice to Brother Stephenson we let it be known of his change of front. What changed his mind after arguing the other side, might not convince the mind of another. What with some might indicate strength gained by more mature thought, might be taken by others at indicating quite the reverse. Each may draw his own conclusion.

IN our issue of last week was a letter written by Sister Helms, telling of work none by a copy of "A Letter to a Friend." Two weeks ago we printed a letter from Brother Lindsay urging work along the line of Bible Schools. In the course of his letter he said—"One Bible lesson, well taught to a student with Bible in hand, is worth far more than a sermon through which the student sits passively."

At the present time there is a wave passing in religious circles for Bible study. It has taken the form called "Teacher Training," and great good can be accomplished by it if rightly directed. Classes are formed, and a systematic study of the Bible is taken up. Facts about the Bible are learned—the number and names of the books and their classification; names of persons, the history, the places mentioned, and their relationship and the surroundings, etc. The travels of Paul are gone over, and places and deeds located. Christ's life and works, parables and miracles are traced with much care.

All this is valuable as discipline for the mind, and impresses on the scholar the facts of the Bible in a high degree. Memorizing of certain passages is likewise taken up, and thus the student becomes familiar with the literary style of the various writers, and his store of Biblical knowledge is increased. He becomes proficient along these lines, and a hundred questions given are answered correctly by those taking these courses.

We have no desire to find fault with this course of study, nor the method of procedure. We believe it to be helpful in making the student familiar with his text book, and is good training for the mind. After he has learned all these facts about the Bible, the persons, the places, the style of writers, etc. What then? The question comes "What must I do to be saved?" and the earnest student finds that not one point, nor all of this knowledge that he has accumulated is able to give him any aid in answering the one question that is vital.

We do not wish to in any way belittle preaching from the desk—we wish there were more speakers—but Bro. Lindsay and every other minister knows full well that it is not often that a man gets light enough on the Word of God from hearing sermons preached to enable him to answer satisfactorily the question What must I do to be saved? The sermon arouses his interest, sets him to thinking, incites him to study. So that after all the preaching experience that Brother Lindsay has had he realizes, and can state that a lesson given to a student with Bible in hand, is worth far more than a sermon. Whether in class or alone, the principle is the same.

Brother Lindsay has seen the advantages of Bible School work, where the pupils really study, because they really want to know what they must do. Brother Lindsay does not want that sort of students who only care to cram their heads with a few Bible facts concerning persons and places, nor with those who simply memorize for the sake of being able to recite so many verses. He wants those students who wish to study God's Word to find out who God is, what sort of beings they are, what sort of beings God wants them to become, what he has promised, and how they can attain to these promises.

Brother Lindsay is much interested in this work in Indiana, as well as in Illinois and other places, and urges the brethren to secure a home for our school that will insure its permanancy. Brother Wince was active in this line of work up to the end of his life, and almost his last efforts were for its success. Brother Wince sleeps, and others must take up the task and push it along. It will be easy for the committee if each one will do his duty. If you don't do yours the cause will fail. How do you answer?

With the Bible Lesson work goes that of literature. Where papers and tracts are read the minister finds his most fruitful field for labor. If a minister going into a community, is preceded by a person who has induced some to read papers and tracts, he finds ears already open to his message.

Brethren, did you ever consider this matter seriously? Here is a case in which a little tract—10 cents worth—placed in the hands of a person who had been in error all her life, arrests her attention. She saw the light, compared with her Bible, found and corrected her mistake. The writer of that tract was a common woman, but for her work that has lived years after her, she is blessed among women and men too. But, consider. How helpless are these little tracts on the shelf! They can do no good whatever there. The writer of the tract is blessed for the work she did, and the person who hands the tract out is sure of a blessing for her work also. The writer—long since dead—can do no more. The tract on the shelf can do nothing. All depends on you to take it from the shelf and send it on its mission of service for the Master.

This is not the only case where a little tract has been the means of great good, but is only a fresh incident. Many have been brought to see the light of the gospel through this humble means. Did it ever occur to you, brother, sister, that you would like to be partner in the blessing that will come to the writer of such a work? A paper, a tract, may catch the eye of the casual reader, as a sermon may a listener, and cause him to think, to study, to investigate, to become a Bible School scholar, and after learning the lesson, be led to lay hold on the promises God has made, and gain eternal life.

Brother, Sister, are you doing your duty in the circulating of papers and tracts?

Sunday School Lesson.

NOVEMBER 6, 1910.

The Last Supper. Matt. xxvi. 17-30.

The Golden Text—"This is my body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me." Luke xxii. 19.

This last supper was at a house in Jerusalem, and in Mark we learn how the disciples knew what house was chosen for the purpose. Some have tried to identify the exact house, but that is of little moment any way. If we knew exactly what street in Jerusalem it was and what the number of the house, such knowledge would add nothing to the events worth while.

The Passover festival was to be celebrated, and this lasted several days during which time only the unleavened bread was to be eaten. Preparation must be made for the regular Passover supper, so the disciples came to Jesus, asking where they should prepare for him to eat. [illegible] necessary, with proper furniture. The bread must be obtained, and herbs and wine, and a lamb that must be killed at the temple, and made all ready.

Luke xxii. tells that he sent Peter and John to see that these preparations are made. Inasmuch as Judas was the custodian of the funds, and usually attended to such matters, it will be noted here that other disciples were dispatched to do this work. Presuming that Jesus knew that it was in the mind of Judas to betray him, a reason for sending others may be that Jesus did not want the place known to the chief priests, desiring to have quiet at the time, with no intruders to disturb.

"They made ready the Passover," as required. When the time came Jesus sat down with the twelve, having come from Bethany, reaching there about sunset. According to Luke's account there arose a strife among the disciples, as to which should be accounted greatest. Perhaps some wanted to be near Jesus—have the place of honor. Likely each was looking to high position in the kingdom also. Jesus gave them a lesson by washing the feet of his disciples, teaching humility and service. It was saying to them in acts as well as words, that "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

This spirit in Christ is what we are to adopt into our lives, and if we do we root out all selfish motives, and plan the comfort and good of those about us. It is not that we do a kind act when requested to do so by another. We must be on the watch to find opportunity of doing good and helpful deeds, planning to say good things of our fellows. God planned from the "foundation of the world" for his faithful servants, and we ought to plan to perform acts of kindness and love. Thus will we grow into the spirit of the Christ, and become like him.

This Passover meal was the greatest festival of the Jewish year.

Jesus announced to the twelve disciples that one of them should betray him. Sorrow filled their hearts, and they began to ask "Master, is it I?" Jesus answered "He who has been dipping his hand with mine in the dish, this one will betray me." The Son of man would go on in his allotted mission, but woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed. Such a time called for looking each into his own heart. The question was not, which one is it? It is this one or that? but is it I? It would be better for that one to have never been born. The life he had lived was not worth living. Every influence for good had been rejected by him, and there was no hope left.

While they were still at the table, Jesus took bread and blessed it, and gave to his disciples to eat, telling them it was representative of his body. Afterward the cup, which was blessed, and given them to each drink from, the juice of the grape representing his blood. His body was to be broken, his blood was to be shed, that remission of sins might be obtained. For the forgiveness of sin, and deliverance from the power of sin.

Jesus was near to death. He should drink no more "until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." Here is brought out the thought of meeting again with those we love beyond the death state, in a new life in the Father's kingdom.

Parting words are treasured by us, and we would do well here to read chapters 14, 15, 16 and 17 of John, as they fit in so exactly with today's lesson.

They had a closing hymn, and went out to the Mount of Olives, where we follow Jesus in our lesson for November 20th.

The ceremony of the Lord's Supper has for its elements bread and grape juice—bread free from leaven—grape juice free from ferment. Purity is what is sought. Humbleness also. We need to come together and attend to this ceremony in remembrance of Jesus, because the turmoil of our daily lives is apt to cause us to forget our dependence on him for all we have and all we are.

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget."

It serves to keep in remembrance that we have made a covenant with God, and God with us. On our part devotion to Christ and his cause—consecration of self and all we have to God. On God's part the promise of eternal life in his kingdom, a new heart and untold and untellable blessings that are in store for God's people.

Each disciple eating of the bread, and drinking of the cup, shows the oneness of each with Christ—the close association in a covenant that binds the individual to Jesus.

This is a feast of fellowship, brotherhood, communion. We become one, not only with those who sit with us, but with that larger company who sleep in Jesus. It points to the coming again of Christ, when victory over death will come in a perfect triumph, and we can celebrate with Jesus in the Father's kingdom.

The Lord's Supper ought not to be neglected, but should be made the most helpful and really important service of the Church.

Editor Restitution:

I know my time is up, and have had it on my mind and heart for some time, as well as the wish that I could do more than just to keep up my own subscription. I would like to meet with those who go out of their way to find pleasure in the service of God, and in the society of those who love him. THE RESTITUTION is a comfort beyond words to tell, to the lonely scattered ones I am sure, though many may seem not to appreciate its rich feasts. I pray for patience and love to endure all things. We cannot know the thorny paths that many of the weary feet are going, the loneliness in the midst of the world's devotees, of some who, are striving amid difficulties to keep to the narrow path. Oh we do need patient love in dealing with those who may seem to deserve it least. It may be their lives (spiritual) may depend on our gentle treatment and many a frail plant yields a rich reward of labor to the gardener whose first impulse would be to count it not worth the bother, but this sounds like a lecture and I do not mean anything but good. It must need the patience of Job to deal with so many and to see those professing loudly who are hoarding as though they never heard of a God, who has promised to supply all our needs, but are we not on the very borderland of Canaan and was it not for impatience and censure of his flock that Moses was forbidden to go over into the promised land. I am afraid that the love described in 1 Corxiii is our greatest need. I enclose 75 cents for another half year.

In hope and faith.

Obituary.

The infant babe of Brother Carl Thompson, which has been frail ever since its birth, died at the home of its grand parents, George O. Crawford and wife, northwest of West Lebanon, Indiana, Monday night October 3d. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning, after which the little form was laid beside the mother, who died November 4, 1909. The child was about a year old.

EDITH THOMPSON.

George W. Smith was born in Camden, N. Y. July 14, 1828, and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. L. Taylor, Corvallis, Oregon, October 6, 1910, aged 82 years, 2 months and 22 days.

In early life he moved to Michigan, and engaged in the lumber business. Later he moved to Ohio, where in 1857 he was married to Mary E. Starr and moved to Emporia, Kansas. His wife died two years later. Brother Smith was married five times. He moved to Corvallis in 1902, where his last wife died four years ago, and since then he made his home as above with his daughter.

Many readers of THE RESTITUTION will remember Brother Smith from the questions and articles that have appeared in the paper from time to time. Brother Smith was raised a Methodist, but never united with that church. After hearing the doctrine of the restitution and life only in Christ, he became a member of the Church of God, and was ever found an uncompromising and able defender of that faith.

The Scriptures for the funeral discourse was selected by Brother Smith, and the presentation was talked over with the writer several times before his death. He died as easily as falling asleep in good health. He went to his rest with the firm belief that he would receive the crown of life when Jesus comes. He was laid to rest in the Crystal Lake Cemetery on the following Saturday afternoon.

Hinderers.

It is one of the easiest things in the world to hinder. It requires neither zeal nor skill, nor intelligence. We have but to place ourselves in the way, and by the slightest endeavor, and often without endeavor, we may hinder ten times as much as we might ever be able to help.

There are many hinderers in the work of God; persons who have little power or talent to accomplish work in the Master's cause, but who can hint and sneer and find fault and insinuate, who can separate friends and alienate co-workers, who can hedge up paths and cripple the influence of others, and who having done this, drop into their own natural obscurity, useless and forgotten, but leaving behind them the trail of mischief and of trouble which may remain long after those who have caused it are dead and gone.

Thus many a willing noble heart has been stung and pierced; thus many earnest and tender hands have been tied and crippled in their work; thus those who would not help, have sneered and objected until they have taken away the key of knowledge and would not enter themselves or suffer others to go in either.

It is a lesson that Christians as well as children sometimes need to be taught:—"If you cannot help do not hinder." Be careful how by words or deeds you lay obstacles in the paths of those who are seeking to do good to men. If God has not granted you the ability to do much, by all means beware of being hinderers of others, whom he has more plentifully endowed.

And let those who are called to work in the cause of God be patient under all the hindrances that assail them, and still hold fast in fidelity and confidence, being assured that over all these hindrances God presides; that the failures of today may lay the foundation for the victories of the morrow; that the ruins of our present erections may be the basis for grander and nobler enterprises, which shall be accepted of God and crowned with the richest blessing.

God's eye is ever on his willing workers, and they are not to be discouraged with the trials of their lot, though with each open door they may find "there are many adversaries." If they labor on in faith and hope and love, they may be assured that God who cares for them in all their needs will not desert them, nor forget them, but will at last bring them off triumphant through his grace.—H. L. Hastings.

Manliness in Religion.

H. L. Hastings, in an address to a graduating class some years ago said:

"The pure, high, broad manliness of Jesus is your model; a manliness at once modest and aggressive, serene and earnest, tender and fearless, gentle and powerful, full of sympathy and full of searching thoroughness in dealing with sinners. We need more such manliness in the pulpit; it is the secret of power; it is the soul of eloquence. The cringing appeal for popularity, the hunger for approbation, the anxious looking for signs of sympathy, the cowardly compromise of truth—these things which are so unmanly that they forfeit the respect they covet.

A gun is less heated when it fires a ball than when it fires a blank cartridge. Let your sermons have a steady aim, and let not one be a blank cartridge. With a brave, warm, human heart, come near to men of all classes and conditions with the same gospel of love for all. Manly piety speaking in brave, earnest and cheerful tones in the pulpit, and moving in the parish with looks and words and acts of love for all—the poor and the rich, the low and the high—that is the power which, under God, will solves social problems and remedy the evils caused, as Maurice expressed it, by 'unsocial Christians and unchristian socialists.'

A settled, clear, calm faith makes manly men. Such men are full of magnetic power; they command attention; they incarnate truth, and so are in themselves the best of sermons. It is said of a great preacher, 'His thought was not in his hands, but he was in the hands of his thought.' That was the secret of effective earnestness; the man who is under the mastery and spell of truth will bring others under the same mastery and spell. David Hume said of John Brown, of Haddington: 'That's the man for me; he means what he says; he speaks as if Jesus were at his elbow.' May every one of you so speak.

Drummond said 'The one hope of science is more science.' I believe that but would add this: The only hope for religion is more religion. Only as our daily lives are benedictions to men can they be made doxologies to God."

Christ's Religion a Force.

Christianity has often been misrepresented as a principle of tears, and mildness and fastidiousness; afraid of crossing peoples prejudices; afraid of making somebody mad; with silken gloves lifting the people up from the church pew into glory, as though they were Bohemian glass, so very delicate that with one touch it may be demolished forever! Men speak of religion as though it were a refined imbecility; as though it were a spiritual chloroform that the people were to take until the sharp cutting of life were over.

The Bible, so far from this, represents the religion of Christ as robust and brawny—ransacking and upsetting ten thousand things that seem to be settled on firm foundations.

I hear some man say, "I thought religion was Peace." That is the final result. A man's arm is out of place. Two men come, and with great effort put it back to the socket. It goes back with great pain. Then it gets well. Our world is horribly disordered and out of joint. It must come under an omnipotent surgery, beneath which there will be pain and anguish before there can come perfect health and quiet.

For His Glory.

We are to prophesy and exemplify, to preach and practice. "Ye are the light of the world.....Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works." To what interest? To glorify you? Nay. "And glorify your Father which is in heaven." We are told that the epitaph on John Wesley's monument, City Road, London, after reciting the eminent labors of that distinguished servant of God, concludes with these words: "Reader, if thou art disposed to bless the instrument, give God the glory." The Savior of sinners seeks to draw all men unto himself through the instrumentality of those who have come to know him experimentally. Andrew "first findeth his own brother, Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messias." Philip findeth Nathaniel, and saith unto him, "We have found.....Jesus of Nazareth.' Of Christ it is written, "He saved others." This was his mission. "For your sakes." What then is the mission of the disciple of Christ? "That ye should show forth the praises of him that hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light."

Something We Cannot Afford.

Preparations were made for the first advent of Christ, and preparations are being made for his second coming. The nations are arming for the conflict. Earth's vintage is fast ripening for the sickle of the angel-reapers. The gospel message is being carried to every creature under heaven. The Bride of the Lamb is seeking a preparation for the coming nuptial day. We cannot afford to miss the marriage-feast. Are we robed in Christ's righteousness, ready and waiting?—L. Osler.

"In the present as in the past, Christ appoints his own servants. Let each be ready to do just what is given him to do if but to offer a cup of water in the name of a disciple and for the Master's sake. It is the motive that hallows the deed."

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1.50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

What Became of a Lie.

First, somebody told it,
Then the room wouldn't hold it,
So the busy tongues rolled it
Till they got it outside;
Why in the crowd came across it,
They onward did toss it,
Till it grew long and wide.

From a very small lie, sir,
It grew deep and high, sir,
Till it reached the sky, sir;
And frightened the moon,
For she hid her sweet face, sir,
At the dreadful disgrace, sir,
That had happened at noon.
This lie brought forth others,
Dark sisters and brothers,
And fathers and mothers—
A terrible crew;
And while headlong they hurried,
The people they flurried,
And troubled and worried,
As lies always do

And no evil holed,
This monstrous lie goaded,
Till at last it exploded
In smoke and in shame;
While from mud and from mire
The pieces flew higher,
And hit the sad liar,
And killed his good name.

Some friends are like pins: they have their good points, but they will stick you if they get a chance.

"Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness. Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt." Rom. iv. 3, 4. Splendid, Paul; for as soon as faith begins to "reckon" God begins to "count."

The Forgiveness of Sins.

Scripture statements that are familiar to the reader are often passed by without being fully comprehended or appreciated. In illustration of this remark see how thoughtlessly people will quote this text about the forgiveness of sins: "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us." Psa. ciii. 12. Simple words, familiar, commonplace, yet the text has a wonderful significance. If the passage read, "As far as the north is from the south," the distance indicated would be both definite and circumscribed; for the North Pole has been discovered, and very likely the South Pole will soon be found. "As far as the north is from the south" would only be the distance between the North and South Poles. But the text says "as far as the east is from the west." The earth is round and we can go from the east to the west, and go west forever, and still go west. There is limitless space between the east and west and no "poles" between them. What can be farther apart than the east and the west? Thank God for this wonderful eye.

The Old Covenant.

A DEAD HUSBAND.

The first or old covenant is likened by Paul to the marriage state. He says: "For the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man. Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God." Rom vii 2-4.

Here Paul compares the old covenant state to a dead husband, and the new covenant condition to Christ, who lives. He therefore exhorts the Romans (1) to abandon their old covenant, which is dead, and (2) be married to the new covenant which is now of force, and, lastly, to not attempt to live in wedlock with both Moses and Christ, as living under two covenants at the same time would constitute them spiritual adulterers.

But it is said that Paul kept the seventh day sabbath of the old covenant, because he often preached on that day. This is no proof that he held it sacred, and its observance binding. Because, first, in all his writings and preaching he never declared that he observed it as a holy day. Secondly, he never enjoined its keeping upon others. The apostles preached on that day for the same reason that Sabbatarians now often preach on Sunday; simply because they can have a larger audience on that day, and not because they consider it a day of rest.

But Paul did once declare that he "must by all means keep this feast that cometh in Jerusalem." Acts xviii 21. Did he ever say as much for the sabbath of the decalogue? Never! The apostle attended this feast of the Jews, at Jerusalem, and preached on the day observed by them as a day of rest, because these days brought the people together in large numbers, of which he took advantage, and preached unto them the gospel.

Paul also circumcised Timothy, not because it had been commanded in the law, which was now dead, but because of the influence it would exert over the Jews, who knew Timothy's father to be a Greek. Acts xvi 1-3. The circumcision of Timothy, the preaching on the Mosaic sabbath, and the keeping of the feast were all used by Paul to the furtherance of the work of his Master, to the conversion of his brethren according to the flesh.

Having now shown that the laws, statutes, commandments, and ordinances associated with the old covenant have ceased to be of force, and that they are not binding upon those living under the new covenant, the question may arise: Have all the old commandments and laws been abrogated? Are none of them in force now? As a code of laws, yes: they have all been abolished. Not one of them is valid now. As a covenant and as by-laws they have served their purpose and have died by statute limitation.

Like the constitution of a state, in its primary organization, laws and statutes are enacted which are deemed necessary for the government of the people for the time. But as time advances, inhabitants increase, and new contingencies arise which make necessary a new constitution and the enacting of new laws, to meet the conditions of the people and the needs of the state. When a new constitution and laws are adopted, the old constitution is considered of no value at all. The laws which were continued in the former and are still desirable and suitable are preserved and re-incorporated into the new code, while others, which though once good yet under existing conditions cannot be used to the well being of the state, are left out, and other statutes and laws are put into the constitution, which never before were commanded. These old laws re-embodied are now of force, not because they were in the old, but because they are in the new. The old constitution dies when the new goes into effect.

Just so with the laws and commandments of the "first" covenant. Those which were considered of value to the conditions of this dispensation, and to all peoples, nations and climes, have been incorporated into the "second" covenant; while those laws which were "contrary to us" and "against us" in this dispensation were left out of the new covenant.

There are some things not mentioned or provided against in the old covenant, which have been placed in the new. The sins of drunkenness, pride, unbelief, gluttony, and others also, were not mentioned or numbered among the ten commands of the old covenant. These are grievous sins, and are therefore placed in the new covenant law, with the penalty of death threatened to all those having an impure or an unbelieving heart. But while those sins of the heart are condemned in the new covenant though not mentioned in the Sinaitic code, many things were left out of the new covenant which were a part of the old one, and which was binding upon the Jews, while they lived in the land of Canaan. The seventh year land rest, the feast days and sabbaths, with all the offerings of the Jewish ritual, have been left out and are now of no force whatever; because, first, their typical significance have been fulfilled in Christ, and secondly, a change of the law became necessary because of the new covenant and the new order of priesthood going into effect with it. Heb. vii. 12.—J. August Smith, in "Our Hope."

A Review of Paton's Perversions.

By the invitation of a friend we attended a meeting of a few in a private house to hear an address by J. H. Paton, of Almont, Mich., editor of The World's Hope. From hearsay and from what we had understood this gentleman to believe, we had supposed him to be much of a "heterodox," as the popular sects of the world claim. Except in one particular, however, we now think he is very much of an "orthodox," as popular sects of the world would claim.

He commenced his address by drawing a distinction between the church and the world, a distinction that is real in its place, but not in the place the speaker had in mind. At present the bride is being taken out of the world, preparatory, he claims, to the probation and ultimate salvation of every man and child that ever lived and that ever shall live. In defining the word world we thought for a while that he was going to have a world for the bride without the earth. He said he did not think—he seemed to be making a venture in the dark—that the Greek word ge was ever rendered world. In this guess he was mistaken; but he had not gone far before he himself was adding "earth" to define "world."

Tottering and stumbling along the speaker tried to give his audience a lesson on the "rule of prophecy." This rule, he said, is that the last thing to occur is the first thing named. He did not illustrate the application of this rule, except in one or two prophecies in which he asserted the rule applied, and in which his shortsightedness was quite manifest to those who understood anything about the Bible. The rule so clearly laid down by the Savior—to which most students refer who are willing to accept the Scripture rule and have no theory depending upon an invented one—did not suit the gentleman's convenience. See Luke iv. 18-19, and compare with Isa. lxi. 1-4. The reason why the speaker desired to establish his rule of having the last part of a prophecy fulfilled before the first was because Peter's quotation from the prophet Joel needed to be manipulated to make it suit his theory about the spirit being poured out upon all flesh. To bolster up this he cited the words "It shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." The first thing in the programme, he thought was the bruising of the heel. He did not keep in mind the fact that the first act in the drama had already been performed and the serpent had man in its coils. Keeping this fact in mind he would have seen that the next thing in order was to bruise the head of the serpent so as to loosen its coils from its victims, and in this act of bruising the head the heel would be bruised.

With his own expedient rule in his mind the speaker tried hard to squeeze his theory of the salvation of all flesh out of Peter's quotation in Acts ii. 16-21. The pouring out of the spirit upon all flesh, he said, did not take place at that time; that means the ultimate salvation of all flesh. The gentleman's theory would not allow him to see the pouring out of the spirit on Pentecost upon all flesh, only upon "the servants and handmaidens" (v. 18.) It did not seem to weigh anything with him that Peter declared, "This is that which was spoken of by the prophet Joel.....I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh" (v. 16, 17.) He was bold to say, This is not that. This is only the pouring out of the Spirit upon the servants and handmaidens. His theory would not allow of Peter's definition of "all flesh," because that would deprive him of his play upon these words in support of universal salvation. Peter shows that Joel's use of these words does not require one to be so extravagantly unreasonable as to take the words in the most literal absolute sense. One unreasonable man might emphasize the words applicable to every man, woman and child, while another might claim that "all flesh" must mean all flesh and, therefore, it must apply to every creature that can be said to be flesh, from the lion down to the most quito. No doubt Mr. Paton would think the latter very foolish, but it would only be emphasizing the same words that he emphasizes in the attempt to make them absolute.

The words of the Scriptures must be taken according to Scripture definitions. Disregard this and we shall be forced to believe that heaven and earth shall literally be destroyed. The context must always govern the meaning of a phrase. We read, "If he set his heart upon man, if he gather unto himself his spirit and his breath, all flesh shall perish together, and man shall turn again unto dust (Job xxxiv. 14, 15.) Here the words "all flesh" are applied to all creatures distinct "from man." If we were to transfer this meaning to Acts ii. 17, we should make a mistake. The context in both cases shows the meaning. If Mr. Paton were to transfer his emphasis of the phrase in Acts to Gen. vi. 12-19; vii. 15-21; viii. 17; ix. 15-17, he would see how far he misses the mark in trying to strain the words to fit his theory of universal salvation.

"The end of all flesh is come" are words his theory knows not what to do with, for there are exceptions to "all flesh" even to the extent of Noah and his family. It is said, "I will bring a flood of waters upon the earth to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven; and everything that is in the earth shall die" (Gen. vi. 17;) yet it also says, "And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life" (v. 15.) Perhaps Mr. Paton would be willing to admit that the phrase in these cases means all kinds of flesh. Since the apostle had named "Parthians and Medes," and so on a long list of representatives of all flesh, why deny him when he says, "This is that which was spoken of by the prophet Joel . . . I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh?" There is no doubt there will be a more ample fulfillment of this entire prophecy, but if the words "all flesh" could be used representatively, in a limited sense, of those assembled when Peter spoke, why may they not be used representatively in relation to the more ample and final fulfillment of the prophecy?

The speaker became loud when he scorned the very idea of God ever turning a deaf ear to the cry of sinners. He spoke as if God were under obligation to listen and to answer the worst sinner in the world whenever that sinner takes a notion to call. To scorn the idea of God turning a deaf ear to the cry of some is to scoff at God's words, for it is distinctly declared that he will refuse to hear some repentant sinners. Let not Mr. Paton dream, and let not his followers be deceived with the foolish thought that men can refuse to hear God as they like and then when they change their fickle minds he will and must hear them because he has obligated himself, as they claim, to save everybody. Let him speak in this matter and let Mr. Paton keep silence before him. Here is what he says, and all the sophistry in the world can never change it. "Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets: she crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the openings of the gates; in the city she uttereth her words, saying, How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge? Turn you at my reproof: behold, I will pour out my spirit unto you, I will make known my words unto you. "Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand and no man regarded; but ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof; I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh; when your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you. Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me; for that they hate knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the Lord. They would none of my counsel: they despised all of my reproof. Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices. For the turning of the simple shall slay them, and the prosperity of fools shall destroy them. But whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil."

Mr. Paton's way of evading this is by claiming that God will not hear them for a time; but that he will some time; but this is the prating of puny man in opposition to God's Word. Has not God declared, "He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy" Prov xxix 1? No, no, says this man with a theory that must have God's words bend to its folly, 'there is a remedy for all, no matter how many times they have been reproved, nor or how much they may have "hardened their necks;" and thus clerical theorists brush God's words aside as if they were so much cobweb. Beware! you who are led in opposition to God by men who go about "leading silly women astray." To hear Mr. Paton's side of things one would conclude that he is a very powerful antagonist of the Adventists; but perhaps it is that he has come in contact with helpless victims; and then, again, perhaps his esteem of Mr. Paton warped the story. He is evidently prone to exaggerate in order to make himself appear a lion; for in dealing with Rev xxi 4, he actually declared that some say that the reason why there is no "more death, neither sorrow, nor crying" at the time the text refers to is because everybody is dead! If the gentleman had been challenged to name the people who believe such a foolish thing he would surely have been in an awkward position before his audience. Of course his object was to make any position appear absurd except his own—that when there is no more death "death will be dead," and everybody will be saved. He claims that the second death is the "death of death," and as long as death holds one single victim in its power it is not destroyed; whether in this he includes lions, horses, rabbits, mosquitos, etc., or not we have not yet been informed. Still, if this theory is to be taken in its fulness these must logically be included. If the "second death" is the "death of death" or the end of death, and the consequent salvation of all men, as Mr. Paton claims, no living being need fear it. It will never hurt him; it is only death that is liable to be hurt by the second death; it is death only that will die the second death. We are not told when death died its first death, but perhaps that will be adjusted when Mr. Paton has time to give his theory the finishing touch of his brush. But to return to the question as to what will be hurt by the second death, let us see if it is only death or if it is living beings. Rev ii 11 says, "He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death" and chap xxi 8 says that the "fearful, and unbelieving and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolators, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake of fire and brimstone: which is the second death." This is enough for any one who wants to believe God's Word, and with others the case is hopeless.

Mr. Paton had met with some who had wished Romans eight were out of the Bible, yet it was just the chapter for the speaker; for did it not say that the "whole creation" shall be delivered? This superficial snatching at words is characteristic of Russellism, and universalism generally, and Mr. Paton is sadly afflicted with the same complaint. It is strange that men will not allow the Bible to be its own interpreter. It defines its own terms and has a right be judged by its own clearly-given meaning of the words and phrases it uses. The phrase "the whole creation" has been a stumbling stone to many who have disregarded this principle. The Greek word for creation in Rom viii is Ptisis, and it is the same word that is rendered creature in Mark xvi 15 and Col i 23. Its use in these cases when compared leaves no room for universal salvation. To preach the gospel to "every creature" (Mark xvi 15) is the same in meaning as, "Go teach all nations (Matt xxviii 19). Whatever it was to teach all nations and to preach the gospel to every creature, the apostles were to do it. Did they? If they did it follows that the words are not to be taken in the individual universal sense. Did they? we again ask. Let the apostle Paul answer: "If ye continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, which was preached to every creature which is under heaven; whereof I, Paul, am made a minister" (Col i 23).

Before the death of Christ the gospel was to be preached to only one nation—Israel. After his resurrection it was to be sent to all nations, and it is in this sense the phrases "whole creation," "every creature" and "all nations" are to be understood, and not that every individual of the race be saved, or must even have the gospel preached to him. Peter gives the true meaning when, upon realizing that the Gentiles were accepted of God, he declared, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respector of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him" (Acts x 34, 35).

Like Universalists generally, Mr. Paton declares that it is not the sinner that is to be destroyed, but his sins; he is not willing that this artificial rule shall work both ways, and save the righteousness of the righteous. With him it is not "the proud and all that do wickedly shall be burned up root and branch (Mal iv 1); it is only the pride and wickedness, those who do wickedly must be saved in spite of their wickedness. It is not enemies of the Lord that, like the fat of lambs, shall consume into smoke (Psa xxxvii 20); they are to be saved, but their sins are to be like the fat of lambs—to consume. It would be interesting to see Mr. Paton give a practical illustration of his theory with criminals. It would be a wonderful feat to punish murder, theft, perjury, etc., without punishing the murderer, thief and perjurer. Still, a theory is useless if it cannot be practically carried out. No doubt the man who performed this wonderful exploit would find thousands of admirers in the ranks of the vile criminals of the world—if the administrators of the law could be persuaded to be satisfied with such a method of satisfying justice. But what is the use of exposing this foolishness? If it were not that some honest people are deluded by it, it would be unworthy of the slightest notice. Awake! you who are allowing yourselves to be blinded by such folly. —Selected and revised by the Editor.

30,000 Errors.

A few years since Higher Critics made much of the claim that there were 30,00 errors in the Bible. Now we hear nothing of them or about them. Why? Because men of piety and learning have shown to their confusion of face that the "various readings" of the different MSS. and versions, while numerous, are very unimportant: and that the Hebrew Bible of today is substantially the same as the recension made by Ezra and others from the Synagogue Rolls. These were the "Textus Receptus" of our Lord's day. These Rolls, consisting of the Pentateuch, Megilloth, and Haphtaroh, together with the Greek translation, are the groundwork from which our versions of the Scriptures have been derived. Our different versions have "various readings," we grant; they contain many alterations in language, we concede; but in all instances of discrepancy the meaning of the text remains the same. To illustrate and enforce the truth of our affirmation, we now give the "various readings" of Heb xi 1, from Wycliffe's translation in 1380 A. D., to the Twentieth Century New Testament, in 1904 A. D. Put on your glasses now, reader, and try your best to see if in all the "various readings" of Heb xi 1 you can discover an "error" of Higher Criticism, a "discrepancy" of Josephiticism, a "lie" of Infidelity. If you fail then you will see that our representation is correct, viz., that while the different versions vary the language, the thought expressed is precisely the same.

Communicated.

Hark! What is this I Hear?

"The bleating of the sheep, and the lowing of the kine."

O yes, we want to use our judgment and save the best. We don't want to cast all heathenism and its belongings away as so much abominable rubbish. The desire of the flesh is just to save the best. The command of God is destroy it all. What communion hath light with darkness. How can we therefore worship with those who know not God, and obey not the gospel—who worship a strange God. Can we worship with such in spirit and in truth.

The simple sentence "Brother, lead us in prayer," is not in the spirit of truth. In the first place, can I call a man brother, who is opposed to the will of my Father. It has been said of such "Ye are of your father, the devil." If we call on this man to lead us, we hide our light, and follow the one deluded one into the depths of darkness where he meets his father.

Are we playing a game at hypocrisy with a blind man, and put him in the lead while we dodge the ditch. O no! we don't follow him really. Through charity we invite him to worship with us. Charity! Curious kind of charity. A man who enters the Master's house by some other way, or climbing over, is called a thief and a robber. He refuses to come in by the true door. Are we again deceiving a blind man, by not leading him to the door, but by boosting him in some other way, thus admitting such into the Master's house.

O, not so bad as that. We just want to be charitable, kind; not selfish. Is it kind to go out into the street and invite a filthy beggar in to the feast, when we know the master of the feast will call his servants to cast him out. Garments are furnished for all who are invited to the feast. Why should we therefore usurp authority and ignore the customs of the Master's house by inviting an unwashed beggar in his own filthy rags, into the presence of the white-robed throng. I fail to see any charity (love) in that for either beggar or Master.

Some say it has a good influence to invite an unwashed sinner to lead us into the presence of God. Influence with who—God or man? We cannot deceive God and should not deceive man. God's power and plan is sufficient for work. We need not use any extra or forbidden props to steady the ark. The hand that undertakes it will lose power. Any brother who feels strong enough to eat the meat of idolaters, should be very careful how he eat, lest he offend a weak brother. The weak brother might stumble in studying the problem.

Why ask one to lead us in prayer, who don't believe God's oath, don't believe the record of his Son, don't believe Jesus is the only begotten Son of God, don't believe Jesus is the Life Giver. But he does believe his own soul, the devil, sin and pain, are as eternal as God. Is prayer only a supplementary ceremony of lesser importance than the sermon? "The prayer of the righteous is his delight." But can we suppose the Lord is well pleased by the rehearsal of heathen dogma and doctrine of devils—the very thing he has set his servants to destroy? Be not deceived. God is not mocked.

Brethren pray that every one who bears the Name may have strength to worship in spirit and in truth.

Yours in the hope,

SADIE SKEELS.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Any one desiring pictures of Illinois Bible School or Conference can secure them of the undersigned at 30 cents each for 5 x 7 size, postpaid. Post cards of Bible School 5 cents each or 45 cents per dozen, postpaid. F. V. Blakely, 627 So. Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1850. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brethren and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the Van Buren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 544 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

IN our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hilliaburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1.50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

LELIA E. WHITEHEAD, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. O. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Plerceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 2, 1910. NUMBER 41.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As it means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisite to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Hour By Hour.

God knows our year—hours and days that Run by—
And days by days,
Just going, on a little way,
Then back to bring a
Then [illegible]
Shall the weight [illegible]
[illegible]
A [illegible]
[illegible]
We could not go.
Our feet would stray, and so
God lays a little on us every day,
And never, He here, on all the way,
Will burden bear we keep,
Or pathways in us keep,
But we can go, in by God's power,
We only hear the burden of the hour.

Teacher. Having been separated from you, for so long a time, it is a pleasure to meet with you again, to engage in these delightful studies.

The topic selected for to-night is, based on Jeremiah vi 16: "Thus saith the Lord, stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein. Sometime ago, I wrote to a correspondent concerning my proclamation of the "Old Path." He replied: "Personally I have greater interest in new things than old. Things that appeal to me are the life that now is, and that which is to come; the new heavens and the new earth," etc.

Now, Carrie, in order to reach the life that is to come, and also the new heaven and earth condition will we be required to travel an old or a new way?

Carrie. The text on which our lesson is built, says: "Ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein."

Q. What benefit will accrue to the travelers in the "old paths"?

A. "Ye shall find rest for your souls."

Q. Does the old way appeal alike to all people?

A. No, sir; your correspondent said: "I have greater interest in new things than old."

Q. At the time Jeremiah advised traveling the "old paths," did his advice appeal to all people at that time?

A. No, sir; we read: "But they said: We will not walk therein."

Teacher. Well, Ludie, do you suppose that many paths differing from the "old paths," seem right to many that walk therein?

Lud. Yes, sir; it was the case in times of old, and it is the same today. See Prov xiv 12: "There is a way which seemeth right unto man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

Q. Then, the way seeming right to men are not always right, are they?

A. No, sir; they could not be, if "the end thereof are the ways of death."

Well, the "seeming right," shows that they were honest in believing they were in the right path. Did their believing they were in the right path, avert the consequences of traveling the wrong path?

A. No, sir; the Scripture quoted says: "The end thereof, are the ways of death."

Q. Don't it make you feel bad, to see anyone traveling the wrong path, either innocently or even willfully?

A. Indeed, it does; so terrible are the consequences.

Teacher. Tell us, Ella, did Jeremiah say anything about two divergent paths, one leading to life and the other to destruction?

Ella. Yes, sir; he has spoken so clearly about them. See Matt vii 13, 14: "Enter ye in at the strait gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way which leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. Because strait and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

Q. Is there enough distinction between these two ways, that they cannot be mistaken one for the other?

A. Certainly there is, if you see a "broad way," and a large body of people pressing through its wide extended gate, you can be definitely sure, that is the "way which seemeth to destruction." The distinction between that, and a "narrow way," with but a few people pressing through its "straight gate," is quite marked, so that no one need be mistaken.

Q. Then why will some persist in going a "way which seemeth right unto men, but the end thereof are the ways of death," if there is a marked difference between them?

A. John says: he "walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth because that darkness hath blinded his eyes."

Q. How came he to be in a condition, in which he could not discern light from dark?

A. See Matt xv 14: "They be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind leadeth the blind both shall fall into the ditch." It is the "blind guides" that in a large measure lead innocent people into the way of death. They meet death just the same, whether they go in voluntary, or are led in.

Q. Well Arlon, do some enter the "broad way," from preference, to the "narrow way" or the "old paths"?

A. Yes, sir; some may answer: "Personally I have greater interest in new things, than old."

Q. What would you name the "old path"?

A. The "gospel."

Q. Is that an old, or new way?

A. A very old way, it reaches all the way back to the days of Abraham.

Q. What evidence have you that it is of that age?

A. See Gal iii 8: "The Scripture foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all the nations be blessed."

Q. Are you sure that is the way which "leadeth unto life?"

A. Yes, sir; I am, see Rom i 16; "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation, to every that believeth."

Q. I know the word "gospel" means good news, but what is it good news about?

A. That is an important question, because if we get the wrong message, concerning which the gospel is good news, we may still miss the "old path." Jesus gives the old message, and that being the case, we may be sure of finding the way, which leadeth unto life.

Q. Please give the message?

A. See Mark i 14: "Now after that John was put in prison Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, the kingdom of God is at hand; (new in order, but not nigh at hand) repent ye and believe the gospel." The message then, is the good news concerning the coming kingdom of God. After hearing this message, the injunction is: "Repent ye and believe the gospel."

Q. Won't a, or other gospel serve the same purpose?

A. No, sir; it will not. See what Paul says, Gal i 8, 9: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, if any man preach any other gospel unto you than that you have received, let him be accursed."

Q. Why be so particular?

A. Because any other message would not be the strait and narrow way which leadeth unto life.

Teacher. Now Albert, you will doubtless remember, that the Lord said: "Few there be that find it." Is it so difficult to find?

Albert. No, sir; it is easily found by those who will let "blind guides" alone, and stick close to God's Word.

Q. Is there any other reason why so few find it?

A. Yes, sir; the Serpent the lie uttered in Eden's beautiful bowers, has fastened itself upon the minds of the great mass of religious people; and that leads to a belief of a kingdom, which Christ never preached. And again, by believing that error, they can see no reason, why they should enter a way which offers life at the terminus, when they are confident that they have "a never dying soul to save, and fit it for the sky." With such convictions dominating their minds, they can never find the "narrow way," or the "old paths."

Q. Is it necessary to root out these errors before people can find the "narrow way"?

A. It is—some Minds so befogged can never see clear enough to pass the "strait gate," so this accounts for the reason why so few find the "narrow way."

Q. Is there still any other reason?

A. There is. The sacrifices required are burdensome to the flesh.

Q. What sacrifices are required?

A. That can be shown by quoting Phil iii 8, 9: "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ. Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Christ." You can never carry the burdensome load of the flesh with you along the narrow way. If a person thinks that they can gratify all the desires of the flesh, and be a successful traveler along the old paths, he or she will find out their mistake.

Q. Have you some plain teaching along this line?

A. Yes, sir; quite plain. See Rom xii 1, 2: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable, and perfect will of God."

Teacher. Can a person who has entered the narrow way, be side-tracked before the journey is completed?

George. Yes, sir; there is a danger of that, and therefore the traveler must be careful lest he should stray off into one of those dangerous side-tracks.

Q. Can you name some of those side-tracks, that we may be on the look out and avoid them?

A. While there may be many, yet possibly the three which I have in mind, may be the most dangerous.

Q. Please name them.

A. In answering that question, we must bear in mind that we have found "The gospel of the kingdom of God," to be the old path, that leads unto life eternal; and anything that contradicts, or undermines that, is a side-track. The three I have in mind, saps the foundation of the aforesaid blessed message. They are known under the titles of human paternity of Jesus, The Pre-existence of Christ; seeking justification by the deeds of the old law, which was nailed to the cross.

Having started in the "old path," let us beware of all side-tracks, that we may make sure of the prize to be obtained at the end of the way. It is now time to adjourn.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

An Exhortation.

To the earnest it: the "faith once delivered to the saints," and especially to those in California, greeting:—

I suppose each little band in the Blessed Hope feel, as we do here in Los Angeles, the loneliness of separation from the beloved, who are widely scattered. I wonder if our eastern friends realize that our beautiful Golden State occupies an area of nearly 800 miles in length, 350 wide, and has almost 1000 miles of coast line on the Pacific ocean. In all this vast territory God has a people, a little flock, two or three faithful ones in thriving city and hamlet.

This was brought to my attention more forcibly by the visit of Brother W. H. Wilson last August. He came to us at the close of an extended trip on the coast through Washington, Oregon and California. How refreshing his presence and the messages he gave from the Word! We shall cherish the memory of this earnest Brother, and trust his hope of another visit to our midst will be realized.

I have long felt the necessity of more efficient work in this State. Since the days when our dear Brother Richard Corbaley was with us, we have had no yearly Conference; little has been accomplished in the unity of the Church. [illegible] Loss? As a few years [illegible] and a few who are well-[illegible] the Faith, together with many who seemed interested in the coming of the Lord, but holding to many errors. Since then several dear ones have fallen asleep—Sisters Lamphere, Forsyth, Ellithorpe and Hillis, whose kindly greetings and dear companionship we still miss. Others have united with the First Day Advents, hoping to lead them from error, but really weakening our little flock.

Last April I had the pleasure of helping four of our beloved to put on Christ by immersion—Brother Joe Tucker and wife, Brother J. Knox and Sister Ina Baillie.

While Brother Wilson was here a State organization was discussed, and we asked him to name suitable parties to represent us as President and Secretary. I have corresponded with those persons, but no decided action has yet been taken toward an organization, which we hope may yet be accomplished.

A Church organization has been concluded here with Brother J. Tucker as Deacon, and the undersigned as Elder. We hope our example will be followed throughout the State where organizations are not already existing, as this is the first step in effecting State organization.

Let us not sleep as those who have no hope. Do you realize that we have but little time to work? God's judgments are now in the earth, and we are near the beginning of the end. But few grains of sand are left in the hour-glass of time allotted to this cosmos. The great events that usher in the time of Jacob's trouble, may take place within the next year, when the world sees two great empires, the daughter of Babylon and the daughter of Zion, will be a reality that will cause the world to wonder, when they behold the beast that was not, and yet is. Esau is about to break the yoke of Jacob from his neck, and put a yoke upon the neck of his brother, Genesis xxvii. 40, and put on the crown and royal diadem, having come into possession of the dominion (Babylon).

Let us be up and doing: the time is short, and our God will not tarry. We trust all the waiting ones in California will give this matter their earnest and immediate attention. Those wishing to communicate with me can address at 125 Pasadero, Monterey avenue, South Pasadena, Cal.

Yours in hope of the soon coming kingdom.

The Bereans Column.

[Copy Supplied by Illinois Bereans.]

Dear Bereans:

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge." Psa. xix. 1, 2.

How many of us realize the beauty of the above? It seems to me that a love for the beautiful is rare, if not quite extinct, in most people whom I come in contact with. To me this seems pitiable, for I reverence the work of the Creator and without the power to see the beautiful in nature all around me, my life would be indeed dull, dreary and monotonous.

I am not a dreamer, nor am I sentimentally foolish. I have practical ideas which are carried out to the letter; but while I am performing the meanest, commonest, smallest tasks, even though my feet may be stuck hard and fast in the mud of earth, my head is bumping the stars. Thus a love for the beautiful helps us, lightens our labor, brightens our lives and lifts us up until with uplifted eyes we behold the heavens and realize that they "declare the glory of God."

When I was a mere child, before I knew this great truth, there was something about the quiet, intense hush of a country nightfall that was awe-inspiring. I loved to watch the sunset, then when the afterglow had died away, in silent wonder I'd watch—"As silently one by one, in the infinite meadows of heaven, blossomed the lovely stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels."

I loved and still love sunrises and sunsets, but it is now with a broader understanding. Now I appreciate the beauty of it all knowing that it is God's "handiwork" showing forth his "knowledge."

It is good to read and study the prophets, to learn of the promises made unto Abraham etc., but it is far better to realize that all the beauty of this present world is God's creation and meant for us to enjoy. To realize this is to obtain the best and most desirable in this life, and will lead to the praise of God.

What do we hear Christ saying in his sermon in the Mount? "Consider the lilies of the field how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." Matt. vi. 28, 29. How many consider the lilies and note that their robe of pure white outshines any apparel mere man could possibly array himself in? Some people class them as weeds. To me each flower that opens, filling the air with its fragrance brings a message sweet.

"The desert shall blossom as the rose," is good. We who love the rose can better appreciate this promise, can we not?

Let us love nature, since (to use modern language) "The laws of nature are the thoughts of God," look about us and note the presence of the pure, the beautiful and lovely in this life, even though we know that sin and evil exist, it is better for the mind to ignore it, and dwell on the good.

Then when we read Psalm viii. 3, "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained," do we feel small and insignificant when we drop down to the 4th verse and read the question—"What is man that thou art mindful of him?" True, what is man? A puny mortal being. Placed here amidst all the grandeur and magnificence of a world created for his habitation. Is he an appreciative being? The beauty of the dense forest, including flowers, ferns, brooks etc., are his to enjoy. If he has hitherto ignored them, let him resolve to observe hereafter. "See something beautiful every day," and realize the source from whence it came, then will happiness be yours, and the joy of living will be exceedingly great.

EVA WILSON.

GOD KNOWS THE WAY

God knows the way. I'm sure I cannot tell
What paths he chooses; but I know 'tis well.
If trials come to haunt me night and day,
He knows the way.

O, days are long, and years are slow indeed.
The pastures dry wherein we daily feed.
But plenteous grace and blessing doth abound
When light is found.

The world seems old, and all its pleasures stale.
Our lives are surfeited with their fulfilled desire.
We pant for waterbrooks and feeding springs,
Where nature sings.

O, God of heaven and earth, look down we pray,
Upon thy suffering sheep, lost and astray.
Let us abound in measures of thy grace.
Show us Thy face.

Draw us still nearer as the days go by;
Hear our supplications as to Thee we cry.
May Thy deep love impart faith day by day.
Show us the way.

We know Thy matchless power to heal—to feed.
Sustain our faltering courage to the end.
Help us to say, when tempests would us sway,
God knows the way.

BIRDS OF THE WORLD.

"Christ is in full way about the service of the Lord. We must not be lukewarm nor undecided, but earnest, diligent, persevering. If we wish others to become interested in the gospel we must be interested ourselves, and call."

by our interest and knowledge, entice others.

Not earthly things, dross that perishes with the using, should engross our attention, but heavenly things, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Our heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things, but seek first the kingdom of God.

We must be seeking and striving toward the things that pertain to the higher life, laying up for ourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal.

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Gal. vi. 7. If we satisfy only our own human and fleshly lusts, we shall of the flesh reap corruption; but if we sow the seeds of righteousness and peace we know what the fruits of the spirit shall be, love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law. Let us seek peace and pursue it instead of rioting and drunkenness, silly, foolish talking and jesting which are not befitting a lovely Christian character. We must prove by our works that we are the children of God, purifying ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh, in obedience and meekness working out our own salvation with fear and trembling. Not in bitterness of spirit. Do all things without murmurings and disputings. Phil. ii. 14. That we may be accounted blameless, unworthy of rebuke, amidst a perverse and degenerate generation, showing by pureness and knowledge of the Word, a contrast to an evil workings. We must preach the Word, be instant in season, and out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long suffering and doctrine, with patient waiting; hoping unto that glorious coming of our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. Not in idleness and carelessness, for we are admonished to "Be not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." That is our work and chief aim in life, to serve him. Serve him with the whole heart.

"To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Jas iv. 17.

Sins of omission are laid to our charge, the same as sins of commission, doubtless. We should endeavor by daily acts of kindness and good will to sow good seed that shall bring forth fruit many fold, knowing what our reward shall be. Wherefore we labor that present or absent we may be accepted of him. 2 Cor. v. 9.

We then, as workers together with him, beseech you that ye receive not the grace of God in vain; for if we accept his grace, we have become new creatures in Christ, and have put off the old man with his deeds. Avoiding offense, learn to overcome, and be faithful unto the end. Read 2 Cor. vi. 3-11. Let us give more thought to charity than to the accumulation of riches; for through that very sin many have taken to themselves sorrow, and have pierced themselves through with many a thorn. Jesus did not go about getting rich. He went about doing good, and that is what we ought to be doing, lifting one another's burdens, singing instead of sighing. Our mouths ought to be filled with praises instead of complaints. We should listen to those who are willing to communicate, of the good news of the kingdom, and then show by our works that we have been to Christ and learned of him.

"But if we hear and heed it not,
We hear for condemnation,
For doers of the Word we're taught,
Are heirs of Christ's salvation."

Let us then, like Paul, press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus, despising the revelings and wickedness of this world, knowing that we shall be rewarded with a crown of righteousness at that day.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 2, 1910.

STORM and floods in China and Japan have caused great loss of property and some thousands of lives.

ON last Sunday Brother Joseph W. Williams was with the Church at Plymouth, and gave two excellent discourses. The attendance was good, the house being well filled, and good attention was given. This was a fifth Sunday, and Brother Williams now goes to his regular work with the organizations at Pleasant View, Hillsburg, Rensselaer and Roll. May the Father in heaven give him strength and wisdom to do good service in his vineyard.

A DISPATCH from London October 29 says that the Jewish Colonization Association has determined to cease work in Palestine. The reason given is the difficulties put in the way of the purchase of land by the Young Turks party who now control affairs. There are now 50,000 Jews in and around Jerusalem alone, and thirty or forty flourishing colonies west of the Jordan which is a large increase in the last few years. All Zionist work is now getting more difficult, owing to the attitude of the authorities. It looks as if it was an attempt on the part of the Turks to get money, and the Jews refuse to be bled further. This is only a check—God will find a way to accomplish what he wants done.

ONLY a few weeks ago Portugal had a revolution, the king and royal family fled the country, and a republic is formed. Reports show grave apprehension is felt lest Spain follows the same course. Also in Greece there is a good deal of uneasiness lest a revolt changes all there. In Turkey there is dissatisfaction for the Young Turks have failed to make all the promised changes, and any little thing may get matters tangled there. Then there is attention in Corea over the Japanese taking the rule there. China sees constant danger in Manchuria from both Russia and Japan. India is on the verge of making serious trouble for the English, and viewing the situation the world over, the prospects for continued peace are not so very bright.

THE situation throughout Asia, and indeed all Mohammedan lands, is fast becoming alarming. There are in India some sixty-six millions of Mohammedans, and every where there is talk of a Holy War. Should the Mohammedans rise no power could stop them from crushing all before them. The horrors that would follow would be beyond description. Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and they see no place of safety. Watch, brethren, the times portend great changes, and let us be prepared for our soon coming King.

Pure Religion

"Pure and undefiled religion" is a term that is authorized by inspiration. It implies a religion that is impure and defiled. Religion consists in a course of conduct toward our fellow men and with reference to God. To give a cup of water to one who is thirsty seems an insignificant act of kindness—one that any person ought to be willing to perform. Yet the Savior assures us that if this is done for one because he is Christ's disciple, a reward awaits the one who does it. According to the Apostle James, to visit the widows and fatherless in their afflictions and to keep one's self unspotted from the world, is pure and undefiled religion. When all the nations of the earth are brought before the Judge of men in the last great day, the separation will be based on men's conduct. Those who fed the hungry, visited the sick, clothed the naked, and in other ways ministered to even the least of Christ's disciples, will be accepted and rewarded. The reason given is that Christ regards what is done even to the least of his disciples as having been done to him. A great man has said: "Religion is only another word for the right use of a man's whole self, instead of a use that is wrong and ruinous." Then we should never talk of "getting religion." We might with propriety speak of practicing religion. That we should do good unto all men, and specially unto those who are of the household of faith is the divine will.—G. H. P. Sunday School Lesson.

NOVEMBER 13, 1910.

The World's Temperance Lesson.—Matthew xxiv. 32-51.

Golden Text—"Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." Matt. xxvi. 41.

This is called a Temperance Lesson, and surely a temperance lesson can be made from the section of Scripture taken, but a more appropriate subject would be Watchfulness.

Jesus had left the Temple in Jerusalem, and gone to the Mount of Olives. His disciples had been showing the buildings of the temple, and he had told them that not one stone should be left upon another—it should be thrown down. There was wonder in their hearts, and they came asking to be told when these things would happen, and what sign should be given. Jesus told of the wars, famines, pestilences, tribulations of various kinds; disasters in earthquakes, etc; disciples growing cold, false prophets arising, false Christs showing wonders to deceive even his elect ones. Then comes the warning not to be led astray by such. When all these things come, then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven, and they shall see him coming with power and in great glory.

Our lesson begins with the parable of the fig tree. When the branch is tender, and puts forth leaves, the husbandman knows that summer is nigh. So when the things here predicted come to pass, those who are watching may know that the next event in order—the coming of the Son of man—is at hand.

Assurance is given that his words will not fail. Heaven and earth may pass away—all material things might cease to exist—but his Word shall not pass away. Surely they will come to pass.

But while the signs indicate the approach of the event, the exact day and hour is not given, but is known only to the Father.

Some try to figure that the prophecy of the coming of the Lord was fulfilled when in A. D. 70 the city of Jerusalem was destroyed, and the Jewish nation came to an end. Also that the Lord comes to each one of us at death, and at "every crisis in life, at every time of special reward or punishment." We pass such theories by as so much foolish twaddle. The effort to spiritualize such an event as the coming of Christ would force the spiritualizing of all the signs as well, and is made necessary by the belief in the soul's immortality, thus necessitating going to such lengths to bolster up this false theory. There is simply nothing in such ideas, and they weaken the whole scheme of redemption.

Jesus was preparing his disciples for the trials and tribulations that would come to them when he was gone away, and trying to fortify their minds. He warns them of just such false teaching, and tells what will be the conditions as that event comes near. He tells them that as in the time of Noah none took heed, but made fun of poor old Noah and his ship on dry land, and taking no stock in his preaching, went on with their business, and with the social festivities of the time, eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, with no thought of coming disaster—just so shall the coming of the Son of man be. They were heedless, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away.

Christ's admonition is "watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." If they had known they would wait until that time, and then watch, but not knowing their "house is broken up."

What does it mean to watch?

One way to watch is to be gazing out of the open door, anxious to catch the first glimpse of the coming one. Another way to be watching is being awake and doing duty—serving. To be at the door looking out, is to imply that everything is done. That there is no more to do. So long as we are given strength to work for the Master, we must neglect no opportunity to serve him. We watch for our Lord by obeying him. By resisting the tempter, being on guard against the wiles of the evil one, being awake to each opportunity, by noting the signs of his coming.

If we indulge indolence, neglect our duty, are engrossed in frivolous things, absorbed in gratifying self with pleasure or gain, forget our Master's service, we cannot be termed watchful. Such as do this are to be "cut asunder," and be appointed a "portion with the hypocrites," and go where there is "weeping and gnashing of teeth."

Those who are diligent in service—truly watchful—are to be blessed when his Lord shall come and shall "find him so doing." The Lord will "make him ruler over his goods."

Applying this lesson to temperance we should work to guard against the smallest beginning of intemperance. Drunkards come from innocent children; that is what they are made of. Little sippings, apparently innocent and harmless. Moderate drinking by those who "can quit any time they want to." Every drunkard was once a moderate drinker.

A story is told of a man, a moderate drinker, who ordered his liquor at a bar. A ragged, bloated tramp asked the man to purchase a drink for him also. The man replied that he did not drink with tramps. At this the tramp gave him to understand that he was as good as he was. He had as good an education, came of as good family, and was once as much a gentleman—whisky had made him what he was. He assured the gentleman that it would soon make him a tramp such as he was. By keeping on with "moderate drinking" he was sure to reach the same level.

It is related that the man poured his liquor on the floor and ceased his moderate drinkin while he could master the appetite.

A little act, repeated time and again, soon becomes habit, and once fixed is hard to shake off. But few possess the power when a habit is formed to break away from it. Then how careful we should be to watch and form only good habits. Leave off drinking before you begin, is a good rule.

An Appeal.

To the faithful in Christ Jesus, in Michigan, or wherever they may be, and all concerned in the unity of the gospel cause, greeting:—

What is the matter brethren? There is something wrong somewhere. Do we forget that when we meet in conference assemblies it is for the express purpose of building up the cause of truth, and not to establish hobbies, or say unkind words, which drive the almost-persuaded entirely away, and the old battle-scared pioneers to their homes discouraged and ashamed of the [illegible]

We have received several [illegible] of late congratulating us on having the good sense to remain at our homes, thereby saving precious money and time which would have been wasted in attending a certain conference, which we understood was to meet for unity of purpose in the gospel work. But all render the same verdict—failure, failure, entire failure to accomplish the object for which the meeting was called.

These assemblies can never bring unity out of chaos as long as some go for the express purpose of riding their hobbies, without any thought of love for the fundamental truths, and a desire to see these established. Would it not be better, brethren, when one believes he is justified by the works of the law, to join the body of believers who try to keep the law? and if another believes in universal salvation, let him go home to the "All Souls" Church. If one believes in the human-paternity theory, and insists on teaching that doctrine, the Unitarian denomination would be glad to receive him, if he bear a clean character.

This course would relieve the Church of God of the continual bickerings which annoy, and is surely destroying the Church in some states. We might include the "no devil" theory also. We certainly have a great nightmare of theology, and continuing in this course the body will soon be divided into little petty factions, and the old devil will have accomplished his purpose, and will stand back and laugh over his victories.

General Washington's words "United we stand, divided we fall," are just as true of the Church as of the State.

The early Church was a well organized system. Paul left Titus at Crete to set things in order, and they ordained them elders in every church, and had a well defined and strong declaration of the things most surely believed among them. We have a grand declaration of principles in the upper right-hand corner of our dear old RESTITUTION paper, which has been endorsed by our churches for years. Why? Because we believed these principles were according to God's revealed Word. Has his Word changed? No. Then let us all with a unity of the Spirit, born of love, still contend for those principles.

Our dear Editor has the backbone to still defend those noble declarations that we old pioneers have been defending so long. I believe our Michigan brethren almost to a man, are ready to stand for the truth of the one faith. O what a pity so much precious time is spent in these side-issues, that bring no salvation to any one. Every effort should be put forth to save sinners, and show them the true way of life.

The multitude is perishing for lack of knowledge, and we are commissioned to preach to them the gospel of the kingdom, which is the power of God unto salvation. If we do that well we have enough to occupy our time with. We are not sent out to preach the gospel of the ages to come, as it has not been told us what that is, but preach that which will save in this age, and call out a people for his name.

May God save us from the perils of these last days.

Submitted in love,
E. W. WOODWARD.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I am in the Northwest again. It would be an interesting review of a two thousand mile journey, if I had kept a record of the events beginning at the little village Palo Verde, Arizona, and ending at Felida, Washington.

Without giving any of the details, but sweeping the outline of events, it was on a bright April morning. The buggy trip is across the Arizona desert forty-two miles, from the village with the pretty Spanish name, to the prosperous capital city — Phoenix. The little band consists of the writer, his daughter Grace, grand daughter Marvel, and a neighbor lady who wished to visit the city.

I cannot mention Phoenix without recalling the eight weeks I spent in its Sanitarium, when the Church of God exhibited the greatest display of benevolence. Many boast of their secret organizations, and claim that they are doing a better work than can be accredited to religion. It would very likely be better if the Church would work with more system. There is a system about giving one tenth of our income. Who thinks that a better plan can be devised? There is no better discipline than the Bible, taken at what it says.

In crossing the desert, much of it is not desert, because we can see Isaiah xxxv. 1, literally fulfilled, "the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." I have seen in Colorado in the midst of the Rocky mountains, a fulfilment of this prophecy, where in order to accomplish it, an entire river was within the last decade, tunneled through the mountain ridge, and an abundance of water was provided to irrigate a valley 6000 feet above the sea level, and an abundance of alfalfa is being produced. Those who are thoughtful may discern the signs of the times. Rejoice and look with confidence to the blessings that are coming to the nations and to Israel. There may be a night of darkness and gloom before the morning comes, but it will come with resplendent glory, for "in thee and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."

In crossing this wonderful country to reach Phoenix from where I was contemplating returning to the northwest, we passed by one of the noted ostrich plantations. These birds have more the appearance of cattle on account of their great size. The feathers are highly prized, and the income from one bird is often $100 00 annually. An Ostrich is clumsy and ungainly, the only pretty part is the feathers—and the price.

My immediate object was a summer home near Pomona, California, on invitation of Brother and Sister John Helms and their daughter Mary. Four months with these practical Christian people, was followed by a period at Los Angeles, and then a visit with Brother and Sister Belshaw in Oregon.

I have engaged in holding a series of meetings at Felida, and am considering a return to Arizona, and hope with restored health to be able to make periodic trips through Oregon, California and Arizona, my old field of gospel labor for the cause of my Master.

Love to all,

Editor Restitution:

Saturday afternoon, October 2, Sister M. A. Woodward came to Adrian and conducted a Bible study at the home of Mr. Henig, a neighbor of some of the brethren. Some in this household are especially interested. Sunday morning she spoke to an appreciative audience assembled at the Little Hope Church in Raisin, on the subject of "Love." And again in the evening in Adrian at the home of Sister Skinner, and by request her subject was Baptism. Here she was greeted with a crowded house of both young and old, eager to hear the Glad tidings of the Kingdom of God, and the Way of Salvation.

That this was an inspiration to Sister Woodward was manifested by the good and helpful sermon she gave us. We can truly say it was great things we received that evening, and it is for greater things we are working and praying. "Let us not grow weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light. The interest is very good. Some who have believed in the immortality of the soul are being aroused, and ask What is the truth? They are anxious to hear the Good News, and faithful in attending the services.

We feel the need of a Church building very much here in Adrian, believing that many more could be reached thereby, and much good accomplished. But we realize we must not allow this one necessity to stop us doing the Master's work, for he has said "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad."

Sister Woodward will meet with us and preach again Saturday afternoon and Sunday evening of November 5 and 6th, at the homes of Sisters West and Skinner in Adrian, and at Little Hope Church in Raisin Sunday morning. We earnestly ask all the brethren from neighboring cities to make a special effort to attend these meetings that the good seed may be sown and much accomplished for our Savior and coming King.

Yours in the Master's work,

Editor Restitution:

The Church of God at Browntown, Virginia, was made to rejoice by having Brothers S. J. Lindsay and George Herrick come among us on October 4. Fourteen sermons were preached in all. Brother Lindsay has a clear and convincing way of presenting his subjects, and one can not but be benefited in listening to him. We feel sure that all are greatly strengthened and encouraged looking forward to the time when if we are faithful we may hear the words "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord."

We had good attendance, the house being crowded at times, and much interest was manifested. Our hearts were made glad on Sunday morning the 16th, when quite a number gathered at the water to see three baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus the Christ. Those who united were Geo. T. Updike, Joseph R. Updike and Flossie V. Updike. We all gathered at the Church at the usual hour and listened to an excellent sermon. After service the welcome hand was given, and so three more are added to God's little flock, to whom is promised the kingdom.

On Monday morning the two brothers left for Seven Fountains, bearing with them the good wishes of all who heard them, and our earnest prayers for their success wherever their lot may be cast, and hope that we may enjoy another visit from them.

Your Sister in hope,
MRS H. A. UPDIKE.

Dear Brother Underwood,

I enclose a money order for $2 00—$1.50 to pay for THE RESTITUTION, and you may send me copies of Letter to a Friend for the balance.

I have taken THE RESTITUTION for years, and could not very well get along without it. I have sent it to all my neighbors, but none care for it, as all are going straight to heaven when they die.

Wishing you success in your tedious work, I remain your Brother looking for the soon appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ.

J. M THORP.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Poore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Editor Restitution:

I am in receipt of a letter from Sister Mary Hall, of Bloomington, Illinois, in which she says that she has a number of Bibles that were used in the Illinois Bible School—dear ones of like precious faith:

Please accept thanks for the nice Bible you sent me. I appreciate the favor very much, and assure you that your kindness will not be forgotten.

May God bless you through life and give you a home in the kingdom when Jesus comes, with health, peace, and patience during the waiting time, is the prayer of

Your Sister in hope of eternal life,

Christian Work.

The grandeur of Christian work is but imperfectly appreciated. Work done for God, done in the strength of God, done under the aid of the Spirit of God, done wherever it is needed, with unfaltering faith as regards its ultimate results, and without one shadow of discouragement, in the midst of trials and dangers and afflictions; work, done not in willfulness or in strife, but in the spirit of him who did not strive nor cry; constant, patient, earnest, persevering labor in the Master's cause—this it is that lives for the good of humanity in the world, and which shall at last receive the welcome words, "Well done."

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WANTED.

By the Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, copies of the Christian Hymnal, edited by James W. Wilson and P. L. Robertshaw, and published by THE RESTITUTION in 1887. Send postal to the undersigned stating how many copies you can supply, condition of books, and price wanted. Address, Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1.50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

LELIA E. WHITEHEAD, 5139 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Billy Hibbard was an early Methodist preacher, an ardent advocate for holiness of heart and life. A Calvinist preacher once accosted him: "Mr Hibbird, can you live without sin?" "Quite comfortably, brother, very comfortably," was the ready and unanswerable reply.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 2, 1910.

STORM and floods in China and Japan have caused great loss of property and some thousands of lives.

ON last Sunday Brother Joseph W. Williams was with the Church at Plymouth, and gave two excellent discourses. The attendance was good, the house being well filled, and good attention was given. This was a fifth Sunday, and Brother Williams now goes to his regular work with the organizations at Pleasant View, Hillisburg, Rensselaer and Roll. May the Father in heaven give him strength and wisdom to do good service in his vineyard.

A DISPATCH from London October 29 says that the Jewish Colonization Association has determined to cease work in Palestine. The reason given is the difficulties put in the way of the purchase of land by the Young Turks party who now control affairs. There are now 50,000 Jews in and around Jerusalem alone, and thirty or forty flourishing colonies west of the Jordan which is a large increase in the last few years. All Zionist work is now getting more difficult, owing to the attitude of the authorities. It looks as if it was an attempt on the part of the Turks to get money, and the Jews refuse to be bled further. This is only a check—God will find a way to accomplish what he wants done.

ONLY a few weeks ago Portugal had a revolution, the king and royal family fled the country, and a republic is formed. Reports show grave apprehension is felt lest Spain follows the same course. Also in Greece there is a good deal of uneasiness lest a revolt changes all there. In Turkey there is dissatisfaction for the Young Turks have failed to make all the promised changes, and any little thing may get matters tangled there. Then there is contention in Corea over the Japanese taking the rule there. China sees constant danger in Manchuria from both Russia and Japan. India is on the verge of making serious trouble for the English, and viewing the situation the world over, the prospects for continued peace are not so very bright.

THE situation throughout Asia, and indeed all Mohammedan lands, is fast becoming alarming. There are in India some sixty-six millions of Mohammedans, and every where there is talk of a Holy War. Should the Mohammedans rise no power could stop them from crushing all before them. The horrors that would follow would be beyond description. Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and they see no place of safety. Watch, brethren, the times portend great changes, and let us be prepared for our soon coming King.

Pure Religion

"Pure and undefiled religion" is a term that is authorized by inspiration. It implies a religion that is impure and defiled. Religion consists in a course of conduct toward our fellow men and with reference to God. To give a cup of water to one who is thirsty seems an insignificant act of kindness—one that any person ought to be willing to perform. Yet the Savior assures us that if this is done for one because he is Christ's disciple, a reward awaits the one who does it. According to the Apostle James, to visit the widows and fatherless in their afflictions and to keep one's self unspotted from the world, is pure and undefiled religion. When all the nations of the earth are brought before the Judge of men in the last great day, the separation will be based on men's conduct. Those who fed the hungry, visited the sick, clothed the naked, and in other ways ministered to even the least of Christ's disciples, will be accepted and rewarded. The reason given is that Christ regards what is done even to the least of his disciples as having been done to him. A great man has said: "Religion is only another word for the right use of a man's whole self, instead of a use that is wrong and ruinous." Then we should never talk of "getting religion." We might with propriety speak of practicing religion. That we should do good unto all men, and specially unto those who are of the household of faith is the divine will.—G. H. P. S in Firm Foundation.

Sunday School Lesson.

NOVEMBER 13, 1910.

The World's Temperance Lesson.—Matthew xxiv. 32-51.

Golden Text—"Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." Matt. xxvi. 41.

This is called a Temperance Lesson, and surely a temperance lesson can be made from the section of Scripture taken, but a more appropriate subject would be Watchfulness.

Jesus had left the Temple in Jerusalem, and gone to the Mount of Olives. His disciples had been showing the buildings of the temple, and he had told them that not one stone should be left upon another—it should be thrown down. There was wonder in their hearts, and they came asking to be told when these things would happen, and what sign should be given. Jesus told of the wars, famines, pestilences, tribulations of various kinds; disasters in earthquakes, etc; disciples growing cold, false prophets arising, false Christs showing wonders to deceive even his elect ones. Then comes the warning not to be led astray by such. When all these things come, then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven, and they shall see him coming with power and in great glory.

Our lesson begins with the parable of the fig tree. When the branch is tender, and puts forth leaves, the husbandman knows that summer is nigh. So when the things here predicted come to pass, those who are watching may know that the next event in order—the coming of the Son of man—is at hand.

Assurance is given that his words will not fail. Heaven and earth may pass away—all material things might cease to exist—but his Word shall not pass away. Surely they will come to pass.

But while the signs indicate the approach of the event, the exact day and hour is not given, but is known only to the Father.

Some try to figure that the prophecy of the coming of the Lord was fulfilled when in A. D. 70 the city of Jerusalem was destroyed, and the Jewish nation came to an end. Also that the Lord comes to each one of us at death, and at "every crisis in life, at every time of special reward or punishment." We pass such theories by as so much foolish twaddle. The effort to spiritualize such an event as the coming of Christ would force the spiritualizing of all the signs as well, and is made necessary by the belief in the soul's immortality, thus necessitating going to such lengths to bolster up this false theory. There is simply nothing in such ideas, and they weaken the whole scheme of redemption.

Jesus was preparing his disciples for the trials and tribulations that would come to them when he was gone away, and trying to fortify their minds. He warns them of just such false teaching, and tells what will be the conditions as that event comes near. He tells them that as in the time of Noah none took heed, but made fun of poor old Noah and his ship on dry land, and taking no stock in his preaching, went on with their business, and with the social festivities of the time, eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, with no thought of coming disaster—just so shall the coming of the Son of man be. They were heedless, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away.

Christ's admonition is "watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." If they had known they would wait until that time, and then watch, but not knowing their "house is broken up."

What does it mean to watch?

One way to watch is to be gazing out of the open door, anxious to catch the first glimpse of the coming one. Another way to be watching is being awake and doing duty—serving. To be at the door looking out, is to imply that everything is done. That there is no more to do. So long as we are given strength to work for the Master, we must neglect no opportunity to serve him. We watch for our Lord by obeying him. By resisting the tempter, being on guard against the wiles of the evil one, being awake to each opportunity, by noting the signs of his coming.

If we indulge indolence, neglect our duty, are engrossed in frivolous things, absorbed in gratifying self with pleasure or gain, forget our Master's service, we cannot be termed watchful. Such as do this are to be "cut asunder," and be appointed a "portion with the hypocrites," and go where there is "weeping and gnashing of teeth."

Those who are diligent in service—truly watchful—are to be blessed when his Lord shall come and shall "find him so doing." The Lord will "make him ruler over his goods."

Applying this lesson to temperance we should work to guard against the smallest beginning of intemperance. Drunkards come from innocent children; that is what they are made of. Little sippings, apparently innocent and harmless. Moderate drinking by those who "can quit any time they want to." Every drunkard was once a moderate drinker.

A story is told of a man, a moderate drinker, who ordered his liquor at a bar. A ragged, bloated tramp asked the man to purchase a drink for him also. The man replied that he did not drink with tramps. At this the tramp gave him to understand that he was as good as he was. He had as good an education, came of as good family, and was once as much a gentleman—whisky had made him what he was. He assured the gentleman that it would soon make him a tramp such as he was. By keeping on with "moderate drinking" he was sure to reach the same level.

It is related that the man poured his liquor on the floor and ceased his moderate drinking while he could master the appetite.

A little art, repeated time and again, soon becomes habit, and once fixed is hard to shake off. But few possess the power when a habit is formed to break away from it. Then how careful we should be to watch and form only good habits. Leave off drinking before you begin, is a good rule.

An Appeal.

To the faithful in Christ Jesus, in Michigan, or wherever they may be, and all concerned in the unity of the gospel cause, greeting:—

What is the matter brethren? There is something wrong somewhere. Do we forget that when we meet in conference assemblies it is for the express purpose of building up the cause of truth, and not to establish hobbies, or any unkind words, which drive the almost-persuaded entirely away, and the old battle-scared pioneers to their homes discouraged and ashamed of the [illegible]

We have received several letters of late congratulating us on having the good sense to remain at our homes, thereby saving precious money and time which would have been wasted in attending a certain conference, which we understood was to meet for unity of purpose in the gospel work. But all render the same verdict—failure, failure, entire failure to accomplish the object for which the meeting was called.

These assemblies can never bring unity out of chaos as long as some go for the express purpose of riding their hobbies, without any thought of love for the fundamental truths, and a desire to see these established. Would it not be better, brethren, when one believes he is justified by the works of the law, to join the body of believers who try to keep the law? and if another believes in universal salvation, let him go home to the "All Souls" Church. If one believes in the human-paternity theory, and insists on teaching that doctrine, the Unitarian denomination would be glad to receive him, if he bear a clean character.

This course would relieve the Church of God of the continual bickerings which annoy, and is surely destroying the Church in some states. We might include the "no devil" theory also. We certainly have a great nightmare of theology, and continuing in this course the body will soon be divided into little petty factions, and the old devil will have accomplished his purpose, and will stand back and laugh over his victories.

General Washington's words "United we stand, divided we fall," are just as true of the Church as of the State.

The early Church was a well organized system. Paul left Titus at Crete to set things in order, and they ordained them elders in every church, and had a well defined and strong declaration of the things most surely believed among them. We have a grand declaration of principles in the upper right-hand corner of our dear old RESTITUTION paper, which has been endorsed by our churches for years. Why? Because we believed these principles were according to God's revealed Word. Has his Word changed? No. Then let us all with a unity of the Spirit, born of love, still contend for those principles.

Our dear Editor has the backbone to still defend those noble declarations that we old pioneers have been defending so long. I believe our Michigan brethren almost to a man, are ready to stand for the truth of the one faith. O what a pity so much precious time is spent in these side-issues, that bring no salvation to any one. Every effort should be put forth to save sinners, and show them the true way of life.

The multitude is perishing for lack of knowledge, and we are commissioned to preach to them the gospel of the kingdom, which is the power of God unto salvation. If we do that well we have enough to occupy our time with. We are not sent out to preach the gospel of the ages to come, as it has not been told us what that is, but preach that which will save in this age, and call out a people for his name.

May God save us from the perils of these last days.

Submitted in love,
B. W. WOODWARD.

Dear Bro Underwood:

I am in the Northwest again. It would be an interesting review of a two thousand mile journey, if I had kept a record of the events beginning at the little village Palo Verde, Arizona, and ending at Felida, Washington.

Without giving any of the details, but sweeping the outline of events, it was on a bright April morning. The buggy trip is across the Arizona desert forty-two miles, from the village with the pretty Spanish name, to the prosperous capital city — Phoenix. The little band consists of the writer, his daughter Grace, grand daughter Marvel, and a neighbor lady who wished to visit the city.

I cannot mention Phoenix without recalling the eight weeks I spent in its Sanitarium, when the Church of God exhibited the greatest display of benevolence. Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left to the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Billy Hibbard was an early Methodist preacher, an ardent advocate for holiness of heart and life. A Calvinist preacher once accosted him: "Mr Hibbard, can you live without sin?" "Quite comfortably, brother, very comfortably," was the ready and unanswerable reply.

Wisdom is better than rubies; therefore get wisdom, and in all thy getting get understanding.

Our Father Abraham.

Abraham was the Friend of God,
Because he believed God's Word;
He left his home, and country too,
And friends and kindred not a few.

Because his God did this command,
To go into a foreign land.
This land forever God will give,
And countless ages he will live.

Abraham now sleeps in the dust,
But he will rise with all the just;
For he is the father of all
Who on the Lord do truly call.

This land of promise then he'll get,
And in God's plan the time is set,
When sin and death will be no more,
Then Christ will reign the world o'er.

A. WALLACE MASON.

Gumption is a mighty handy thing to have around. Have you any?

To discover what is true and then to mould ones practice to entire conformity to it, are the two most important objects of life.

All brethren who are at all spiritually minded will hear and profit by advice and reproof if only they are given in the right spirit. Hearts are like flowers; they will open to the softly falling dew, but shut up in the down pour of rain.

Sister Zoe Adams, Secretary of the Bereans of Nebraska, writes: "I write you a few lines to let you know how our Society is progressing. Through the mail I have received the names of ten new members, and have gotten two more here." A cheering report, certainly. Let us all work and pray.

The Church goes down head first. Faithful leaders will not let the church lapse far into apostasy. But only be leaders get tainted with what some are pleased to call "broadmindedness" and "liberality," and the ruin of the Church is assured. Liberal mathematics will bankrupt a bank, and liberal theology will wreck a soul.

October 16, we were rejoiced to see William Horton, a friend who had been studying the gospel for some time, take a stand for the truth. Now that he has put on the Name of Christ may he stand aloof from unrighteousness, and gain the approval of Christ and share the divine glory with all the faithful in the Day of his Coming.

"A man is known by the company he keeps." True maxim. "Live with wolves and you will learn to howl," says a true Spanish proverb. Yes. Live with nightingales and you will find yourself growing toward the best: affiliate with bad companions, and you will gravitate toward the worst. Such is the influence of association.

Countless Millions.

In THE RESTITUTION of Sept. 28th, 1910, there appeared this editorial of common sense and loving entreaty from the pen of Bro. Underwood:

"We talk about the soon coming of Christ. That it is near, and we should look for him any time. The angel may at any moment herald his approach. Do we believe it? Yes! Then what is our duty? Is it to give vent to some fine spun (to us perfectly plain) theory that expresses our opinion on some matter that God has kept wholly in his own hands—has not asked us to help with at all? My opinion gleaned from sources perfectly satisfactory to me, that only the righteous will be raised; my opinion that the resurrection will include the "just and unjust" whatever my definition of these terms may be; my theory, so clear to my mind, that "all" will be raised—What are my opinions worth anyway? Does God value them any? If I define "just and unjust" as "righteous and wicked," and this fills out the "all" of resurrection, I am asked what about that large and varied class of beings who are not righteous because they never knew what righteousness was, and were not wicked because they never knew what wickedness was. Well, I won't do anything with them. You may blot them all out, and declare that God makes no account of such, that the innocent babe snatched from its mother by the enemy death, is but a blasted apple blossom, to fall on the earth and rise no more. Or you may tell of the tender love and compassionate kindness and mercy of God and Jesus our Savior, and comfort the mourner that as weeping Rachel was told her children should come from the land of the enemy, so will this babe of yours likewise. With this whole question we prefer to do nothing, simply because untold millions (?) that do not hear God has not asked for it, and therefore we do not presume to give it to him. Such opinion from us would have no influence with God anyway, and we are glad of it, for we would not want the responsibility of settling it—we might go wrong.

So brethren, why not continue in the work that Jesus left for his disciples to do when he went away? He wanted them to go out and preach to dying men the gospel, tell them how to get into him and how to stay in him, and what the reward would be for so doing. By this means a company of faithful ones are to be gathered, who will be used by God in the work of a future age. Brethren, we submit to you this: When we have told the things of the kingdom and name of Jesus—the gospel—the Glad Tidings of Salvation through repentance, reformation, acceptance, godly life, by resurrection in Jesus' name at his coming—when we have explained this to all men, and have told of the blessings promised for faithful service.

When there is no one else in all the world to tell this message to, then we can count our work done, and take up the pleasant pastime of speculating on how God will arrange matters when he establishes his rule and reign on earth. But if we really believe Christ's return is near—seems to us our duty is plain and clear. Preach the gospel that is God's power now of salvation. Use All the time you have for this work. It is the only legitimate business you have in this age. The next age is in God's hand."

We give this long extract from his editorial because it is rich in Bible knowledge, exhortation, and moderation; and because, judging by articles made upon it by a monthly Exchange, our brethren need to remember the matter it explicates. Our Exchange wishes there "were more editors with open eyes, open hearts and open columns to sound out this great subject". "Sound out" what? That there are "countless millions of Adam's race" who have never had a chance. It seems from our Exchange that "sounding out" the chance and salvation of these unnumbered peoples should be the great burden of our preaching. "Countless millions." A goodly number. "Countless millions" are so many millions that they cannot be counted. There is a tinge of exaggeration about this statement. Since numbers enable computed indefinitely we are made to feel every time we hear this expression that with exaggeration there is literally mixed an element of falsehood in the affirmation. To make an impression let us not resort to sensationalism like newspaper quacks when they boom real estate or patent pills. Even Chas. T. Russell, the father of this expression, in "The Divine Plan of the Ages", after talking about "countless millions" in heathendom, forgets his "countless" numbers before he gets through, and actually figures out how many people have lived from Adam until now; and just how many have died without a "chance" to hear the gospel! Falsehood never strengthens the truth. Enough millions bewedded in heathendom without us adding "countless" to the total. In other words the truth is bad enough; there is no need to tell a falsehood.

Many of our brethren are like Peter. After our Lord had instructed him definitely and repeatedly that he must feed the sheep and the lambs (John xxi 15, 18); after telling him explicitly what his duties were, Peter at once began to get interested in the "other fellow"; "Lord, and what shall this man do?" The Savior's reply was sharp, but not any too sharp for a man who was nosing into other people's business: "If I will that he tarry till I come, What is that to thee? Follow thou me." Jno xxi 21, 22. "Follow thou me" rings out our duty clear and strong; this will bear "sounding out" all the day. But if we neglect this message of individual and personal responsibility, and begin to prattle about "this man", and "countless millions" of other men, then we can expect the frown of Christ, and the same stinging rebuke he gave to Peter: "What is that to thee"? What business is it of yours what I do with "this man"? You know your duty; you know what is required of you. Get busy. "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine, continue in them; for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee". 1 Tim iv 16. "Take heed unto thyself," is quite a different message to, Take heed unto the "countless millions" of heathens. Saving ourselves and those who hear us, is very different from "sounding out" a message about saving heathens and the untold millions (?) that do not hear us. Will "sounding out" heathen into "countless millions" help to save them? Will "sounding out" the subject help to make it true? If they are to be saved, will they not be saved whether I believe in their salvation or not? Then why should I "sound out" something that no ways concern me nor my brethren, no, nor the heathens themselves? Brethren, heed the message, "follow thou me"; "save thyself". Better buckle yourself to this task. To fail here is to fail everywhere else, and to fail forever.

The commandments of God under this new dispensation are many and varied, covering all the thoughts and acts of man. The sins of theft, adultery, covetousness, idolatry, drunkenness, murder, pride, unbelief, and all unrighteousness, are prohibited; and the punishment threatened is that "they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

But some may ask, "Are we to keep this dispensation, commanded to keep, and to do the commandments? Yes, verily; the apostle John, who had been with Christ "from the beginning" John xv. 2, and 1 John i. 1, wrote, saying: "And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments" 1 John ii. 3. Also, "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city" Rev. xxii. 14. Again, "Here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus" Rev xiv. 12. And lastly, "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments" Matt. xix. 17. Many such passages might be cited, but these are as strong as any recorded in the New Testament.

Upon these we would make the following remarks, and will notice the last one quoted first, viz, Matt. xix. 17. That this passage refers to the old covenant law is evident, because both the Savior and his interrogator lived under it, and were in duty bound to obey it. And not only the covenant written upon tables of stone, but as the Savior commanded, keep the commandments, which implies all of them, the passover, the feasts and all the sabbath of the Mosaic law, for although that law was then dying—getting "old"—it was not yet dead. But the commandments quoted from the law: to "do no murder," to "not commit adultery," to "not steal," to "not bear false witness," are all incorporated into the new covenant, and are as legal today as they were then, and as binding upon us as they were upon that young man; not because they were a part of the old covenant, but because they were a part of the new.

With reference to the commandments referred to in 1 John ii. 3, I remark that the antecedent of "his" here is Christ, and not God the Father. But as the commandments of Christ will be examined farther on, we pass them for the present.

The commandments referred to in Rev. xxii. 14, cannot be thrown back under the old dispensation for three reasons: First, because the apostle does not so inform us. Secondly, because Paul teaches in Gal. ii. 16, that there is no salvation in the keeping of the law. Hear him: "Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law; for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." And lastly, these commandments were not those given by God, under the old covenant, but by the Lord Jesus, under the new, as the personal pronoun "his" refers distinctly to Christ, as all may see by reading on yard from the twelfth verse.

But further: The Revised Version leaves out the statement altogether. It reads as follows: "I am the Alpha and Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end. Blessed are they that wash their robes, that they may have the right to come to the tree of life and may enter in by the gates into the city." Rev. xxii. 13, 14. Here is not a word said about commandments, either by God or Christ.

That Jesus gave commandments, both before his crucifixion and after his resurrection, before his ascension, is taught by the sacred historians from the Gospel of Matthew to the book of Revelation. Moses the prototype of Christ foretold this of him, as quoted by Peter: "For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people" Acts iii. 22, 23. "Hear ye him," was God's command on the mount. Not only did Christ make known the laws of the "new covenant," but he also re enacted many laws of the old covenant, which had been in effect since the Jewish nation's birth, and he added such other laws as were necessary for the government of his people.

In the fifth chapter of Matthew is recorded the withdrawal of Christ from the multitude, when gathering his chosen disciples around him he assumes the prerogative of a law-giver, and makes known unto them his commandments. "Think not," says he, "that I am come to destroy the law; or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled" verses 17, 18. Here we notice first, that Christ's mission was to fulfill the law. Next he said, "All things must be fulfilled which were written in the law, and in the prophets, and the Psalms concerning me" Luke xxiv. 44. The advent of time, "till" shows that that law would cease to be longer operative when so fulfilled: and lastly, having been fulfilled in Christ they have ceased to be of force. When Jesus cried, "It is finished," the old covenant died with him on the cross.

In this fifth chapter of Matthew, Jesus shows his authority as a law-giver sent from God, and begins the issuance of the new covenant commandments. "Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill." This was the old law, and it is thus brought forward into the new covenant. "But I say unto you, that whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment" (Verses 21, 22)

"Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery." This was the old law and is also made a part of the new. "But I say unto you, that whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart" Verses 27, 28.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." This was in the old law, but this was not put in the new. "But I say unto you, that ye resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also" verses 38, 39.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy." This was the old law, but the last clause is left out of the new. "But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." These commandments of our Lord are but a few of the many which might be quoted to show the difference between the old and the new covenant laws, and the superiority of the new law over the old Mosaic law.

After the resurrection of Christ, and before his ascension, Jesus continued to proclaim laws, as will be seen by Acts i. 1, 2. In Mark xvi. 15, 16, he commanded his disciples, saying: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." Also in Matt. xxviii. 18, 20. "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

That the apostles also issued commands to the churches of Christ as the exigencies of the times made them necessary will be seen by 2 Peter iii. 2—"That ye may be mindful of the words spoken before by the holy prophets and of the commandments of us the apostles of the Lord and Savior." The apostle Paul said, "the things that I write are the commandments of the Lord." 1 Cor. xiv. 37. But nowhere do we read that the apostles ever commanded any of their converts to observe the sabbath or the old covenant law as a code.

I wish now to notice Rev. xiv. 12, already cited: "Here is the patience of the saints; here are they that keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus." We are not here told that reference is made to the commandments written upon tables of stone, or those associated with that covenant. That is all assumed. But if the commandments of the Mosaic dispensation are meant, then all of them must be included. The seventh year land rest, the seventh day sabbath, feast days, circumcision, and all. But who keeps them? Who observes them? Who keeps even the fourth commandment of the decalogue as given? No one! People kindle fires, they work their horses, and drive them ten miles to and from religious services on that day. There is not a sabbatarian anywhere who claims to keep the day as originally commanded. Then why enforce its observance upon others?

But why should any think that the commandments of the old covenant are here referred to, when they have ceased by statutory limitation? When the Leviticul priesthood expired that law also expired, Heb. vii 12. The new law came into life when the old one died. The commandments here are those under the new covenant. This is plain because they are here connected with "the faith of Jesus." They are a test of our loyalty and affection for him. Jesus said: "If ye love me, keep my commandments" John xiv. 15. "If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love." "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you" John xv. 10, 14.

Having now referred to many commandments of the old and new covenants, and having carefully weighed this matter in the light of the Word of God, I can say that neither God, Jesus, nor any of his apostles, have commanded believers in this dispensation to obey the old covenant law, except as they are re-embodied in the new, and are of force, not because they were in the old but because they are in the new. And nowhere are Christians commanded to keep any of the feasts, rest-days or sabbaths of the old ritual, since the day of Pentecost. —J. August Smith, in "Our Hope."

The Bible and Nature.

"And he spake of trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall; he spake also of beasts and of fowls and of creeping things and of fishes." 1 Kings x. 33.

This was written of Solomon, yet throughout the Bible things in nature are so interwoven with the teaching of the Spirit through the prophets, Christ, and the apostles that we cannot go out and look about us without seeing something to bring to mind some passage of Scripture.

If we go out and look upon a starry night we are reminded that "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork." Nothing will make us feel the greatness and power and nearness of God like a look at the starry heavens. How insignificant we feel; and the cares and trials and vexations of our everyday life, which seemed to envelop us all day like a thick cloud shutting out every thing else, disappear like clouds after a rain and a quiet peace steals over the mind as if Jesus had said, "Peace be still," as he did on the sea of Galilee.

When we see the trees they remind us of the promise, "As the days of a tree are the days of my people" (Isa lxv 22.) And also of the man described in Psa i, that "shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water that bringeth forth his fruit in his season." And Matt iii 10. "The ax is laid to the root of the tree; therefore, every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire." And this suggests the thought, am I bringing forth good fruit? the fruits of the Spirit enumerated in Gal v 22, 23? We look at a house and it reminds us of what is written in Heb iii 2 6, "Moses faithful in all his house as a servant." "But Christ as a Son over his own house whose house are we if we hold fast the confidence and rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end."

The birds make us think of the words of Jesus in Matt vi 26—"Behold the fowls of the air; your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" And "the birds of the air have nests but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." A rose reminds us of that beautiful prophecy, Isa xxxv and the sight of an evergreen tree Isa xli 19.

And even within, about our household duties there is always something to remind us of the Word. When we build a fire we remember our "God is a consuming fire." If we make or eat bread we think how Jesus said, "I am the bread of life." And how he "brake bread" and said, "This is my body that is broken for you." Then as we watch the working of our hands directed by the brain we think like David, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

So all around us whatever our occupation may be there are things to cause us to "Meditate on his law day and night." And Paul said, "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel." "By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I have preached unto you."—Anna M. Byrnes.

Selections.

Proved by His Works.

Dr. George F. Pentecost had an argument with an atheist. The latter said that his reason for not believing in the Bible was because he did not know who was its author. Dr. Pentecost replied:

"Well, my friend, is the multiplication table a work of authority with mathematicians?"

"Most certainly."

"Do you happen to know who the author of that table is?"

In a moment he frankly confessed his ignorance, upon which Dr. Pentecost added:

"Then I suppose, as a matter of fact, being a scientific man and a conscientious skeptic, you never use the multiplication table?"

"O, yes," he replied; "it proves itself to be true by its works."

"Then, my friend;" said Dr. Pentecost, "leaving on one side all those hair-splitting questions of science and criticism, shall we not be allowed to say that the Bible is a work of absolute authority in religion and morals—whether we know its human authors or not—because it works well in its own sphere, just as the multiplication table works in its own sphere?"—Christian Endeavor World.

Submit and Commit.

I read in a friend's book not long ago, an extract which commenced with the following words: "The longer I live, the more profoundly am I convicted that the all in all of Christianity may be summed up in two words—'submit and commit.'" Truer words have seldom passed from human pen; and this is the great lesson that grace by her gentle discipline teaches, and that the will of man has to learn. Submit—cease first from thy rebellious self assertions, and next from thy proud efforts to correct and amend thyself; and then commit—cast thyself into the hands of omnipotent love.

Think it of the new Adam that he dwell within thee, accomplish, as he has promised, in thee, what thou canst not do, and regulate in peace and harmony, under his sceptre, the once jarring and conflicting forces of nature. So shall there indeed be a great calm, a stillness, a rest within thy consecrated heart, and thou shalt be in a position to make proof of all the wealth of thy promised land—the land that flows with milk and honey—as thou proceedest to live, not only soberly, but righteously and godly. Only let us take heed lest it should be said of thee or of me, "We see that they could not enter in because of unbelief."

Perfect Purity.

Purity is a desirable quality everywhere, but especially in human beings, among whom it classifies itself in three forms—physical, mental, and moral. It is said that one-half the world does not know how anxious the other half is that it should be perfectly pure. Bodily purity is important. Statistics upon the lack of bodily purity are more voluminous than upon the lack of the other two. There is certainly much written and spoken concerning physical defilement, which is more open and apparent than either of the others. But mental purity is more essential than that of the body. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Intellectual purity is fundamental. Clean thoughts are indispensable to right physical and spiritual relations. They are not scavengers, but moral health officers according to whose faithfulness and efficiency every department of life will be cleaned up. Moral purity is largely the product of intellectual cleanliness, especially when based on gospel truth, which leads to the washing of regeneration; then he is clean indeed. Clean thoughts habits tend to bodily purity and spiritual perfection.

"Never did any soul do good but it came readily to do the same again with new enjoyment; and ever was augmenting any exercised but with increasing joy, which made the practiser still more in love with the fair act."

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 47.

Auntie Willard had warned me for my own good not to write long letters, but when one reached her in Oct., 1894, she was in ecstasies and having read it through, wished there was more!

The Baptist minister had given out that he was going to preach on the backbone of the gospel and curious to know what he would make of it she went to hear him. It must have been a very pointless sermon, for "she could give us no definite idea of it, only that it called to mind some inoffensive creature like the pussy-cat that will purr and frisk as long as you stroke her back."

She said to a friend, "when you get home read Luke vi 20-30, and you will see the backbone of the gospel," in the poor, the hungry, the hated, the weeping, the separated, the reproached ones, whose names are cast out as evil for the Son of Man's sake; who love their enemies, bless those that curse them, do good to them that hate, when smitten offer the other cheek, let the coat go with the cloak, and do as they would have other men do to them; love being the prime mover in all their actions."

I guess Auntie Willard was right, for without men and women such as these, where were the gospel? To whom would it be carried? If we be not willing to be, and to bear all the things that Jesus here enumerated for love of God, and love of man, we are but sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, and unworthy of the blessing.

Our new house was up at this date and ready to move into—a great surprise to Auntie Willard, who did not know we were building. Her niece—Sister Sallie Roter and husband had left their farm in southwest Kansas and had moved on a little place near Cincinnati belonging to her sister, their crops in Kansas had all been destroyed by drouth. Here they went into the poultry business, but were as unsuccessful as in their other ventures. They had sometime before this taken another nephew of Mr. Roter's to bring up, a lovely lad of 9 years. But whatever their discouragements, they held steadfastly to their faith in the gospel of the kingdom, loving, cheering and encouraging one another, with eyes ever fixed on the coming glory.

And Auntie Willard wrote to them regularly, every few weeks doing all she could in this way, and by sending them books and papers, to help them on in their journey to Canaan, promised of old to our fathers. It is astonishing to note the number of letters Auntie Willard wrote. Now it was a letter to Dr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick—her missionary friends in India, then one to Elder E. F. Baldwin, Beyrout, Syria,—to Bro. Henry Taylor, to Bro. Underwood, to Bro. and Sister Geisdman, to Sister Mary Tibbetts, to little Margaret Edis, to little Francis Willard and to some thirty or forty others, mailing to many of these at the same time papers, pamphlets or books.

The next letter Dec. 26, '94, began, "Let not your heart be troubled," etc. I feel strong in the Lord and in the power of his might. Is it well with you? Is it well with your husband? Is it well with the child? Is it well with all pertaining to you? This I can say, 'it is well with me because everything is smooth, or as I would have it, O no, far from it; as far as the east is from the west, yet in the hands of God it is well, for everything that pertains to me is there, O bless his name!"

"Your surprise party was just wonderful. I should have enjoyed it ever so much. O Roxana, Jesus rewards your faithfulness and Bro. Wince is so good and patient and you are so penitent when you think you have done wrong, we cannot help but forgive you. Omar must have been nearly out of his wits, when that great wagon load of Sunday school children drove up singing, 'We're homeward bound, homeward bound.' Then the happy greetings, the music on the organ, and sweet young voices blending in holy song. It was a lovely way to spend the first evening in your new home. You are getting a taste of your reward even in this world. It cheers me so to hear of it. It makes music in my soul. You are singing about the mists passing away. That is so beautiful but what will the reality be?!!!

Bro. Wince, is martyrdom coming to any before the Lord comes? When I was with you I thought the brethren took pleasure in giving you knotty questions to answer, so I give you this. Tell me how you are. You must have been full of care over your new house."

The Bro. and Sister Edis, who were living at Bro. Willard's when father and I were there, were now residing in Philadelphia. They were a newly married couple then—now they had a daughter, Annie, grown to womanhood. One day, May, '95 this dear Annie was passing Arch St., just as a frightened runaway horse came rushing down, others escaped but she was struck and killed. It was very sad.

Bro. and Sister Roter were now in Washington City. Auntie Willard had written to me on the 21st of Feb., 1895, but the letter is lost. The 14th of August, '95, she wrote to a Mrs. King, Eaton, Pa. This was her last for many long months. The next was from her son Rowland. I, wondering at the long silence had written a card of enquiry. A dreadful accident had happened. Just three days after Auntie Willard had written to Mrs. King she had run over to a house in the next yard to hand a good paper to a man who had just left the Willard yard. On returning she crept through a wire fence, only three strands high, caught her foot on the middle wire, and was thrown on the grass with the neck of the femur of the right hip-joint fractured. The 6th week she was unable to utter a word or sentence, and for a long time after was not herself for any length of time.

The dear Rowland was praying that John xi. might come true in her case, feeling that "this sickness was not unto death but for the glory of God," though his family questioned the propriety of his prayer, so long unanswered, and he was keeping it to himself though in a great trial of faith.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appears in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1 50 per year. Try it a year.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS.

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections. The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name to which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" Poetry.

Little Kindnesses.

[As a man of public affairs and as a dramatic poet Sir Thomas Noon Talfourd was known in England from 1795 to 1854. He wrote several class plays, the best known being "Ion," from which the following is taken.]

The blessings which the [illegible] and poor can scatter
Have their own season. 'Tis a little thing
To give a cupful water; yet its draught
Of cool refreshment, drained by fainting lips,
May give a shock of pleasure to the frame
More exquisite than when nectarian juice
Renews the life of joy in happiest hours.

It is a little thing to speak a phrase
Of common comfort, which by daily use
Has almost lost its sense; yet to the ear
Of him who thought to die unmourned, 'twill fall
Like choicest music, till the glazing eye
With gentle tears relax. The knotted hand
To know the bonds of fellowship again
And shed on the departing one a sense
More precious than the benison of friends
About the honored deathbed of the rich
To him who else were lonely, that another
Of the great family is near, and feels.

Communicated.

The Promises to the Fleshy and to the Spiritual Seed of Abraham.

In reading the Scripture it is needful that we discriminate between these two Seeds. Our father Abraham is the head of these two families. Both of these promises were ratified through Jesus the Christ. Both will possess the land of Canaan. One will possess as subjects the other as the ruling class. The kingdom of Israel or David will be restored or the kingdom of the Christ in which fleshly Israel will again be restored to their land. David will be king over them and the twelve apostles will each rule a tribe. Ezek xxxvii 24; Matt xix 28.

The covenant made in Gen xv with Abraham was that his seed should possess the land forever. The Lord God satisfied him that the seed should come of his own body, that is he should be the father of a numerous seed. Yet he was to go to his fathers in peace and that he should be buried in a good old age. This seed was to go down into Egypt and should be afflicted four hundred years but he would bring them out again. Jehovah made a covenant with this seed as follows, viz: Unto thy seed have I given this land from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. Bible history enables us to follow this seed for many generations. When they were led by Moses to Sinai and organized into a political body Jehovah promised them that if they would obey his voice and keep his covenant he would make them a kingdom of priests an holy nation, and that they should be a peculiar treasure unto him above all people. Ex xix 5, 6. Under this covenant he placed them under a strict moral code. They were placed under a strict law of hygeine or health. Jehovah's purpose in this was to make them pure socially; religiously and physically. They were to bless all nations as rulers and subjects. They were given the land that flowed with milk and honey. They were placed under the most favorable environments and should have drawn their strength from their king Jehovah. Isaiah writes concerning them when he says, Now will I sing to my well beloved a song of my beloved touching his vineyard. My well beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill; and he fenced it and gathered out the stones thereof and planted it with the choicest vine, and built a tower in the midst of it and also made a wine press therein; and he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes. For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah his pleasant plant; and he looked for judgment, but behold oppression (marg. a scab); for righteousness, but behold a cry. Isa v 1, 2 and 7. "Israel to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants and the giving of the law, and the service of God and the promises" failed through disobedience. As Adam failed as an individual so did Israel as a nation.

Jehovah overturned the kingdom until he comes whose right it is and I will give it to him. They were scattered among all nations and remain in that condition to this day. Now the prophecies concerning Israel's dispersion have been literally fulfilled, why not accept the prophecies concerning their restoration? See Ezek xx 34, 37. I will bring you out from the people and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered with a mighty hand and with a stretched out arm and with fury poured out, I will bring you into the wilderness of the people and there will I plead with you face to face. Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and into the bond of the covenant. The prophet in this connection states that Jehovah will purge out the rebels and they shall not enter into the land of Israel and ye shall know that I am the Lord. If Jehovah has cast off his people it is only for a time. They will know that Jehovah is the eternal one when they again possess the land. The prophet in the 37th chapter speaks of Israel's restoration as a nation. This gathering is now taking place. She was buried among the nations and as a nation was dead. The dry bones are coming together and before many years she as a nation will become Jehovah's battle ax by which he will subjugate the nations of the earth. Until this is accomplished the covenant made with Abraham can not be fulfilled. Israel is to possess the land and be organized into a kingdom which will be David's kingdom restored. Let us pray as do the apostles that thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is now being done in heaven. So come, Lord Jesus, come quickly.

This is the kingdom together with the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven that will be given to the people of the saints of the most high whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom. And all nations (rulers) shall obey him.

There are three phases of this kingdom. 1 The kingdom. 2 The dominion. 3 The greatness of the kingdom. The kingdom is the stone cut out of the mountain without hands (marg. which was not in hand). It will not be a human government. This kingdom will be in Jehovah's hands and cannot fail to fill the whole earth with his glory by bringing all governments under his righteous rule. The spiritual seed of Abraham can be traced through the promises that were made to Abraham. In Gen 17th chapter we recognize the promise of this seed and the sealing the covenant which is that of circumcision. This covenant was an everlasting covenant a promise of the [illegible]

Again [illegible] promise [illegible] in Gen [illegible] said, Thy seed shall [illegible] of his enemies, and in [illegible] all nations be blessed. [illegible] seed were [illegible] Christ who is the [illegible] seed. [illegible] seed were [illegible]

[illegible] thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. And is this the manner of man, O Lord God. This promise refers to the enlarged condition of the kingdom under the righteous rule of the king who will reign in righteousness and the princes who will rule in judgment. Isa xxxii 1. His dominion shall be from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth. Psa lxxii 8. The one here spoken of is Jesus, the only begotten Son of God. Isa lx says that he shall occupy the throne of David and that he will order it, and establish it with judgment.

At the burning bush Jehovah spoke of the future mighty One, in whose name Moses should lead the children of Israel out of Egyptian bondage "I will be that I will be" refers to one who will lead the armies of the Lord to victory in the future. He is the Lord of lords and the King of kings. God's plan from the beginning has been to choose out from the race those who would prove themselves worthy to become rulers in a kingdom which he would establish in which there should be one supreme ruler and a number who would be associate rulers. The gospel message has been the means by which men and women have been called out. Those who believe this message and were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus for the remission of sins are counted righteous, and if they remain faithful until death, will be overcomers to whom Jehovah will give power over the nations. When Jesus comes we will be seated with him in his throne as he has overcome and is seated with his Father in his throne. If we honor Jehovah's name we will share with the Son the promise made to him of the inheritance of the earth together with its rulership. Let us so strive that an entrance may be granted us when the Master comes.

Your Brother seeking for a place in that heavenly kingdom.

MOHAMMED AND MOHAMMEDISM

While the Mohammedan people are found all over the world, their mother countries are in the east, chiefly, Asiatic Turkey and Persia.

The founder of the Islam or Mohammedan religion was Mohammed, who was born at Mecca A. D. 570. He was a shepherd as was Moses and David He claimed to have heard voices from heaven proclaiming him a great prophet In A. D. [illegible] he was driven from Mecca by his own tribe and sought refuge in Medina. After this he used the sword to spread his faith. After his death it was carried on by his disciples and spread so far that Christianity was greatly endangered.

[illegible] Mohammed are [illegible]n, which is about as our Bible is to [illegible] writing is somewhat [illegible] Jewish Scriptures. [illegible] Mohammed dictated [illegible]e book to his disciples. [illegible] were revealed to him [illegible]ons. These communications written on bones, pieces of [illegible]d on the ribs of palm leaves [illegible]hammed's death these were [illegible] and arranged chiefly according to their length.

The principal doctrine of the Koran is, "There is no God save Allah" and in addition to this that "Mohammed is the Prophet of Allah." The believers were required to make a pilgrimage to Mecca, the Holy City, every four years; to pray five times a day with their face toward Mecca and to do much in the way of almsgiving. Another important part of their creed is the belief in everlasting reward or punishment. The Koran pictures heaven as a place that is all sunshine with green fields and bright flowers, while the terrors of hell were decidedly the opposite. The Koran also encourages education, as a consequence public schools have long been established in most of the Turkish towns, and colleges attached to the greater number of the mosques.

PEACE

Dear Bereans:

Peace is the gift of God. Lev xxvi 6. And I will give peace in the land, and ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will rid evil beasts out of the land, neither shall the sword go through your land. And again, When a man's ways please the Lord he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him. Prov xvi 7. It comes from Christ, John xiv 27. Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. These are some of the words with which Christ comforted his disciples whom he was shortly to leave. These same words will apply to us also. Peace comes as a natural result of our faith in God's promises. Isa xxvi 3. Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. And now, dear friends I hope that we each will shape our lives according to God's will, and that the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

MINNIE ROUCH.

"Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves but rather give place unto wrath; for it is written, vengeance is mine; I will repay saith the Lord." Rom xii 19.

One of the things which professed Christians should guard against is vengeance. Another is hasty judgment. We are so apt to judge another whom we think has injured us in some way and think of revenge before investigation is made. We are also inclined to judge others too hastily who have not wronged us in any way. Do we know what prompted their wrong doing and do we not sometimes err? It would be much easier to say, "Father forgive them," than to tell of their doings to others. If we keep the love of God in our hearts we will be "Kindly affectioned to one another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another." Rom xii 10.

We must contend continually against the works of the flesh that we may grow in grace and that our fruits may be spiritual. "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law." Gal v 22, 23.

We should be willing to help bear each others burdens and find pleasure in so doing. "And let us not be weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." Gal vi 9, 10.

Let us endeavor to grow in spiritual knowledge that others may know us by our fruits, and that we may be easily distinguished from those who are wholly interested in worldly things. Also let us be more charitable to others and not pass immediate judgment upon them, but leave it [illegible] Creator to deal with [illegible]

A DESCRIPTION OF THE RIVER JORDAN, HILLS AROUND AND SYNAGOGUES.

The river Jordan is a river of considerable note in the Holy Land, the uppermost spring of which is in Mount Lebanon, about 12 miles north of Cesarea-Philippi. After running about 12 miles more to the south, it receives a more considerable branch, which under ground proceeds from the lake Phiala. About 15 miles farther south, it forms the waters of Merom, or lake of Sarnechon, which is about 4 miles broad, and nearly 6 miles long. After running about 28 miles farther south, it forms the lake, or sea of Genesareth, which is about 13 miles in length, and 6 miles in breadth. From thence it runs southward through a long valley, whose air is unwholesome, and most of it desert, till it loses itself in the Dead Sea. Its whole course is about 160 miles. It was miraculously divided and passed over by the Israelites.

Around the river Jordan are hills, and on the hills are synagogues. The synagogue as an institution arose after the work of Ezra, and is closely connected with the development of that legal Judaism to which his reformation gave definite shape. It was the business of every Jew to know the law; the school trained scholars, but the synagogue where the law was read every Sabbath, was the means of popular instruction.

Such synagogues existed in all parts of Judea, and continued for many generations.

GOD'S LOVE FOR US.

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John iii 16. God's love for us is greater than any human love, for we read in Rom v 8. But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought to love one another. 1 John iv 11.

As God is love he could not do any thing else but love us and care for us, but let us show that we appreciate it by obeying his commandments. The first and great commandment is, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

WHAT YOUNG GIRLS CAN DO FOR THE CHURCH?

Most young girls imitate the lives and examples of their mothers—the living example means much to the young and so in asking the question, What can young girls do for the church? I can think of no better answer than to emulate the good deeds and thoughtful examples of a Christian mother. Then first, it is necessary to be really true, pure and unselfish at heart. Since our actions are the expression of our inner selves it follows that the pure minded, sympathetic young girl will seek out the sick and afflicted and those unfortunate and poor in the possessions of this world and so cheer and help them happily over the toils of every day life. Even a cup of cold water given to one of the least of these in Jesus name is a deed of love and will be rewarded as such. God who gives us all things is pleased with those who give to their fellowmen. Besides young girls sharing the daily bread they can shed abroad love among their companions and so fulfil the law of Christ.

Dear Restitution:

I wish to report to the Household of Faith, that on Sunday, October 23rd, Miss Ethel Cape of Emory Gap, Tenn., was baptized into the all-saving name of Christ. Miss Ethel is a daughter of Sister Poland, of Emory Gap. She became interested in the truth several years ago and Brother Waller first preached in that place and was the first to insist that her mother should go and hear that man preach such a strange gospel, but she soon saw that it was the truth and [illegible] she ever be a faithful and true [illegible] and member of the Body of Christ, and be found in Him when he comes, is our prayer.

She was baptized by the writer.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Obituary.

William Warren Mallory was born near Cooperstown, Brown County, Illinois, December 7th, 1846. Died at Quincy, Illinois, February 9th, 1910, at 2 A. M.—being 63 years, 2 months and 2 days old. He was the son of the late James P. and Frances Mallory. He was of a family of four children, two dying in infancy, leaving only one brother, Eugene Mallory, of Rushville, Illinois, to mourn the loss of a loving brother.

He being a soldier, the war records show that he was enrolled February 11th, 1861, at Mt. Sterling, Illinois, and was mustered into service on the same day as a private in Co. E. 10th Illinois Infantry Volunteers, and that he was mustered out of service with the Company and honorably discharged as a private, July 8th, 1865, at Louisville, Ky. Serving 18 months as a soldier.

On March 26th, 1879, he was united in marriage with Mary E. Price, near Erwin, Illinois, and had he lived till the 26th of March would have made 31 years of constant companionship.

He was in the Mercantile business for a number of years in Illinois, conducting stores in Cooperstown, Erwin, Littleton, Pleasantview, Frederick, Bentstown, Rushville, and also conducted country stores as well. He was Post Master and Notary Public at different times.

On March 1st, 1899, he removed from Rushville, Illinois, to Northwest Arkansas, settling at Gravett, Arkansas, with a general store, and in 2 months traded the store for a fruit farm near Highhill, Arkansas, Benton County, on which he lived until awhile before he died he went to visit his brother Eugene, never being able to return home, dying in the hospital in Quincy, Illinois.

The last eight years of his life he had been in very poor health, being paralyzed at different times, and the last time he lost the use of his tongue and never got so he could talk as he used to, he was a complete wreck.

He was one of the best informed men of his community on all general topics; but the Bible was his main subject and when he could talk he never tired of talking the Scriptures, and many a person has seen the light of the Word through his talking and explaining the gospel. He would get happy talking, it was as clear to him, the way of the gospel as a crystal. However sick he was he was always ready, when he could to quote the Scriptures; for he knew it almost by heart. If any one said certain things were in the Bible and he said not, there was no use looking for them, for they were not there.

We mourn for him, but not as one without hope, for we have the blessed assurance that he died in the Blessed Hope, and he was ready and prepared to be called, and this is a blessed consolation in our sad bereavement.

He leaves to mourn for him a wife and one daughter, Anna F. Mallory, at home, being the only child born to this union.

With sorrowful hearts we give him up till the Master comes, when we shall clasp glad hands on a brighter shore, where sorrow and death will be no more.

HIS DAUGHTER'S TRIBUTE.

Father's gone! O, how I miss him,
Miss his dear familiar face;
In the sad and lonely circle
None can ever fill his place.

Though my heart is almost breaking,
Crushed beneath this heavy load;
For the path of life without him
Seems a dark and dreary road.

Hard it is to be submissive,
As I pass beneath the rod;
My heart is filled with sadness,
Can be soothed by none but God.

He alone can share my sorrows,
Heal my heart all crushed and torn;
Give to me his precious promise,
Blessed be all they that mourn.

Oh Father, will thou guide me,
Through the days and years to come;
May I and all our loved ones,
Find in Eden a happy home.

Lovingly, his daughter.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 9, 1910.

Upon What Things Should a Church be United to Work Harmoniously?

Some ten or twelve years ago, a committee appointed to make a programme for our State Conference, gave the present Editor the task of writing a paper on the above topic. The paper was prepared and read at the meeting. The present conditions caused a search for that paper, as it was our desire to see in what degree the lapse of years had wrought change of mind. We wish to give this to our readers as written at the time, not that it is a perfect composition, but because we would like all to see where we stood then, and to say Amen to the sentiments expressed, as voicing our convictions at this time.

We did not think then, nor we now believe, that it is in every case feasable to make plans at one place that will exactly meet the needs of other places. Local conditions differ. Laws governing large cities, those governing smaller cities, towns and villages, all differ in many details, caused by the needs and environments. However, there is a fundamental underlying principle that must be embodied in each and every one of the various communities. Likewise in Church organizations varying conditions and needs make it necessary to have a varied organization, but as in cities of varying classes there is a basis of government, so in various Church organizations there must be a basis—an authority—to govern in general.

Our Churches are what are called "congregational"—as self governing. Own their own property, be it buildings, or furnishings in a rented hall. Hence, so far as their business matmatters are concerned, they must make regulations to fit their surroundings.

Of course the officers entrusted with the business of a Church organization should be made to conform to the general rules laid down in the Document of authority—God's Word. As locality makes necessary a variety of conditions, a State, District or General Conference cannot do more than to suggest, and get all working on the same lines of organization as near as conditions will permit. This can and should be done without being dogmatic and using force to compell similarity.

Inasmuch as individual members of a Church are situated differently as regards business, social, and family surroundings, it will be impossible to make details in government that will regulate the conduct of every one; but there must be in a general way a concert of action as regards life, in morals and doing of duty.

Furthermore, as persons vary in temperament, and are influenced by their surroundings—often by their parents, and by the circumstances that have come into their lives, they necessarily differ in capabilities and capacity to grasp, and as some are stern and some yielding in their natures, so we must look for some differences in belief on many points where the Scripture is not definite and explicit. Yet in this, as in conduct, there must be some fundamental basis upon which there is agreement and unity.

With this introduction we present what was written some years ago as our convictions at that time, and to which we shall in the main assent now.

UPON WHAT THINGS SHOULD A CHURCH BE UNITED TO WORK HARMONIOUSLY?

This subject may be made short or long, and I realize that in its treatment your Committee has assigned me a task of no mean responsibility. It occurs to me they could have found more able hands in which to place it. In the handling of this subject it could be stated in a general way that a Church to work harmoniously should be so bound together with the cords of love, and be so imbued with the sweet spirit of charity, that nothing else could be added to make a Unit.

Let us pause a moment and see if we can make this work. We find the definition of Love to be "A feeling of strong attachment induced by that which delights or commands admiration; pre-eminent kindness or devotion to another; affection; tenderness." Charity we find is "Love; universal benevolence; good will. Liberality in judging of man and his actions; a disposition which incline men to put the best construction on the words and actions of others."

It would seem if we could have a strong, yet kind, tender and affectionate regard for each other; coupled with unbounded benevolence and good will, that we could have no more. Perfection would be reached.

On the other hand we might go into an elaborate search of the dealings of God with man and the things taught and endeavor to get at the essentials, and list them as the things a Church must be united on. To do this would "take all summer" as General Grant said, and we have too little time for this task. Which horn of the dilemma shall I grasp? The first is too vague and indefinite, the second too great—requiring the smallest details. I must endeavor to choose a road between the two, and will do the best I can to show you what God teaches on the subject.

Before giving answer to this question, it will be well to ask, What is a Church? We find the word has several shades of meaning, referring to the house occupied, to the congregation, to the general body of all beliefs. However, the definition with which we have to do is that relating to the assembly, and we find this is "A formally organized body of Christian believers, holding the same creed, observing the same rites, and acknowledging the same ecclesiastical authority; a denomination; a collective body of Christians."

From this we learn that a Church is a company of persons gathered together, who have organized a society with a basis of common belief, following the same rites or practices of government, and who acknowledge the same ecclesiastical authority. And further, that this organized company must be Christians.

Next we are led to ask, What is a Christian? and consulting Mr. Webster again we find a Christian to be "One who believes, or professes—or is assumed to believe, in Jesus Christ, and the truth as taught by him, especially one whose inward and outward life is conformed to the doctrines of Christ." As part of our definition does not suit, we will proceed to cut out the objectionable part at once. It does not suit us to call one a "Christian" who only "professes or is assumed to believe" in Jesus Christ. We prefer to call such an imposter, a counterfeit, and not a real "genuine" Christian. After taking this liberty with our definition we have a Christian who "believes in Jesus Christ, and the truth he taught, and who lives in accord with such profession."

We have found then that a "Church that is a Church" is a collected company organized for the purpose of worshiping together, who believe the truth as taught by God, through his prophets, Jesus Christ and the apostles, and whose lives accord therewith.

Having learned so much we must come to the conclusion that it is possible and necessary for such a Church to have a common belief, a common basis or foundation principle upon which to stand. If we admit that there can be such a Church then we are bound to conclude that there are things taught in God's Word that are a "sure foundation" that each individual of the company or Church can and must assent to and do in order to be counted a part of that organization—the Church of the living God.

My subject is "Upon what things should a Church be united to work harmoniously?" Surely the "discussion" of this subject will be short, inasmuch as it is so plain and direct that there is but "one side" to it. It is a common saying that "all questions have two sides." It is also a common saying that "every rule must have some exception to prove it by." In this case our subject is surely the exception to the general rule, as it has but one side. We have determined that God has said we must believe and do, and we have our question answered, beyond all cavil. If we can possibly find out what God has taught through his inspired Word then discussion is at an end.

However, before going into this search to find out what it is necessary to believe and do, we wish to call up the question of a "creed." Please do not start and be frightened at the word—it is harmless. My brother, will you tell me, please, what you believe regarding the proper method of baptism, according to what you read in your Bible? Certainly. "Complete immersion, plunging, dipping, burying in water is the only true baptism." Thank you, brother. Now I know just what your "creed" says concerning baptism, and if I go through the whole list of fundamental principles of the "Gospel," you will give me answers just as promptly, and I will then know and be able to write your creed.

Very queer that you are not afraid to "stand up in meeting" and tell what you believe, that you can write for the press and say what you know God's Word to teach on a subject, and yet hold up your hands in horror when the word "Creed" is mentioned. Why, all it means is "I believe." But one says, "I do not believe in any human creed. The open Bible is good enough for me. I will accept no man's interpretation, but reserve the right to think for myself, and I am liberal enough to give every other man the same privilege."

This is certainly very generous and liberal in you, and simply means when boiled down to its real significance, that you allow every man to be his own interpreter, that he is as apt to be right as you are, that it makes no real difference what he believes so long as he believes he gets his belief from the Bible. The world is fast drifting to the belief that a man can believe as he pleases, so long as he is a fairly good man, he is all right, no matter what his particular id as may be. Everything is thus beautifully indefinite, nothing is stable, nothing sure, the foundation is sand, the structure will not stand the flood and wind.

Brethren and Sisters, I have noticed this, the brother who is so very tenacious of being his own interpreter—is not "creed-bound"—can take some one of "another denomination" and just riddle him with the fire of his sarcasm; can lay bare his inconsistencies in belief (creed) in short order, and hold him up to ridicule in first class style. Funny about us, but we can just use up an "immortal soulist" or "sky-ki geom" believer in most approved manner. But stop! That man believes he gets his Belief from the Bible. Thus he is standing on the same platform with you, and must have the same consideration that you have. Does an "open Bible" suit exactly?

When "in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth", he started out with a definite purpose, being able to "see the end from the beginning", and throughout the whole written Word, with its account of what God has done, is doing and will do, with the creation of his hands, he has ever been a definite God. When he placed all the glory of Eden in possession of the created man he said, This is my command: Obey and live—disobey and die. He set before the man life and death, and said, 'Choose'. Nothing could be more directly and definitely stated. You all know the history, and the evidence is patent to all that God has never changed his purpose to this day, and we are thereby given assurance that he will never change. No matter what a man may do or think, the Infinite God is the "same yesterday, today and forever."

Having proceeded so far I will state that in general terms a Church should, to work harmoniously, be united in belief, form of government, and base of authority. The basis of authority is without question God's Word. The form of government, which is purely for the furtherance of the business in hand, will necessarily vary according to the needs of the place and times, and inasmuch as we live in a land where the people are said to rule, certain laws can be enacted by a company of Christians desiring to organize that will be suited to the conditions surrounding them. The business before a Church, or the things that make it desirable to organize, are the holding together of the body, mutual help and edification, the dissemination of God's truth, the making of appropiate rules to govern such a congregation, and chosing ones, who by their ability are adapted to perform the several services needed by them, is a matter for local settlement, and though an outline may be given by a Conference or General Assembly of Churches, yet locality and conditions must determine the exact rules of government.

We come now to the other part of our subject, namely, the things to be believed. We are not afraid to stand up and tell why we have a "blessed hope" and to say what that "hope" is; nor are we afraid to print in book what men "must do to be saved", and we should not hesitate to set down what we find the Bible says regarding the "Gospel of the kingdom of God and the things concerning the name of Jesus Christ," for these matters are the "power of God unto salvation." So if we search and find what is taught, we will set it down unhesitatingly.

We shall jump at two conclusions, however, without any attempt at proof, presuming that all will admit them, so we set down first of all this: All members of a Church must believe there is a God, who created all things, and that this Being has communicated his will through his Word—the Bible.

We find that among the things that God created was man, that he had made the earth and all else good, and very good, all fitted for an abode for the man. Having so arranged affairs, God wished the man to be worthy of the position he had given him as head of all the living creatures and guardian of the Eden he had made. He therefore said: Adam, I give thee freely of all the abundance about thee—but one tree yonder thou must not eat the fruit of. All else use—leave that alone—for if thou eatest of it the very ground shall be accursed, and from it shall spring the thorn and thistle where now the myrtle groweth. For thyself, in the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat thy bread, and there as thou mightest live among the blessings about thee, thou shalt die and not live. From dust I made thee, unto the dust shalt thou return, for dust thou art.

Adam proved unworthy, and we learn he died. One thing a Church relying on God's Word must believe is that man is mortal—dying.

Was the fall of Adam to frustrate the purpose of God in creating the world good, and having a people worthy of inhabiting such a place? No, surely not. So continuing our search we find that a promise was made that in the future there would come a time when all should be restored, so a Church must believe there will be a "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," and as many people are given to spiritualizing quite largely, we deem it proper here to say that as the fall was literal the restitution will be literal; and as the punishment for rebellious Israel has been literal, we must believe that this "restitution" spoken of includes the restoration literally of God's ancient people to the land and position we find was promised them. So include in this "thing" for a Church to believe not only the restitution of earth and man, but the restoration of Israel also.

Proceeding further we find the features of a Kingdom that will be established, with all the attendant elements to completeness—King, territory, people; government and all described in detail. We learn that this kingdom is to be set up in the future, hence we will have our Church believe in the establishment of God's kingdom on earth some time in the future, and all to be literal.

Again, in order for men who have died to have part in this kingdom of God they must be raised to life, and on search we find the Word teaches that there will be a resurrection of dead men to life. So the Church must believe in the literal resurrection of the dead.

In order to accomplish this work God tells us that he has appointed his Son, his only begotten man, Jesus Christ, to perform this work—be the means through which the work of restoration and resurrection should be accomplished. So our Church must believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he is the only means through which we can be made partakers of the joys of the kingdom of God, and be resurrected to life.

Again we learn that God's Son Jesus Christ was here in person, lived a perfect life on this earth, and [illegible] formed the work [illegible] time, he was taken [illegible] right hand of the [illegible] where he now is [illegible] Priest. That he [illegible] promised, and the [illegible] gers from the throne [illegible] tified, that he would come [illegible] like manner as his disciples saw him go. Hence our Church must believe in the personal coming again of Christ.

We learn that when he does so come he will come to establish the kingdom, raise the dead who are to have part in the affairs of that time; that then will be associated with him the immortalized saints who will be joint heirs with him in the conduct and rulership of God's kingdom. So our Church must believe that the coming of Christ and the setting up of the kingdom are yet future.

To recapitulate—We find that our Church must believe, if it is a Christian Church in the strict sense,

1. That there is a God, Creator of heaven and earth.

2. That God has communicated his purpose and will by holy men inspired by him, and has given us the Bible.

3. Man is by nature mortal—dying.

4. That Adam sinned and died, lost life, and God will restore life and blessing to those worthy of it.

5. That literal Israel will be restored to God's favor, and be blessed as promised.

6. That God's kingdom will in the near future be established upon the earth.

7. That men will be literally raised from the death state to life.

8. That Jesus Christ is really God's Son, and that only through him can this work of establishing the kingdom blessing Israel and the nations, and raising the dead, be accomplished.

9. That the resurrected and immortalized saints will be associated with Jesus Christ in the establishment of the kingdom and the government of the world.

10. That Jesus was here on earth, ascended to the Father, but will return again even as he went away, and at that time, and not till then he will raise the dead and bless all mankind.

That in brief these are the "things" concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ—the Gospel—which is the power of God unto salvation. For a Church to work harmoniously then, each member must believe The Gospel.

So much we learn concerning what members of a Church must believe, but there is something else. We go on in our investigation and find that as something was necessary on the part of Adam, so it is for each one who will be acceptable to God. It is not enough to simply learn what God has designed in his creation and believe, what he has revealed as his will in the future unfolding of his plan. He calls upon all who wish to participate in the glory of his kingdom to not only believe but to do. Hence we must search and see what he wants his Church to do. We find that he wants us, after learning of these things, and realizing our fallen condition, to be so sorry for our wrong doings and our imperfections that we heartily repent and turn from them and manifest a disposition to act in accord with his wishes. That we wish to leave the old way of sin and live righteously, wish to be made free from sin, and searching further we find he has arranged a plan by which we can leave the old man and put on the new. Be adopted into the family of God, have our past sins remitted—blotted out—remembered no longer against us. We learn that this is through baptism, immersion, burying in water, dying in figure, and rising again to walk in the new and better way. We further learn that we are to continue this holy life onward throughout the term of our sojourn here, as we further learn that it is essential to our final salvation that we continue steadfast in our belief and faithful in our demeanor.

Then a Church must be united in this also—

11. It is necessary to repent of our evil deeds and turn from them, to be baptized in water, and thus blot out past wrongs, and be adopted into God's family.

12. It is necessary to live a Godly life, ever after, acting as Christ did—going about doing good.

In conclusion then, we answer our question—Upon what things should a Church be united to work harmoniously?

1. Purpose of organization—Mutual aid and dissemination of its belief.

2. Government of organization—[illegible] best adapted to local [illegible] and the times.

3. [illegible] of [illegible] The Gospel [illegible], and the [illegible] name of Jesus [illegible]

4. [illegible] of [illegible] Holy life [illegible] for final salvation.

5. [illegible] ber alike in belief, [illegible] "faith," and [illegible] will animate [illegible] the [illegible] et—[illegible] each [illegible] work [illegible] cannot [illegible] God, [illegible] it [illegible] without any [illegible] have the [illegible] Object, Law, Belief, Work.

God grant that we may strive to get closer to the Perfect One, and in so doing we shall get nearer the perfect state; and if we strive to attain unto the perfect state we will but be drawn nearer to Him who is our Perfect Pattern.

Sunday School Lesson.

NOVEMBER 20, 1910.

Jesus in Gethsemane.—Matthew xxvi, 30-56.

Golden Text—"The Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners." Matt. xxvi. 45.

After the institution of the Lord's Supper as we had in lesson of Nov. 6, the disciples with Jesus went out of the upper room, left Jerusalem on the northeast side, and went to the garden of Gethsemane on the Mount of Olives.

John tells us that the place where they went was a usual spot for them to be, and Judas knew of it, as "Jesus ofttimes resorted thither with his disciples." It may have been a possession of some friend, or perhaps a sort of pleasure garden where people were permitted to go.

There are three points in this lesson that should be brought to view: The prayer of Jesus, the manner of watching of the disciples, and the betrayal by Judas.

Jesus left part of his disciples at the gate to watch, while he went deeper into the garden to pray. He asked Peter and James and John to go with him, and while with them his mind may have gone back to another time when they were in the Mount of Transfiguration, and had seen his coming glory displayed. His heart was heavy and filled with sorrow. The trial he was called on to pass through was severe. The cup that was pressed to his lips was bitter. He asked his three near disciples to stay where they were and watch, for he was exceeding sorrowful, even unto death. The agony was so great that he must be alone where he could, without the restraint even of near friends, pour out his heart to God.

All the accounts given by the evangelists of this event, indicate the most intense sorrow, anguish, distress. Jesus had before spoken of his coming death to his disciples, and knew beforehand that he should suffer at the hands of unjust men, but here we see him utterly cast down by the full weight of it all. There was so much that he seems not to have previously realized. The glory beyond had stayed his heart before, and now that seems to be gone with the heavy load now placed on him. Luke, the physician says that "his sweat came as it were great drops of blood," his anguish was so intense.

His prayer when left alone, was addressed to his Father. Jesus addresses God in this appealing manner, with assurance that he is near and can hear him. Please note here as a digression: A certain class of so-called religionists of our day look upon God as just a "bright spirit incarnate" a "power that makes for righteousness." They do away with God as a reality and make him a force, a power—nothing. Just imagine if you please Jesus in his deep agony as here related, and praying to just—nothing!

We prefer to believe as Jesus did, that God was really literally his Father, and so he prayed saying, "O my Father." His petition was that if it were possible to relieve him of the cup of sorrow, that it might pass; but he made his wish subservient to God's plan—"Not as I will, but as thou wilt."

Thus was a victory over self gained in this awful hour. If it "may not pass from me, except I drink it, thy will be done." Jesus is calmer after this. The tension is in a measure over, and he can go on to the end. If the redemption of mankind depends on his finishing the task given him, he will go on. His Father's will is his will. By this submission is his prayer answered.

We learn that three times Jesus went to his disciples who were left on guard to watch, and finds them sleeping. Jesus does not intimate that this was because of indifference to his cause, but their eyes were heavy, they were tired in body and mind. Peter, who had been so confident and zealous during his service for Christ, even he could not resist sleep. Jesus asks him "could ye not watch with me one hour?" "Is it so then, that you could not keep awake with me a single hour?" Diaglott.

He admonishes them to "watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation," saying the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak. Jesus realizes their good intentions, giving a gentle reproof only.

The hour of rest for the disciples is over. "Rise, let us be going." Not to run away, but those who are to take me are at hand, Jesus says, and we will meet them. The band headed by the traitor Judas comes. A sign has Baby's Prayer.

Oh, God is near the cottage when the evening shadows creep,
And baby lips are murmuring: "I lay me down to sleep"
No matter what the distance where baby says her prayer,
The omnipresent God of Love is always watching there!

Ah, he notes the sparrow's fall and hears the robin's flight,
Shall he forget the hour of dusk when baby says good night?
Shall he, aloof from baby's prayer and baby's laughter parted,
Deny himself the sweetest chords that charm a raptured world?

Ah, God is near when baby prays beside her downy bed,
And God will send his angels down to watch above her head—
To guard her through the Sleepy Way, the "boogy" wood of night,
And give her back to mother's arms when Phoebus takes her flight.

Ah, now the baby lisps "Amen," and mother tucks her snug,
And kisses her, and puts her in a cradle her "mother's hug!"
And then she tiptoes from the room, as evening shadows limn.
And leaves her baby, fast in sleep, to angel guard—and Him!

Nebraska Berean Lesson. No. 1.

A FEW BIBLE TERMS DEFINED.

1. What is the Septuagint?

2. What portion of the Bible is sometimes called the Pentateuch?

3. The Apocalypse?

4. Canticles?

5 What is the margin of the Bible?

6. What are references?

7. Give an example of one Bible writer quoting from the writings of another Bible writer.

8. In what language was the Old Testament first written?

9. The New?

MARGIN, REFERENCES, & QUOTATIONS.

1. Study the margin of Genesis 1st chapter. Put down all the purposes you can find it is used for.

2. At top of the margin column, what does "B C 4 04" mean?

3. In the 20th verse for the word "soul" in the text the margin says, "Gr. soul." Explain this fully.

4. In Matthew i 20 for the word "conceived" in the text the margin says "Gr. begotten." Explain this.

5. Give one reference on the words, "Let there be light," in Genesis 1 3 Explain what references are and their use.

6 In Hebrews 1st chapter, a chapter of only 14 verses, there are seven quotations from different places in the Old Testament Tell what these quotations are, and by the references on them find and give the book, chapter and verse the writer of Hebrews 1st chapter quotes from.

7. In the hundreds of quotations in the New Testament made from the Old, only in one instance is both the name of the book and the chapter given from which the quotation is made. This quotation is in Acts, somewhere between the 12th and the 15th chapters. Where is it, and what is it?

N. B.—In answering the questions in this lesson you are supposed to have a dictionary and a good reference Bible. Be sure and correctly number your replies

ANSWERS.

A few Bible Terms Defined.

1. The Septuagint is the ancient Greek translation of the Old Testament made 285 B. C., so called because it is supposed to have been accomplished by about 70 men. The word Septuagint comes from a Latin word meaning seventy. This version is the first and most important of all translations of the Old Testament, and is the one quoted by Jesus and his apostles.—Johnson's Cyclopedia.

2. The first five books of the Old Testament are sometimes called the Pentateuch. Penta is from a Greek word meaning five, and teuch from a Greek word meaning book.

3. Revelations is sometimes called the Apocalypse. The word means a disclosure, and is derived from a Greek word meaning to reveal.

4. The Songs of Solomon are called Canticles.

5. The margin of the Bible is a narrow space on each page given over to references, etc.

6 References direct our attention to testimony elsewhere, generally for the purpose of gaining more information on a subject. In case of an individual seeking a position he gives the employer the name of a person to whom the employer may go for information concerning his character, etc. The name is the reference. In the Bible, references are the names of books, with chapter and verse given in connection with an idea, and which treat on the same idea either by repeating it, or giving a fuller explanation.

7. In Romans x. 16, Paul quotes from Isaiah liii. 1. by saying "Lord, who hath believed our report?"

8 The Old Testament was first written in the Hebrew language.

9. The New Testament was first written in the Greek language. During the times of the apostles the Greeks had been conquered by the Romans, and Rome was the supreme power over all nations. As soon as Greece had been conquered the Romans copied the culture and language of the Greeks, and spread it through her possessions, thus making it the common and popular language.

Margin, References, & Quotations.

1. Purposes of the margin of Gen. i. are: First, it serves as a place for recording references; Secondly, dates; Third, short notes on literal translations of certain words. (And we may add that sometimes the original word is supplied in the margin, as in Gen. i. 20, where "life" is translated from nephesh, and means "soul."—ED.)

2 4004 B. C. at the top of margin column in Gen. i. means that the incidents recorded in that chapter happened about 4004 years before the birth of Christ.

3. Where the 20th verse has "life" and the margin says "Heb. soul" it is meant that the literal translation of the Hebrew word used here is soul.

4. In Matt. i. 20 the note "Gr. begotten," on the word "conceived" means that the literal translation of the Greek word used for conceived, is begotten.

5. One reference on the words "Let there be light" is 2 Cor. iv 6

6 References include names of books with their chapters and verses, which refer us to what some other writer has to say on the same subject. Their use is to bring out the fullest and the deepest meaning of a passage of the Scripture. Sometimes they are used for emphasis and proof in the cases of exact quotations.

7. The seven quotation from the Old Testament in Hebrews i are Psa. ii. 7; xcvii. 7; cv. 1; xlv. 6 7; cii 25; cx. 1; 2 Sam. vii. 14.

8. This quotation is found in Acts xiii. 33. Paul quotes from Psalms ii. "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee."

ANSWERS.

A few Bible Terms Defined.

1 Septuagint, derived from the Latin word septuaginta, meaning seventy; a Greek version of the Old Testament, so called because it is said to be the work of seventy, or rather seventy-two, interpreters (translators, ED).

2. The first five books of the Bible, or the five books of Moses, are called the Pentateuch.

3. Apocalypse—the book of Revelation, written by Saint John in Patmos, near the close of the first century.

4 Canticles, one of the books of the Old Testament, "the Songs of Solomon."

5. The margin of the Bible is the edge of the leaf, or a column in the center of the page, where is found the references or the meaning of some of the words used in the verses on that page.

6. References are helps on the Bible. They send you to another and sometimes to the same book for information on the subject desired.

7. "And the Scriptures was fulfilled which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness; and he was called the Friend of God." James ii. 23. The words quoted from [illegible] Genesis xv, 6, and he believed in the Lord, and he counted it to him for righteousness.

8. The Old Testament was first written in Hebrew.

9. The New Testament was written in the Greek language.

Margin, References, & Quotations.

1. Purposes of margin: To give the date, meaning of different readings to make clear to the reader, and find what the other writers say on the subject by the references.

2. B. C. 4004 means the number of years before Christ that the events in the chapter took place.

3. The 20th verse: The word soul in the margin means the breath of life. "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life (breath), and the fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." I think by putting in the word breath, instead of life, makes it clear without further explanation.

4. In Matthew i. 20 the word conceived, with marginal reading of begotten. The word itself means cause to exist.

5. A reference on the words "Let there be light" is 2 Corinthians iv. 6, For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

6. Hebrews i. 5, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Psalm ii. 7 I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son. 2 Sam. vii. 14. Verse 8, Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever; a scepter of righteousness is the scepter of thy kingdom, Psalm xlv 6 Verse 13, Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool. Psalm cx. 1. Verse 7, Who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire, Psalm civ 4 Verse 10. Thou Lord in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are works of thine hands, Psalm cii. 25. Verse 6. And let all the angels of God worship him. Psalm xcvii. 7.

7. Acts xiii. 33, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee, Psalm ii. 7.

OLA CROUCH.

Old and New Covenant Customs.

After the ascension of Jesus, many of the converts to Christianity from among the Jews continued to observe certain rites, days, and customs as before; such as fasts, circumcision, feast days, sabbaths, shaving of the head, vows, etc. The converts from among the Gentiles also continued to practice their former customs, such as the eating of meats offered to idols and gluttony. Some of these early Christians esteemed "one day above another," while others again esteemed "every day alike" Rom. xiv. 5. There seems to have been no harmony in the observance of a day of rest, but apparently as if by common consent, or by the leadings of the Spirit, the converts from among the Gentiles, assembled on the first day of the week to worship the Lord, thus honoring the day typical of resurrection and redemption, rather than the day of creation and of Jewish independence. Thus we read, "And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight" Acts xx 7. To the Corinthians, Paul wrote: "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come" 1 Cor. xvi 2.

But let us now look at the typical shadows of the old covenant arrangement of the Jews, which prefigured the "times of the Gentiles." "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a sheaf of the firstfruits of your harvest unto the priest: and he shall wave the sheaf before the Lord, to be accepted for you; on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it ...And ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete: even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number fifty days: and ye shall offer a new meat offering unto the Lord out of your habitations two wave loaves of two tenths deals: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baken with leaven; they are the firstfruits unto the Lord." Lev. xxiii 9-17.

These two "firstfruits" were fulfilled at Pentecost. They were both offered upon the first day of the week, and shadowed forth, first: Jesus our first, who also was symbolized by the sabbath of the decalogue as its "Lord," its typical significance; also the new dispensation, which began with his resurrection. The crucifixion of Jesus was the death of the old dispensation, and his resurrection was the birth of the new dispensation, as prefigured in the type of the firstfruits as above noticed. The early harvest sheaf shadowed forth the resurrection of our Lord and Savior upon the first day of the week, Lev. xxiii. 10, 11; Mark xvi 9 and the coming harvest, 2 Cor. xv 20, at the end of the world, Matt. xiii 39. The second "firstfruits" were two cakes baken with leaven, which were also offered upon the first day of the week—fifty days after the barley harvest, pointing forward to the ascension of Christ and to his reception and glorification with God.

We can now plainly see the "shadow" cast before by the body of Christ, and "the good things to come;" as foreshadowed in the type of the sheaf of the early harvest offering. Jesus rose from the dead on the first day of the week During the forty days before his ascension he appeared to his chosen at least ten different times, and strange as it may seem, in every instance it was upon the first day of the week," and upon no other day. Matt. xxviii Mark xvi. Luke xxiv. and John xx. 1, 19, 26. As we have noticed in the case of the harvest festival, Pentecost came on the first day of the week, when also the Holy Ghost was poured out, according to Acts ii. 1. From this it will be seen that no specific or definite day of worship had been commanded in this dispensation, the disciples would naturally assemble on the first day of the week because the Lord Jesus, after having met with them upon that day, as before noticed.

As time advanced and the number of the disciples increased, many converts, especially from among the Jews, continued to observe certain feasts, the doctrine, circumcision, the eating only of certain meats, etc., while others esteemed "every day alike." Rom. xiv 5, and they were aware of God's good and nothing to be refused if it be received with thanksgiving 1 Tim iv 4, or it was before the law was given on Sinai, when the eating of pork was not amissible. Said God to Noah: "Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the green herb have I given you all things. But flesh with the life thereof which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat. Genesis ix. 3. 4

In the fourteenth chapter of the Roman letter, Paul treats on this question at length and says: For one believeth that he may eat all things; another, who is weak, eateth herbs. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him that eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him.....One esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he does not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks." Verses 1-6. From this it is easily seen that the Mosaic law was no longer regarded as obligatory or sacred, and the observances were not regarded as essentials. Here we take the covenant of the Sabbath observance, eating of meat, and feast days of the Israelites, and were repealed over and over again, and again, and pronounced abrogated in transgressed. But let us see what disposition they made of the never-to-be-forgotten command. The seventh day of the week—fifty days after the barley harvest, pointing forward to the ascension of Christ and to his reception and glorification with God.

We can now plainly see the "shadow" cast before by the body of Christ, and "the good things to come;" as foreshadowed in the type of the sheaf of the early harvest offering. Jesus rose from the dead on the first day of the week. The Infallible Word.

Perhaps it may not be out of place to say a word or two on 2 Tim. iii. 14 27. First in verse 14 exhorts Timothy to "continue in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned." Whatsoever the assurance it must have been such as to command the complete confidence of Timothy. What follows shows that it was not alone the plausibility of the doctrines taught or the ability of the [illegible] as teachers [illegible] keep his constant in the "things" and he [illegible] "From a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures," (sacred writings R. V.) The fact that these writings are styled by Paul sacred shows that in his estimation they were superior to any and all other writings. This is demonstrated by his putting them forward as the basis of his exhortations and the confidence of Timothy. They are superior—sacred—because God given or God-breathed. Can that which God breathed be anything else but error? Would God breathe that which was untenable, not to say false? The question is read: the infallibility or infallibility of God If God is infallible can we say his words infallible. Once admit that God's Word contains error, you immediately remove all ground of confidence in the integrity, uprightness and wisdom of God and Jesus Anointed whom he has sent. Rather "let God be true" though every man be a liar.

In verse 16 Paul says, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God," that is, the Sacred Writings or Holy Scriptures of verse 15, and he emphasized the fact of inspiration by "and also" —or in addition to being inspired they are also "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." Fallible or partial inspiration—even if they only extend to pits and tittles—confronts us with the impossible task of making "The man of God perfect" with unreliable rules and an imperfect standard and pattern to guide us. The "man of God" can be made "perfect", and "thoroughly furnished unto all good works" only by that which is "above suspicion" and beyond the reach of criticism

The words of Paul show that he had unlimited confidence in what he wrote; and expected and believed that Timothy was like minded. To them the purity and stability of the Sacred Writings was beyond question, hence the confidence displayed by Paul in writing to Timothy. We find then, Paul exhorting Timothy to First, continue steadfast in. Second, things learned and assurance received based on. Third, Sacred Writings known from childhood which were, Fourth, given by God; and Fifth, (by strong inference) thoroughly reliable and therefore, Sixth, Profitable for doctrine, etc., and, Seventh, able to make the man of God perfect.

Add to this the fact that Paul himself wrote by inspiration and any element of uncertainty is still further removed. It is no longer Paul but God who declares the Sacred Writings to be God-given. Let us take the testimony of Peter on this point, second epistle iii. 15 16: "Even as our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given unto him, hath written unto you; as also in all his epistles.....unlearned and unstable wrest as also the other Scriptures."

Here Peter affirms that Paul wrote "according to the wisdom given unto him" by God who alone can give wisdom and if given by God, God and God alone is responsible for any and all errors—if errors there be—in the writings of Paul. Neither can we limit this to one of his epistles, for Peter expressly says, "As also in all his epistles." Then speaking of "other Scriptures" he virtually says that they also were written by men "according to wisdom given unto them." Peter and Paul then are in accord one with the other; both regard God as the real author of the Sacred Writings. Can we do less? Shall we, poor puny creatures, presume to set upon our judgment against that of the Almighty? You who believe in fallible inspiration, "Canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection?" You, ye to whom the inspiration of the Almighty giveth understanding" have declared the impropriety of the clay over the potter in presuming to know of the carelessness—to put it mildly—of God, while you are rolling the sacred writers From whence cometh your wisdom? From above or from beneath? If from beneath it is certainly faulty, impure, unreliable, in fact worthless: If from above your own criticism of the divine records condemns it. Who is the wiser, man or God; the creature or the Creator? The man who errs or the man who discovers the error? Consider.—R J.

We desire to thank the brethren who have responded to our call for copies of the Christian Hymnal. Through [illegible] kindness we have been able to [illegible] our [illegible] with this good [illegible] book.

In this issue we give in full the first lesson of the Bereans of Nebraska. Readers of our paper will greatly profit if they study the lesson. No matter what [illegible] you can belong to the Nebraska Bereans. Send to Sister Z. E. Adams, Holbrook, Nebraska, and you will get by return mail full particulars in printed form.

Consecrated Problems for the Consecrated, a 72 page pamphlet by Brother (?) George A. Whitford. It seems that our friend and brother has got himself into trouble with the Christadelphians by teaching that Adam was mortal before he sinned. His booklet is written to defend his theory that Adam was created mortal, and that therefore the dead when they are resurrected, will be mortal. If any of our readers are interested in these issues, they can obtain this work for the postage by addressing George A. Whitford 3359 18th St. N. W. Washington, D. C.

Conference Report.

The Ninth Annual Conference of the Church of God was held at Morlah, Illinois, October 8-15, and we are glad to report a profitable and enjoyable meeting.

Brother Eldred Marsh was with us the fore part of the week, but we regret was called home. Brother O. J. Allard was with us throughout the meeting, and delivered very valuable discourses and Bible lessons. Brother Peter Jeffrey arrived for the latter part of the meeting, and ably assisted in exhorting people to turn to the truth.

We truly appreciate the efforts of the three ministering brethren, and although it was Brother Marsh's first visit to us he has won a place in the hearts of this people, and we hope he may come again to us.

Letters of greeting were received from Brother and Sister Alex and Azorah Scrogge and daughter Leelah and Brother L. E. Conner.

Those from abroad were Peter Jeffrey, Miss Ethel and Mrs. James Jeffrey, Mrs James Donaly, Ban Carpenter, Letitia Murphy, Grace Hutchins, Viola Eaton, Mae and Laota Hansen, George Slack and wife, Belva Wilson, Kathryn Williams and Miss Morta Tuttle.

been agreed on. Judas will kiss the one they are to take. The Greek of the Diaglott indicates that not one kiss, but that Judas approached and said "Hail Rabbi," and "repeatedly kissed him." Jesus calls him "Friend" —a mere acquaintance, companion.

Thus was Jesus apprehended and taken for trial, which will be in our next lesson.

One thing to impress on the mind of the scholar before leaving this lesson is that the fall of Judas from the high position he held as a disciple, an apostle, a chosen out member of the little band, was not a sudden fall. Not a momentary weakness that had come to him. It no doubt astonished his fellow disciples, as they did not realize even at the Supper who it was that should betray the Lord. If we follow out the doings of Judas—make a sort of study of him, we will find that it was not sudden, but that he never was a real disciple of Jesus—never was a "learner." He "held the bag," and was selfish—a money getter. Gain to self was his highest ambition, and daily was he false to Christ, and disloyal to his cause.

One more item in this line: Judas no doubt was selfish and worldly—ambitious for selfish ends, right in the presence of Jesus He was with him day by day; the holy presence of the Christ did not act to root out his utterly selfish plans.

We are in the presence of God at all times. Are we living as we ought to each hour?

SOME days ago we mailed statements to a number of our brethren, but all have not yet responded. We wish they would do so quickly. Also hope all who can will remit their renewals without waiting for statement. Most of you know how your account stands, and you can save us a large amount of work and outlay by saving us sending notices. Please brethren, attend to this.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 48.

Thanksgiving day Rowland Willard thought he would claim the answer to his prayer—John xi.—"This sickness shall not be unto death but for the glory of God,"—"by carrying his mother down to family worship in the parlor. She seemed quietly to realize the effort he was making, as he thanked God that thus far she had been spared and now asked that it might be for his glory. He had not had Dec. 12th,—any special answer to the latter petition save as it might honor God, to state the above to his praying children as he had already done to several," but the answer was to come, and dear Auntie Willard though helplessly shut in was yet by voice and pen to sound out 'the Word of the Lord.' She had already passed the point of greatest danger, reason and memory were slowly returning. She could sit up two or three hours a day, either in a rocking-chair, or in a side-wheel chair, and could turn from one side of her bed to the other.

Rowland had now most of the care of his mother, Mrs. N. L. Willard who had assisted him during the first two months—having gone home. But his wife was very kind and relieved him whenever possible, talked pleasantly to the dear invalid, tempted her appetite with daintily prepared food and kept her room neat and cheerful.

"No one seemed to really hope for much improvement," but Rowland still looked for some answer, that all would yet turn out for the glory of Him 'in whom we live, move and have our being.' He knew the age of miracles was passed; that God's messengers are not now dependent upon these, and that they are no longer necessary for the defense and diffusion of Christianity," but, that God still answered prayer was as certain to him as that he had lived, it having been demonstrated too often in his own Christian experience to be gainsayed. But as late as the following May "She could only use the right hand—the left arm and hand being swollen and sore—yet she still prayed as Rowland did for a blessing. By this time she could sing and whiled away the lonely hours in this delightful pastime. She was also able to receive her friends, some of whom came almost daily and "it was wonderful how she aroused herself to greet them, showing the same enthusiasm and cordinlity toward her grandchildren that she did toward others, being always polite, considerate, cordial, complimentary and full of Christian zeal. Unable to read her Bible, Rowland read it for her. Not able to kneel, Rowland knelt and prayed with and for her. Realizing her piteous helplessness, she some times momentarily gave way to tears, but these she dispelled immediately with effort to be bright and cheerful."

Among her visitors was the dear neice—Sallie Borland Roter (who spent a week with her before going back to Seattle, Washington, this being a great treat to the poor invalid.) Other visitors were—Dr. Kirkpatrick, Missionary to the interior of India; H. L. Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. James V. Mawby, of Philadelphia; Wm. Edis and wife, Brother Henry Taylor; Brother and Sister Conley etc., the last mentioned coming about the middle of October, 1896.

"Beautiful flowers, ice cream, water-lilies, cakes, biscuits, custards, jellies, many loving notes and other tokens of love became a daily cause of joy and good cheer." The 28th and 29th of July, she wrote a three-page letter to Sister H. L. Hastings.—the 25th of November, made the first entry in her diary, and in December took up the broken threads of her correspondence with her olden vigor and freedom of pen, writing first to Mrs. Roter, Denver, Colorado; Henry Taylor; Sister Conley; Elder George C. Needham; Sister Fay and Sister Tibbets.

Previous to this time she had written many notes,—one letter (Sept. 11th,) to Sister Roter and one to myself Sept. 27th, and Oct. 8th, 1896. She says in the latter, "How I have thought of your home during my long sickness, so kind you were to me, but that would have been no place for me now. My son was the one to carry the load night and day, and he has carried it and is carrying it still, though much lighter now. He lifts me in and out of bed. I do not walk alone yet I do not altogether despair.

I know you are still praying for me Chas and I thank my God for this. I do believ[illegible] forget Omar and I hope he does judgin[illegible] forget the blessed Jesus. I trust his friends are well, the dear little ones as well as the big ones.

Brother and Sister Wince, I trust you are looking strongly for Jesus now. His coming is very dear to me. I know not how to wait from day to day for that coming. Brother Taylor, and Sister Greaty were here a few days ago. They are full of hope in his coming very, very soon."

Shortly after again taking up her pen Auntie Willard began to throw volley after volley of grape-shot into the enemy's camp by circulating Anti-Infidel Literature, Bibles, and leaflets against profanity,—"The Plan of the Ages,"—"All of Grace,"—"Secret Power," "Little Christians" pounds of back papers to the seamen on the Great Lakes,—"The Old, Old Story," "Scripture Searchers,—and tracts on various subjects, averring when sending these that "labor in the Lord is not in vain."

Had not the long-sought blessing come, with the ability to again take up the work for Jesus? For Auntie Willard was able, not only to send out these preaching pages, but also to talk in person to the young people who came to her room.

The first thing she had asked for on regaining her strength had been her work-basket. "No," said her friends "you do not want your work-basket." She was silenced, but thought the answer harsh. Later on she saw the wisdom of the denial, for "had she yielded to the little cares, she would have failed to do the greater things that were to come to her hands in the jot of time that was left to her for their doing.

March 26. 1897, she began re-reading and arranging her manuscript that it might be ready for the publishers should the means ever come into her hands to have it put in "book form." But this work, and the writing of so many letters was too much for her frail strength and April 30th she began having chills and had them at infrequent intervals though feeling quite well between times and keeping persistenly on with her writing.

Brother Wm. Conley died the 25th of July, and like Brother Fay, was greatly lamented. Not a year had elapsed since he and Sister Conley had visited Auntie Willard and had prayed so earnestly with and for her, and now he was gone.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into G[illegible] and printed in tract form, the s[illegible] send in an ordinary envelope[illegible] cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not re[illegible] German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 185 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies it. "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—Its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact [illegible] in which it has previously been sent, and [illegible] if you wish the name changed, and we will [illegible] do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Fault-Finding.

In speaking of a person's faults
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember those with houses of glass
Should seldom throw a stone.

If we have nothing else to do
But talk of those who sin,
'Tis better we commence at home
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until we've fairly tried;
Should we not like his company
We know the world is wide.

Some have their faults—and who has not?
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan
And find it works full well,
To try my own defects to cure
Before of others tell.

Then let us all when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
To think of the harm one word may do
To those who little know.

Remember curses, something like
Our chickens, "roost at home;"
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

A piece of machinery runs better and lasts longer if it is kept in running order by being used, and if neglected it rusts, and soon is fit only for the scrap pile. It is the same with those who are added unto the body of Christ if they trust only then, they too become as scrap for they are only an encumbrance, but if they trust and obey then they are active in God's work and are bright like the finest machine, always ready and always willing to do God's work.

It surely is blessed to be on the Lord's side and by our lives show how we are on his side, then we have the conscious feeling that we are God's children. May be poor in this world's goods, but rich in the promises which he made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and which were made to the prophets and apostles and through them to us.

If we are on the Lord's side and the things of the world seem to be going contrary to our desires and expectations we have the assurance that it is for our good, as Paul gives it to us in Romans viii 28. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.

We see the conditions must be right if we are included in this, for it does not include every body, it is only to those who love God, and are called according to his purpose. If we do these things then we do not guess or wonder, but know that all things work for our good.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

spiritual lives when we have loosed our hold on God (not he on us) and have been tried and tempted and buffeted about by this and that, how much happiness, and what a quiet, restful feeling comes over us when we have come back into the shelter of God's love and have that peaceful feeling of love and security creeping over us, and like a child at the close of day creeping into its mother's arms knowing there is comfort and peace and shelter there, we do the same knowing God through Christ is willing to freely forgive us our faults and trespasses and say, "Come unto me ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

We know if we go to God through Christ we have a mediator, one who will help and comfort us, and who if we ask forgiveness for the things we have done, that we should not have done, then he will forgive us those things.

Truly, O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee. Psa lxxxix 8, O Lord God of hosts, hear my prayer; give ear, O God of Jacob. Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine Anointed. For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a door keeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.

For the Lord God is a sun and a shield. The Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will he withhold from them that walk upright.

O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee. David realized that while he trusted in the Lord that he was blessed. Prov iii 5 6 Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.

Isaiah xxvi 4, Trust ye in the Lord forever: for in the Lord Jehovah is ...erlasting strength. David when he went forth to fight Goliath went forth not in his own strength for he said to him, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied.

This day will the Lord deliver thee into mine hand, and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee, and I will give the carcasses of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel.

We all know the result, that David in the name of the Lord slew the giant and put the armies of the Philistines to flight. In 2 Kings xix we have the account of where the king of Assyria went up against Jerusalem during the reign of Hez-kiah, and told them they had taken all the cities, and that the gods of the other nations had not been able to prevail against them, and that their god, the God of Israel, would not either.

We have the account where Isaiah sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, that which thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib king of Assyria I have heard.

This is the Word the Lord God has spoken concerning him; the virgin the daughter of Zion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at thee, continuing he says, Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of Assyria, he shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor cast a bank against it.

By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the Lord. For I will defend this city, to save it, for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake. And it came to pass that night, that the angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians, an hundred four score and five thousand; and when they arose early in the morning, behold they were all dead corpses. So Sennacherib, king of Assyria, departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh.

Thus was Jerusalem saved by their trusting in the Lord and his might Psa iv 5. Offer the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in the Lord.

In 2 Chron xx we have the account of the destruction of the enemies of Jehoshaphat when they were coming up against Jerusalem. The Lord said unto him through Jahaziel, Hearken ye all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat. Thus saith the Lord unto you, be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude: for the battle is not yours, but God's. Ye shall not need to fight against these, set yourself, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the Lord with you, O Judah and Jerusalem; fear not, nor be dismayed; tomorrow go out against them: for the Lord will be with you.

The Lord kept his promise for the enemies were of three different peoples and set ambushes against the people of Jerusalem and mistook each other for the enemy and killed each other, so there were none to give battle to Jehoshaphat, and the fear of God was in all the kingdoms of those countries when they heard that the Lord fought against the enemies of Israel. Oh Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

We have the account of God delivering Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego from the fiery furnace because they would not worship the golden image which Nebuchadnezzar had set up, but worshiped the one true and living God. Psa v 11. Let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice; let them ever shout for joy because thou defendest them; let them also that love thy name be joyful in thee, for thou, Lord, wilt bless the righteous; with favor wilt thou compass him as with a shield.

If we were here to search the Scriptures we would find many cases of God's care over those who trust him and we would also find promises given therein which shows that God has not confined his goodness and mercies to those of whom I have just given an account, but that if we are his children there we will have a chance to partake of his eternal blessing of life everlasting through Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior.

How little do the people of this earth realize that it is by the grace of God that we have everything we use, for he created all things and without the use of the things God has given us man could not do the wonderful things he does, for he has to use the things God has placed at his disposal in order to discover the other things which he has discovered.

Man's great inventions are all started from, and because of the use of the things God has given us to use. God has given us a great labratory here and at present it is for the use of both the just and the unjust, and it seems as if the unjust have the best of it at present, but it will not be always so for Solomon says, Vanity, vanity, all is vanity, for we come into this world without anything but life and when we depart we leave it behind, we bring not anything into this world and cannot take anything with us.

No matter how great or moral, or how ... he is as the beast of the field. We brought not a thing along, and can take not a thing along when he departs this life.

Job xiv 1, 2, 10, Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down, he fleeth also as a shadow and ... continueth not. But man dieth, and wasteth away; yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he?

Psa cxvi 34, Put not your trust in princes, nor in the sons of man, in whom there is no help, his breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish. O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

1 Sam ii 29, He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness; for by strength shall no man prevail.

Oh, brothers and sisters, how many now are depending upon their own strength, how many say I did it, I have no one to thank for what I have but myself? What sorrow and misery and finally eternal death would be avoided, if we would say with Jesus, "Get thee hence, Satan; for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. It is one thing to tell one to trust, and another thing to tell them in what to trust, in order to gain their desires of eternal life, or not to gain their desires. If one desires to dance, and play cards and attend all the shows and amusements and functions of society, and those of this world, and ... up by going to heaven when ... death and repentance, ... nurse them to go to some popular church, and study theology. If one desires to follow the teachings of Jesus then they must first follow his advice as recorded in John v 39, Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me.

According to this instruction of Jesus we are to search the Scriptures, and at the time he was speaking the New Testament was not written, so he goes on and makes himself clear on this point, for he says, Do not think I will accuse you to the Father; there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. For had ye believed Moses ye would have believed me; for he wrote of me, but if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words.

Brothers and sisters, are we accused by the Word of God because we do not trust in him? If we trust in God we search the Scriptures, and if we stick to the Scriptures, and not theology then we find first, that sin entered into the world by man's disobedience, and death as a result of sin, and so death passed upon all men; then God showed his love toward us by sending his only begotten Son into the world, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

Then to know God we must know his promises to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, which are found in Genesis xii. The Lord said unto Abraham, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee; and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and I will make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing: and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed. And they went forth to go into the land of Canaan, and into the land of Canaan they came.

Genesis xiii. 14 17: And the Lord said unto Abraham, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, northward and southward, and eastward and westward; for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth, so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered. Arise, walk through the land in the length of it, and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.

Galatians iii: Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. And he saith not, and unto seeds, as of many; but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ.

These promises of Christ were confirmed by his ministry and death.

A close study of the Scripture and a right understanding of it shows God's great love toward mankind. In David's time God spake to him through Nathan, and made a covenant with him, 2 Samuel vii. 12, And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build an house for my name; and I will establish my throne, and I will stablish the throne of his kingdom forever. Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established forever before thee; thy throne shall be established forever.

Psalm lxxxiv. 34-37: My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me. It shall be established forever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven.

Isaiah ix. 6-7: For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even ... The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.

Oh, Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

Some say the kingdom of God is in our hearts, and some say the Church is it, but a close study of the Scripture reveals to us that the kingdom is in suspension.

Ezekiel xxi. 25-27: Thou profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end; thus saith the Lord God: Remove the diadem, take off the crown; this shall not be the same; exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more until he comes whose right it is; and I will give it him.

Acts xv: Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name, and to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up, that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things.

Truly can we say, O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee—not in man-made theology, but in the Lord God of Israel and Jesus Christ his only Son.

The angel declared to Jesus' mother that he should be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

Acts ii. 25: David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved. Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope; because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine holy One to see corruption. Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

Men and brethren, let me speak freely unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne. He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption. This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

Therefore, being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear. For David is not ascended into the heavens, but he saith himself, the Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand until I make thy foes thy footstool.

Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified both Lord and Christ. When they heard this they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren What shall we do?

Peter's answer shows why it is so blessed to trust in the Lord. Repent, and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. Then they that gladly received his word were baptized; and they continued steadfastly in the apostles doctrine, and in fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.

The reasons for us showing our trust in God through obeying Christ's commands are clearly given in a few words by Paul in 1 Corinthians xv. 20-23: But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the first fruits; afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming.

Verse 50: Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ; and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to promise. Behold, I show you a mystery: We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in a twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality: So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord.

Knowing these blessed things, and obeying them and living as God's children will show that we are children and heirs to his kingdom, through eternal life in Christ Jesus, surely we can with heart felt thanks, O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee!

Dear Brother Underwood,

I send this short letter and ask you to print it in THE RESTITUTION so that many of the brethren who know my sister-wife, can sympathize with her and me, as that dread disease cancer of the bowels, has got its dread hold on her. To try to give her relief for a short time, perhaps till the Master returns, she underwent an operation, but on making the incision the doctor found that every thing was tied up so bad that it was certain death at once to attempt removal, so they sewed it up, and her life will last but a short time. She knows that soon she will fall on sleep, and is resigned and patiently waiting for relief from pain. She sends her love to all the brethren of like precious faith, hoping to meet them in the kingdom. She was sixty-one years old August 20. She is in the hospital, and will be for another week. I am spending the days by her side. Forty-four years of love and affection. I cannot write more. With love to all.

Your Brother in hope,
GEORGE DOWLE.

[This letter comes from West Seattle Washington, and tells its own story. We can assure our Brother and Sister Dowle that the great heart of the entire Brotherhood is extending sympathy for them in this hour of pain and suffering, of anguish and sorrow. As one we pray the Father to hasten the return of the Redeemer, that such scenes as these may end, and sorrow and crying be no more, but bring that New Life that means joy and gladness for all the faithful of the Lord. May ... Day soon come.—ED.]

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

An Explanation.

It is not often that we deem it worth while to reply to fault-finding, but at this time it pleases us to make a few statements, that those interested may fully understand our position.

In our issue of September 28, appeared an article written by our lamented Brother, John L. Wince, on the question of the extent of resurrection, he taking the position that God must raise every human being to life in a coming age, the object being that each one may have an opportunity to hear the offer of salvation, and accept or reject it. At the time Brother Wince was sick—in fact then on his death bed. For years back Brother Wince has visited the Church in Plymouth once a month, and has rarely missed spending one night at our home and eating with us. He has found the latch string out always, and knew he was a welcome guest. He was so familiar with our house that he felt free to come and go at any time, and there was no restraint felt by either of us. He was free to ask for what he needed as he was at his own home. We were always pleased when he came, and our relations were most cordial. The last time he was here in June, it was the writer's privilege to take him to the train, and help him on the car.

We tell of this because it belongs with this story. The article written by Brother Wince was on a subject that is now, and has been for years, in dispute. There was no desire to put Brother Wince off from saying [illegible] he wished on the subject. However, we did wish very much, considering the physical condition of Bro. [illegible] event any one from understanding. For any one who knew [illegible] and esteem for Brother [illegible] one that we wished to [illegible] seems to us puzzling. To [illegible] the farthest thought [illegible]d. We simply wished to [illegible] a brother [illegible] for [illegible] spent—who [illegible] lower back [illegible] have been wiser to have [illegible]ng, or [illegible] when "silence [illegible]ld come, then turn that [illegible] that were the wiser course, [illegible]ply erred in our judgment. [illegible] was to state the condition [illegible]he" Wince may say that the [illegible] a disputed one, that a [illegible]ng one side or other of the [illegible]d matter to do with the [illegible]ch is the power of God unto [illegible]on. The point we wished to [illegible] clear was this: The preaching of [illegible] theory of "universal opportunity" is not commanded by Jesus, and is no part of the gospel that is operative now in the work for this age—viz., taking out a people for His Name, who shall share with him the work of future ages, when all nations shall be blessed.

With this we wanted to be just as clearly understood that the preaching of the other extreme—the non-resurrection of the wicked, damnation of idiots and infants, likewise is no part of the gospel, and is nowhere commanded to be taught as an element that saves men, or that is calculated to select them out as co-workers and partners with Jesus in the work of a coming age.

We endeavored to make it clear that there was a work that Jesus left his followers to do, and in view of the statement repeatedly made that our Lord is coming soon, may be looked for any time, etc., we tried to show that a more important work for us to engage in was that of telling men what to do to be saved; how to get into such a relationship to Jesus that we could be called hence with him to the promises, and having gotten into the family of God, how to stay in it. We tried to exhort to the end that this important last-day work was better than expressing opinions as to how God will arrange things in the future ages.

The plan adopted of writing this kept any who might be so minded from writing adversely to what Bro. Wince said, and when we learned that our object had been misconstrued, we wrote privately to Sister Wince explaining our purpose fully.

However, Brother Thomas Wilson saw fit to write us up in his usual insinuating and inferring, with ground for such inferences. thing for that, only as regards our feeling for Brother Wince. His memory is sacred to us, and were he here now, and understood what we had in view, would thank us for thus quietly calling attention to the neglect of essentials for mere opinion's sake, as he has often done in times gone by. Further, if Brother Thomas Wilson possess the degree of love and charity he claims, he will make ample amends for his "adverse criticism" of the Editor of this paper.

Have we an opinion on the subject? We have. We have studied the matter for ourself, and come to a conclusion of our own. We have read the ideas of others on all sides, and have suggested that between the two extremes may lie the truth. The conclusion has been analyzed in the light of what has been presented by others, and when we look it full in the face we find our conception of how God is going to arrange matters in the coming age is tinged with our desire. We see in it a bit of selfishness. Jesus is our example. He was not selfish, but ever thought of others. When the supreme test came, he put his own desires behind, and his Father's will was first. Striving in our weakness to imitate our Savior we prefer to have our own opinion to ourself, meanwhile saying, Father, not my will, but thine be done.

Three articles from the pen of Bro J. M. Stephenson, long since dead, were sent us by Brother D. C. Robison. There was nothing in the sending of them that was calculated to reflect on Brother Wince. The object was that certain Christadelphians might see the arguments set forth in them. These three articles were published by Bro. Thomas Wilson, at that time Editor of the Herald of the Kingdom. The dates are November and December of 1869, and January of 1870. These articles were published under a heading "Instruction for Unbelievers." Inasmuch as they appear without any editorial comment, we "infer" the Editor considered them to be good "instruction for unbelievers"—sanctioned them. We are led to "infer" this the more because in the November issue is a long "write up" of a Conference that was held in a certain State, and Bro. Wilson refused to publish the report sent him, as he did not like what was done, and says so in no gentle terms. Evidently he was not afraid then to give his opinion of what did not suit him, and to refuse to print what did not suit him, so that we strongly "infer" that he sanctioned what Brother Stephenson wrote.

In the course of a few years Brother Stephenson got some "new light," and materially changed his opinion regarding the extent of resurrection, and published a book called "God's Plan of Salvation." In our mind, and blacked out by markings in this book, was a statement that would have been "fair to the dead," as showing the ideas expressed by Brother Stephenson in his book published in 1877.

When the writer was a boy, and as he grew to young manhood he knew Brother Stephenson, but was not at the time of close contact a member of the Church. We were glad to have one who had known him well, been intimate with him and his work, step in and take the stand as a witness. Bro. Halstead, without knowing it, came to our rescue, and from his personal knowledge as well as writings, told of the change that came over Brother Stephenson.

We called special attention to the articles and to the reply by Brother Halstead, and endeavored to show that even his change of mind did not render void the arguments he used. Nor prove his later views correct. The whole question was still in dispute—was unsettled to this day. We endeavored to show that what one person might deem an indication of advanced insight, and strength of mind, to that his ideas were changed, might by some one else be deemed quite the reverse.

We wish to give a case to illustrate this point. The person is long since dead, and we shall "be fair with the dead," and not give names, but those interested will recognize the one meant. He was once editor, preacher and writer—in fact one of our best known and respected brethren. During the latter part of his life he was asked to write his views of the "faith cure," "prayer cure" subject. The article he wrote was sent to THE RESTITUTION for publication. In it he declared that it was his firm conviction that the western healer Schlater, who was much in evidence in the papers at that time, and John Alexander Dowie who was doing wonders then, were inspired of God and were doing the same things that Christ and his apostles did, and advising the brethren to join forces with these men, as they were certainly inspired of God. On advice of his family we did not print the article.

Further, this Brother was known by his writings and preaching to hold to the divinity of Christ—that he was God's only begotten Son. In his later life it was claimed by some that he had taken up the human-paternity theory. Members of his family communicated with him on the subject, and he denied it. However, there was on exhibition an article in his handwriting and signed by him, advocating that theory.

We shall not question the brother's right to advocate Dowieism, nor the human-paternity theory if he wished to do so, notwithstanding his previous arguments on the other side of the subjects. If he had gained strength of mind, or had new light on these matters, his changing was proper and right, just as Brother Stephenson had the right to change his mind. But in the one case charity prompts us to plead for our Brother [illegible]—failure of sanity and loss of [illegible] reason. Will any one argue that his advocating Dowieism made Dowie a prophet of God? No! No!

Another case is that of one who at one time was a prominent writer and preacher—a number of years was the President of one of our State Conferences. Search for health took him to other parts, and he was thrown near to those fanatics who professed the "gift of tongues." He fell in with them and wrote a long article advocating that theory. We could not publish it, of course. That Brother before he died was mentally unbalanced.

Question:—At what time in a man's life is he at his best?

You see, brethren, it brings us back to where we were at first. Bro. Stephenson's first arguments have not been proven false to many minds, nor the arguments of Brother Wince have not been proven true to each one's satisfaction, and we come to the real issue—are we making the best use of our time trying to prove either side right and the other wrong? Is there not a great need to stop controversy over what does not make for salvation, and get back to what Christ told his disciples to do?

Brethren, we want articles on the vital, fundamental principles of our faith. Now, please do not say "what are vital principles?" If you don't know, don't write till you find out. It is vital to know what sort of a being you are. It is vital to know how you can be changed from the miserable, fallen condition you are in now, into something different. Belief, obedience, a godly life, are essentials. Do, please, give us what you know is meat for the time in which we live, and there will be no time for disputing, and consequently harmony will reign.

Try it, and we assure you brethren, God will bless.

BROTHER G. Eldred Marsh writes from Ripley, Illinois, that he began meetings there November 10, expecting to remain till the 20th. He reports the Church well filled on every night with attentive listeners. May the Lord's blessing be upon the effort to serve him.

WE are authorized to announce the book written by Brother James W. Wilson, on the subject "Will it pay to become a Christian," notice of which was given some time ago, will be out early in December. Those who have not yet made good their pledges, are urged to do so at once. Send to Miss Lelia E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario st. Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Further announcement later.

Sunday School Lesson.

NOVEMBER 27, 1910.

The Trial of Jesus.—Matthew xxvi. 57-68.

Golden Text—"Who when he was reviled, reviled not again." 1 Peter ii. 23.

The time of this lesson is early in the morning after the eating of the Passover, institution of the Lord's Supper, the agony in the garden and the betrayal of Jesus. He is taken by the mob that came for him, and brought before Caiaphas the high priest, who had assembled the scribes and elders.

It would be well to study the other accounts given of the arrest of Jesus. How Peter would defend his Lord, and drew his sword to fight, cutting off the ear of one man, and what Jesus said at the time. We shall learn that Jesus was first taken to Annas who was ex-high priest, an old man yet with power among the rulers of the Jews. The Jews, it will be remembered, did not want the people to be aroused, and sought to take Jesus privately. Hence they took him to Annas, who questioned him but got no satisfaction. Jesus told him that all his acts had been done in public, and he could get information from those who had seen and heard. This examination was illegal, and Annas knew it. Hebrew law did not permit a Judge to sit alone and interrogate a prisoner, and besides this was not a proper time for a trial, as it was not yet sunrise. He could not ask a man to incriminate himself, he should call in witnesses as the law required.

The whole trial of Jesus was irregular and illegal. In criminal trials, according to the Mosaic code it was required that the indictment must be certain, there must be public discussion, full freedom must be given the accused to speak in defense, and all danger of error in testimony must be guarded against.

No trial could be held after the [illegible] and that could not be [illegible] sunrise. The ceremony taking an hour. All must be in session under the influence of religious sanction. There must be two or three witnesses, and they must agree in their testimony, which must be given separately.

In every particular the trial of Jesus was unlawful. In point of fact the rulers of the Jews had made up their minds to put Jesus out of the way, hence they wished to hurry the trial, and give him over to the Roman authorities before his friends could prevent it. Repeatedly they tried to find witnesses, but failed, until finally they got two fellows to make a charge. The facts they pretended to report were given incorrectly, and misapplied and perverted. It was the worse because it was half truth. From the fact that these men had to go back three years, to the beginning of Jesus' ministry, for the event, is evident that they only spoke from hearsay, and not from positive knowledge. Even if they had told the whole truth, the fact that Jesus promised the restoration of the temple after its destruction, would be evidence that he was not hostile to it. Besides, he had openly accused those very persons of defiling the temple, and had overturned the table of the money-changers, and driven out the gamblers, calling them thieves, so showing his affection for it.

Jesus did not even make answer to these false witnesses, but treated them with silent contempt. In this respect Jesus set an example that it would be well to imitate in many cases. Casting "pearls before swine" is poor business usually. The whole effort of the Jewish rulers was to find witnesses who would accuse Jesus. They made no attempt to get witnesses who knew what he had been doing and saying during his ministry. They did not want the truth, or the facts of the case.

The high priest said "I adjure thee by the living God," which was putting him under oath to tell the truth. "Tell us whether thou be the Christ the Son of God." Here was a dilemma. If Jesus said he was the Christ, the Son of God, they would condemn him for blasphemy; and if he denied it he would be accused of being an impostor. Jesus made answer. He had not failed to declare who he was on other occasions, and now he must answer to this council, and he will declare his Messiahship here though it condemn him. He replies "Thou hast said." As much as to say "I am." Then he tells the high priest, who seems now to be all-powerful, that henceforth he should see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." They could kill him, but he would rise again; the resurrection was an assured fact, and his exaltation to power was equally sure.

This was enough. The high priest rent his clothes, and declared that he had uttered blasphemy. Referring to Leviticus xxiv. 16, we learn that blasphemy was punishable by death, and after deciding that what Jesus said was blasphemy against God, there could be but one verdict. No need further for witnesses, before them all he had spoken, so they found him guilty and worthy of death.

They next proceeded to insult and injure a helpless man. They spit on him, slapped him, struck him with their fists. Then to make sport they blindfolded him, and asked him to use his power as a prophet and tell who it was that struck him.

Bad men often ridicule those who are better than they. Many of the best men have been derided and mocked at.

We show true wisdom when we seek to know the good and noble.

Nothing can be gained by misrepresenting and putting another in a wrong light.

Next lesson is Peter's Denial.

Obituary.

Sister Elizabeth Wilhelm died at her home in Rutland, Ind. Nov. 6, 1910, at the age of 42. Her maiden name was Clifton. She was married to Wm. F. Wilhelm, in 1887, and was baptized by Brother Austin at Burr Oak, in 1901. She is survived by her husband, three unmarried sons, her mother, one brother, Thomas, of Plymouth, and two sisters, Mrs. Waddle, near Argos, and Mrs. Lambert of Cassopolis, Mich.

She was an earnest Christian woman, active in church work.

The funeral was held in the M. E. Church, near Rutland, with burial in the cemetery by the church.

JOSEPH WILLEY.

Those who have attended the Illinois Bible School and Conference in Ottawa during the past three years will learn with regret of the death of Mrs. Margaret Fortune Hall, who contributed so much to their material comfort by her efficient management of the dining hall. Mrs. Hall's efforts have been greatly appreciated and she will be truly missed at our next annual gathering.

Mrs. Hall, whose maiden name was Margaret Fortune, was born in Masontown, Penn., March 14, 1848, and died at her home in Oregon, Illinois, October 27, 1910, aged 62 years, 7 months and 15 days. She was married November 15, 1874 to Robert Hall, who with three children, Charles, Anna, and Edward, remain to mourn for the one they loved. Another son, William, preceded her in death five years ago.

The funeral was conducted from the Church of God in Oregon, by the writer, and burial took place in the cemetery adjoining.

G. ELDRED MARSH.

W. O. Steffa was born August 22, 1857. After a lingering illness, he fell asleep in Jesus, October 31, 1910, in Pomona, Cal.

Brother Steffa was born in Ogle Co. Illinois. In 1870 he removed with his parents to Poweshiek Co. Iowa.

He was united in marriage to Alma Belle Rohrer, in 1880, to this union were born three children, Ethel, Grace and Howard—the latter died several years ago.

Brother Steffa became a believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom, and was buried with Christ in baptism in Clarksville, Iowa, in 1893, and has been a constant defender of the faith, an earnest student of the Bible, and an indefatigable teacher of the truths concerning the Kingdom of God until his death. When he became too ill to teach, he began to write, and several able articles have been published that came from his pen. "Freely he had received—freely he has given."

A large number of friends and relatives were in attendance at the funeral, which took place at the residence on East Holt Ave., on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 2nd. The services were conducted by the undersigned—assisted by M. D. Clubb, pastor of the Pomona Christian Church, and friend of our dear brother. We spoke comforting words from John xi. 23, 24.

Many and beautiful were the floral offerings which bespoke the love and esteem, in which our brother's memory is held.

Our hearts go out in deepest sympathy to the bereaved family—but we have this blessed assurance—that if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so also them that are fallen asleep in Jesus will God bring with him. Rest in peace my brother until the coming of our Lord.

L. V. J. KIMBALL.

Louisa J. Fish Nellis died in Springfield, Ohio, October 28, 1910. Born on her grand father's farm in Shelby County, July 10, 1840, being seventy years old.

She was the second daughter of William and Catherine Fish. Her childhood and girlhood years was spent in Dayton and Springfield. She was married to George K. Nellis October 16, 1859, and was the mother of one child, a daughter, and the grand mother of five children and the great grand mother of two children.

Sister Nellis has been a great sufferer for years. It was noticed by her friends in the home that since the death of her sister, she felt she too was going to sleep and be at rest. She made her home in Chicago for many years, but as she grew older the longing for her girlhood home and the wish to be near her sisters, Sister Mary Kauffman who fell asleep four weeks ago, Sister Tillie Woodbury and Sister Jessie Fish, caused her to move to Springfield.

Sister Nellis has been a believer in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ for about fifty years. She was ever ready to help those in need, kind and gentle always ready with words of faith and hope in serving the Lord.

Brother Robison read the 145th Psalm, and read from the Book the blessed promises of life eternal.

From a few disjointed scraps of paper we glean the following:

John Cunsdale was born December 21, 1817. In September, 1838 he heard a man preach, and was convinced he needed a Savior. He was baptized in 1840, and joined the Baptists in 1862. Later he found he was in error and severed his connection with them. The papers do not state when he united with our people. He died November 2, 1910, having resided on the poor farm in Clarion, Ia. for a number of years.

If any of our brethren known any more concerning this brother we wish they would send it.

Editor Restitution:

The Church of God at Brumfield, Kentucky, has just passed through a time of refreshing long to be remembered. Brother O. J. Allard of Iowa, came among us October 18 and stayed till the 27th. He delivered ten discourses on profitable subjects—True Holiness, Signs of the Times, Gospel of the Kingdom, etc. The subject of the One Baptism was shown up beautifully, in clear cut lines easily understood. The unmarried scoffers listened to his sermon on the Nature of Man in wide-eyed astonishment, for they know he spoke with authority. The subject of the Resurrection was ably handled and full of hope, and well backed up by the authority of him who has power to raise the dead. He not only taught publicly, but gave us much valuable instruction in private, that the little flock might be prepared to meet the many [illegible]isms which are disturbing the [illegible] and love of many. We are truly thankful to Him who gives us [illegible] that no disturbing element has entered in among us in old Kentucky.

Your Sister in hope.

SADIE SKEELS.

Nebraska Report for October.

The interest and attendance here at Holbrook has been good, and doesn't seem possible that visible results could long be deferred. We met today to organize a Bible class in which some outsiders seem interested. It is very problematical in these last days what our labors will result in. We must work and pray and God will give the increase.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were numerous requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when the opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert O. Huggins, of 10622 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

What to Do with It.

If you have a hard task, hurry it;
If a dark doubt, bury it.

If you have a sound creed, teach it;
If a live faith, preach it.

If you have a good hope, live it;
If a kind word, give it.

If you have God's grace, share it;
If sorrow's burden, bear it.

God's People Subject to Civil Law.

The people of God, since the day of the resurrection of Christ, are practically in the same condition as were the Lord's people before the birth of the Israelitish nation, namely: living subject to the law of the land and under the law of God. To this end Paul exhorts, saying "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou not then be afraid of the power? do that which is good and thou shalt have praise of the same; for he is the minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain; for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil. Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake. For, for this cause pay ye tribute also: for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing. Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honor." Romans xiii. 1-7.

To Titus, Paul's "own son after the common faith," he writes, "Put them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work." chap. iii. 1. The apostle Peter also sends out the same instruction to "the strangers scattered," saying "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake; whether it be to the king, as supreme; or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well." 1 Peter ii. 13-14.

In time passed, the number of the people increased, new conditions arose, which necessary the issuance of new laws and new commandments by the apostles. The people of God were not then under a theocracy as were the Jews under the law when they dwelt in the land of Canaan, but at this time were citizens of the Roman empire, and "subject unto the higher power" of that kingdom.

Many converts to christianity from among the Jews still regarded the decalogue of the Mosaic law—they kept the sabbaths of that law, observed the passover and other feast days; while many converts from among the Gentiles observed the first day of the week; others still, held no day specially sacred, but agreed that all days were alike good, Romans xiv. 5-6. Sharp contention and debates were held touching this question. Barnabas, one of the early church fathers, and an associate of Paul said "Whereupon also we keep the eighth day with joyfulness, the day also on which Jesus rose from the dead." Ignatius Bishop of Antioch, who suffered martyrdom in A. D. 107; wrote:—"We observe the Lord's day, on which also our life sprung up again by him." Justin Martyr, who was born in A. D. 105, said: "On the day called Sunday we all meet together because it is the day on which Christ our Savior rose from the dead." Again in his debate with Trypho the Jew, he argued "Sabbaths and circumcision alike have an end in Christ, who was proclaimed to be the everlasting law, and the everlasting gospel."

Both Origen and Eusebius held the same views. The former was born in A. D. 186, and the latter A. D. 266. Tertullian also argued the same. In Mosheim's Church History, book 1, chapter 4, section 4, is the following: "The Christians of this (first) century assembled for the worship of God, and for their advancement in piety on the first day of the week, the day on which Christ re-assumed his life; for that day was set apart for religious worship by the apostles themselves, and that after the example of the church in Jerusalem it was generally observed. Moreover, those congregations which composed in great measure of Jews, were accustomed to observe the seventh day of the week as a sacred day, for doing which the other Christians taxed them with no wrong." The Ebionites observed Moses' law and the seventh day.

With these agitations of the subject and the practices of those who claimed to be the Lord's, it is but to be supposed that, when the Emperor himself was converted from paganism to semi-christianity, for the sake of harmony and uniformity, that he would legalize every first day of the week as a day of rest: because it was already observed as such by both the pagans and the greater part of the Christians.

In the early part of the fourth century Constantine issued the following edict, "Let the judges and townspeople, and the occupations of all trades, rest on the venerable day of the sun: but let those who are situated in the country, freely and at full liberty, attend to the business of agriculture, because it often happens that no other day is so fit for sowing corn and planting vines lest the critical moment being let slip, men should lose the commodities granted them by the providence of heaven."

This was the first Sunday law ever issued. Constantine was then only a nominal believer in the Lord Jesus Christ; a kind of half pagan and half christian. However, Constantine was not a papist: as up to this time there was no Roman Catholic church in existence. Neither was there a pope in all the world.

When Constantine thus legalized Sunday as a day of rest, he did it for the well-being of the empire, and to give the toiling masses a day of rest after six days of labor. The Sunday was observed as a day of rest in those times, by both Christians and pagans, with perhaps some exceptions, cannot be denied. The pagan kept the day of the sun; while Christians observed the day because of its having been set apart by the early churches in Christ for worship and holy meditation, and in honor and in memory of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. After Constantine's edict the Christians almost entirely, rested upon the first day of the week as they were taught and commanded by the apostles. According to these apostolic commandments civil rulers are the "ministers of God" to us in this dispensation. Rom xiii 1-7; Titus iii 1; 1 Pet ii 13-14.

Christians in this age are like Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and those living prior to the giving of the law on Mount Sinai—they are under the civil law of the governments, whose subjects they are, and also under the law of God in this dispensation, and are in duty bound to obey both. But whenever and wherever the law of the state clashes with the law of God, as in the case of Daniel and his Hebrew associates, and also with the apostles as recorded in Acts v 29, then "we ought to obey God rather than man." When such occasions require we must, according to the teaching of the apostles, submit to the penalty, and receive it graciously, as did Daniel in the lion's den, the Hebrews in the fiery furnace, and the apostles in their imprisonments, stonings and beatings with rods.

The apostles themselves lived up to their own teachings, as they rendered unto Cæsar the things that were Cæsar's, and to God the things that were God's. All kings, magistrates and rulers are the "higher powers." They are "ordained of God." They are "God's ministers" to protect the innocent and punish the evil doers. Christians are not anarchists, but are law abiding citizens. They obey "God's ministers" and are subject to civil law. "The powers that be" to us have appointed a weekly rest upon the first day of the week; we are therefore commanded by "God's ministers" to abstain from all labor and from all business of a worldly nature. All business transacted upon Sunday, the first day of the week, is declared illegal. Therefore, Sunday is not only a civil institution, but it is also of God's own appointment through the higher powers, which God has ordained; and in the absence of any command to the contrary from God and from Christ, or the apostles: and being also in perfect harmony with the early church and Christian practice from the day of our Lord's resurrection; the first day of the week should be regarded as a day of Christian worship and rest and obligatory upon all who love God and our Lord Jesus Christ.—J. August Smith, in "Our Hope."

Conference Report.

The Annual Conference of Indiana convened at Argos, October 20, and continued over Sunday. The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the President. His Opening Address was founded on the first sixteen verses of Phil. ii. Following the President's Address, Brother Wagoner spoke on "Faith," using Heb. xi. as the foundation.

Friday, at 10:00 A. M. a sermon by Brother VanVactor. The lesson read was part of Rom. x. and the text used was Rom. x 3, and the subject of the discourse was "Ignorance."

At 3:00 P. M. Brother Williams spoke on "Hope." Several texts were used.

At 7:00, the Social Meeting was led by Brother William Railsback. This was followed with a sermon by Brother H. V Reed, of Chicago, on "The Great Tribulation" of Rev. vii

Saturday at 9:45 Social Meeting was led by Brother R. C. Railsback. At this meeting a letter was read from Brother D. T. Halstead. At 10:15 Brother Williams spoke on "Night and Morning." At 7:00 a Berean Meeting was led by Sister Ella Demont. The lesson was a part of Psa. xxix and was read by Brother Williams. Glenn Taber read an essay on "The River Jordan, its Hills and Synagogues." Jessie Taber read one on "What Young Girls can do for the Church." These essays were good and will appear later in the Berean Column. Brother VanVactor spoke on "How to Interest Young Boys." Sister Maxey spoke on "What Burr Oak has been Doing." Representatives from South Bend, Hillisburg and Plymouth, each also gave short addresses as to work and conditions. At 7:30 Brother Reed spoke on "The Mission of the Son of God."

Sunday at 9:45 Social Meeting was led by Brother Willey. Lesson Psa. xx.vi. At 10:30, a Sermon by Brother Reed, subject "Signs of the Times." At 2:30 a sermon on "The Second Coming of Christ" by Brother Wagoner. This was followed by the Communion Service, conducted by Brother Wagoner. Sunday evening the Social Service was led by Brother Bennett Boggs, after which Brother Reed again spoke, this time on "The Three Worlds." Using Num. xiv. 21, as a text.

During the Conference there were two business sessions, one on Friday and one on Saturday afternoon, each presided over by the President, J. H. Willey. The following business was transacted:

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. Roll call of churches showed that all the churches in the state, except two, viz, North Salem and Inwood, were represented.

A Committee on Resolution was appointed. This Committee consisted of A. R. Underwood, Mrs. Jennie Taber and Mrs. Phebe Willey.

The Secretary's report was read and placed in the hands of an auditing committee. The treasurer's report was not at hand but was afterward sent to the president and placed in the hands of the auditing committee. These reports after being audited showed that at the beginning of the Annual Conference one year ago there was a balance on hand of $115 29, and that during the year there was paid to the Conference Board $245 91.

The expenses during the year were $180.80, leaving a balance of $180 40.

The Secretary also reported that she had printed five hundred of each, —blank reports for ministers, blank reports for churches and booklets containing the Constitution and Resolutions. Booklets were sent out to all the churches and isolated members as far as addresses were known. Blanks were sent to all the ministers and churches.

The Bible School Report was read and audited. This report showed the school as doing good work and steadily growing. The financial part was also good. It showed a neat little sum on hands to begin the next year's work.

It was moved by F. M. McCrory and seconded by A. R. Underwood, that the chair appoint a committee of three to select a place for the Annual Bible School where buildings may be erected for the accommodation of those who may attend. Motion carried and the chair appointed F. M. McCrory, Geo. Hinmeright and Asa Roose.

The Bible School Board elected for the ensuing year consists of Asa O Roose, Phebe Willey and Lydia Railsback.

Ministerial certificates were granted to D. T. Halstead, J. F. Wagoner, D. E VanVactor, J. H. Willey, W. H. Wilson and Joseph Williams.

Officers elected were as follows:

President, J. H. Willey, Plymouth.

1st Vice President, F. M. McCrory, Plymouth.

2nd Vice President, Samuel Osborn, Culver.

Secretary, Lydia Railsback, South Bend.

Treasurer, William Huffer, Hillisburg.

A report of the General Conference was given by one of the delegates, J. H. Willey.

It was moved by A. R. Underwood and seconded by Emma Railsback that five dollars be sent to Brother Peter Jeffreys, treasurer of the General Conference, to be used as a sinking fund. Carried.

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows:

Argos, Ind. Oct. 21, 1910.

WHEREAS:—Again we are called on to recognize the fact of man's mortality. Our beloved Brother, John L. Wince succumbed to the darts of the enemy, and on Oct. 4, 1910, girded up this life, and fell asleep in Jesus. As a Conference we feel deeply his loss from our numbers, and wish in connection as he is in words to convey to his beloved wife, and others of his family our sympathy in this sad hour. Therefore be it

Resolved:—That we, the Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, assembled at Argos, Oct. 20 to 23, do tender to Sister Wince, and others of the family of our lamented Brother, our heartfelt sympathy and love. We realize that words are but a feeble medium, and we cannot adequately express all our hearts would prompt. Brother Wince was ever a power for good among us, and we feel deeply his loss. We feel that there is a void, and only time as it rolls by can fill up our Conference life, and others take his place. When we think that we shall no more have his counsel and advice, his help in so many ways, we feel a sense of loneliness, and fain would cry out for the Deliverer to come and give us a life that will not be subject to these distressing scenes. We therefore tender to his family the sincere affection of each heart here assembled, and pray that He who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb will watch over and keep you from harm. May the day soon come when the power of the icy hand of death will be taken away, and reunion with those we loved bring a joy and happiness that will have no end, but extend through all the eternities of God's limitless kingdom, when all tears and crying are forever vanished.

May each of us emulate the example left by our beloved Brother Wince, and finally have part with him in that brighter home, where the angels and saints of all ages will be gathered, no more to go out.

Resolved:—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our lamented Brother, and that they be recorded in the records of this Conference.

Committee appointed:—

A. R. UNDERWOOD.
PHEBE C. WILLEY.
MELISSA J. TABER.

This Conference was certainly a good one, more churches being represented than had been for years at one time. The sermons were all good and other meetings interesting. Every one seemed interested and alive to the work.

May this spirit prevail throughout the year and much good be done The reports were good and to the point.

May all work even more earnestly for the Master the coming year, for 'tis sweet to be workers in his vineyard.

LYDIA RAILSBACK, Sec'y.

To the faithful in Christ, in Conference assembled at Argos, Ind. Greeting:

"May the God of peace, fill you with all Joy, and peace in believing." May your deliberations be controled by worklog out that which he hath worked in you through Jesus Christ our Lord. Then will your assembly not only be a source of Joy and comfort to those assembled, but also a means of benefit and blessing to those scattered abroad, unable to be with you. Many like myself, though deprived of the privilege, of bodily presence, yet will be with you in spirit, thereby partaking somewhat of the "incitement to love and good works." As we see the day approaching the love of many is waxing cold, some departing from the faith, some depending merely on the form, for Godliness. Many are "fierce" in battle to overcome the wrongs in others, while seemingly unconcerned as to their own.

The times are portentious. The call for a General Conference and adoption of rules for regulation, is indicative. May your deliberation and action, as to object and aim of such conference, (if the matter comes up for your consideration) be controled by the wisdom that comes from above, thus avoiding the extremes begotten of mere worldly wisdom.—Such as regulation on the one hand by the use of the hatchet and scalping knife alone, and on the other hand, every one to act with perfect freedom, according to the dictates of their own mind.

Let us remember, that while "there should be no schism (division) in the body; but the members should have the same care one for another" 1 Cor. xii. 25, "If a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself lest thou also be tempted. Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ" Gal. vi. 1, 2.

"If he hear thee, thou has gained thy brother.....(as a finality) if he neglect to hear the church let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican" Matt. xviii.

Let us therefore be careful to not put apart that which God hath joined together as the divine rule in the matter of discipline. "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ" Col. iii 17.

Thus, alone will our actions, as a conference, or individually, result in benefit to ourselves, or others, and thus alone can we "build ourselves up in our most holy faith, praying in the holy spirit" and "keep ourselves in the love of God looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life" Jude 20, 21. God grant that we may be so kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust, may be made partakers of the Divine nature. Amen.

D. T. HALSTEAD.

Dear Restitution:

The Church at Eastport, Michigan, has been given much encouragement by a visit from Sister M. A. Woodward of Dutton, who gave us four most interesting and instructive sermons, and also held six meetings for Bible study. I am sure that all were greatly benefitted, and the work has not been in vain.

Two evenings Sister Woodward was not permitted to speak on account of very stormy weather, and with sickness amongst the brethren the attendance was not what we wished it might have been, but feel that perhaps some one has heard a new truth (ever old to those of the Abrahamic faith) and that in time will realize the benefit from it.

We are looking forward to the time when our Sister can be with us again, and hope circumstances will be more favorable for work.

Your Sister in Christ,
CARRIE CHAMBERLIN.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 49.

"For the glory o' God?" Had this sickness, really turned out for his glory? He had not been the cause of it, yet had he not stood by her through it all? Had not she been able to demonstrate from her bed of helplessness that "God's grace was sufficient" for her? Was she not, even more than able to go from house to house—God's living epistle to men?

The lovely lotus flowers, the exquisite rose the speaking pansies, that were sent to her, were made to glorify her Creator, by the dextrous turning of the donor's thoughts to him. "Praise God in Jesus name for all," she would say, "He alone is the foundation of all blessing to his children." Sometimes she would feel weary and worried and sad because she was helpless and dependent upon others, but would at once chase these thoughts away with the counter-thought, "To be dependent upon God is quite another thing, O bless his name!" "When Jesus comes I shall be there and be saved by his precious blood and love, and oh! glad I am that I ever heard his voice," though "it be unmerited grace." "I can be like Jesus and not be proud of it; next to the sweetest thought that ever entered my mind."

May 12th, '97, Auntie Willard wrote, "My Precious Sister Wince:

Have you such a thing in your house as a Scripture Searcher? Scripture Searchers," to her where to for I find them named tracts and books from time to time. I ing woman's name, who to know what the Bi- Elforth, she came to Sabbath every few days. No interested in the doc- nature of man, for upon olving of that question whole plan of salvation. It very bed-rock of all theology, ther true or false. The Bible af- firms that man is mortal, that he dies, that he knows not anything in the death state, and that if there be no resurrection of the dead, even the righteous are perished. Jesus says, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness even so must the Son of Man be lifted up. That whosoever believeth in him might not perish but have eternal life."

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life;" "the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing into everlasting life," "Marvel not at this for the hour is coming in which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." "Labor not for the meat that perisheth but for that which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of Man shall give unto you."

"And this is the will of him that sent me that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up at the last day. And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son and believeth on him may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day."

"I am that Bread of life." "He that eateth of this Bread shall live forever." "In me is life." "I am come that ye might have life." "I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live," "And whosoever liveth (is alive when he comes) and believeth in me shall never die." All of which prove conclusively that man herent immortality but is dependent upon Jesus, for the gift. "For the gift of God is eternal life and that life is in his Son," and must come to us through the resurrection. It is no matter what we do if the dead rise not, for if they do not rise, Christ has not been raised, our faith is a vain faith, our sins have not been blotted out, but Christ is risen from the dead, and we, though we be "sown in corruption will be raised in incorruption." For this corruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality." Mortal—mind you. No attaining to immortality till Jesus comes and bids the dead awake. And if we be mortal, of course there can by no possibility be consciousness in the death state. The natural immortality of man is but a figment of paganism invented so that an arrogant and vile priesthood can dominate the lives and consciences of men.

I wonder if Miss Elforth ever found the truth? I hope she did.

AUNTIE WINCE.

SOME days ago we mailed statements to a number of our brethren, but all have not yet responded. We wish they would do so quickly. Also hope all who can will remit their renewals without waiting for statement. Most of you know how your account stands, and you can save us a large amount of work and outlay by saving us sending notices. Please brethren, attend to this.

Any one desiring pictures of Illinois Bible School or Conference can secure them of the undersigned at 30 cents each for 5 x 7 size, postpaid. Post cards of Bible School 5 cents each or 45 cents per dozen, postpaid. F. V. Blakely, 627 So. Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1 50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

LELIA E. WHITEHEAD, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robinson's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS.

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections. The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and aught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if your subscription is renewal and you will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. No stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the urrection of Christ;" "God's Love Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" A Little Word.

A little kindly word of praise—
How much it helps us on
Thro' dreary nights and dearier days,
When some one comes to us and says:
"You are so kind, dear heart, to me!"
It takes the gloom from out the day.
And bids us patient, gentle be;
And doubt-winged sorrow flies away—
"I love you!" oh! strait is way is gone.

A touch to cheer us by the road—
A hand that seems the grave surveys
A breath to whisper on the wind
Come to us when we're sad and sad
Did God know it came from Thee,
From thy true heart, prayed fervently,
Like some strong-pinioned bird that flies
Above the clouds on tireless wings?
So has your love borne me today
Above the earth-clouds, cold and gray,
To better, happier things.
If love were but an earthly birth,
And nought contained of the divine,
Its value were below the worth
In your life, dear, and mine.

The Gospel That Saves.

In these days of the apostasy there are many gospels preached. The power used in converting many to these gospels is human and emotional. One evangelist of this school stated that he had converted more than thirty thousand persons. It is a very common thing to hear that 3000 has been converted in a meeting lasting a few weeks. These converts are usually destitute of Bible knowledge. Jesus stated, "That eternal life is to know thee the only true God and Jesus the Christ whom thou hast sent." The apostle states that it is through the exceeding great and precious promises that we are made partakers of his divine nature.

Another writer states that if we are strangers to the covenants of promise that we are without Christ, having no hope and without God in the world. It is through the ignorance of these promises that we are alienated from God. The gospel that saves is a definite gospel. Paul stated that he was not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation unto every one that believes. This gospel is Christ's gospel. And it is Jehovah's power unto salvation unto every person that believes it. Christ's gospel has no power over those who do not believe it. If our gospel be hid (says Paul) it is hid to them that are lost: In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them. The gospels preached today are gospels that claim to save men and women from their personal sins. Such have never been relieved from the sin of disobedience through the Christ whom God hath set forth (foreordained) to be a propitiation (an atonement) through faith in his blood, to declare his (God's) righteousness for the remission of sins that are past through the forbearance of God. If this atonement had never been made these past sins would never have been remitted. Faith in the Christ and an obedience rendered to the gospel, which is a burial in his name, can alone remove that sin of wilful disobedience committed by the first Adam. This brings us into the household of God. We are then under the law of the spirit of life, the gospel, and must work out our own salvation. We are no longer strangers nor foreigners but fellowcitizens of the household of God.

Now we can claim Christ as our mediator the one who will plead our cause. He is our representative at the court of heaven. If we sin we have an advocate who knows and will plead the justness of our cause. He suffered that he might be perfected. Prepared messengers have been sent out with the gospel to call men to repentance. This is God's plan that those who believe this message may be made kings and priests in the kingdom promised to the overcomer. Paul says, (Gal i). If an angel from heaven preach any other gospel let him be accursed. The gospel that he preached was that preached through Moses and the law. "There were many who came to him to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets." Matt states that Jesus preached the gospel of the kingdom. Mark says the gospel of the kingdom of God. To preach the kingdom of God is to preach the gospel and to preach the gospel is to preach the kingdom of God. Jesus was anxious to preach this gospel and he commissioned his apostles to preach the same. To Timothy Paul said, The things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful (full of the faith) men, who shall be able to teach others.

Gospel means good news, glad tidings and may be applied to anything that rejoices the heart. But when the glad tidings are confined to that of the kingdom of God we must search to find what that message is. This removes it from all other good news. Paul expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses and the prophets. This gospel then has its foundation in the law of Moses and the prophets. Moses first declared that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. This certainly was glad tidings to the race that was condemned to death because of the Adamic transgression. The prophet further states that the seed of Abraham should possess the gates of his enemies and in him shall all nations of the earth be blessed.

Again we read, "To him gave all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins." The one spoken of here is Jesus the Christ. Jesus was promised the sovereignty of the future cosmos (world). The kingdom of God under the Mosaic order of things was overturned because of the wickedness of the rulers and the people. The prophet Ezek xxi says that this kingdom should be overturned until he comes whose right it is (to rule) and I will give it him. The kingdom here spoken of was David's kingdom, is to become Christ's kingdom. The testimony of the angel (Luke i) states that the Lord God will give unto him the throne of his father David and he (Christ) shall rule over the house of Jacob forever. Isa ix states that he shall sit upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice. It is also stated that Jehovah will give to him (Jesus) the sure mercies of David, (margin holy and just things of David). Peter says, (Acts ii) that Jesus was raised from the dead to be seated on David's throne.

Jehovah is seeking for sincere men and women who will believe his gospel and become his adopted sons and daughters that he may make of them kings and priests in the kingdom which he has promised to faithful men and women. May this good seed of the kingdom fall into some honest heart who may cultivate it unto eternal life is the prayer of one who is preaching The Gospel that saves.

D. C. ROBISON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 50

We saw in that last quoted letter of Auntie Willard's how eager she was to help others in their search for truth; this ought to be the attitude of all who believe that we are entirely dependent upon Christ for future life. For the wages of sin being death, or in other words, utter extinction of being—the returning again to the dust from which he was taken—it follows as a natural sequence, that when the lungs of a man lose their hold on the vitalizing air, life is gone, and he, being carried to the grave, and covered with the clods of the valley, is left utterly helpless as to rescue from the consequences of sin, if there be no Savior, no resurrection of the dead. The piled up wealth of all the Vanderbilts, Rockefellers and Rothschilds in the world cannot ransom him from the power of death Job xxxvi. 18

"None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him.....that he should still live forever and not see corruption." Psalm xlix. 7 9.

Think of it, O ye my brethren, my sisters who are doing nothing in personal work to bring others to a knowledge of the gospel; who are making no sacrifice in giving that the pittance that you may find and share in the only ransom that can bring them up from the dust.

Auntie Willard gave time, money, voice and pen to the cause of truth. She gave to Orphanage, to the Temperance Cause, to the Church, to the Sunday School, to Brother Taylor, to Brother Joblin—for "Is the Bible a True Book?" and "Immortality, When Received?"—for papers for the children and for grown people.

"Give, give, be always giving;
Who gives not is not living;
The more we give
The more we live."

For if we give the truth to others, they will carry it on and on, and those who receive it from them, will pass it to other hungry souls, and we shall still live and work through these when our tongues are silent in the grave.

How much better to live thus in the lives and works of those whom our words or means have rescued from everlasting destruction, than to found a thousand Carnegie Libraries, or endow as Rockefeller has done, the God-defying Universities of our country! We profess to belong to The Commonwealth of Israel, and pray tell me, who ever heard of a Commonwealth successfully administering its affairs without money? I never did. We are very patriotic in a good meeting. We love our Land, our Glorious Canaan, we love the Father, who has promised us the Land, we love our Joshua, who is leading us there, we love the Guide-Book that points out the way, when—we—can—hold—on—to—our—money, and have all the good preaching ourselves. But do we really and honestly love them as Auntie Willard did if we will do nothing toward sending the saving light of the Gospel to others? This is the test of our love, Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." "Freely ye have received, freely give," are we obeying his commands?

Auntie Willard's next letter was a note of enquiry as to the whereabouts of the nun Ursula,—the story of whose sufferings and marvelous escape, written by herself, was published in The Patriotic American, Detroit, during the time of Auntie Willard's visit here in 1893. But no one dare reveal her place of concealment. A Baptist minister who had assisted her to escape, mysteriously disappeared, and has never been heard of.

March 30, 1898, Auntie Willard "had just been refreshing her mind on that beautiful hymn, that was so often sung when my dear father and mother were with us,—

"Awake, awake, O Lord, may awake,
And shine the pure image of Thee,
Then I shall be satisfied when I can break
The fetters of flesh and be free."

and, associating the hymn with the dear olden days." She took up her pen and wrote to me, telling me how much I reminded her not only of my father, but also of his mother and how "she rejoiced that she should spend an eternity with them through that power of an endless life that Jesus will share with his children—all with him enjoying our spiritual bodies in the new heavens and the new earth wherein will dwell the righteous. "Oh!" said she, "these glorious truths make me happy even here while suffering in this cumbrous clay. Tell Omar that I am counting on seeing him there with all the rest of you. Pray for me and mine for we all want to be there too."

April 30th,

"O, what tongue can express
The sweet comfort and peace,
Of a soul in its earliest love!"

What if I had never known this 'earliest love?" I am so glad the Lord made himself known to me in my early youth. I thank him for this—his unspeakable favor. What if we had been brought up by heathen parents, and had never heard the good tidings of his grace? Imitate the good example of your father and mother as far as possible. Your letter was a feast of fat things, of wines on the lees well refined. I praise God on every remembrance of you.

I [illegible] to hear of the zeal of those dear young ladies and of your success with the young people in bringing them to Jesus. You know not the good it may be wrought through those dear voices of yours. My love to them. Tell Jessie Craig I will try to write to her next time. I love her and all the little Sunday School scholars. Hope and believe they will all love Jesus and live in his kingdom forever.'

June 21, 1898. My precious Brother and Sister Wince. Never did you seem more precious to me than you do this morning. When shall we see the day when we shall clasp immortal hands and be forever with the Lord! O Father, hasten it in its time, is the prayer of my heart .....Tell Omar I am still expecting to walk the streets of the New Jerusalem with him.

How pleased I shall be Brother and Sister Wince to receive a line from you in God's time. Feel no burden about it. How I bless you for your kindness to me in my long stay with you. It was indeed a home to me that long, cold winter. I shall never forget it, how timely was my arrival at your open door."

The dear neices alluded to in the letter of April 30th, were Elnora and Nevada Waldo, now located in Blackwell, Oklahoma. Truly I "did not know" what might be wrought through them [illegible] they have proved themselves to be bold soldiers of the cross, giving not one inch to error, but standing up for Jesus anywhere and everywhere, no matter what the cost. Greatly do we rejoice over them. Ah, only the other dear young people had proved as faithful, but how quickly come tire in the race, and give up the cause.

Dec. 1st, 1898. Dear Brother Wince Lest I forget it let me first, after many thanks to the Lord, ask you to read at your leisure the 146 Psalm and with me praise the Lord. I shall not feel slighted if you read it before you finish this letter. Oh! it is so sweet. See 5th verse. Only 10 verses."

Dear readers of this Story, let us all recite this Psalm together and make it a song for the New Year.

AUNTIE WINCE.

[To be Continued.]

The Purpose of God.

We read in Genesis xvii of the covenant that God made with Abraham, and in Genesis xxviii 13 14, it is confirmed to Isaac, saying, and thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth. And in thee and thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blest. Surely this is a broad statement and can mean nothing less than an unlimited resurrection.

The apostle Paul refers to this in Romans iii 8, and calls this the gospel the Scriptures foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith preached before the gospel unto Abraham saying, in thee shall all nations be blessed, surely this is grand and reads Restitution. But do not the Scriptures teach a limited gospel? Not as we read so much in the New Testament of the gospel of Christ. Paul tells us it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes it. Rom i 16.

In Revelation xiv 6 we read of an everlasting gospel being proclaimed, and by referring to the first of the same chapter we find it is to be preached after the Lamb of God stood on Mount Zion. We find by careful study of the Scriptures two gospels proclaimed, or at least two different ages in which the gospel is being proclaimed. Now we find that Christ at his first advent preached the gospel of the kingdom of God, so did also his disciples. Now what was the purpose of the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom of God, or what made it such glad tidings The Jews looked for the kingdom of God to come and the disciples were convinced that this was the Messiah, consequently the kingdom would be immediately restored to Israel Acts i 6. but Christ said to them it is not for you to know the times or the seasons when it is to be established but in Acts xv 14 to 19, we find inspiration has revealed the purpose to be accomplished is first the kingdom is to be established (afterwards will the covenant to Abraham be fulfilled) but today we are under a limited gospel. Paul calls it the mark of the Prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus. Phil iii 14. It gives to the overcomer immortal life. It was so limited that Christ himself spoke to the multitudes in parables so they would not understand him. Luke viii 10; Matt xiii 10, is it not strange that Christ should so teach that the multitudes could not understand if he intended in this age to save or condemn the world, but the Scriptures inform us by the preaching of the gospel there were sealed 144 thousand of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel, and the rest were blinded until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in Rom xi 7 and 25 we find by again referring to Acts xv 13-19 that God is taking out from among the Gentiles a people for his name, (however many there may be) they are called the elect or little flock and will constitute those of the first or limited resurrection. This brings us to when God's kingdom is established, then the residue of mankind may seek after the Lord, even all the Gentiles upon whom my name has been invoked (Diaglott) so we see God is going to deal with the Gentile house just the same (after the kingdom of God is established, as Paul says he will deal with the Israelitish house, for out of Zion will come the deliverer and turn away ungodliness from Jacob, and he will also destroy all rebels from among the Gentiles, Acts iii 22-23, so during the reign of Christ and the immortal saints every soul that will not hear that Prophet will be destroyed from among the people. So we see there is but one faith Eph iv 5, but in the gospel age we have a limited resurrection and gospel preached for a purpose, and in the age to come the everlasting gospel preached or proclaimed which is unlimited and is free to all who will accept it and not be rebellious. Brethren, why should we quarrel over the limited and unlimited resurrection and gospels when both are taught so plainly in the Scriptures and they constitute the one faith of Abraham on which we claim to be founded. Let us consider this and see if we cannot come to the unity of the faith in the bond of love. Let us strive to be of one mind and not seek to divide the Church of God is my earnest prayer.

Submitted in love for the cause and truth.

Peter's Denial.—Matthew [illegible] and 69 75.

Golden Text—"Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." 1 Cor. x. 12.

Peter was at times a strong man, and again showed a weakness that is surprising. He was impulsive, and intense in his love for Jesus, yet he lacked cohesion of principle. He had traits of character that show courage and vigor, and he was a man of many resources. He was a leader of men, the spokesman of the apostles. He wanted to learn, for he asked more questions than all the other apostles. He was intellectual, free of speech, candid, and easily understood. Yet he was ever making mistakes, and his impulsiveness wrought harm to the cause he would help oftentimes.

As Peter enters the school of Christ, he is to be tried and finally work out into a finished scholar. He is to be changed from mere Simon, to Peter a Rock. His natural impulses must be made to do service in another line of work, and the incohesive elements in his make-up be cemented into a solid base that would stand. For the three years of Christ's ministry Peter was in this school, and though he had some severe reproofs, yet the teacher was wise and patient with him. Jesus knew that he was often an unruly pupil, yet recognized his earnestness.

Coming to the time of our lesson, we find [illegible] not yet finished his education. The Prophet Zechariah had said, smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered," and Jesus had used this as a warning of what would come, saying that "all ye shall be offended because of me." Peter had declared that if all men were so offended, yet he would not be—he would be the exception. But Jesus knew him better than he knew himself, and told him that before the cock crowing he would deny him thrice.

Our Golden Text comes in here. Peter was certain he could stand in a time of temptation, and his conduct shows that we do not know what we will do in unexpected conditions.

Jesus had done all he could strengthen Peter and put him on his guard. We see him in the garden too wearied to watch even one hour, and asleep on guard. At the arrest after Jesus said they must not fight with swords, all the disciples fled—deserted, however Peter and John follow afar off. The trial of Jesus comes in the house of the high priest. Peter and John enter the court yard and mingle with the messenger where they can look into the room where the trial is. The account tells of three times he was accused of being one of the disciples of Jesus, and each time he denied having known him.

This shows how one fault leads to another. It is seldom that one sin stands alone. Let us analyze Peter's [illegible] and see if true is it. He was guilty of sleeping at his [illegible] and then enters in more temptation is. Here he is found guilty of [illegible] and cowardice. He is ungrateful to his Master, profane, a false swearer—guilty of treason. This is a most complete fall, and men of less [illegible] never then Peter would never have remained standing again. Judas fell and died in disgrace.

How about Peter?

The cock crowing and the glance of Jesus, made him realize his position. He remembered what Jesus had said, and his remorse led him to weep most bitterly.

What could be done?

Jesus was to die—he had said it. Therefore Peter could not now ask forgiveness. Jesus had said he would rise again—the resurrection was the only hope, and to this Peter must turn Once more he becomes Peter the Rock. From henceforth he is a new man. In his first epistle Peter says describing such a condition "That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." [illegible] his fall was [illegible] through [illegible] and his labor over after was such that his repentance was sincere.

When Judas betrayed his Lord he calculated the matter, and went at it deliberately, knowing what he was doing. With Peter it was a momentary weakness of humanity, prompted by self preservation.

In spite of failures we can come back, and with God's help get good out of them.

Not many can go into temptation and not be contaminated. The wisest and best plan is to avoid evil by staying away.

The world is quick to notice if we are confessing or denying the Master we claim to serve.

When the first test comes this week, what will you do?

The only way by which men can become pure is to become filled with a love for purity.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 23, 1910. NUMBER 44.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of Kings and the immortalsaints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief in the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 23. 1910.

WE give two Sunday School lessons in this issue, because there will be no paper next week.

THE President of the United States, and the Governors of the several different States, have proclaimed Thursday, November 24, as "Thanksgiving Day."

COUNT Lyof Nikolaivitch Tolstoi, known as Count Tolstoi, the Russian philosopher and author, died Nov. 20 at Yasnaya Poliana, Russia, aged 82 years.

THERE being five Wednesdays in the month of November, this is the last issue for the month. Next paper will bear date of Demember 7. Please take note of this.

ANY one having a copy of "God's Plan of Salvation" by J. M. Stephenson, and will dispose of it, please send word to S. C. Lehman, Mesa, Wash., stating price.

IN Portugal the new government is having trouble with some of the forces that helped put them in power. Part of the military that made it possible for them to dethrone the king have made demands that cannot be met, and threaten trouble.

SISTER Huggins writes that Brother Huggins is recovering from an operation that it is hoped will relieve him of a distressing trouble. She wishes the Nebraska Bereans to know their lesson will be ready on time, but he regrets that his health has not been in such a condition that he could do justice to it.

MEXICO is rent by revolution against the Diaz government. In fact there is trouble in all Central America, and this is of importance to the United States in that it may affect Panama Canal work. Inasmuch as in Mexico there are American interests valued at seven hundred millions of dollars, it can easily be seen that a disorder that affects them will not be tolerated long.

FRANK G. Carpenter, correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says "The Germans are gobbling the Holy Land. I use the word 'gobble' advisedly. It means 'to swallow in large pieces, to swallow hastily, to seize upon with greed and to appropriate greedily.'" He then goes on to show how the Germans are actually doing this, by establishing colonies, building churches and other institutions in the Holy Land especially around Jerusalem, spending large sums of money, and getting possession of many desirable places.

Sunday School Lesson.

DECEMBER 11, 1910.

The Crucifixion.—Matt. xxvii. 15-50.

Golden Text—"He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities." Isaiah liii 5.

This lesson should cover the time from our last lesson when Peter denyed Jesus, on to the resurrection, which will be the theme for December 18. It really takes in the Roman trial before Pilate, and the incidents connected with that, Jesus on the way to crucifixion, the crucifixion, and the things that happened around the cross, and his burial.

All the details of this period have been gone over so often in the Sunday School and Bible School that it will not be necessary to more than glance at a few points, as all teachers can readily get sufficient for the hour's study.

At the trial of Jesus before Caiaphas he is found guilty of treason against God—blasphemy, and we learned that by the Jewish law this offense was punishable with death. As the Jewish people had no power to put such an one to death, so they must take him before the Roman officer, who was Pontius Pilate. They hoped that inasmuch as they had condemned him to death that Pilate would accept their verdict, and ask for no reason why. They well knew that no Roman court would condemn a man to death on a charge of blaspheming the Jews' God.

Pilate demanded what their charge was. We find by John's account that they did not want to tell, and said "If this man were not an evil-doer, we would not have delivered him unto thee." To this Pilate would have assented no doubt, had it been anything else but death they demanded, so he holds out and asks for some specific charge. By Luke's account we learn that they led him to Pilate and accused Jesus of perverting the nation, and refusing to pay tribute to Cesar, saying that he himself was Christ a King. Of course this would constitute treason against the Roman government, and of such a charge Pilate must take notice. Three charges are made: Sedition in that he stirred up the people to revolt. This idea was of no weight had there been any investigation. It was absurd that a man who taught only good morals, and had a small band of unarmed followers, was any menace to the Roman government. The next charge was forbidding to pay tribute to Rome, and was a sheer falsehood, as Jesus had told them to render to Cesar the things that belong to him, and to God what belonged to him. The third charge was claiming to be Christ a King, and there was an element of truth in this, and yet on a fair investigation Pilate said "I find no fault in this man." Luke tells that Pilate sent Jesus to Herod, and he found nothing worthy of death had been done, and returned him to Pilate.

The Jews were determined Jesus should die, and when Pilate would release him they preferred Barabbas, and demanded that Jesus be crucified, and were willing to take his blood on themselves and their children. After mocking and scourging Jesus is taken and crucified between two thieves, and there reviled in mockery, not alone by the rabble, but the priests as well. An inscription is put over him saying "This is Jesus the King of the Jews."

Teachers can go through this lesson and impress the incidents on the mind of the scholar, and then will come the question of application: Why was it necessary that Jesus should thus die? What was the sin? God so loved the world that he gave his Son to die, and Jesus loved the world so that he was willing to die, and do his Father's will.

When a statement is made, the next thing we want is the proof. A mother gives her boy every care, sacrifices her pleasure and comfort that he may be helped, and in every way shows she has an interest in him. What she does is the proof of her love. What Jesus did is proof of his love. Think of the agony in the garden, the arrest and false trial before the priests and elders of Israel, the mocking and scourging, reviling and insults, the horrible torture of crucifixion! Is any more proof needed than this to show the love Christ has for the world—for you and for me?

Then the application. If Jesus was willing to endure all this to show his great personal love for each boy and girl, that we each might be benefitted—that a way might be opened for us to obtain unending life; what greater crime could we commit than to turn a deaf ear to it all and refuse to accept the love he offers us. Base ingratitude only can prompt us to do so.

Let us then show—prove—by our willingness to imitate the life of our Redeemer how much we love him, and how much we love each other, showing this not by empty words, but by service in his cause every day.

Laborers Together with God.

"Ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." We are building on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone. Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

Paul says, As a wise Master builder, I have laid the foundation, another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereon. In order to build on the rock Christ Jesus, we must be able to confess with Peter, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The great Teacher said, This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent. To know God is to know the Eternal is one. To know Jesus Christ, whom the Father sent, is to know, when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son made of a woman, made under the law. Not something which pre-existed, or a part of the trinity; but a person begotten by the power of the Highest. Knowing God and his purpose, believing in Jesus Christ whom he sent, believing that his name shall be as a Son to continue his Father's name forever (marg.) Psalm lxxii 17.

Then are we building on the sure foundation, and are God's building. We are not guessing at it. Paul says, "Nevertheless the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal. The Lord knoweth them that are his. And let every one that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity." 2 Tim ii 19.

The temple built by Solomon was a type of the building of which we are living stones. Josephus says Solomon laid the foundation very deep in the ground, and the materials were strong stone such as would resist the force of time. We read in 1 Kings vi 7, and the house when it was building was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hammer nor axe, nor any tool of iron heard in the house while it was in building. Paul says ye are God's building, take heed how ye build. Don't build hay, wood and stubble. The living stones must be made ready now, and the building must be on the foundation already laid. No other will do. Josephus says Solomon made many vessels for the temple, also many robes for the priest, but the crown upon which Moses wrote the name of God was only one, not a triple crown, teaching the trinity. O no, To Israel he said, Hear O Israel, the Eternal is one. Then we come to him believing that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. How diligently are we seeking him, and if we have found him, and his purpose? What are we doing to proclaim it to others, thereby preparing living stones for the true sanctuary which the Lord pitched and not man. Are we sowing the incorruptible seed, the Word of the kingdom, which is the begetting power, making ready living stones to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God.

Paul says built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth into an holy temple in the Lord. How do we grow? Peter says, "Be ye built up a spiritual house." In the 11th verse of the 2nd chapter he says, Dearly beloved, I beseech you as pilgrims and strangers, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul." Paul admonishes us to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. Do all things without murmurings and disputings, that ye may be blameless and harmless the sons of God without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom shine ye as lights in the world, holding forth the Word of life.

Dear brother and sister, can we shine as lights, be we ever so pious, unless we hold forth the Word of life? You may comfort yourself that you have obeyed the gospel, and are living a godly life, but unless you are in some way holding forth the Word of life you will not rejoice in the day of Christ. I shudder when I think of how little we as a people are doing to advance the cause we profess to love. Are we making any sacrifice, or are we gratifying every selfish desire of our heart? How much money has we wasted in extravagant living? How much have we spent spreading the gospel? Building Solomon's temple was expensive. It takes money to go into new fields, making known the begetting power, taking out living stones, and fitting them for that temple which will be put together without the sounding of a hammer. Do you want a part in the work of holding forth the Word of life? Then open your pocketbooks, not only so, go to work for the Master. Be laborers with God.

Look at the effort of the Thessalites, and see what they accomplish. See what one Socialist Berger has suffered and sacrificed for the cause he espoused. See the "bundle brigade" be formed of two thousand, serving without pay. They rise early Sunday morning to leave pamphlets at every home in the city. What my brother and sister are we doing?

"Awake my soul, stretch every nerve,
And press with vigor on;
A heavenly race demands thy zeal,
And an immortal crown."

We are not laboring for a corruptible crown, but for an incorruptible. So let us be sure we are "laboring with God." "Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out."

Your Sister striving for an incorruptible crown.

No man ever amounts to much who hasn't self confidence enough in himself to make an effort.

When a man finds out that he needs knowledge he has his hand on the gate leading to it.

Dear Brother Underwood,

You remember some time ago I said I would soon send you some money to pay on THE RESTITUTION. I did not intend to deceive you, but really did mean to do so. I am seventy-two years old, and am living with a lady who is seven years older, receiving ten dollars a month as wages. I had a tumor on my back that distressed me, and I had to go to a hospital and undergo an operation for its removal. I am now better and am at work paying back the fifty dollars that it cost. If I continue to live, and have health, I now hope soon to pay for my paper.

Dear brother, I write and tell you this to let you know why I did not do as I agreed to. I have worried so, but could not do anything. I do not want to complain, for I am so thankful to God I am able to care for myself at this age. I don't expect to live much longer, and hope I may so live that when Jesus comes, awake or sleeping, I will hear his call and meet him face to face, and ever be with him. Bless his dear name. Oh, I can say Come Lord Jesus, quickly come. I am getting tired and weary, and want to rest.

Now dear brother, if you can't send the paper any longer I will have to submit, but I love to get THE RESTITUTION, and it seems as though I cannot live without it. You have been so good and kind to me, may God bless you, and those who send money to pay for those too poor to pay for themselves. May we all meet in the kingdom is my prayer.

Your Sister in Christ, looking and waiting for our Lord to come.

MRS. ———

[This poor Sister is of an independent spirit, and it would not be right to publish her name. We give the letter that those who contribute to Our Helping Fund may know their gifts are appreciated, and to ask any others who may wish now and in the great coming would like the blessing of one such as this dear Sister. Why think of it brothers and sisters. In the kingdom a sweet faced happy one will clasp your hand and greet you with a blessing, because your name is on the list as having supplied means to furnish her with THE RESTITUTION while in this life. Think as this season of Thanksgiving is here and that of Christmas approaches, if you will not be happier now for a gift to this fund. This Helping Fund is exclusively for such cases as this, and for this year is still beamd quite a number of dollars. —ED.]

Smiles and Tears.

Human life is made up of all sorts of experiences, including joy and sorrow, pleasure and pain, sunshine and shadow. In consequence of this variety in personal experience, there is a constant mingling of smiles and tears in every walk of life. There is great cause for tears, but there is equal occasion for smiles, unless it be in very rare and exceptional cases. In every relation in life it is encumbent upon us to be hopeful and happy, even though tears filter through the sunshine of the soul, or drip from the cheek on which it plays. There is a time to smile and a time to weep. Indeed, there is an exhortation to that effect, "Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep." The fact is, the cheer of life should shine through our tears, not solely because we are happy, but also for the sake of those whose lives we may brighten. Of course there is a class of heart-broken people who have passed into the permanent eclipse of sorrow, upon whose face the light of joy never comes, and whose voice never breaks forth into the music of laughter. For their sake we should weep and smile.

It is sometimes remarked that it is twice stated that Jesus wept, but nowhere is it said that he smiled or laughed. That is true, but we should not infer from that fact that Jesus never smiled. There were occasions of joy and circumstances of social delight in which he mingled when his sweet face must have been radiant with smiles. When he took the children in his arms he must have smiled at them.

SOME days ago we mailed statements to a number of our brethren, but all have not yet responded. We wish they would do so quickly. Also hope all who can will remit their renewals without waiting for statement. Most of you know how your account stands, and you can save us a large amount of work and outlay by saving us sending notices. Please brethren, attend to this.

Your Turn Will Come.

He who inflicts wrongs upon others is very sure to suffer wrong himself. He who sees wrong inflicted upon others without opposition or protest, will himself be likely to feel its power in due time. He who takes the sword will perish by the sword. He who enriches himself by fraud and evil-doing is very likely to be impoverished by the same means. To every evil-doer the warning of God is uttered again and again "With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." "He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it." Of the cruel man it is said "His violent dealing shall come down upon his own pate."

Men may for a time trample upon right, and outrage every principle of justice and truth, but "the triumphing of the wicked is short;" "their foot shall slide in due time;" and the march of divine providence shall reveal the ample compensations of divine justice, and show that "Verily there is a reward for the righteous; verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth," Psalm lviii. 11.

"The righteous is an everlasting foundation." Right and righteousness will not fail. Truth never fears to hear the other side. Honesty does not shrink from investigation and exposure. He who is upright and above board has nothing to fear; he who delights in lies and frauds, in tricks and craftiness, is always looking out for exposure and trouble, and is sure not to look in vain. If you walk uprightly with God, all will be well; but if you trample on right, and sin against God, there is trouble in store for you, and your turn will come before you are aware.—Armory.

Love.

If you love, love more. If you hate, hate no more. Life is too short to spend in hating any one. Why war with a mortal who is going the same road with us? Why not expend the flower of life and happiness by learning to love, by teaching those who are near and dear the beautiful lesson?

Your hands may be hard, but your heart need not be. Your form may be bent or ugly, but do you not know that the most beautiful flowers often grow in the most rugged, unsheltered places? The palace for care, and the cottage for love. Not that there is no love in a mansion; but somehow, if we are not very careful, business will crowd all there is of beauty out of the heart.

This is why God has given us Saturday nights, that we may leave business in the office, and have a heart-cleaning.

Is the Spirit Immortal?

I made this argument once in a debate, and the only dodge my opponent could make was "Of course the spirit will be put out of what? Why, the body of course." Everybody could see that this was a subterfuge, but fortunately the Lord forever fixed that quibble, for he says "Yea, the light (nar) of the wicked shall be put out, and the spark of his fire shall not shine. The light shall be dark in his tabernacle, and his candle (nar, spirit) shall be put out with him." Said I, "If the spirit shall be put out of the body, what is the man going to be put out of?" The Lord says the "candle of the wicked shall be put out with him." Is he going to put man out of himself? This settled the question.—T. J. Daniel.

A Grace for Today.

Show us the way to see the good
That comes into our lives each day,
The blessings daily understood
That give us cheer along the way.
Give us content with gold and gear—
Though much or little we possess—
Let us be glad for what is here
On this, our day of thankfulness.

But broaden, too, the soul and mind
So that our thanks will not be bound
By custom's rule and rote confined
Within this one day's narrow bound.
Let us be glad for early rain
That tills the flowers wake and creep.
Let us be glad for snowy plain
That holds them in their winter sleep.

Give us the heart to understand
The graciousness of spreading trees,
The changing seasons, wisely planned,
The storm and sunshine—all of these.
For all the brightness of the dawn,
And cheerfulness of noon and night;
And all that joy is builded on
Give us the grace to see aright.

Let us remember each kind word
By weight to goodly feeling lent
Each gentle thing we've said or heard
And blot from memory the rest.
Give us the eyes to see and know
The benefits along the way—
The many things that help us so,
Let us be thankful every day.

Married.

There was a very beautiful wedding solemnized Thursday, November 17, 1910, high noon, at the home of the bride's parents Brother and Sister Nathan B Buckman, of Salem, Ohio, by the writer. Brother Owen A. Pottorf and Sister Mary Ida Buckman are of the best young people of our city. Both have taken upon themselves the all saving name of Jesus the Christ.

Brother Pottorf is employed as superintendent of the Bartlett Gas Co., of the southern part of the State at a good salary. We regret to lose them from our Church work, as they are earnest workers in the gospel field. However we know that they will take the glad tidings of the kingdom with them wherever they settle. It may be the means of others accepting the call to eternal life.

Few young people start the married life under more favorable environments than Brother Owen and Sister Ida Pottorf.

May God's blessing ever accompany them in their life's work, is our earnest prayer,

D. C. ROBISON.

Dear Restitution:

We have very good meetings at the Pleasant View Church all the time. The last time we had meeting we had a large congregation, and after the morning service we had a basket dinner, and had services again in the afternoon.

At this time we celebrated in honor of Mrs. Tillie McHaney, Brother Jos. Williams and wife, and Brother Carl Thompson and wife. Carl Thompson and Jessie Crawford were married on November 5, 1910.

EDITH THOMPSON.

Obituary.

Freeda Anna Heffer was born Dec 17, 1909, and died Nov. 11, 1910, at the home of parents Hugh and Orpha Heffer, near Michigantown, Ind.

Death came after a lingering illness of six weeks, cholera infantum being the cause. Father, mother, and three sisters Iva, Thelma and Edith survive her, and are left to mourn for her.

During her sickness the neighbors and friends did all they could to assist in caring for her.

How cheering it is that the Savior pointed to the children as an example of purity when he said "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." We trust that when the glad morning of the resurrection will have dawned, it will be one of his jewels to embolish his glorious kingdom.

Brother Joseph Williams spoke the words of comfort at the funeral.

WM. M. HUFFER.

"It is a good thing to pause now and then and ask oneself, What have I done for God this year, this month, this week, this day? How meagre in service would many a life appear under such questioning! But ought not every Christian to put the searching query, and to answer it with conscientious fidelity? It will one day be asked by other lips, and under circumstances that will admit no quibbling in reply. It is well to make the self-examination now, while there is still opportunity, not indeed to retrieve the past—that is gone forever—but to do better service hereafter."

The Water of Life.

Come and drink of the water of life,
That is flowing from the throne of God;
No matter how humble you are
You can get it in any abode.

Leave all broken cisterns hewed by men,
And drink this pure water from heaven,
Jesus the Christ has brought it,
And to us now it is freely given.

Let the tired and the hopeless now drink,
It is free as the air we breath:
Give up all sin and all folly,
It is yours if you only believe.

It will give you the life of that age,
When sorrow and death will be o'er:
Then life will be endless and bright
When we meet on that beautiful shore.

Steadfastness.

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much, as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." 1 Cor xv 58.

This was addressed to the 'Church of God at Corinth, to those who were sanctified in Christ Jesus, called saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord, both theirs and ours." They were the sanctified or consecrated ones. Hence those set apart for a sacred use.

Although it is important that one should consecrate himself and his service to the Lord, how much more important to keep up that separation and make his service lasting. The majority of mankind are changeable in their nature and habits. They drift hither and thither as a tide may carry them, and in the end accomplish nothing. The Lord gives us an excellent example of this in his parable of the sower found in Matthew xiii 19 to 24. He said: "When any one heareth the Word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the wayside. But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth Word, and anon with joy receiveth it; yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while, for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the Word, by and by he is offended. He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the Word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the Word, and he becometh unfruitful. But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the Word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth fruit, some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty." How many people have we met with who come under one or the other of these heads, especially those who represent the stony ground hearers. Verses 20 and 21. He gets offended and that is the last of him. He blames this one or that one for some real or imaginary wrong. The Lord plainly stated the cause when he said, "He hath not root in himself."

Let us, brothers and sisters, take a lesson from Hebrews iii 14; iv 14, 15: "For we are made partakers of Christ if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end. Seeing then that we have a great High Priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our confession. For we have not an High Priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." If a person possesses the qualities of steadfastness and perseverence he is bound to succeed. A person of ordinary ability can surpass in any undertaking the man of flashing intellect if with all its brilliancy it is unsteady in its pursuits.

Everybody, especially the young, ought to have a fixed aim and press on with resolution and determination. Irresolution brings on disappointment and unhappiness. We all know in nothing is resolute determination more needed than in religious affairs. "Be ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak; for your work shall be rewarded." The apostle James says, "He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed." What a portrait of an unsettled disposition! But listen to what James has further to say: 'For let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord. A double minded man is unstable in all ways." This unfixed condition sooner or later will bring on disaster. There was a want of steadfastness in Israel. The forefathers were a rebellious generation and as the Psalmist says, "with hearts not set aright and whose spirit was not steadfast with God." The Divine Record says in Psalms vii 7-9: "The children of Ephraim, being armed and carrying bows, turned back in the day of battle." They could not be relied upon and were lacking at the time most needed—"the day of battle." In the 10th and 11th verses we read: "They kept not the covenant of God, and refused to walk in his law, and forgat his works and his wonders that he had shown them." All through the history of the Israelites their fickleness and rebelliousness is evident, but in reading the history how manifest is God's mercy. Moses gave them exhortations to obedience in regard to God's mercy and goodness in his dealings with Israel and says in the 20th verse 10th chapter of Deut: "Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou cleave and sweat by his name." Because of this mercy the Prophet David is made to exclaim, "Praise ye the Lord. O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good, for his mercy endureth forever." Psa cvi 1.

There is a saying that the chain is only as strong as its weakest link. If each one of us were to examine and analyze his own disposition and character could he not find some weakness that needs strengthening? Surely it would be the part of wisdom to guard and watch this weak point. In looking over a RESTITUTION, I found this exhortation: "Have courage to review your own conduct, to condemn it where you detect your own faults, to amend it to the best of your ability, to make good resolves for your future guidance, and to keep them. We find the Apostle Peter saying: 'Resist the adversary being steadfast in the faith;' and likewise Job in his book the 11th chapter, 14th and 15th ver: "If iniquity be in thine hand, put it far away, and let no wickedness dwell in thy tabernacles. For then shalt thou lift up thy face without spot; yea thou shalt be steadfast and shalt not fear." God's promises and our faith in Christ are not some thing vague and incomprehensible. Our loving Father gave unto a revelation that can be understood, and all he asks of us is to believe and earnestly obey his Word. Paul says in Hebrews x 23, "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised."

Unless we strive to better our conduct it is in vain that we meet around the table on the first day of the week to remember our absent Lord. If we love him who was wounded for our transgressions as we profess, will the cross which he has asked us to take up be thrown down so often because it feels heavy, and we think that we have enough to do with our own burdens without bearing some one else's? In Psa iv 3 we read, "The Lord hath set apart him that is godly for himself."

The Lord has work for each one of us to do, but to be able to produce the right kind of a result we must keep in that "set apart" condition. We must not share other men's sins, but keep ourselves pure in his sight. Paul writes in 1 Cor x 21, "Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils; ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of devils." In Hebrews xii 13: "Make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed." God wants our paths to be healed and he pleads for every wanderer to return. Let the steadfast ones who have not become offended when tribulations arise "because of the Word," "be of good cheer," for in due season ye shall reap "if ye faint not."

"When men our names and faith revile,
And cover with contempt and guile;
When they as evil cast us forth,
And count us as the vile of earth;
We know of one who looks and loves,
What matter, then, if God approves?
They, whom their churches may expel,
And even forbid us more to dwell
In their communion; may reject
And cease to treat us with respect,
Our Father's hand is our defense,
And none shall ever pluck us thence.
They may no longer us esteem,
May heap upon us scorn and shame;
We may become to them as fools,
So much that warmest friendship cools.
Earth's dearest ones may cease to love—
Not so those heavenly friends above.
Oh, let us then with firmness stand,
A zealous, true, and faithful band;
Undaunted by the rage of men,
We shall a crown and kingdom gain."

FRANCIS RUSSELL

No man can do his best for a cause in whose justice he does not believe.

The "Little Horn." Dan. viii. 9.

Much has been written and various positions have been assumed in applying this particular part of this prophecy, but there can be but one right application and interpretation of this horn prophecy. To attempt to make an "ism" meet the demand, is to make a failure of the divine intention, and befog the minds of those depending on others as their teachers. No "ism" can fulfil this prophecy, for no religious "ism" is ever denominated a horn. Mohammedanism is thus ruled out in the beginning, and we must look for some power, of another nature, as the horn of this prophecy. Not a horn in Daniel's prophecy is used to represent a religious "ism." Why should we violate this rule—divinely set—for the accommodation of something that we might find a few features of what we think may fit this prophetic mould?

From small beginnings empires have often arisen, and by conquest have added to their domain. If this horn was the only kingdom that had gained its supremacy by conquest and growth, we might be driven to the "ism" possibility fulfillment. But such being the case, we are relieved from such a compulsion, and may proceed to give the same kind of an application to this horn as to all other horns and beasts in Daniel's prophecy. Babylon had to gain its empire by conquest, and thus start from a small beginning, Jer. xxv. 12-27; xxvii. 5-7. Medo-Persia had to pursue this same course, as it is written; "I saw the ram pushing westward and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him, neither was there any that could deliver out of his hand; but he did according to his will, and became great" Dan. viii. 4. This "pushing" in these three directions was a series of wars of conquest and the gaining of the territory that composed the Medo-Persian empire. From a small beginning was this accomplished, for in becoming great it was by gradual growth.

Greece had to follow in the same course. From the small kingdom of his father, Philip, Alexander did pursue the conquest course, and by perpetual war he successively added peoples and territory, until he gave its ultimate empire dimensions. "Therefore the he-goat waxed very great" Dan. viii 8. The wars consequent on the death of Alexander gave the four heads Dan. vii. 6, or the four horns Dan. viii. 8, three kingdoms as the successors of Alexander the Great, but it still remained the third kingdom of brass. Succession is the divine rule. The golden head and the golden lion, were succeeded by the "arms and breast of silver," and the bear. The belly and thighs of brass, and the four-headed leopard succeeded the arms and breast of silver, and the bear.

The four-headed leopard was succeeded by the dragon, and the belly and thighs of brass by the legs of iron. The dragon beast succeeding the four-headed leopard places Rome as the little horn successor of the four horns. We see no way to escape this conclusion.

Out of its predecessor came the second, third and fourth kingdoms. Did Rome succeed Greece as provided in Dan. ii. 40; vii. 7, and proved by all history? Yes. Is this rule changed in Dan. viii. and a new rule of succession introduced by Jehovah? No! Is not the eleventh chapter of Daniel a definite proof of this succession with no interregnum?

If out of its predecessor each one of these empires came (and they ruled the same people and territory in part at least,) is it not consistent that this little horn, Dan. viii. 9, followed this same course, as the growing empire? Yes. On ancient an map before me, the whole of Italy from 150 miles north of the city of Rome, to its most southern extremity, including Sicily, are a part—the western portion—of the Grecian empire. Its southeastern boundary was Indo-Scythia; its northeastern, Massagetæ; its northern, Bosphorus, Cimmer, and its southern was the northern boundary of Arabia in Asia. In Africa the southern extremity of Ethiopia.

After Alexandria had made his last conquest (the conquest of the Cossæans) he returned to the banks of the Euphrates, and was there met by ambassadors from Carthage, Spain and Italy, as well as from many inland countries of Asia and Africa, extending from Mount Imaus to the southern extremity of Ethiopia. It was then that he appeared master of the world, both to himself, and to his followers.—Gillies' Ancient Greece. p 457.

Why these ambassadors from Italy, if Italy did not acknowledge Alexander as its sovereign? He stood as master of the world, and the world, and the world at his feet. Why no ambassadors from Arabia? Because Arabia was no part of his empire. He never conquested it, but died in such contemplation, and in his preparation for the undertaking. (William Smith's History of Greece.) The language of Italy (at this time) was Greek.

Here we learn the necessary truth of the extent of the Alexandrian-Grecian empire, and find that Rome, the city, was in the north-western part of it. This horn was to come out of one of them, and Arabia not being any part of the Grecian empire, this horn must come out of some other part of the empire. "In the history of those kingdoms (the divisions—the four horns) the most important event is their conquest by the Romans, who gradually seized all the western spoils of Alexander's empire, and successively reduced them to provinces. The conquest of Macedon freed Italy from the weight of taxes."—Gillie's Ancient Greece, pages 462, 468

Who were they paying taxes to? Who, but to the Macedonians as a part of that empire? This little horn, like all the rest, began its growth by conquest. Gradually and successively this horn seized all the western spoils—provinces—of Alexander's empire, and thus freed itself from the tax-tribute to Macedon. This gradual, successive conquest gives us the reason why Rome, the little horn, was called the little horn by Jehovah, and thus we learn how the little horn waxed exceeding great. Rome (Dan. viii. 9,) like Babylon (Jer. xxv. 15-27; xxvii. 5-7,) Medo-Persia (Dan. viii. 4,) and Grecia (Dan. viii. 8,) assumed her greatness by conquest. Medo-Persia became great, Grecia waxed exceeding great, and the little horn (Rome) waxed exceeding great. The story of one is the story of the other, viz., conquest. The waxing great on the part of one, is the same of all. If one waxed and became great, then all waxed and became great from a little state. If the chapter is carefully studied in harmony with all of this book of national prophecy, and if the successionary law of the book is heeded, and the consecutive history be followed, this little horn prophecy will cease to, be, such an entangling problem, and the mind of Jehovah will be learned, and his teaching through Daniel "the holy man of God," lucidly comprehended.

Mohammedanism has no place in this chapter. It is in no sense the little horn, for the great fact of chronology absolutely repudiates such an application. "Out of one of them" (one of the four horns) came the little horn—Rome. Out of the Western division—Macedonia—Rome came, for until she conquered Macedonia, she was under "the weight of axes" to Macedonia; but by conquest, Rome, the little horn, came out of Macedonia and "waxed exceeding great toward the south." What more natural than that Rome should conquer the Grecian provinces in Italy, and in doing so she would "wax great to the south." Macedonia being east of Rome, and conquered by Rome, she "waxed great toward the east, and toward the pleasant land," Palestine. Continuing the eastern conquests toward the pleasant land would fully express the thought. This gives the prophecy to Rome, and the Mohammedan fulfillment is again repudiated.

This little horn waxed toward the south, and east and toward the pleasant land, while Mohammedanism conquered to the north—Syria—and west Africa and Europe, which again repudiates the Mohammedanism claim. These are unreconcilable objections to Mohammedanism, and until such objections are met fairly, its advocates must yield the prophecy to Rome as being the little horn of Dan. viii. 8. Thus we have found the fulfillment of this little horn prophecy, and in finding it we are full of confidence that this position cannot be repudiated.—C. H. Shurtleff.

Clerical Interpretation of the Scriptures, a Delusion.

Reader, you will doubtless be repelled by the apparent arrogance and irreverance of the assertion which this article is published to prove; but be entreated for one moment to allow yourself to consider that it may be true, and therefore neither irreverent nor arrogant. Consider the evidence.

If you are like the generality of people, you will not be sufficiently acquainted with the Bible to form a ready or valuable opinion on the subject. But if, unlike the generality of people, you have been a reader of the Bible, you will be the better able to appreciate the simple facts to which your attention is invited.

Let us first distinctly realize the nature and effect of clerical interpretation of the Bible. The language of the Bible is clerically read in a "non-natural" sense. It is held to require "interpretation." It is contended that it is "spiritual" in its significance; that is, that it is not literal or formed according to the ordinary rules of speech, but on a principle that conceals its meaning under language appearing to mean something else, and rendering a special divine illumination of mind necessary before it can be understood.

Now, in opposition to this principle of interpretation, we place the fact which the supporters of it are themselves compelled to acknowledge—viz: that the framework of divine revelation is literal history written in literal language. The Bible, so far as the Old Testament is concerned, is chiefly composed of the history of the Jews, from the call of Abraham to the Babylonish captivity, set forth in literal language; and as for the New Testament, is it not a literal history of Christ and his apostles, and letters mostly written in literal terms to believers? All the narratives and documents which the Bible contains, have reference to the literal Holy Land, and literal transactions transpiring therein. The book is intensely real or literal throughout. True, metaphor and symbol are liberally employed; but the literal is the backbone. If you take away the literal, nothing is left; for the metaphorical and symbolical are but the garnishing and illustration of the literal. The "spiritual" sense inculcated by clerical interpretation is unknown in the Scriptures.

But besides dealing with past events, the Bible predicts future events, and it is here where the clerical principle of interpretation is so pernicious. This principle says that prophecy does not mean the places, persons, and events it speaks of, but intends to signify principles not discernible on the surface. Jerusalem, it says, means heaven; Zion, the church; Israel, the righteous; the throne of David, the position of Christ in heaven; the coming of the Lord, the occurrence of death; the kingdom of God, the reign of righteousness, and so on.

Now to perceive the utter delusiveness of this method of interpretation, (which makes the Word of God of none effect), we have only to look at those prophecies that have been fulfilled. A comparison between the terms of those prophecies and the events by which they were fulfilled, will furnish a divine clue to the matter; and set us at liberty from the authority "divinity," which is misleading and blinding. David predicted that Jesus would be pierced in his hands and feet, that his raiment would be divided, and his vesture disposed of by lot. Psa xxii 16 18. Isaiah predicted that Jesus should be "despised and rejected of men;" that he should be "cut out of the land of the living," and that he should "make his grave with the wicked and with the rich in his death" (Isa liii 3-9;) all which came to pass literally. Micah predicted he should be born in Bethlehem (Micah v 2) which came to pass. Zechariah predicted that he should ride to Jerusalem on the back of an ass (Zech ix 9,) and he rode to literal Jerusalem on the back of a literal ass. Matt xxi 1-6. Jesus predicted that Jerusalem would be surrounded with armies and taken, and the Jews destroyed and scattered among all nations, and so it came to pass. Moses and all the prophets predicted the same thing, and to fulfillment of their literal words, the Jews are in dispersion and disgrace among all nations at this day.

Now reader, after these incontrovertible illustrations of the meaning of prophetic language, are you content to believe that the prophecies yet unfulfilled are expressed on the new and arbitrary principle of the orthodox school? Are you content to take the ipse dixit of an uninspired man, as against distinct prophecies which foretell the return of Christ, the establishment of God's kingdom on earth, the reign of Jesus and the saints, the restoration of the Jews, the exaltation of Jerusalem as the metropolis of the whole world, and the inhabitation of the earth by the glorified righteous? If you are, you will have yourself to blame if you ultimately find yourself in the ditch with the blind leaders. But if, on the other hand, you are prepared to exercise your judgment on this most important of all questions (viz., what does the book of God teach?) you will find yourself compelled to abandon the spiritualistic principle of reading the Bible, and with it, your present belief in sky-kingdoms as the reward of the righteous at death. You will find yourself compelled, by the study of the Scriptures on this basis, to accept the truth that man is mortal; that Christ has brought immortality to light; that in due time he will return to the earth, raise his people from the dead, and immortalize them; subjugate all human kingdoms; set up universal empire, and put his people in authority throughout the globe for a thousand years, after which, death will be abolished and the salvation of the world completed. For evidence of these conclusions in detail, you are referred to works which can be procured at the address of this office, and you are recommended to read them in the impartial spirit which the subject demands, accepting or rejecting the views advanced, according as you shall find the evidence.

Is the Spirit Immortal?

There was a time when the spirit was never spoken of as an immortal entity, but the soul was often spoken of as being immortal, and oftentimes you would hear men pray to God to have mercy on our never-dying souls. But the doctrine of the immortality of the soul has been refuted so many times, that they quit teaching that the soul was immortal, but claimed that the spirit was the "immortal man living in us."

Now let us examine this question a little and see if the Bible teaches it. It is admitted that the Bible nowhere says that the spirit is immortal, but that the Bible teaches it. It will be admitted that anything that is immortal is indestructible, imperishable and deathless—cannot fail, etc. Job says, "The arrows of the Almighty are within me, the poison whereof drinketh up my spirit." Job vi. 4. Can poison drink up an immortal spirit? Certainly not. Then Job's spirit was not immortal. Again we read: "O, Lord, by these things men live and in all these things is the life of my spirit." Isa. xxxviii. 16. You see by this, that the life of the writer's spirit depended upon "these things," whatsoever they were. If the spirit is immortal, its life is not dependent upon anything. It has a life of its own that cannot be destroyed. But in this case the life of the spirit depended upon "these things," therefore the spirit was not immortal. This is enough to settle the question, for if the spirit of one man is not immortal, the spirit of no other man is immortal. We might put this argument in the form of a syllogism.

The life of anything that is immortal, is not dependent upon anything. The life of the spirit of man is dependent upon certain things. Therefore the spirit is not immortal.

Again, "For I will not contend forever, neither will I be always wroth; for the spirit should fail before me, and the souls which I have made." Isaiah lxxvii. 16

An immortal spirit cannot fail. It would be foolish to talk about an immortal spirit failing. Yet the Lord says the spirit can fail. Therefore, the spirit is not immortal. In this place, the mortality of both the spirit and the soul is proved; and since it is admitted that the body is mortal, it proves that the whole man is mortal. God did not only speak of the spirit failing, but the "souls which I have made." Therefore, both the spirit and soul is immortal.

Job says, "Thou hast granted me life and favor, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit." Job x. 12. The preservation of Job's spirit depended upon the visitation of the Lord. Had it been immortal it would have been preserved, whether the Lord visited it or not. Therefore the spirit of Job was not immortal.

The term "candle" is translated from the word "nar." Now the Lord says "The spirit of man is the candle (nar) of the Lord." Job xxix 27. Here we are told plainly that the spirit of man is a candle. Now if the Lord says the candle (nar) of man shall be put out, is it not positive proof that the spirit of man is not immortal? Surely it is. Now let us read "The light, (nar, spirit) of the righteous rejoiceth; but the lamp (nar, spirit) of the wicked shall be put out." Prov xiii 9. Can anything be made stronger than this? Does this not settle the question?

But again, "Whoso curseth his father or mother, his lamp (nar, spirit) shall be put out in obscure darkness." Prov. xx 20. Again "For there shall be no reward to the evil man; the can-

Real Brotherly Love.

What is brotherly love? If I say "I have nothing against any of my brethren," do I show real brotherly love? Is it not possible to be at downright enmity with a brother, and yet have "nothing against him?" Is not the state of the heart in such a case of more significance than any personal trend of the reason?

Does not brotherly love involve tender sympathy, deep compassion and vital concern for a brother's welfare? If I really love my fellow Christian, will I not feel a lively interest in his religious status and progress? Will I not show a Christ-like concern for him if he goes astray, or becomes cold and indifferent?

Who among us is faithful and solicitous when a brother declines in activity and devotedness? Who goes after him, labors and prays with him, and never forsakes him till he is restored? And who does all this in a spirit that compells the conviction that we are seeking his good, not our own?

If I am to love my brother, am I not laying myself out to promote his interests both by example and by precept? What about that "new commandment" "that ye love one another?" Has that commandment any meaning, any binding obligation, any overwhelming responsibility in it?

Are we excused from what the early Christians considered a binding duty, to "do righteousness" and to "love .....in deed and in truth?" How shall we "know that we have passed from death unto life" if we do not "love the brethren?"

Now, brothers, how do you actually feel toward the brethren around you? Get down to hard pan, and see if there is any real gold dust in the foundation of Christian hope. May be your temper is wholly unlike that of Christ! Test it and see. An irritable, peevish, icy, critical temper is more like that of the world, the flesh and the devil than it is like that of the meek and lowly Nazarene.

In a normal Christian experience there is a spirit which "beareth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things," overcomes evil with kindness and suffers injury rather than to retaliate, and is alive and alert to do every possible good.

Measure your heart by this standard and see whether it is more than about one-half inch in circumference. —Christian Advocate

People who think are the ones who act.

The really good man is the strongest man in the world.

Reputation is what men and women think of us; character is what God knows of us.

Christ has glorified poverty, failure and suffering, as this world counts such things.—Light.

Neglected opportunities have gone into the past, and the only amend one can make is to faithfully improve the present moments. The undesirable past can be covered by the blood, but it can never be undone.

There are ten things for which no one has ever yet been sorry. These are: For doing good to all; for speaking evil of none; for hearing before judging; for thinking before speaking; for holding an angry tongue; for being kind to the distressed; for asking pardon for all wrongs; for being patient toward everybody; for stopping the ears to a tale-bearer; for disbelieving most of the ill reports.

We are authorized to announce the book written by Brother James W. Wilson, on the subject "Will it pay to become a Christian, notice of which was given some time ago, will be out early in December. Those who have not yet made good their pledges, are urged to do so at once. Send to Miss Lelia E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario st. Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Further announcement later.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

A Letter to a Friend

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism," This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1 50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

LELIA E. WHITEHEAD, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address as they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Any one desiring pictures of Illinois Bible School or Conference can secure them of the undersigned at 30 cents each for 5 x 7 size, postpaid. Post cards of Bible School 5 cents each or 45 cents per dozen, post paid. F. V. Plakely, 627 So. Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for each. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Wilson, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 7, 1910. NUMBER 45.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

A Song of Hope.

[Arthur Hugh Clough, born at Liverpool, England, Jan. 1, 1819, and died at Florence, Italy, Nov. 13, 1861, was said by Emerson to have been a poet of much power. The following is one of the gems he left.]

[illegible] when what is now is not,
When all [illegible] and follies are forgot,
[illegible] [illegible] passed the dreams away,
We'll meet again upon some future day.

When all that hindered, all that vexed our love,
As tall rank weeds will climb the blade above,
When all but it has yielded to decay,
We'll meet again upon some future day.

With happier mood, and feelings born anew,
Our boyhood's le gone [illegible] we'll review,
Talk o'er old talks, play as we used to play,
And meet again on many a future day.

Some day, which oft our hearts shall yearn to see,
In some far year, though distant yet to be,
Shall we, indeed—ye winds and waters say!—
Meet once again upon some future day?

Communicated.

Resurrection.

Knowing that God's sentence to Adam, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," is being literally fulfilled; and knowing that a future life, therefore, depends entirely on a re-living again, the subject of a resurrection becomes very important. When one has gone down in the death state, and moldered back to dust, our finite minds cannot grasp the power of God to reproduce that same individuality, to restore that same body; and if it is not the same, it might as well be a new creation.

Were it not for the oft repeated declarations in God's Holy Word of a resurrection, we might conclude, as does the infidel, that "death ends all," and faith, "abiding faith," in that Holy Word, is necessary to enable us to rely on those promises. What is faith? Heb xi 1 says, "The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." As we have not seen any one raised from the dead, it is, therefore, a matter of hope. Hope is composed of desire and expectation. We desire a resurrection, and as it is promised it is expected, therefore a matter of hope.

We find resurrection positively declared or implied thirty-one different times. Job xix 25, 26, 27 says, "For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God. Whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me." We can draw no other conclusion from patient, faithful Job, than that he expected his body of flesh to be restored. Psa xvii 15 says, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness."

The Psalmist David here expresses himself in language very similar to that of Job.

Isaiah xxvi 19, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." What more positive, what more assuring, what more heart cheering could be said than this of Isaiah.

Next we will turn to good old Daniel, xii. 2, 3. "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to everlasting contempt. And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Daniel here not only affirms the fact of a resurrection but something of its conditions, of which, however, it is not our purpose to speak in this article.

Ezek xxxvii, typifies the resurrection, taught by Christ Matt xxii 28. 32, "Therefore in the resurrection whose wife shall she be of the seven? for they all had her. Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God. For in the resurrection they neither marry,' nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living."

Luke xiv 12, 13, "Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind. And thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee; for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just."

John v 25-29, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself. And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man. Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice. And shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." Here again as in Daniel, conditions are mentioned.

John xi 23-25, "Jesus saith unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

In verse 24 Martha expresses a knowledge and hope in harmony with good old Job, "In the latter days," giving strength to the thought. Then all along down the ages God's people believed in, and relied on a future resurrection of the dead: and this thought is strongly supported by Paul in Acts xxiv 14-16. "But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets." Here Paul declares that the law and the prophets taught the resurrection of the dead. But it would lengthen our article too much to quote all on this subject. We wish to notice briefly the manner of the resurrection. The 15th chapter of 1 Cor is devoted largely to the subject in hand, and the first part largely to the fact of a resurrection, but in the 35th verse the question is raised as to "how the dead are raised, and with what body do they come"? Paul goes on with his argument detailing the resurrection. In verses 42, 43, 44, the "it" we understand to be the body, and is so expressed in verse 44. Verses 51 to 54 give more in detail.

1 Thes iv 13 to 18 reads, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the the Word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

Yes they are indeed comforting words; to know that God is able to resurrect, restore, bring back to life that body that has mouldered to dust, and that he has promised that he will do it is truly consoling.

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Rev xx 6

Life is not so short but there is always time enough for courtesy

Eternal Life in Christ Only.

The vast majority of those who profess to believe the Bible claim that it teaches that man was created at the beginning an immortal being, but notwithstanding such claims and belief this is certainly not the case, although so-called great theologians in many ages have taught this, from Origen down to the present time. God and his Word is greater than all the theologians that have ever lived, and he states most emphatically that man is a mortal being, and at death returns to dust, and all the quibbling about man being created an immortal soul, is only a repetition in other words of the serpent's lie to Eve in the garden, "Ye shall not surely die." That falsehood has deluded billions of the human race. God said to Adam after he had transgressed, Genesis iii. 19, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken, for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."

In Genesis iii. 23 24, God says, "Behold the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil, and now lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and live forever; therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man, and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden Cherubim and a flaming sword which turned every way to keep the way of the tree of life."

God did this to prevent man from getting at that tree which would have given him immortality, and yet all orthodox theologians claim that he had inherent immortality on account of his very creation. God and man start out here in dealing with man from an entirely different standpoint. The theologians claim that man has or is an immortal soul, and assume that wherever soul occurs in connection with man it means an immortal entity.

Professor Driver of Oxford, one of the greatest living Hebrew scholars says, speaking of Genesis i 21, A soul in the psychology of the Hebrew is not peculiar to man; it is the principle of life, sensibility in any animal organism.....The rendering of creature obliterates a distinctive characteristic of Hebrew thought. Here the term denotes all kinds of aquatic organisms, including even the lowest."

The translators of the Bible as a rule have been careful to conceal this fact, but all persons at all acquainted with Hebrew must be aware of it. Mr. Driver gives many instances in the Hebrew Bible where the word soul occurs in connection with animals. He says Compare Ez-kiel xlvii. 9, All souls that swimeth, of fish and of other sentient things. Also in Genesis i 24, the word soul occurs, but is carefully left out by the translators. Gen. ix 10 the Hebrew word nephesh is rendered living creature; also in verses 11, 12, 15, 16, and in Leviticus xxiv. 18, it should read "He that smiteth the soul of a beast shall make it good soul for soul." He further says "the Leviticus xi 20 23 shows that the word soul is applied to insects in the Hebrew."

Through the whole of the Scriptures eternal life or immortality is represented as something to be sought for, and as a gift to be given by God through Jesus Christ. Paul in Rom. ii. 7, "To them who by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory, honor and immortality, eternal life." What an absurd thing it would be to ask people to seek for immortality if they already possessed it at their birth!

Jesus said to Mary, John xi. 25, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." Again he says in John v. 28 29, "Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of condemnation."

Christ there shows clearly and positively that he is the one to give man eternal life, and that at some future time to the time he was speaking, and that those who were to get this life from him were not in heaven when he came to raise the dead, but were sleeping in their graves. To this idea all Scripture agrees. Paul reasons in 1 Corinthians xv. that if the dead are not raised there is no life, no hope of any man. Some philosophers of the Platonic school had crept into the Corinthian church. They believed like our modern theologians that man was inherently an immortal being, consequently they had no use for a resurrection of their old bodies from the grave. But Paul takes square issue with them in that chapter, and asserts that if there is no resurrection of the dead then there is no life or hope for man in the future, and his argument is such that he does not leave a loophole for such philosophers to creep out at. Yet strange to say, men with immortal souls as their basis of belief, will gravely read this chapter year after year at funerals and other times, and never seem to see that it destroys every vestige of the idea that man is naturally an immortal being.

Paul says in 1 Corinthians xv. 32—"If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me if the dead rise not? Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." According to the belief of the saints going to heaven at death, which is never taught in the Bible, Paul would have been in a good case after death although he was never raised out of the grave, because his immortal soul would go to heaven when he died, and his mortal body remain in the ground would not be of such consequence, if as is generally asserted by orthodox theologians that the immortal soul or the spirit, for they use the two words interchangeably, which the Scripture does not do, is capable of the highest enjoyment after death in heaven, before the resurrection.

Paul did not believe any such thing. Consequently he contended for the necessity of a resurrection from the dead, and was willing to suffer all things which he did in earnestly contending for life in Christ only. No eternal life for any son of Adam outside of him, and that belief so earnestly taught by Christ and all the apostles is one of the most essential elements of the gospel.

God has demanded in all ages that his Word shall be believed and obeyed, just as he has spoken it, and he punished the Jews again and again because they did not do this, and then scattered them to every country and clime in the earth because they would not believe and obey him. God is the same today, yesterday and forever, and will allow no one to play fast and loose with his Word. If we wish to attain to eternal life we have to believe and do just what he has spoken in his Word.

A. WALLACE MASON.

The Prayers of David, the Son of Jesse, are Ended.

How few of God's creatures realize the force of these words! The "little flock" to whom the Father has promised the kingdom can and do realize their force. Our prayers must harmonize with the promises given to the sweet singer of Israel. The son of Jesse could ask for no more than is promised in the Psalm from which these words are taken. Psalxx. Jehovah stated to Moses, "As surely as I live I will fill the earth with my glory." Isa xl 9 says, The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. In Habii we read, For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. This will be done by Jehovah removing the curse that now rests upon the race and the earth—his purpose was that the earth would remain in the condition in which he had created it. Until sin entered there was nothing to mar the whole creation. Because of disobedience the curse was shut up unto sin and a called a redeemer to liberate them. Because of this the earth was cursed. It was from that time that the ground was cursed. The race was to eat of it in sorrow. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth. With the natural eyes we see these conditions existing. By faith we can see the reverse of these things. John saw the time when there should be no more curse. Rev xxii. Isaiah saw when the wolf will dwell with the lamb. The leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion and the fatling shall lie down together, and the little child shall lead them. The sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice's den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree; and it shall be to the Lord for a name for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off.

Again we read, when the poor and needy seek water and there is none, and their tongue fails for thirst, I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them. I will open rivers in high places and fountains in the midst of the valleys. I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water. I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the shittah tree and the myrtle and the oil tree; I will set in the desert the fir tree and the pine and the box tree together. That they may see and know, and consider and understand together that the hand of the Lord hath done this and the Holy One of Israel hath created it. Can man raise his puny arm and weak voice against all of these promises? The man of the flesh is doing so, but he can avail nothing. The enemies of the Lord shall lick the dust. When these things shall have been accomplished the morning stars will again sing together and the sons of God shout for joy. In contemplation of all these blessings no wonder that the prayers of David were ended. There was nothing more to pray for.

Note the wisdom in Psalm lxxii. Jehovah is to give his judgments to his king and his righteousness unto the king's son. He shall judge the people with righteousness and the poor with judgment. The mountains (kingdoms) shall bring peace to the people. His ruling shall not be oppressive but will come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth. In his days the righteous shall flourish and there shall be an abundance of peace. This king of righteousness shall have dominion from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth. All kings shall fall down before him; all nations shall serve him. This is the promise made to Abraham, "That his seed should possess the gates of his enemies and in him shall all families of the earth be blessed." Blessed is the man who has these promises firmly fixed in his mind and is diligently proclaiming the same to the nations of the earth. It is declared that his NAME shall endure forever; his name shall be as long as the sun, and men shall be blessed in him. All nations shall call him blessed. The above is the message preached by Jesus and his apostles. In the New Testament it is called the gospel of the kingdom of God. Philip preached it in the terms of the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. Paul reasoned with them out of the law of Moses and the prophets concerning Jesus and the kingdom of God. Jesus promised his apostles that they should occupy thrones and rule over the twelve tribes of Israel when he shall sit in the throne of his glory. It is further stated that when Jesus shall sit in the throne of his glory he will call before him all nations.

This will mark the beginning of the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. Paul calls the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he has purposed in himself. That is the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in the Christ both which are in the heavens and which are on earth; even in him. He further writes to the Ephesians that he hath raised us up together, and made us to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. That in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus.

Dear brethern and sisters, we are abundantly favored through Christ, and if we prove ourselves overcomers we shall receive the crown that is promised to the faithful. You should remember that you must be a doer as well as a hearer, in order to have an entrance into the kingdom. The Lord is coming to bless all nations.

Your brother laboring to be crowned when he comes.

Editor Restitution:

Sister Woodward met with the brethren in Adrian and Raisin on October 5 and 6; and gave us three of the most instructive and beneficial as well as eloquent gospel sermons. There was an extra large attendance at all the meetings which goes to show the interest is good.

We have a young People's Berean Class of fourteen members which meets every Friday evening. This class has been using the lessons put out by Bereans of the several states. But now is studying the subject "What must I do to be saved?" or "What is essential to believe for salvation?" Each one enjoys doing his or her part in this little service for the Master, realizing as returns, strength for the duties and light for the dark days of life.

We also conduct a Junior Berean class of girls Wednesday afternoon. This class has an enrollment of twenty members, whose years range from nine to sixteen. And will have been organized a year in December. This is a wide awake class and capable of accomplishing much for the Savior if directed wisely. They have given two excellent Christmas and Easter programs. And expect to repeat it this year. A collection is taken at each meeting which has enabled them to send two dollars for evangelist work of the State, carry flowers to the sick and shut in, and buy Bereans plus for each member. They will take up the study of "The life of Joseph" in a few weeks. The girls are from most every denomination in the city, and are anxious to search the Scriptures, and very faithful in attendance. It is our prayer and greatest ambition to so lead and instruct these dear girls in the "Words of Truth" that in turn they shall be so enthused by the Christ's command, "Go preach the gospel" that each individually will help scatter the seed of the kingdom of God far and wide.

There is some talk of starting a Church of God Mission. But no plans have been laid.

Saturday, Dec. 3, Sister Woodward will preach, "The Glad Tidings of Salvation" at the home of Sister Hartley, in Blissfield township, a short ride on the interurban car from Adrian. Then at the Raisin church Sunday morning Dec. 4, and at Adrian in the evening. We were glad to see so many of the brethren from the neighboring cities present at the last meetings and we are planning on their being with us again, lending their aid in this noble work of the Master.

Your Sister in Christ.

Eternal Life.

"With long life will I satisfy him." Psa xci 16.

I get a good deal of comfort out of that promise. I don't think that means a short life down here; seventy years, eighty, ninety, or even one hundred. Do you think that any man living would be satisfied if he could live to be one hundred years old and then have to die? Not by a good deal! Suppose Adam had lived until today and had to die to night, would he be satisfied? Not a bit of it? Not if he had lived a million years, and then had to die! But God is going to satisfy us with "long life." "endless life."—D. L. Moody.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DEC. 7, 1910.

THIS issue of our paper is sent out ahead of the date because there was no paper last week, and notices of importance will be sooner known.

BROTHER B. Kelroy who lived until recently at Waterloo, Iowa, wishes us to say that his address is now Glad Brook, Iowa. Let those interested make note of this.

FROM Brother G. Eldred Marsh we learn that he closed his meetings at Ripley on Sunday November 20, with the best attendance he ever saw during an entire series. Brother Marsh began meetings at Salem Church near Marshall, Illinois, on November 22d, expecting to be there till about Dec. 1st. From reports by the various church secretaries we judge that they are well pleased with the work of Bro. Marsh.

WE are receiving a good number of communications that will be given as fast as space will allow. Thank you brothers and sisters. We want to make our paper free from what some have complained of, and therefore ask our friends to choose topics that will tend to the edification and building up of the body, and not tearing down. Division and strife is to be deplored, and we want THE RESTITUTION free from any element that will gender strife and cause hardness. We have stated in private letters, and will say publicly, that if any brother has been misquoted, we are sorry for it, and on specific proof being furnished that such has been done in these columns, we promise that ample apology shall be made. Brethren, do not say harsh things, but if you differ with a brother, write kindly, and in love state your views, and then all interested can give both consideration. Write on the faith and hope of the gospel, what we ought to believe, what we ought to do, and how we ought to live. We want more of such articles, and fewer of the sort that only gender strife to no good result.

THE following letter dated Seattle, Wash. November 25, 1910, will tell to friends of the death of our dear Sister Dowle. May the kind Father in heaven sustain our Brother in this trying hour.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Just a few lines to say that Sister Dowle, my beloved wife, fell on sleep this forenoon at 11 o'clock, and will be interred at Lake View Cemetery at 3 o'clock Sunday.

In my next letter I will give account of our life and age in the truth. This will reach many brethren that knew us in years past that I cannot reach by letter at this time. My heart is sad as she bid me good by until the resurrection morning, when the mists are cleared away.

Love to all the brethren of like precious faith.

Your brother in hope,
GEORGE DOWLE.

The Bible.

This book contains the mind of God, the state of man, the way of salvation, the doom of sinners, and the happiness of believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its histories are true, and its decisions are immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you, and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveller's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword, and the Christian's charter. Here Paradise is restored, the door to the kingdom of God opened, and the gates of hell disclosed. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, and the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart, and guide the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory, and a river of pleasure. It is given you in life, will be opened in judgment, and be remembered forever. It involves the highest responsibility, will reward the greatest labor, and condemn all who dare to trifle with its sacred contents.—Selected.

The young man who came to Jesus for eternal life had youth, wealth, and character, yet he was dissatisfied and came to Jesus to find out what he yet lacked. If he as a moral young man was not satisfied, how can the sinner expect to be happy living in the grossest wickedness?

Communicated.

Dear Brother Underwood,

The brethren of the Church of God at Slate Hill and at Seven Fountains, Virginia, desire you to publish in THE RESTITUTION a brief report of the excellent Bible truths so ably presented by Brother S. J. Lindsay in a series of discourses delivered by him at the above named places. Brother Lindsay closed a good meeting near Browntown, Virginia, on October 16, 1910, a report of which you have had, and on the evening of October 17, began a series of meetings at Slate Hill, continuing till the evening of October 29.

The meetings were well attended and a good interest was manifested. On the morning of October 30, Brother Lindsay began a weeks meeting near Seven Fountains, with a good interest prevailing, also a good attendance. On Sunday morning, Brother Lindsay had the pleasure of inducting into Christ by baptism, Brother J. H. Andrews and Brother B. Frank Boyer. The brethren here gladly welcome them into their number.

From here he went to Emanuel Church, near Maurertown, for a weeks meeting, returning to Seven Fountains on the 14th, for another weeks meeting, which was much enjoyed by the brethren. He left a good interest and the brethren feel much strengthened and earnestly pray that our dear Brother may visit us again soon; for we feel that he can do much good in the Lord's cause. He made many friends while here and the brethren were much endeared to him also. We feel thankful to our Heavenly Father that we have had the pleasure of hearing so able an expounder of the blessed gospel message and trust our dear Brother will be spared to work many years in defense of the gospel.

Your Sister, in the Blessed Hope.

Editor Restitution:

I am at Central Point, Oregon, this Thanksgiving Day 1910. If I should try to enumerate the things I am thankful for it would require more space than I can be entitled to in your valued pages, so I will sum it up in the language of James that "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

I believe this with the same childlike confidence that I began to believe more than a half century ago, so I can say with a thrill of joy "Thou Merciful One, I am thankful to Thee."

I am starting on my return trip to Arizona. It gives me great pleasure to find names at Central Point that are associated with the events of my years of active evangelistic work. No name shows more prominently in my memory than that of Brother Meritt Elliott. But this shall not break up our songs of thanksgiving, for we expect to see him again, not at Central Point, but in that deathless land of which he loved to talk. Although the enemy is still at work we will keep up our yearly and daily thanksgivings, because the great thanksgiving morning draws near when the happy company of children of God shall shout "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Then they will hasten their tireless flight to the palace of their King where the song will be continued "Thou art worthy to take the Book and to open the seals thereof, for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred and tongue and people, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth."

I cannot think that the kings that shall reign with Christ will be selected because of their intellectual greatness or earthly notoriety, but rather on account of their imitating his lowly and meek spirit and pure life.

My object is to make my return trip through California by the S. P. R. R., and engage in teaching the gospel of the kingdom wherever opportunity is found. I have not planned and announced any definite work on the way but shall hope to accomplish something in making this long trip from Oregon to Arizona.

Your Brother in hope,
W. L. SKEELS.

Sunday School Lesson.

DECEMBER 18, 1910.

The Resurrection. Matt. xxviii. 1-20.

Golden Text—"Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Matthew xxviii. 20.

In the study of this lesson the important idea to keep in mind is—The Resurrection of Jesus—what does it mean to me?

In analyzing this lesson we should consider the darkness that precedes the dawn, the resurrection morning, the ascension of Jesus, and the last command given.

The enemies of Jesus sought to make sure their work. He was now dead and in the tomb. Over the minds of his disciples there was an intense darkness. He had promised so much, and they had see so many evidences of power displayed, that now to see him conquered and put to death, all their hopes fled—no wonder they were in dread and fear.

There is an important lesson to be found here. We learn that the scheme of redemption for man required that Jesus die, that his body be broken, his blood shed, else he could not be raised, and be the first to enter that new life to which his followers are invited. If he was not raised from the dead, his disciples could not be. Hence the importance of knowing that he was really dead. If the proof of his death was to be with his disciples, his friends, then it might be questioned later. They might even steal his dead body, and tell afterwards that he had come to life, and had ascended to his Father. But the case is not left with his friends. His enemies are determined, so after Pilate has given the body to Joseph, and it is placed in the tomb, the priests come to Pilate and ask that a guard be put at the sepulchre, as Jesus had said he would rise after three days. Pilate grants the guard of soldiers, and they seal the tomb, so as to be sure of Jesus staying there.

Let us look at the evidences of his death. When the soldier pierced his side with a spear blood and water came from the wound—a sure proof he was dead. The Roman officer was used to executions, and reported him dead. He was taken from the cross and placed in a new tomb, or vault, wherein no man had yet been laid, so that identification of the body was sure. The stone against the door, the seal, and the Roman soldiers as a guard, and the fact that the body was wrapped in linen with spices, all goes to show that friends and enemies all knew he was dead.

All this evidence against the story of the guards who were paid to say they slept, and his disciples stole the body away.

Classes where it is deemed best may struggle with the "three days and three nights" subject, and doubtless will find much satisfaction in again "settling" the question. To you and to me personally the facts that Jesus was actually dead, and that he really did rise from the death state, are the really important things. If he hadn't been dead he couldn't have been raised, and if he hadn't been raised we would have no assurance that we ever will be.

To get the story of the resurrection morning in mind the student should read the accounts given by the other gospel writers, and make a complete story of all that is said.

The study of the various appearances of Jesus after his resurrection is of interest, and should be gone over in this connection, and then the ascension comes as the crowning of a perfect life. Not as one dead on the cross buried from sight, but as risen in glory, attended by angels, a never living Savior, with the promise of a return. We do not worship a dead, but a living Christ.

In many Sunday Schools throughout the world today it will be taught that the resurrection of Jesus is the assurance that the death of the body is not the end of existence. That the soul lives on without this old mortal body, but receives a body in heaven, like to Christ's glorious body. That the fact that Jesus is now living is to us assurance that we are to live after death, that we have a work to do in heaven; that we will meet our loved ones there. That "the resurrection is the transition from a noble achievement to a higher and diviner opportunity." "It is for us to kindle the torches of our hopes and love from the flame of our risen Lord, till every heart shall be lighted throughout the world, each becoming a morning star in heaven."

To get these ideas one must first believe in the soul's natural immortality, and that when a man dies his soul leaves his body and goes to heaven, where his loved ones are enjoying the delights of the kingdom of God. Unless you have such ideas in your head to begin with you never could get such a conception from reading this simple narrative of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The facts are Jesus died—not just his body—but he himself. Whatever constituted Jesus died. He was raised to life, and by that we are assured of a similar experience. We die—all there is of us dies. To have any being hereafter we must be raised and have life given us, just as Jesus had.

Glorified! of course he was, and so will we be if we are accepted of him.

The simple narrative relates that he ascended to his Father, there to perform a specific and defined purpose, until a set time that is kept in the Father's mind. When that time is come, and the work of this age ended, Jesus will return and inaugurate a new order of affairs, and his saints will be raised, and be glorified, be given unending life. Reunions with loved ones will take place, and there will be no more partings. The work of the new age will commence, and the nations of the earth be blessed. Paradise will be restored, and the effects of the curse that came to man on account of disobedience will be cleared away, for there will be no more curse.

There is no promise of any immortal souls going to heaven, but men and women are raised from the death state and given life, glorious eternal life. This is what the resurrection did for Jesus, and he will die no more. So in like manner will we be raised and be given a life that will not end. That is what resurrection means. Plain and simple.

Jesus said to his disciples "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." He impressed on their minds that he was by his Father made supreme. He had authority now. He had overcome, and God had entrusted power and authority to him. Therefore he gives them a command—a last word of direction regarding what to do. He is going away, and they are to be left to carry on the work he has commenced.

"Go." Don't wait for people to come to you, but go to them.

"Teach." Teach what? Why, such a question! The very idea that any one would ask, teach what? There can be but one answer, "Teach them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Then having taught them, the next thing is to have them acknowledge that they accept the teaching; and so he says "Baptizing them." Unite them to my family, let them take the pledge of allegiance to my cause. So are they joined to my body—my church, and their Christian life is begun. Have them "observe," guard as they would precious things, what I have commanded you. Then the final assurance "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Two thoughts to carry away:—

How can we make our Church successful? By doing with our might the things for which it is in existence.

What is our greatest privilege?—That we are permitted (counted worthy) to have part in this work that Jesus left his disciples (not the world) to do.

Do we appreciate this high and exalted privilege?

Christmas Notice.

We wish to inform our many friends who have for so many years remembered the poor with us at Christmas time, that the Chicago Bereans will again this year, send out Christmas baskets to the widowed and the fatherless. Please send offerings to Gertrude Ellis, 8018 Washington Bl'vd, Chicago, Illinois. If sent after Dec. 19, please send to Leila E. Whitehead 5439 Ontario Street, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois. On account of the stress of work for our new Berean lesson books, we neglected giving an account of last Christmas work. We remembered nine families, and gave over five dollars in money. Two sisters from Texas sent us a box of dear little dolls, and a brother and sister in Michigan a bundle of woolen mittens and stockings, which found homes without searching far. I wish to emphasize the fact that no names are sent with our baskets. "In His Name" are they given, and to Him ascend the thanks of those whose burdens are thus lightened.

FORGIVENESS AND LOVE.

Dear Bereans:

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy, but I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." Matt. v. 3, 44.

"And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any; that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses." Mark xi. 25.

"If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? And this commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God loves his brother also." 1 John iv. 20, 21.

So we learn that by love and forgiveness to others we are forgiven also.

Your Sister in Christ.
NELLIE T. GESIN.

Dear Bereans:

It is with pleasure I add my letter to the Berean Column. We are many miles from the place we occupied when we joined the Berean Society, we may indeed be called isolated ones now, but we can work with you if we are isolated.

I am reminded of what dear Brother Wm. H. Wilson said when talking with us at the meeting in Pasadena, Cal., the last Sunday; he urged us to organize and by all means, he said, organize a Berean society, for he knew the good they were doing at points he had visited, so instructive for young and old alike. I know they are a help to us all, especially to the young, who are enquiring for the right path.

A very favorable report comes in THE RESTITUTION of the work done for the past year in Illinois, and we pray that more may be done in the year that is coming and going from us so fast, our time to work may be short, we know not the day nor the hour our Lord may come; if we are prepared for his coming what a glorious rest is promised to the faithful ones.

"O Christian, toil on,
Work, work, while 'tis day,
And soon a bright crown you will gain
In the land of the blest, the weary shall rest,
From labor, temptation and pain."

Your Sister, asking a share of your prayers and desiring a part in that rest promised to the faithful.

AZORAH M. SCROGGS.

WATCHFULNESS.

"Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." Matt. xxiv. 42.

Jesus had been telling his disciples the condition the world would be at his coming; that it would be as it was in the days of Noah, eating, drinking, marrying and giving in marriage—and knew not until the flood came and took them away. Verse 43. But know this, that if the good man of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up. So with us, as I once heard a brother say in the course of his remarks: "If we knew that Jesus was coming tomorrow, no doubt it would have a telling effect upon our lives." And we are commanded to watch self, in Luke xxi. 34, "And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares." It behooves us that have taken upon ourselves that Great Name; and are members of Berean classes, and are working with them, to strive to be in readiness "having our loins girded about and our lights burning like unto men that wait for their Lord, so that it may be the means of helping others to become obedient to him.

May we all be found among the number that are watching for his coming.

J. W. COOPER.

Dear Bereans:

I wonder how many have been noticing the various things that serve to point out that "the time draweth near" when we may expect the Christ. We read, "Ye shall hear of wars and commotions" and certainly now there is unrest among the nations. There is an undefinable something which seems to affect all people, though they may not acknowledge Christ's literal return and the establishment of his kingdom, yet they do acknowledge that times point to some change. Men's hearts are beginning to fail them for fear of the sin, disease and all manner of evils that are coming over the entire world. And yet there is hope in this for, "Be not terrified for these things must first come to pass." I think often when we read of the things that are to come to pass we feel that the time of Christ's return is a time to be dreaded. We hope it will not come in our lifetime. But on the other hand if we read farther we find there is escape from all this, and the promises to those whom Christ will find watching are many and glorious. "Watch ye therefore and always that ye may be accounted worthy to escape these things that shall come to pass and to stand before the Son of Man."

MRS. H. S. BELL.

LIFE.

Life is a gift from God. The first example of this gift of life we have recorded, was the creation of Adam, when "God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." Paul also speaks of it in I Cor xv. He said, "The first man Adam was made a living soul." Job says in the 12th chapter and 10th verse, giving the margin reading, "In whose hand is the life of every living thing and the breath of all flesh of man."

But how weak is mankind without the loving hand to help. We are as toddling babes, no, not even as strong as they, for Job says, "Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth as a shadow and continueth not."

David tells us in Psa. ciii. "For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. As for man his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it and it is gone; and the place thereof knoweth it no more."

God remembers our weaknesses and he holds out his loving hand to help us, that we should not fall. "The Lord is my light and my salvation, in whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?" Psa. xxvii. 1.

Paul says in Acts xvii. 28, "For in him we live, move and have our being, as certain also of your poets have said; for we are his offspring."

Is it not natural for parents to have every interest in their offspring; to show them the best way to do everything and the best way to live? This is what our Heavenly Father has done for us. We have been given a pattern as a guide to our lives, he is the only begotten Son of God. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." He is the Shepherd of the sheep, he leads his sheep and they follow him and know his voice. Strange sheep will not answer, for they do not know the voice of the Master. He says, "I am the Good Shepherd and know my sheep and am known of mine." Again he says, "I am the Good Shepherd, the Good Shepherd giveth life to his sheep." He is also food to us. He is the true bread from heaven. "For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven and giveth life unto the world." "I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread he shall live forever, and the bread that I will give him is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world."

Jesus died, that through him the world might be saved; but how many have turned away and rejected him. Jesus gives the reason. "How narrow is the gate of life! how difficult that way leading to it." Matt. vii. 14.—Diaglott. It is the little flock who will find the narrow gate.

Paul says in Romans vi. "Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him; for in that he died, he died unto sin once; but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God."

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

Paul tells us that our life is hid with Christ in God, and when Christ our life shall appear, then shall we appear with him in glory." Col. iii. 4.

Jesus also said, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive forevermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and death." Rev. i. 18.

Truly, we cannot express ourselves in words of gratitude for the great love God has shown us through his Son. Jesus is this gift of life. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The Endless Jubilee.

Eternal life is God's great gift
Through Jesus Christ our Lord,
To all who love and serve him now,
And love to hear his word.

This earth will be the home of saints,
With Jesus Christ their King;
All nature join to sing God's praise,
The echoes loud shall ring.

Both heaven and earth shall glorify
The King of kings above,
For He is good, oh, He is good,
To those who serve and love.

Earth's curse will then have passed away,
And sin and death shall flee;
Then God will bring to pass at last
The Endless Jubilee.

A. WALLACE MASON.

Evangelize and Pastors.

An isolated Sister writes [illegible] feeling: "I am sorry to say that our people are very selfish in sending our ministers out into the world to spread the Good News. It is not right for our people to keep a minister year after year preaching continually to them. This isn't spreading the good news, nor is it a Christian spirit. I do not wish to say an unkind word of our people who have church buildings, but their ministers have certainly told them the 'things of the kingdom and name of Jesus,' the gospel, the glad tidings of salvation through *re*pentance, reformation, acceptance, etc. Now that they have explained all this, there is no one else in the Church to tell the message to, so why do they not send him out into the world to preach to others, instead of closing their doors, feeling that they know they are right in what they believe—they know they are saved—and do not so much as get interested in the 'other fellow.' This is selfish. Yes they 'strain at a gnat and swallow a camel).' We are so weak, have 'outward' eyes, never can see our own fault, but always ready to see the other fellow's. Now, my dear brother, do not think I mean this for you, for I do not; you certainly are holding 'fast the form of sound words.'"

We sympathize with our sister in her remarks, because she is in isolation and feels what she says: her words come from the bottom of her heart. Evangelizing is certainly a very important work, and should be encouraged by all means, yet Scripturally it is secondary to pastoral superintendence over the flock. Converting a sinner is a great work, but keeping him converted is a greater work. That the pastoral office is more important than the evangelistic is apparent from Christ's charge to Peter. He did not say to him 'Convert the goats," but with triple emphasis "Feed my lambs—sheep." John xxi. 15 17. Just as the production of children is an important, and in its place an essential work, yet their bringing up properly, is more important; so the begettal of a sinner into the Christ-life is important, but the perpetuation and development of that life under pastoral care is without question a better work. We all like to see goats turned into lambs, but if they are not sheltered, fed, and given shepherd protection and pastoral care they starve or the wolves will devour them. I had rather save a sheep than convert a goat, 2 Peter ii. 21. There is room to fear that we have formerly given more attention to the goats than the sheep; that we have been evangelizing some when we should have been at home with our family, teaching and educating our children.

Don't call this "selfishness" too hastily. "Charity begins at home." Number one comes first according to both reason and Bible. If I do not first feed and clothe myself, how can I feed and clothe my neighbor? Our family first, then our neighbor; our sheep first, then the goats; the household of faith "especially," then "all men" as opportunity offers, Galatians vi. 10. Let the children be fed at the table first; the dogs can have the crumbs under the table, Matthew xv 26-27.

To give the evangelistic office precedence over the pastoral is to reverse the divine order and represent that a goat is of more worth than a sheep, a sinner than a saint. We have acted in the past as if the great thing was to teach some one the truth; after imparting this instruction we have been too indifferent about him. An evangelist comes to us, say once in a year, holds a series of meetings, baptizes a few half-instructed candidates, and turns them loose in the world; they are literally "sheep in the midst of wolves," unguarded and unshepherded. The minister remains with them only a few days, for he must hasten to another place, and "evangelize" them; so he leaves the lambs in the chilly and bleak winter of this world, and goes on to huddle together a few more sheep somewhere else to shiver and freeze and starve, and to be torn to pieces by wolves and other wild beasts. Such converts have a few theories in their heads but no practical piety in their hearts and lives, and are ignorant of duties, and the whole practical side of the truth. If corn cannot be raised without care and cultivation, how can you expect to raise Christians by evangelization only? "Feed the Church of God;" let us do this if we never evangelize another soul, Acts xx. 28.

To this it may be objected that church members have been taught the "things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," and there is "no one else in the church to tell the message to." True Preaching to well-instructed brethren don't spreading the good news." Very true. These objections honestly and frankly put as our Sister pointedly does, are forceful if "spreading the good news" and sending out the gospel "message" is all there is to do. But there is some thing else to be done—a higher, better work. It is comparatively easy for a man to arrange a few sermons and go out and evangelize, but quite another thing to fill the pastorate office successfully. Do not get the idea that we have exhausted our duty when we have told the good news. Evangelists may have the primary class; it takes pastors to graduate converts in the high branches of Bible lore.

You say, perhaps, if the evangelist has taught the converts the gospel, the good news, what more do they need? Well, they need "confirming" (Acts xiv. 22) in it, and to do this work the apostles "abode long time with the disciples," verse 28. They visited the churches to see how they were, Acts xv. 36 They called on them "in order" the necessary things of ecclesiastical life, 1 Cor. xi 34; Titus i 5 The epistles are all pastoral.

While we need evangelists, we also need more pastors. Let us not have one to the sacrifice of the other. Let us have both.

Nebraska Berean Lesson. No. 2.

NATURE OF MAN—SOUL CONSIDERED.

1. The word "soul" is first applied to man in Gen. 2nd chapter. Find the text, and decide what the soul is by Paul's quotation and comment upon the passage in 1 Cor 15th chapter.

2. According to the margin of Gen. 1st chapter, how many times is the word "soul" applied to the beasts before it is applied to man in the 2nd chapter?

3. Find a text in Num. 31st chapter which puts the souls of men and beasts together. Show how this classification destroys the idea that "soul" is the exclusive and immortal possession of man.

4. By using the margin in 2 Chron. 14th chapter find a statement in it that to your mind proves the mortality of man.

5. The first lie ever told is recorded in Gen. the 3rd chapter. What is it?

6. Prove by what Jesus says in the 8th chapter of John that bad results came of this lie, and state them.

7. Read the 3rd chapter of Gen. carefully, and then answer this question: Did the power of "living forever" inhere in the man or the tree?

8. What does this chapter represent God as doing to keep man from living forever? Do you think he succeeded in his undertaking? Given reason why.

9. Collect as much evidence as you can find in Job 7th chapter to prove that man does not live forever.

10. Is there anything said about the soul in this chapter that leads you to think it is mortal? Why?

11. Decide what death is by evidence you can glean from the 38th chapter of Isaiah.

12. And from the same chapter find and explain statements which show what is man's condition in death. Is he in a state of life and consciousness or of death and unconsciousness?

ANSWERS.

THE NATURE OF MAN'S SOUL CONSIDERED.

I. Paul says, "The first man Adam was made a living soul." Before man was made a living soul he was a lump of clay, therefore the soul would be a living lump of clay.

II In Gen. 1st chapter "soul" is applied to the beasts four times before it is applied to man in Gen. 2nd chapter. These four places are in vs. 20, 21, 24 and 30.

III. In Numbers 31st chapter 28th verse the word "soul" is applied to man and beasts, which shows that "soul" is not the exclusive and immortal possession of man.

IV. "O Lord, thou art our God: let not man prevail against thee." The literal translation of the Hebrew word for "man" is "mortal man."

V. The first lie, in Gen. 3rd chapter is where the serpent told the woman, "Ye shall not surely die."

VI. This "lie" deceives people and misleads them. They believe the lie because they are the children of the devil. He is the father of the lie.

VII. In Gen. 3rd chapter the power of "living forever" inheres in the tree.

VIII. God guarded the tree of life by placing flaming swords at the east of the Garden of Eden, which turned all ways. Yes, I think he succeeded in his undertakings. [You should here have given a reason why.—EDITOR.]

IX. Evidences in the 7th chapter of Job, which shows that man does not live forever, are found in the first verse. "Is there not an appointed time to man upon the earth?" 7th verse, "O remember that my life is wind." All of verses 9, 15, 16 and 21.

X. Verse 15 leads me to think that the soul is mortal because it says "So that my soul chooseth strangling and death rather than my life." His soul would not choose death if it could not die.

XI. Death is "the cutting off of days," "the taking away of life," also "not living."

XII. In death man is in a state of unconsciousness. In Isaiah xiii. 38. it says that "death cannot praise thee." "death cannot celebrate thee" and it cannot hope for truth.

PHILENA MCMILLEN.

I. The text in which soul is first applied to man is Gen. ii. 7. Paul in 1 Cor. xv. shows us that "soul" is that which God formed of the dust of the ground, which is man. When man was made he was a soul without life. God breathed into his nostrils and he became a "living soul." The first man was natural, earthly, unlike the second man, the spiritual.

II. The word "soul" is applied to beasts twice in Gen. 1st chapter, verse 20. The moving creature that hath life, margin; has "living soul." Verse 30. "Everything that creepeth upon the earth wherein there is life," margin, has "a living soul."

III. Numbers xxxi. 28, puts the souls of men and beasts together. "One soul of five hundred, both of persons, of beeves, of asses and of sheep." One soul of each was to be given as a tribute unto the Lord. If the word soul here meant an immortal part of man, the soul of beasts, must be immortal. But seeing beasts are only mortal, it proves man is mortal also. It was one man, one beast, etc. out of five hundred.

IV. Text 2 Chron. xiv. 11, "Let not man prevail against thee," Margin has "or mortal man." God is immortal and possesses power, which man does not. "Mortal" in the margin gives God the power over man as Asa infers by saying, "Let not," showing man did not possess immortality.

V. Gen. iii. 4. The serpent said, "Ye shall not surely die."

VI. Bad results come from this lie. "Ye are of your father, the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do." If they had believed God they would not have done the works of the devil, but of God. Verse 47, "Ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God." Because of their unbelief they could not hear the words of God. In another place Jesus says "Ye shall die in your sins."

VII. The power of "living forever" was in the tree of life, and not in man.

VIII God said "Lest he eat and live forever," he would put cherubims (Cherubim is plural without the letter "s,"—EDITOR.) and a flaming sword to keep the way of the tree of life." If man had had access to this tree he would have lived in sin forever. God must have succeeded in his undertaking, else there would be no death. We have enough evidence to prove man dies.

IX "He that goeth down to the grave shall come up no more." Verse 10, "He shall return no more to his house, neither shall his place know him any more." Verse 21, "For now shall I sleep in the dust, and thou shalt seek me in the morning but I shall not be."

X Verse 15 Soul appears to be mortal. It is spoken of as a thing that can die.

XI. From Isa. xxxviii death is the opposite of life. Verse 1, In death time ceases. Verse 10, Death is the cutting off of life. Verse 12,

XII. The statement, "For the grave cannot praise thee; death cannot celebrate thee." Verse 18. Man is in a state of death and unconsciousness after he is dead, just the opposite to the living in verse 19.

ADA STALDEN.

I. The word soul is first applied to man in Gen. ii. 7. Paul in 1 Cor. xv. 45, quoting from Gen. ii. 7, says, "The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last man Adam who made a quickening spirit." The soul here refers to the body or form of Adam, that is he became a living body with powers and faculties of his own.

II According to the margin in Gen. i. the word soul is applied to beast twice before it is applied to man in the second chapter.

III. In Numbers xxxi. 28, we have a text which places the souls of men and beasts together. If the soul is immortal so also is the beasts of the field for they are referred to as souls in the above text in the same connection that man is.

IV In 2 Chron. xiv. 11, is a statement like this, "O Lord, thou art our God, let not man prevail against thee." We are referred to the margin and we find there "mortal man" which only emphasizes the fact that man is mortal and cannot prevail against God.

V. The first lie ever told is found in Gen. iii. 4, where the serpent spoke to Eve and said, "Ye shall not surely die."

VI This lie was the beginning of sin. Jesus tells us in John viii. 44, that these Jews who were seeking to put him to death were of the devil or sin, and that the devil was a murderer and a liar from the very beginning. The bad results are not only lies and murder, but anything which pertains to sin.

VII. Gen. iii. teaches that the power of living forever existed, not in the man, but in the tree.

VIII. This 3rd chapter of Genesis represents God as placing a barrier between man and eternal life which he cannot overcome, and eternal life can not be gained until God has taken away this barrier. God surely accomplished his undertaking, and the one great proof is that man does not live forever. If man did live forever there would certainly be no death.

IX In Job vii. 9, we have these words, "As a cloud is consumed and vanisheth away; so he that goeth down to the grave shall come up no more." In the 16th verse he also says that his days are vanity, also in the 21st verse it says that when thou seekest for him he shall not be, and in the 8th verse, marginal reading, it says, "I can live no longer." The first part of the verse reads thus, "The eye of him that hath seen me shall see me no more, thine eyes are upon me."

X. There is proof in this chapter that the soul is mortal, in the 15th verse. It reads, beginning with the 14th verse, "Then thou scarest me with dreams and terrifiest me through visions, so that my soul chooseth strangling and death rather than my life." There must have been a death for the soul to choose, or it could not have chosen it.

XI. Death is the cessation or end of one's life. The time when man has been overcome with God's laws to such an extent that there is no life.

XII. Man is in a state of unconsciousness when he is dead. In Isa. xxxviii. 1, it says in speaking of Hezekiah "Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live." This is surely a dormant state, dead and not living. In the 16th verse also it says "I shall behold man no more with the inhabitants of the world." From the 12th verse we have "From day even to night wilt thou make an end of me." The whole of the 18th verse goes to show that man is dead and without action.

CECIL ADAMS.

I. Gen ii 7. "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." 1 Cor xv. 45. "The first man Adam was made a living soul." The breath of life caused him to live. He was a soul before, but without life.

II According to the margin of Gen i. the word soul is applied twice to the beasts before it is applied to man in the 2nd chapter.

III. Numbers xxxi. 28, puts the soul of man and beasts together. This classification destroys the idea that the soul is the immortal possession of man, because it refers to the creature. One soul in five hundred, both of persons and beasts.

IV. The last part of 2 Chron. xiv. 11, proves to us that man is mortal, "O Lord, thou art one God, let not mortal man prevail against thee."

V. The first lie ever told is recorded in Gen. iii. 4, "And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die."

VI. Jesus says in John viii. 44, "Ye are of your father, the devil, he was a murderer from the beginning." The bad results coming from this lie is sin, and the "wages of sin is death" Rom. vi. 23 "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin." Rom. v. 12.

VII. The power of living forever was inherent in the tree, not in man.

VIII. "God drove out the man from the Garden of Eden, and placed a cherubim, and a flaming sword, to keep the way of the tree of life, lest he put forth his hand, and eat of it, and live forever." We know that God succeeded in his undertaking, because, we have learned from the Scriptures that man does not live forever. Eccl. iii 19. "For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts, even one thing befalleth them, as the one dieth, so dieth the other, yea, they have all one breath, so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast.

IX Job vii. 6, "My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle." Looking up the reference on that verse we find in Jas. iv. 14, "Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow; for what is your life; for it is a vapor, and appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away." 7th verse, "Oh remember that my life is wind, men's eye shall no more see good." 8th verse, "The eye of him that hath seen me, shall see me no more, thine eyes are upon me and I am not (Margin) I can live no longer."

X. Job vii. 15, says, "My soul chooseth strangling and death rather than my life." If a soul was immortal it could not choose death.

XI. In Isaiah xxxviii. we find that Hezekiah was sick unto death, and Isaiah the prophet said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die and not live." Since to die means not to live, death is the extinction of life. The meaning of the word death may be learned in the sentence that was passed upon Adam, "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return."

XII. It is plain to us that man's condition in death is a state of unconsciousness. Isa. xxxviii. 18, says, "For the grave cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee." The Psalmist says, "His breath goeth forth, in that very day his thoughts perish."

Some Thoughts on the Human and Divine Relation.

It is easy to mass Bible texts to mean almost anything. We as Bible students know how this has been done in the matter of the "immortal soul" theory, and others equally false. It is quite another thing to catch on to idea that is intended to be conveyed by the entire body of revelation, and I doubt if flesh and blood can ever reveal it to any of us. However, each of us can modestly submit his views on certain interesting themes which may be assimilated or rejected according as they are judged to be good or bad.

It is in this spirit that I submit these thoughts in an attempt to clarify the minds of the brethren on the above subject.

There are two views concerning the mission of Christ to humanity. One is that God in his wrath with the race demanded a propitiatory sacrifice, and Christ was the quid pro quo that "ransomed" us, some say to the Adamic plane—whatever that means—and others say to eternal life, which of course, being as he died for all, would be universal for humanity. There are an abundance of texts that can be woven together to support either or both of these views by people who make a business of compiling Scripture language in that way, but it seems to me that such ideas are just about as far from the main truths of revelation as one can very well get—do injustice to the character of the Heavenly Father, malign him before the world the flesh and the devil and mix things up generally, almost to "deceive the very elect."

The simple narrative of revelation is very different it seems to me, from this terrible "scheme of redemption" born of Rome and heathendom, and fostered by puritanism, Cotton Mather's theology and John Milton's poetry.

It is the story of the Father in heaven condescending to take the human race into his confidence, as it were, and by careful education, development and selection, through reason and expostulation, by messengers terrestrial and celestial, elevate it to a higher standard of spirituality, to victor and righteousness when it could be safely entrusted with the boon of eternal life—for under present evil and sinful conditions, eternal life would only mean perpetual unpleasantness, to put it mildly.

Now if this idea is any thing like true, the conditions are altogether the reverse of the popular idea, and the mission of Christ was a kind message from the Father of all to propitiate erring and reprobate humanity. The sacrifice of Christ was no "deal," no "bargain." The propitiation was God's propitiation, the "ransom" was "from our sins." The object was the purification and perfection of the human character. The drift of all, each and every thing in revelation, is toward this one end—to "prepare a people zealous of good works, who do justly, love mercy and walk humbly before God." The Old and New Testaments are one on this one point, both great "sticklers" for integrity, righteousness and "purity of heart." The divine attitude is begun for this purpose, and all God's dealings are to produce this effect. Christ's mission altered nothing in this one regard, for humble faith in the revelation of the Messiah, in anticipation, was as much a "means of grace" to the Old Testament saints as humble faith in Christ in retrospect and anticipation is to the New Testament saints; but faith without work was dead to both, and "the fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, temperance" alike in all ages.

Now this being the attitude of the Heavenly Father to humanity, what about the other side? Is humanity in a position to understand? Has it sense enough to be held responsible? In other words, do we as a race know what righteousness is, and what is iniquity? Of course no Bible texts will settle that; we each of us will have to appeal to our own experience, and judge of the people that we have mixed in with in our various perambulations, and I for one am ready to testify that after a half a century of conscious observation I am willing to admit that my neighbors have as much sense as I have, may be more in some instances. I observe though that intelligence and righteousness do not necessarily commonize. Now furthermore, for the last quarter of a century I have been a great reader of travels in all parts of the world, out of the way and to the way. No decently written book on this subject do I allow to pass me without at least an examination, but I have never come across a single traveller who bore testimony that human beings on any portion of earth's surface did not know the difference between right and wrong. Darwinism and evolution theorists to the contrary notwithstanding. Lieut J H Patterson "In the grip of the Naika"—where he relates his experiences in his explorations in the "North game reserve" in Africa, relates how the natives will disguise the truth to make it seem agreeable to the hearer, and therefore unreliable, and a traveller recently through China, Giles "A Yankee on the Yantse" although he speaks highly of the moral standard of the Chinese generally remarks that missionaries on the boundary between Burmah and China complained that a certain wild tribe there could not seem to judge of right and wrong apart from their personal interests. When I read both of these instances I thought of home.

Now gentle reader, when you want to know if a person knows what is right and what is wrong don't judge by what he or she does, listen to what he or she says when he or she criticizes his or her neighbors and friends; and notice what delicate and attenuated modifications of justice they are capable of comprehending. Is it not true furthermore, that the whole fabric of our government and laws are founded on the eternal truth of human responsibility? Only idiots and infants are not amenable, and the truth is that the so called heathen of all the various sorts, whatever their behavior may be, have quite as distinct a comprehension of the right thing and the wrong thing as others that imagine themselves much their moral superiors. The difference between the naked savage and the other kind is much more a matter of clothes than most people imagine, and a frock coat and silk hat does not improve the moral tone of a natural cannibal (the Congo State and Belgium for instance).

Now if it is true that the Lord God Almighty is attending to all this—"standing in the shadow keeping watch above his own," isn't it reasonable to suppose that he can count up all the locals in Sodom that are worth delivering? If he is waiting ready to redeem the whole paraphernalia of mutuate hand surely his arm is not shortened. But of course if redemption is a "deal" and the Maker of heaven and earth must stand by his "bargain" that is another story.

We want a lot of New Subscribers, and with a little effort you can get us one or more. We do not ask you to work for us for nothing, but will pay you for what you do. Here is our offer to you:

For a New Subscriber at the regular rate of $1.50 per year, we will send to any address you name

10 copies of "A Letter to a Friend"

or

One Pound of other Tracts,

or

One-half Pound of Tracts and 5 copies of A Letter to a Friend.

This will enable you to earn a supply of tracts to distribute among your friends, and perhaps start some one on the way to the Kingdom.

LOOK AGAIN, PLEASE!

We have a number of copies of "The Word of the Kingdom" which originally sold at $1.50. This is a work gotten out by Brother John O. Woodruff before he died. Only a few copies remain, and they will make excellent presents. While they last we will mail you one Free, if you will send us

Two New Subscribers.

JUST LOOK AGAIN, PLEASE!

We have on hand some copies of the Emphatic Diaglott. All of our readers known what it is—a word for word translation of the New Testament, by Brother Benjamin Wilson. There is a column with a line of Greek and beneath it the equivalent English words so the reader may know just the word that is used. A very valuable help in Bible study. We will give you one of these books Free if you will send us

Four New Subscribers.

We trust our friends in Canada will remember that the present agreement with the United States forces us to pay extra postage on papers sent to Canada. This compels all publishers to charge 50 cents a year more to the subscribers in that country. This makes our rate to you $2 00 instead of $1 50. We have said before, and now repeat, that if any brother living in Canada thinks we should not add this extra postage, and declines to pay it, send your $1 50 and we will provide THE RESTITUTION to you. We will have no quarrel with a brother about so small a matter.

Dear Restitution:

The Church of God at Ripley, Ill. has had a series of good meetings conducted by our State Evangelist Brother Marsh of Oregon, Illinois. Meetings began November 10th and continued until the 20th.

This was Brother Marsh's first visit to us, and we hope he may come here again. He is capable of rightly dividing the Word of Truth, and presents it in a pleasing and forcible manner. The audiences were large, and seemed very much interested, yet there were no additions. But God's Word is sure, and he says it will not return unto me void, Isaiah lv. 11, so we have hope the good seed of the kingdom sown will bring forth much fruit.

Your Sister in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes,

JENNIE COX, Sec.

Notice.

The first quarterly meeting of the Illinois Evangelist Board for the present Conference year will be held at Adeline, Illinois, Saturday and Sunday December 10-11, 1910. A cordial invitation is extended to the brethren to attend this meeting.

G. ELDRED MARSH, Sec.

If You're Happy Pass it Along.

We love the man with the rose on his tongue; the man who sees the boy's dirty face, but mentions his bright eyes; who notices your shabby coat, but praises your studious habits; the man who sees all your faults, but who is quick to praise and slow to blame. We like to meet a man whose smile will brighten up deadness; whose voice is full of the music of birds; whose handshake is an inspiration. He makes us forget our troubles as the raven's croak is forgotten when the woodthrush sings. God bless the man of cheer! There is plenty of trouble here and we need no increase of it. There is a lot of dying done ahead of time!

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

SOME days ago we mailed statements to a number of our brethren, but all have not yet responded. We wish they would do so quickly. Also hope all who can will remit their renewals without waiting for statement. Most of you know how your account stands, and you can save us a large amount of work and outlay by saving us sending notices. Please brethren, attend to this.

WE are authorized to announce the book written by Brother James W. Wilson, on the subject "Will it pay to become a Christian, notice of which was given some time ago, will be out early in December. Those who have not yet made good their pledges, are urged to do so at once. Send to Miss Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario st. Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Further announcement later.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Then upon the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10628 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

Berean Pins.

The price of gold Berean pins is $1 50 apiece. The cost of labor has increased, thus increasing the cost of the pins. Will those desiring pins please send in your orders before Oct. 1st; and as the pins must be paid for in advance, will you please send money with order. If you wish a pin sent by registered mail, please so state when ordering.

A Sister in the faith—not an invalid—desiring to spend the coming winter in Southern or Western California, would like a position as domestic helper in a family of believers. For particulars and address, please address this office.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Any one desiring pictures of Illinois Bible School or Conference can secure them of the undersigned at 30 cents each for 5 x 7 size, postpaid. Post cards of Bible School 5 cents each or 45 cents per dozen, postpaid. F. V. Blakely, 627 So. Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were reneated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form., the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 185 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free: or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address W L Tomlinson 10837 Orville Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Judge Not.

Judge not; the workings of his brain
And of his heart thou canst not see;
What looks to thy dim eyes a stain,
In G-d's pure light may only be
A scar, brought from some well won field,
Where thou would'st only faint and yield.

The look the air, that frets thy sight,
May be a token, that below
The soul has closed in deadly fight
With some internal foe,
Whose phance would scorch thy trailing grace,
And even thee shuddering on thy face.

Do his thou darest to despise—
May be the angel's darkened hand
Has suffered it, that he may rise
And take a firmer, surer stand;
Or, trusting less to earthly things,
May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge none lost; but wait and see,
With hopeful pity, not disdain;
The depth of the abyss may be
The measure of the height and pain
And love and glory that may rise
This heart to God in after days.

Thanksgiving Services.

The little ecclesia at Salem took advantage of the day given for the offering up of thanksgiving to the Giver of all good things both temporal and spiritual.

At ten o'clock we met for praise and prayer and exhortation. The meeting was opened by reading the 67th Psalm, which Psalm was the selection of Sister Juergenson of Raberton, Ohio, who was not able to be with us, she and Bro. Juergenson regretting very much their inability to be present, but sending us by letter beautiful words of praise and thanksgiving. After a song of praise, an article entitled, "Giving Thanks," by Bro. Moore of Cleveland was read which was as follows:

To whom does the world of today give thanks, to whom attribute all blessings and favors? Evidences show that the highest thoughts of men are for self glorification. Is their aim, that God the creator and sustainer of man and all things terrestrial may have the pre eminence? No, this is not the age for that. The age is styled by wise ones, the age of reason, and man's supremacy, but by God foolishness. I do not wish to belittle man's achievements in temporal and mechanical things. No, we enjoy many comforts and blessings our forefathers had not sought out, but man is either in ignorance or neglectful of the fact that it is a God given intelligence that is working out through human agency that which he pleases.

The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof, and the powers that be are ordained of God, and have fulfilled his predictions all down through the ages. So we today give him all the glory and thanks and praise for all things we see and know and enjoy that are in accord with his will.

Dear brothers and sisters, we thank our heavenly Father today for the light of his truth, which points out to us every false way, and say with David, I will praise thee with uprightness of heart, when I shall have learned thy righteous judgments. Thy Word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against thee. Psa cxix whether we eat or drink or whatsoever we do let us do all to the glory of God. If we walk in the light as he is in the light we have fellowship one with another and the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin. God's Word is his power unto salvation to every one who believes it, but the light shineth in the darkness and the darkness comprehended it not, darkness covers the earth and gross darkness the people regarding God's revealed purpose. But you brethren are not in darkness that the return of our Lord should take you unawares. You are the children of the light and of the day. These are the blessings we thank our dear heavenly Father for, and if we have trusted in him, have learned his purpose, we will in love strive together for the hope of the gospel, patiently assuring each other what the will of God is, so that we may with one heart and one mind glorify God, whom to know is life eternal.

We thank him most of all for that unspeakable gift that whosoever will believe unto him may not perish. We thank him for all the ordinances of his house which are calculated to draw us nearer to him and each other, and to build us up in those things which make us wise unto salvation. How firm a foundation ye saints of the Lord, is laid for your faith in his excellent Word. Let us continue to build on this rock foundation, the most important Word to us today is our Lord's last words, Watch, behold, I come quickly, hold that fast which thou hast that no man take thy crown. May his Spirit ever guide us.

Your brother and sister.
CHARLES & LOUISA MOORE.

Following this were exhortations and verses expressing the thanksgiving of those present.

Sister Farmer, Eph v 20: Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Sister Baker, Psa cxxxiii: Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. It is like the precious ointment upon the head, and as the dew of Hermon that descended upon the mountains of Zion, for there the Lord commanded the blessing even life for evermore.

Sister Buckman, Col xv 16: Let the peace of God rule in our hearts, to which also ye are called in one body and be ye thankful. Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

Bro. Morton, Psa cxvi 17 18: I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord, I will pay my vows unto the Lord, now in the presence of all his people.

Sister Morton, Psa cvii 21 22: Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men, and let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving and declare his works with rejoicing.

Brother Buckman, Rom xiv 6, He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord, and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks, and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.

Sister Townsend, Psa xcv 3: Dear brothers and sisters, again we have met together on this thanksgiving day to render thanks to our heavenly Father for the many benefits we have received in the past, and for the great and precious promises of the future. In speaking to one another let us always remember what the Lord has in store for us, and be thankful that we have believed and obeyed the gospel. Come let us sing unto the Lord, let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation, let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms, for the Lord is a great God above all gods.

Brother Townsend, Eph v 20: Brothers and sisters, another year has passed and our Lord has not returned, so we have met again to offer thanksgiving and praise to God who has so graciously given us all things. I feel thankful this morning for the fruitful season, for food and raiment, and especially I am thankful for the great provision God has made in his holy Word whereby we may have eternal life. Let us give thanks always for all things unto the Father in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Brother Barber, John i 3 4. That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us. And truly our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ, these things write we unto you that your joy may be full.

Brother Pottorf, 1 Thes v 18, In every thing give thanks for this is the will of God concerning you.

Sister Pottorf, Col iv 2, Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving

Sister Annie Burton, Isa li 3, For the Lord will comfort Zion, he will comfort all her waste places; he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord, joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody.

Sister Ella Knowles, Isa lii 7, How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Zion, thy God reigneth. The ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads, they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Sister Mary Knowles, Psa xxvi 2, 3, 7, examine me, O Lord and prove me, try my reins and my heart, for thy loving kindness is before mine eyes, and I have walked in thy truth; that I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving and tell to all thy wondrous works.

Dell Snyder, Phil iv 6: Be careful for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God.

Ethel Neill, Psa xc 1, 2, 7: O come let us sing unto the Lord, let us make a joyful noise to the Rock of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with Psalms. O come let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord our Maker.

Carey Buckman, Phil iv 6, which was already quoted, and what a good selection for a little Sunday scholar. We were surely pleased to have him unite with us in thanksgiving.

Sister Burton and Sister Crawford, Psalm 100:5, it was also chosen by Brother and Sister Westfall who wished to unite their thanksgiving with ours in praises to our heavenly Father for all his goodness. Make a joyful noise unto the Lord all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness, come before his presence with singing. Know ye that the Lord he is God, it is he that made us and not we ourselves. We are his people and the sheep of his pasture. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise, be thankful unto him and bless his name, for the Lord is good, his mercy is everlasting, and his truth endureth to all generations.

Sister N. B. Robison, "Sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving." Sing praise upon the harp unto our God; who covereth the heavens with clouds, who prepareth rain for the earth, who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains. He giveth to the beast his food, and to the young ravens which cry. Psa cxlvii 7 9. The eyes of all wait upon thee; and thou givest them their meat in due season. Thou openest thine hand and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. Psa cxlv 15 16. Jehovah says by the Prophet Isaiah, To whom will ye liken me, or shall I be equal, saith the Holy One; Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things that bringeth out their host by number; he calleth them by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth.

The Psalmist says, The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge." Psa xix 1-2. Paul tells us in Rom i 20, The invisible things of him from the creation of the world (cosmos) are clearly seen, being understood by the thing that are made, even his eternal Godhead; so that they are without excuse. Verse 19. That which may be known of God is manifest in them.

Paul could truly say, They are without excuse. He also says, When they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, they became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened." "The Lord taketh pleasure in them that fear (reverence) him in those that hope in his mercy." "How manifold are thy works, O Lord, in wisdom hast thou made them all, the earth is full of thy riches. Brothers and sisters, Let us lift up our eyes and behold the wonderful things around us, remembering, "That it is by the greatness of his might, that he is strong in power."

"Say unto God, how terrible art thou in thy works, through the greatness of thy power shall thine enemies [illegible] unto thee. All the earth shall worship thee, and shall sing unto thy name. Psa lxvi 3 4. Praise the Lord, give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good his mercy endureth forever. Who can utter the mighty acts of the Lord, who can show all his praise. Blessed are they who keep judgment and he that doeth righteousness at all times. Remember me, O Lord, with the favor that thou bearest unto thy people. O visit me with thy salvation. Psa cvi 3 4.

Brother Robison: The Lord reigneth let the earth rejoice; let the multitudes of isles be glad thereof. Clouds and darkness are round about him; righteousness and judgment are the habitation of his throne. A fire goeth before him and burneth up his enemies round about. His lightnings enlighten the world; the earth saw and trembled. The hills melted like wax at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth. The heavens declare his righteousness and all the people see his glory. Confounded be all they that serve graven images that boast themselves of idols; worship him, all ye gods. Zion heard and was glad; and the daughters of Judah rejoiced because of thy judgments, O Lord. O Lord, for thou Lord art high above all the earth; thou art exalted far above all gods. Ye that love the Lord hate evil. He preserveth the souls of his saints; he delivereth them out of the hands of the wicked. Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart. Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness.

The above Psalm directs our minds to the future when Jehovah shall have filled the earth with his glory. The Lord reigneth. The earth and the multitude of isles rejoice at it. Right eousness and judgment are the establishment of his throne. The hills (governments) melt like wax at the presence of the Lord of all the earth. Zion heard and was glad. Judah rejoiced because of the judgments of the Lord. The kingdom is the Lord's and every thing in the earth. Jehovah hath crowned his year with gladness. The adversary of our God has been bruised. He hath redeemed his saints from the dominion of death. He hath beautified the meek with salvation. He hath clothed them with righteousness. Rejoice all ye nations that are saved, for it is through the loving kindness of our God that salvation has been wrought. We give thanks for the many temporal gifts that have been bestowed upon us during the year and the spiritual blessings of which we have been made recipients. Let us not forget that these are but for a day, but our future blessing is for eternity, for which let us render thanksgiving full and complete. Sing unto the Lord, for he cometh to judge the earth with righteousness and the people with equity. Bless his holy name.

Sister Neill, Heb x 21 to 24 in conclusion. And having an high Priest over the house of God, let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering for he is faithful that promised.

At the close of the services, all the brothers and sisters gathered at the home of Brother and Sister Morton and partook of the good things provided to sustain this life. Although storm clouds gathered in the afternoon and the rain fell heavily, all was peace and harmony in the household, and none regretted having met for the express purpose of rendering unto God the thanks due unto his holy name. It is at such times we are drawn closer to the Father and the Son and to each other as one family in the Beloved, and the memory of these pleasant times linger long with us. May the Father keep us in the unity of the Spirit until the day of redemption.

This is Business.

The true Christian religion is not merely a fanciful imagination or an ornamental calling; it is a matter of business that must be worked out on business principles.

When one reaches the years of accountability he finds himself without any permanent abode whatever, he may be permitted to hold his present temporary possessions here secure and ten years; but there is no certainty.

He may be carried out from his beloved possessions before the close of another day, and it is certain he can carry nothing away. He must leave all to the temporary possession of others. Perhaps they may hold their claim a few days, possibly a very few years.

So we see, if we would have a permanent abode, an everlasting home, we have to act, and act in a business way, as a rational being should. Yes, the promised land is all taken up from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. What are you going to do about it? God will give you eternal life if you will find a place to use it.

Going to heaven! No! no! The Savior says, "No man hath ascended to heaven." David (the man after God's own heart) has not ascended up to heaven. "The heaven, even the heavens are the Lord's but the earth hath he given to the children of men."

The question again confronts you, What will you do? Some think to do nothing and be nothing, and find an everlasting home in hell. Not so, God will not bestow his priceless gift of eternal life upon one to mar his universe in such a fruitless way, and more even hell itself will finally be destroyed.

The gift of eternal life is offered only to those who seek for glorious and honorable conditions to spend it in. If you do not respect the gift (eternal life) enough to seek a home you will be blotted out, as though you had not been. Destroyed. God will leave nothing to mar the glory of those who take up a home in his promised land.

What then will you do seeing the Lord has reserved heaven for himself and is going to destroy hell, and the promised land is all taken up?

Suppose you were a renter of the temporal home and begin to see such conditions surrounding you? You will get down to business and begin to seek diligently for a home.

Well, if we do find all the promised land taken up let us see if we can't find a chance yet. To whom was the land given (or promised?) Let us search out the old titles and see who has a good title to the land.

Gen xii. 7; xiii. 14 16; xv. 8; xvii 8 We find Abraham with a clear, undisputed title given him from the Creator of the land promised, and confirmed the promise by an oath. You have found the man who has a good title. Who could ask a better than an oath bound agreement from the Creator of the land? But what is that to you, if you are a Canaanite or some other of the heathen Gentile nations? This land is to Abraham and his seed and you are (by nature) nothing to Abraham. We Gentiles are "Strangers to the covenants of promise and without hope in the world," Eph. ii. 12, but don't despair, God is a merciful God and would not have opened our eyes to this desperate condition had he not in his mercy made abundant provisions for us to find the desired home. Glory be to God, he has sent the message by his servant Paul, "If ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs to the promised land." Yes, Paul tells us in a plain business way how to become heirs to Abraham. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise."

Does it not pay for the effort, joint heirs to kingdoms, thrones, lands and

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of Kings and the immortalized saints as joint-heirs will rule in the government of the nations the restoration of Israel, the literal resurrection of the dead; the translating of the living saints, and the final overthrow of the wicked and their power, wherever found. Golden Text for Christmas: For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior which is Christ the Lord." Luke ii

The last Review lesson we had was on October 23, and beginning with October 30 the lesson was the Anointing of Jesus. When Judas accosted one of the disciples I must find fault with the waste of ointment. Jesus rebuked him, and declared she had done a good thing, for we would see Jesus no more, but the poor would be with them always. He knew Judas was not sincere in his consideration for the poor, and while the act of Mary is a memorial told in all the years wherever the incident is related, Judas left behind him a name that spells infamy.

The Last Supper was the lesson for November 6, and we learned that a covenant is made between God and his people, and in commemorating this Last Supper is shown the union, the oneness of Christ and his disciples, looking forward to the time when Jesus will again eat with us in the Father's kingdom. The Lord's Supper should be the most important service of the Church today.

For November 13 we had the usual Temperance lesson, when we learned how easily bad habits become fixed upon us, and how watchful we should ever be lest we be overcome.

On November 20 we left Jesus in Gethsemane, where he gained that notable victory over self, and could say "Not as I will, but as thou will." Judas betrayed his Lord with a kiss, for a money consideration. Do we have each hour of our lives as we ought to do? We are in God's presence even as was Judas, so let us be careful lest we forget.

The Trial of Jesus came in the lesson of November 27 when was a masterful change of the priests had already decided what course he would be, and the way it was carried on was against their own laws. The accusation broke to them in Pilate was false and his decision the work of a coward.

On December 4 we had Peter's denial, when in the man who was so prominent as a disciple and was so positive in his mind that he could stand firm and true in a moment of weakness yielded to the accusation, pulse of self preservation, and denied his Lord. The crowing of the cock and the glance of his Master recalled him to a realization of his act, and he went out and wept bitterly. Until after life proved the sincerity of his repentance.

December 11 came the lesson on The Crucifixion, when Jesus was "wounded for our transgressions" and "bruised for our iniquities." Jesus willingly endured all this that we might have a way to escape from our sinful condition. To refuse to accept his loving service is base ingratitude—a crime indeed.

The Resurrection was the lesson for December 18, and we worship a Savior who was dead, but is now alive forevermore. We learned that Jesus—all there was of himself—was dead, and the evidence of both his friends and enemies was to that effect. He was given life, and now lives, having broken the power of the enemy, and opened a way for his followers to come from the death state and live again eternally. Do we realize fully the privilege we have of becoming his sons and daughters? It is a higher honor than earthly fame and honor can bestow.

Any class wishing can easily take Luke ii 8 20 and make a Christmas Lesson either as supplementary to the Review or take the place of it. This will be left to the discretion of conditions of classes as it is deemed best.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DEC. 14, 1910.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are coming in fairly well, but we wish a few more would remember us right away, as a little extra is need at this season of the year. We wish to thank all for the favors sent.

SINCE our last issue Mrs. Eddy, the founder and leader of the "Christian Science" fad, has died. Of course her followers do not think she is dead, but from what was published we learn the medical inspector who was called in that report might be legally made, found that a woman ninety years old known as, and declared to be, Mrs. Eddy had died of pneumonia without other attention than the prayers of her followers She had ceased to breathe, was later placed in a casket, a funeral service was held, and she was placed in a vault awaiting preparation of a permanent tomb. These are the usual things that are done at death, and so we conclude Mrs. Eddy is dead. No leader is appointed to succeed her.

IN looking over some papers we came across the following item, which we give here, and respectfully dedicate to whomsoever it may concern:

"There was somebody who said an unkind word which hurt somebody else. Was it you? There was somebody who found nothing but faults in the belongings of his friend. Was it you? There was somebody who borrowed a book and kept it for months. Was it you? There was somebody who never stopped to think who was hurt by the sarcastic word. Was it you? There was somebody who, day in and day out, never did anything to make anybody else happy. Was it you?"

THE following letter is the sort that gladdens our heart, and not only the heart of the Editor, but the lives of five persons will be made happy during the year to come. May the Father in heaven bless the donors, and may he touch the hearts of others of his dear ones, till means will be provided for all calls.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Find enclosed money order for $5.00 to be used in your Helping Fund. We know of no way that we could use this money for Christmas presents where it would do more good than to send THE RESTITUTION to those who cannot pay for it themselves.

We wish you a happy Christmas, and hope that you will be spared for many years to defend the truth by means of your dear paper.

Your Brother and Sister in Christ,
MR. & MRS. W. E. BYERS.

IN another part of this paper will be found a report of a meeting of five individuals who met at Cleveland, Ohio, on November 29, 1910, and organized a Minister's Association. The object of the association as stated in articles adopted seems on its face to be fair, and if properly handled such an association might be made a power for good. Time will tell what the result will be. What we have to say at this time concerns not the avowed object and aim of the association, but a certain "Whereas" in a resolution passed "unanimously" concerns us, and so we speak.

The Sunday School lessons that we are studying this month tell of a wonderful personage who came into prominence at Jerusalem and the surrounding districts some eighteen hundred years ago. He went about the country preaching to people urging them to forsake their evil ways, turn to God, believe him, obey him. He gathered about him a small company of followers whom he trained to carry forward the work when he should have passed from this present life. He had power from his Father and healed the sick, made blind men see and lame ones walk. Many ills that annoyed people were eradicated by this man. Miracles of various kinds were done that fed the hungry and even raised the dead to life.

However, there lived at the time those who wished to maintain their hold on the people for the sake of position, for wealth, for ease, for fame and honor of man. They made pretense of serving God, but they made merchandise of it. In these days we would call it "commercialism." The preacher of righteousness—of sound doctrine and right living—seeing this spirit manifest, took occasion to denounce it, and told some of the leaders what was in their hearts, and rebuked them severely.

Naturally enough enmity took possession of the hearts of these opposers of the good, and they sought to get rid of him. After repeated attempts and getting no case that would hold in court, they bribed one of his friends to betray him into their hands They took him in an illegal manner, brought him to trial at an illegal hour, sought out false witnesses to make a charge, went through a mock trial and condemned the man to death. The reason we refer to this is not to set up as being persecuted as was Jesus, for we are no more worthy than you are to be compared to him. What we wish to bring out in this one little point. Jesus was before the Jewish Sanhedrin at a time when no friend of his was there to speak in his defence. His trial was purposely held at an unusual hour, so that his friends would have no opportunity, had they been able and wished, to assist him in any way. The point we wish to make is that these good brethren who met at Cleveland, November 29, did not invite to their council any friend of the manager of this paper, but met and made charges, accepted the testimony of witnesses on one side only, and rendered judgment.

Brethren and Sisters, we are living in free America, in an age when almost the world over, a man is given a chance to defend himself in any court. In this country poverty is no bar to justice, for if the accused is not able to hire an advocate, the judge will appoint one for him, and give him every chance to prove his innocence. Moreover, if he be proven technically guilty, if there are any "extenuating circumstances," that tend to palliate or lessen his crime, he is given due credit by the judge, and his punishment is graded accordingly.

Brethren, you who met at Cleveland, with a finished lawyer as one of your number, did you follow this rule of law? This rule that no man shall be accused, tried condemned and punished without being given every possible opportunity to prove his innocence?

We do not care to go into this matter further just now. We have such a degree of confidence in the fairness, and love of justice of the people of God, that before they can generally sanction the contemplated move, they will be willing to hear "the other side." Should there be among the brethren of the Church of God those who are not willing—nay, anxious—to hear both sides, before passing judgment, we will say frankly to you that we do not value such friendship, for it is not worth very much in the brotherly love market.

WELL TO FORGET.

"If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd—
A leader of men marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud
Won'd cause his proud head to in anguish be bowed,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a skeleton hidden away
In a closet, and guarded and kept from the day,
In the dark, and whose showing, whose sudden display
Would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a thing that will darken the joy
Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy,
That will wipe out a smile, or the least way annoy
A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it."

Obituary.

Sister Isabella Marion Douglas, born in New York City, March 10, 1858, died at 16 Shipley St. Woodlawn, Long Island, on Nov. 25, 1910. Sister Douglas was born into a family of believers, her father and mother—John and Marion Donaldson—having left the church of their fathers—the Presbyterian—and after a full confession as to their faith in Jesus the Christ, the Son of the living God, through whom only redemption, salvation and eternal life could be had, were buried in baptism and connected themselves with the branch of "The Church of God," in Glasgow, Scotland, In the fall of the year 1850. Sister Douglas, following the steps of her parents was baptized, and united herself with the brethren in Brooklyn, N w York, about 1873, since which time she has been a consistent follower of the meek and lowly Jesus. Naturally bright and of a patient spirit, she was always ready to give an answer as to her Faith and Hope, and as much as in her power lay, she did good unto all men, and many were the sad hearts occasioned by the news of her death. She has been ill for the past six years with cancer in the stomach and although her sufferings have been great, none ever heard her complain, life was very sweet to her and she greatly desired to live, but as she said, she was willing to abide his time and will.

On January 15, 1879, she was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. E. Douglas, who through her ministrations was brought to a saving knowledge of Christ and was baptized to arise and walk in newness of life. A daughter—Marion Leslie Douglas—was a result of the union, who in turn obeyed and is now a daughter of the King. This daughter, after our return from the cemetery to the home, said to the writer, "As I stood at the side of the grave, I said, I saw my mother die, I now see her being buried, and as sure as I saw these things so surely shall I see her come forth in that glorious resurrection, when Jesus comes to claim [illegible] own." With [illegible] is she's [illegible] not as others who have no hope.

Sister Douglas is mourned by her dear old mother, now in her 83rd year—her husband and daughter, three brothers and two sisters all of whom with their families, are members of THE CHURCH OF GOD IN BROOKLYN, N. Y., and are earnestly looking for, but patiently waiting the return of our Lord from heaven, when the living shall be changed and the dead raised, and all shall again be united in that kingdom promised.

The services were conducted at the residence of the family by Bro. Geo. A. Horn, who spoke to an audience of over 200, in no uncertain sound concerning the things of Christ and his kingdom.

We laid her to rest in the beautiful Cypress Hills Cemetery where she awaits the trumpet call to arise to that life everlasting in the presence of Christ the Lord. For that time we wait and pray.

"Come, Lord Jesus, Come quickly."
"Even so come Lord Jesus." A.

Dear Brother Underwood,

Yesterday was a sad day when we laid to rest my wife and sister in the Lord. Many friends showed the love they had for her, as they knew the life she had led. I will give an outline of our course of life for the forty-four years we have traveled the road of joy.

Amelia Ann Brock was born in the year 1849. Aug. 20, in Devenport, Devonshire, England, removed to London with her parents in 1864. Two years later she was introduced to Geo. Dowle, who shortly afterward made her his happy bride. In March 1872 we decided to emigrate to the United States. She was left in London until her husband tried the country. In April of the same year she arrived at Norwalk, Ohio, where her husband was working for Mr. L. C. Cattell, of Cleveland. A few days after we removed to Newcastle, Pennsylvania, still working for the same party.

While there we attended the Disciple Church, and seeing that baptism was essential for salvation we became members of that body. In about sixteen months we moved to Cleveland, Ohio. Taking our letter of recommendation we joined that body at East Cleveland. In the meantime I had received THE RESTITUTION on Sunday afternoon on returning from meeting after being appointed teacher of a class. I was reading THE RESTITUTION, the subject was Fair Chance after Death. We questioned how that could be, seeing that this is the appointed time for salvation. Knowing that Mr. Cattell took the paper we wished that we could see him and have him explain it to us. I happened to look out of the window and there came Mr. Cattell down the street, so I called him and after we had talked some time he invited us to come to the meetings. We did so on the next Sunday and stayed by it until we had learned the truth and was obedient to the commandment.

In the year 1876 we decided to take a trip to England to carry the good news to our friends, and many through our teaching of the Word were baptized into the all-saving name. Returning again to the United States in 1881, after spending five years in New York and three in Morristown, N. J. we moved to Seattle. After spending 18 years on our homestead we decided three years ago to take another trip to England. We took a seven months vacation and while there we did some work for the Master. While in England we spent two weeks with Brother Cattell.

On our way home we spent some time in Cleveland renewing our acquaintances and making new ones. We had great joy while there.

I cannot speak well for Seattle in regard to the truth. I think the soil is bad, as I have tried to get some fruit fit for the Master's use when he returns.

My beloved wife had been sick over a year, but kept about doing her work until she was at a friend's house who sent for her family doctor and he stated the case to be bad. After an operation she suffered great agony for three weeks. She asked me if I had seen the doctor, and I told her yes. She asked me what he had said, and I told her to prepare for the worst, as there was no hope. She was resigned and bore her sufferings patiently, knowing that her resurrection was sure. I attended her for three weeks, day and night. She was conscious all the time. Her greatest care was for my future welfare. She at all times did everything for me and for my comfort.

She closed her eyes in her last sleep on November 25th, 1910, and she looked very peaceful. I await her awakening at the Master's call.

Brother A. D. Eshelman gave a very able and instructive address in the Chapel, at the grave before an assembly of friends.

Your brother in hope of immortality. Love to all of like precious faith. I am receiving many letters of comfort from the brethren, but cannot answer them now but will in time.

GEO. DOWLE.

Editor Restitution:

Enclosed you will find post office order for two dollars, my subscription for the good old RESTITUTION. We have taken this paper since it started, in all its forms, it must be near fifty years. It is over forty years since we heard a gospel sermon. You remember Brother Lyon—he baptized us. He used to preach in our house. My husband is 83 and I will be 79 in April. He had three brothers in the same faith, but two are dead and one gone with another denomination. We live alone in a small village, where we have five churches, but no gospel of the kingdom teaching. They teach for doctrine the commandments of men. There are none of our faith nearer than Niagara Falls. Oh, how glad we would be if we could get some good smart man to come and preach for a week, but we are not able to pay his expenses, so we have the dear old RESTITUTION to read, and the Bible. There are some books we would like to have, but our means are so limited we cannot get them. I try to have others read the paper, but our relatives are all sectarians.

Your Brother and Sister in hope of eternal life,
MR. & MRS. D. ALGYIRE.

Editor Restitution:

I write a few lines to the grand old RESTITUTION, and send you a new subscriber. I expect to remain at Hagerstown some days yet. This young man is much interested in the truth, and I hope the paper will help him. Oh how much I miss THE RESTITUTION since I came here in October. I did not realize the deprivation of not hearing from brethren and sisters of like precious faith. There is nothing like the communion with those of kindred minds, whose hearts are inspired by an understanding of the Word of life, through which we became heirs to eternal life and glory in the age to come, where there will be no more parting, sickness, sorrow nor death. Our Savior said I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.

There are a few scattered ones of our faith here whose company I enjoy very much, and just before I left my home we all enjoyed a visit from Bro. Lindsay of Illinois. He is quite an able exponent of the Bible, and awakened quite an interest in the community, and many were sorry when he went away.

Yours in hope of the soon coming kingdom,
SARAH F. MORGAN.

Editor Restitution:

Evangelist G. Eldred Marsh, of Oregon, Illinois, visited the Salem Church near Marshall, Illinois, Nov. 22nd, to Dec. 1st. The brethren and friends truly appreciate the instruction and encouragement received from the nine excellent discourses he delivered while here.

A Trip South.

Soon after January 1st, I expect to evangelize in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana. I expect to visit those places I visited two years ago. Should any others desire my services while in their State, please address me at 625 N. Willow Ave. Austin Sta. Chicago, Illinois.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Minutes of Ministerial Meeting.

In response to invitation extended by L. E. Conner, the following ministers of the Church of God met at 1041 Columbia avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, November 29, 1910, for the purpose of organizing a Ministerial Association, and the consideration of such matters as should be presented for their consideration: Joseph Williams of Indiana, F. V. Blakely of Michigan, S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, F. L. Austin of Ontario, and L. E. Conner of Ohio.

The meeting was called to order by L. E. Conner, who made a brief statement of the purpose for which the meeting was called. Joseph Williams was chosen to act as Chairman and F. V. Blakely as Secretary of the meeting.

Motion made and seconded that the meeting resolve itself into a committee of the whole for the purpose of drafting a Constitution upon which to found a permanent organization. Motion carried. After due deliberation the following was presented for consideration:

Article I. This Association shall be known as "The Ministerial Association of the Church of God."

Article II. This Association shall consist of the following ministers of the Church of God, viz: Joseph Williams, F. V. Blakely, S. J. Lindsay, F. L. Austin, and L. E. Conner as charter members, and others who may hereafter become members hereof according to provisions hereinafter made.

Article III. It shall be the purpose of this Association to promote the general edification of its members; to bring the churches and brethren generally into closer union and fellowship, and to prevent as far as possible unbecoming conduct on the part of members of the Church, and dissension, discord and divisions in the Church on account of the agitation of questions to no good purpose.

Article IV. The regular officers of this Association shall be a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, whose duties shall be such as generally devolve upon such officers in similar organizations; and said officers shall constitute an executive board with power to transact business necessary to be transacted when the Association is not in session.

Article V. The officers of this Association shall be elected by ballot, and shall hold their respective offices for the period of one year and until their successors are duly elected.

Article VI. This Association shall hold its regular sessions annually; such sessions to be held in mid-summer, at such time and place as shall be determined by the executive board.

Article VII. Special sessions of this Association may be called by the executive board for the purpose of transacting any unfinished business or new business, upon giving fifteen (15) days' notice in writing to each member of the Association specifying time, place and purpose of such meeting.

Article VIII. Ministers of the Church of God may be admitted to membership in this Association upon declaring themselves to be in harmony with the objects of this Association and subscribing to the Constitution and By-Laws.

Article IX. This Association shall have power to determine when the conduct of any of the members is out of harmony with the principles of the Association, and shall have power, by a two-thirds vote of its members to expel from its membership any member so determined to be out of harmony with its principles.

Article X. A quorum for the transaction of business at the sessions of this Association shall consist of three-fifths of the members of the Association.

Article XI. The fee for membership in this Association shall be two dollars ($2 00) per year for each member, the same to be paid in advance.

Article XII. The Constitution and By-Laws of this Association may be amended at any regular session of the Association by a two-thirds vote of the members, previous notice of such proposed amendment having been given, in writing, with the call for such meeting.

Moved and seconded that the foregoing twelve articles be adopted as the Constitution of this Association. Motion carried.

It was then moved and seconded that we proceed to the election of officers for the ensuing year. Motion carried.

The Chairman then announced that nominations for President were in order. S. J. Lindsay was placed in nomination. Nominations closed. Motion made and seconded that the rules be suspended and the Secretary instructed to cast the unanimous vote of the Association for S. J. Lindsay. Motion carried and Secretary cast vote of Association for S. J. Lindsay for President.

S. J. Lindsay takes the chair and announces nominations for Vice President in order. Joseph Williams placed in nomination for Vice President. Nominations closed. Moved and seconded that rules be suspended and Secretary instructed to cast unanimous vote of Association for Joseph Williams. Motion carried and Secretary casts vote for Joseph Williams accordingly.

President announces nominations for Secretary-Treasurer are in order. L. E. Conner placed in nomination. Nominations closed. Moved and seconded that rules be suspended and Secretary instructed to cast unanimous vote of Association for L. E. Conner. Motion carried and vote cast accordingly.

Upon motion the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It is a well recognized fact that a favorably received publication is one of the best means to insure the success of any cause; and whereas, so large a proportion of the members of the Church of God have lost confidence in the management of the paper so long recognized as the official organ of the Church of God as greatly to hinder the cause of truth and impair ministerial and evangelistic effort:

Therefore, be it resolved, That this Association hereby recommend the organization of a stock company for the purpose of publishing a weekly paper which shall meet the requirements of a true church organ.

Resolved, That this Association heartily commend the formulation and distribution of concise statements of the more prominent fundamental doctrines of the Church of God for the enlightenment of others; but accept the Bible in its entirety, and the Bible only, as the standard by which the faith and conduct of the members of the Church shall be measured and discipline administered.

Moved and seconded that full copies of minutes of this meeting be sent for publication to THE RESTITUTION, Present Truth, Gospel Trumpet, Day Dawn, Last Days, and Bible Thoughts and Talks. Motion carried.

Moved and seconded that S. J. Lindsay be instructed to publish 1000 copies of Bible Thoughts and Talks, containing full minutes of this meeting, for general distribution. Motion carried.

Moved and seconded that we adjourn to meet at the call of the Executive Board. Motion carried.

L. E. CONNER, Sec.

The Visitor.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I have copies of the Second Edition of The Home Department Visitor of 1908 for sale. The proceeds of sale of these goes toward publishing a new issue. The delay in publishing another has been from lack of funds.

These Visitors are especially prepared for Gospel Mission Work. The issue of 1908 is for the Christmas season, when much can be done toward spreading "The Good Tidings of Great Joy." A very little invested in Visitors would send the message of great joy to many homes. Will you help in this work? There are a large number of students from foreign lands in the University of Illinois; from China, Japan, India, Egypt, South America, and the far-off islands. There are fifty students from China. The Visitor will be sent to each of these at the Christmas time. Let us improve these opportunities at our own doors.

Those who wish copies sent to friends send names and address to me. The price of the Visitor is 10 cts a copy; ten copies for 80 cents. Address me at 1009 South Wright Street, Champaign, Illinois.

HARRIETT BOKE.

Dear Restitution:

I see that my time is about out. Another year has passed with its joys and its sorrows, and we are one day nearer the kingdom.

Enclosed you will find post office money order for two dollars to renew subscription to THE RESTITUTION and the rest for the Helping Fund. We could not do without the paper, as it has been a regular weekly visitor for twenty years or more. May it still continue to carry the glad tidings of truth to its many readers.

Your Sister in hope,
ESTHER BURTON.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7,12

The copy for this department of THE RESURRECTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10023 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let us Pray.

AT A FUNERAL.

Oh God, Thou art from Everlasting to everlasting the same. We are the creatures of a moment, here today and gone tomorrow. We are in the presence of death now. O God, he has invaded our circle again and our hearts are sad. We are weary of these sad scenes of sickness and sorrow and sighing and pain and death, and long for the time to come when the Lord of life and glory shall come and arrest the dread destroyer and cause thy dead men to live. To-day as we weep with those who weep, may every one be solemnized, and realize the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death that we may so number our days as to apply our hearts to wisdom.

Eternal God—thou God of love and pity and compassion, we love thee because thou didst not leave rebel man to himself. Graciously didst thou offer him future, glorious, and everlasting life if he would accept thy overtures. Oh was ever love like thine? Thou didst so love the world as to give thine only begotten Son that whosoever believeth into him might not perish but have everlasting life. And amid the sadness of this sad hour we rejoice in hope of Resurrection Life. The Lord deal very tenderly with this afflicted family. Be round about them and underneath them, grant them thy heavenly support. May the thought of a glad reunion at the general assembly comfort them,—may thy precious promises to be a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless be realized, and as their day is so may their strength be. And now oh Father, may we be able to speak thy truth to those who are out of Christ in such a manner that it may sink into their hearts, and spring up and bear fruit to thy glory, and so at last share thy great salvation. We ask all in the name of Jesus thy glorious Son our Savior. Amen.

All names on our free list whom friends have recommended as worthy, have been supplied with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." It is gratifying that not one has thus far been denied. Christmas and the holidays are coming. Just now is an opportune time to "remember the poor." Gal ii 10. We appeal to you again, brethren and sisters, to send us any names of the deserving poor you know who would appreciate and profit by reading our book; we want to supply it to such to the full extent of our ability. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor." Psa xli 1.

From the answers given by the Nebraska Bereans there appears to be a discrepancy in their replies to question number two. All have correctly answered that the word "soul" is applied to the beasts twice in Gen. 1 chapter, except Sister McMillen who says four times. Both answers are correct. The merely English reader can see that "soul" is applied to beasts in verse 20 and 30, and this is all the question meant to bring out. We wanted our Bereans to know that beasts were called souls twice by Moses before man was so called. Nephesh Chayah, "living soul," occurs in fact four times in the chapter, each time applicable to beasts, (see verses 20 21, 24, 30); but this is delving deeper into the subject than we intended. To the confutation of immortal soulism it is enough to know that beasts are called "living souls" twice before man was so called in Gen ii 7; but to know that they are so denominated four times is two times better of course.

The truth understood, believed, and obeyed, is what makes us free from sin and saves us 2 Thes ii 13; Jno viii 32; 1 Pet i 22 The question of all questions, then, is, "What is the truth"? Jno xviii 38. The Bible answers this question. It supplements its answer with the affirmation, "The church of the living God" is the "pillar and ground of the truth". 1 Tim iii 15. If a church is not willing to be a "pillar" for the truth to rest upon; if it will not support "the truth" solidly as the "ground" supports a building, that church is not the church "of the living God!" A very important matter, certainly. Now a question or two as to our duty:

1. Reader, are you willing to learn, believe, and obey "the truth" as it is revealed in the Holy Scriptures? I don't see how you can keep from answering this query with a "Yes."

2. Are you willing to leave your Church, and all other churches, if upon investigation you find they are not "pillars" of the truth as revealed in the Holy Book; and will you cleave to the "church of the living God" so long as you shall live, because it is the "holy ground" where "the truth" dwells and is made welcome? Surely you will have to answer, "Yes," and then add an emphatic, "I will".

You may not say so, but you may feel like saying, "My, what searching questions"! Yes, they are searching. Our dear Lord says, "Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice". Jno xviii 37. And again he says, "He that is of God heareth God's words; ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God." Jno viii 47. These statements of our Lord are very penetrating. They show that if a man is "of the truth" he will listen to Christ's "voice"; but if he is "of God" he will hear "God's Words". Christ uttered "words" when he used his "voice" And these words are recorded in the Blessed Bible.

"The Kingdom of God Is Within You." Luke xvii 21.

A sermon by Robt. G Huggins, preached in the Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 30, 1910, and stenographically reported by Sister Bessie Nichols.

Brethren, Sisters and Friends: The words of our Savior in Luke xvii. 21 have been misunderstood more than perhaps any other words ever uttered by our Lord. Casual readers and superficial students have built upon them the doctrine that the kingdom of God is a present government that when Christ's commandments are heard, believed, and obeyed by a sinner, a "spiritual kingdom" of some kind is set up in his heart. 'The kingdom of God is within you" is too vague and indefinite a statement to make it specifically locate the kingdom in the heart. The text taken at its face value does not intimate such an idea. There are other organs "within" us besides the heart; I could just as easily say that the kingdom is in my lung as in my heart, so far as this text is concerned. In order to elucidate the significance of the passage we ask you to consider that the words

KINGDOM AND KING ARE SOMETIMES USED SYNONYMOUSLY.

They are interchangeably used both in the Bible and in the literature of men. Parkhurst, the lexicographer, after giving the sense of the word kingdom proper, adds that it also signifies "Royalty, royal power, dignity," words that to all intents and purposes are equivalent to the word king. While the word kingdom, then, stands for a government, it also contains within itself the idea of "royalty, royal power, and dignity," or king. Naturally it stands for and represents both kingdom and king. But we have authority in the Bible for regarding these two words as equivalents. In Dan vii 17 we read, "These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth." He does not mean that four beasts represent "four kings" in the personal, individual sense; for in the 22nd verse he explains that the fourth beast represents the "fourth kingdom upon earth." King is used in the 17th verse, kingdom in the 22nd, so the two words plainly interchange. Then in Mark xi 9, 10, we have an instance in which the term "kingdom" is used for "king": "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; blessed is the kingdom of our father David that cometh in the name of the Lord." "He that cometh in the name of the Lord" is equivalent to the "kingdom of our father David that cometh in the name of the Lord." The king (Zech ix 9) is here called "the kingdom." With this thought agrees perfectly our text: "The kingdom of God is within you." The king of Israel was standing before them in the person of Christ. The king, the most conspicuous part of the kingdom, the germ out of which all its other parts are developed, was there present. He represented the kingdom, and in the language of Synecdoche was the kingdom. In the margin you have noticed that "among" is given as an alternate reading for "within." The Revised Version reads, "In your midst." For these different readings I care nothing. "Within" correctly represents the Greek text, and I am satisfied with it. The main thing is to ascertain the meaning of the word. To do this we have to notice the text where it occurs critically. Turning to Luke xvii 20 we find that Christ was demanded "of the Pharisees"—plural notice—"when the kingdom of God should come." Christ is talking to "pharisees." There was a congregation, crowd or circle of people around him. As he was king of Israel he represented the kingdom of God; and as he was standing in their midst, the kingdom was "within" the crowd, congregation, audience. "Within" their hearts—never; for who was he addressing? "The pharisees." What kind of people were they? Their character is divinely delineated by our Lord in Matt xxiii 25: "Woe unto you scribes, pharisees, hypocrites! for you make clean the outside of the cup * * but within they are full of extortion and excess." He who knew what was "in man" (John ii 25) here tells us what was "within" those pharisees. He adds in the 27th verse, that "within" they were "full of dead men's bones, and all uncleanness." Friends, if they were "full" of [illegible] things; there was not much room "within" them for the kingdom of God! A kingdom of grace, a spiritual kingdom of any sort within those abominable pharisees, is a great absurdity. From the 15th verse it appears further to their discredit that they "shut up the kingdom of heaven against men; for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in." They were out of the kingdom themselves, and were trying to keep others from entering it. It is clear from this passage that

II. THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS SOMETHING TO BE ENTERED.

It is not something to enter and possess us, but something we are to go into and possess. 'Unless you are born of water and the Spirit you cannot enter into the kingdom o' God." Gen. iii. 5. 'Ye shall see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God, and ye yourselves thrust out." Luke xiii. 28. The saints are to come from the four points of the compass, "North, south, east, and west," and "sit down in the kingdom of God." Verse 30. The kingdom, in Bible language, is always something to be entered—to be "given" to the saints and "possessed" by them. Dan. vii. 27. 22. "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom," says the apostle Paul, 1 Cor. xv. 5. He proceeds to show them how they as flesh and blood men and women could "inherit" it, a "change" of the living from mortal to immortal nature, and raising the "dead incorruptible," solves this "great mystery." With the dead saints raised incorruptible and the living ones "changed" to immortality "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," the King says to them, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Verse 34 The 46th verse says: "These shall go away into everlasting life:" It follows from this testimony that "inheriting" the kingdom, and going away into "everlasting life" is the same thing, or at least simultaneous events. No one can enter the kingdom without eternal life. Then

III. THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS NOT YET ESTABLISHED.

And our text reflects this idea when closely read. Christ was "demanded of the pharisees when the kingdom of God should come." It was future when this "demand" was made; it had not yet "come." Mark the future tense, "Neither shall they say, Lo here! or lo there" when it comes; why not? Because when it comes "the kingdom of God will be within you," right in your midst—there will be no room for doubt or controversy. "For as the lightning that lighteneth out of one part under heaven; so also shall the Son of Man be in his day." Verse 24. When the Son of Man comes in his glory and sits on his throne (Matt. xxv. 31,) when the righteous go away into everlasting life and inherit the kingdom, when the kingdom is ushered in with the publicity of the lightenings flash, there will be no room for deceivers of his secret coming to say it is "here" or "there;" it will be "within" us, in the midst of all—recognized and understood by all. God's will done on earth as in heaven (Matt. vi. 10) is sufficient reason of itself that we seek "first the kingdom of God," verse 33 To such the kingdom is to be given, Luke xii. 32 In Luke xix. in the parable of the Nobleman, Christ is represented as going to a "far country." Heaven is here described as a "far country"—not his home. He is only there as a guest, "to receive for himself a kingdom, and return." Notice how the return of Christ and the kingdom are associated in this testimony. It is when the Son of Man comes that he sits on the throne of his glory, Matt. xxv. 31. Since the world began you never heard of a kingdom without a King. Christ the King (v. 34) must return before the kingdom of God has any Head or can be inaugurated. And when it is set up it will be

IV. THE RESTORED KINGDOM OF ISRAEL.

When the Israelites were brought out of Egypt they were organized into a "kingdom of priests." Ex. xix. 6. Moses, the Great Lawgiver, was their first king, Deut. xxxiii. 5. After him followed the reign of the judges, when, according to Judges ix. 16, Abimelech became their second king. Following Abimelech was Saul the disobedient, then David the man after God's own heart, who ruled the whole (12) tribes of Israel. The throne or position of David has been promised to Christ in the words of an angel: "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David." Lk. i. 32. The throne of David passed in some hands of his son Solomon, but Christ is a "greater than Solomon." Matt. xii. 12. Jerusalem the City of this Great King (Matt. v. 35) where David's throne was located will yet be occupied by David's Greater Son. To his disciples he once said, "I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me, that ye may eat and drink in my kingdom, and sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Lk. xxii. 29. The kingdom here spoken of is to be obtained by "appointment;" and the words of our Master are explicit that the kingdom to be enjoyed by his disciples is the position of rulership in the kingdom of Israel with judging prerogatives over the twelve tribes. This is the kingdom Christ preached for three and one-half years before his death. He associated with himself in this proclamation his twelve disciples, and a little later seventy others. After his resurrection he spent forty days in further discourse to his chosen on his life time theme before ascending to heaven, Acts i. 2. Though he did not expect to restore the kingdom then to Israel (v. 6.) and though he knew the times of the Gentiles must pass before that restoration was possible in the divine arrangements, yet we must remember for our comfort that while the Old Testament closes in curses the New opens with blessings. As we read of the sad ending of God's kingdom in Israel let us realize that the blessings of the New Covenant will bring back the kingdom and throne of David in the hands of our Redeemer, and we will be built up in hope and prepared to pray more fervently than ever before, "Thy Kingdom Come." Matt. vi 10.

Gold Dust.

"One makes one's own happiness only by taking care of the happiness of others."

"When we are dead to the enticements of the flesh, we can find time to develop the life of the spirit."

"Letting go the unworthy things that meet us—pretense, worry, discontent and self-seeking,—and taking loyal hold of time, work, present happiness, love, duty, friendship, sorrow and faith, let us so live in all truth as to be an inspiration, strength and blessing to those whose lives are touched by ours."

"While dark storms of human wrath are gathering in our national skies, it is comforting to remember that high above the storm there is One enthroned who "maketh the wrath of man to praise him," and with almighty strength restrains "the remainder of wrath." In God we trust."

"Resurrection—'tis our hope—our [illegible] through life, our hope in death; our hope of eternity; 'tis a glorious hope, for it gladdens, it cheers, it comforts, it sustains, it refreshes, it elevates and quickens the hearts of all who possess it."

ANNA DREW.

Jesus the Son of God.

Jesus Christ is the Son of God or we must deny God himself and creation; for we get the evidence for all from the same source. Just take the Son of God our of the plan of salvation, and what has it got to stand on? The Savior said "He that confesseth me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven; but whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven." 2 Peter ii. and iii. say there shall be false teachers among you who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. 1 John v. 10, "If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater; for this is the witness of God which he hath testified of his Son; he that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself; he that believeth not God hath made him a liar, because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son."

We can find in Psalms, Acts, and Hebrews where God said Jesus was his Son, and that he had begotten him. He never says as much to the angels or to any other created being. Now if we cannot believe what God says about Jesus, we cannot believe very strong in God himself, or in any other teaching of the Bible. When we get the only begotten Son of God out of the Bible, we have got very little hope left of ever receiving eternal life at all. If I did not believe Jesus was begotten of God, I would just throw my old Bible away and say nothing more about it or its teachings. Some times I feel as if the question of the Sonship of Jesus was an improper one to discuss, they who deny it ought not to be noticed at all.

The Nebraska Bereans Commended.

Brother Huggins:

I wish to write a few words of commendation for your work with the Nebraska Bereans. I like your plan of straight-out questions. They are given in a way that the pupil cannot guess the answer and be correct. We read, "It is the glory of Jehovah to conceal a thing; but the honor of kings is to search a matter out." Prov. xxv. 2. I am greatly pleased with the answers to your questions. This method is truly educational. There is very little help to the pupil to have the questions asked and answered. Your plan will enable the pupils to write interesting articles in time. Fill the cistern up and then you can get a good supply of water. A writer or a speaker must know many things and be able to search out others before he can write or speak intelligently. Your plan will develop in time, writers and speakers. Our Father will bless you and your class in seeking after the wisdom that is not of this world. Let us remember that the "wicked will do wickedly, but the wise shall understand." I heartily congratulate you and your class in the work you are doing. May God bless you and make you the means of bringing many into the sheepfold.

Your brother, seeking after the imperishable things.

Transfigured.

MATT. XVII. 2.

That the scene here described was a "vision" (verse 9) of a future reality, instead of being merely a present fact, is shown by the meaning of the word itself,—trans-figure. Trans means over, or across. Trans-Atlantic is across the Atlantic. Transplant is to plant in another place. Transpose is to move across, or change the position of two or more things in reference to each other. Translate is change over or across—as words from one language to another, the same idea in another form; or persons from one place to another, or from one condition to another,—the same person but in another form, as when the corruptible puts on corruption.

So transfigure means to be placed over, in a figure. The reality prefigured—God's glorious kingdom—is now about due, and in its victory will fill the earth with his glory.—J. H. P.

He Commenced on the Section.

The topic for study in the Bible class that night was the last days of Jesus on earth. The plot of the rulers, the treachery of Judas, the last supper the prayer and agony in the garden under the dark olive trees had been talked over and the glistening eyes of the brawny railroad men showed that the story had reached their hearts with its wonderful mystery and pathos.

The men passed out quietly, most of them going down to the coal room to sit until bedtime. When I went out to join them in a friendly game I saw two members of the class engaged in a quiet but earnest conversation, and I soon found that one of them, a simple-minded baggageman, was puzzled by the idea of the sufferings of Jesus. The other, a college man, with more of the teaching power than he knows he has, was trying to make it plain.

"Jesus had to be a man," he said, "so that he might know how we feel and so be able to help us."

Still the idea was beyond the reach of the other.

'I can feel it but I can't understand it."

"Why, you see, Pete, its this way. If some official of the railroad who had got his place by a pull didn't know anything about how things were actually done out on the road, should begin to issue orders, he would probably get all mixed up; but when some fellow who has worked his way up from the ranks gets a high place, he knows what can be done and how to do it. It's just that way with Jesus. He was tempted just as we are, and suffered just as we do, and so now when he is exalted to the chief place in heaven he knows how to help us, and he never gives any orders that we can't carry out."

There was silence for a moment, and the old logging train was thinking deeply. It was a new way to talk religion. It was the Bible put in the terms of his ordinary life. The truth was within his reach.

"Oh, yes, I see it now. He commenced to work on the section, didn't he?"

Part of the Day's Run.

"You make it your business to do a lot of good turns in the course of the day, seems to me young fellow!" remarked a passenger on an up town car to the pleasant faced young conductor who had just patiently helped a particularly helpless old lady to alight safely on the sidewalk.

'Sure!' was the cheerful answer, "Part of the day's run, isn't it?"

"May be, for you!" said the other, "Can't say that it's the regular thing with everybody. But I've happened to ride up and down with you four times to day, and you've gone out of your way to make things a little less rocky for somebody every trip."

"Have to," said the young man briefly. " Don't going out of your way, either. The chances come in your way. Part of the day's run—that's the way I like to look at it."

The little phrase is well worth tucking away for a pocket piece. We do not need to get up in the morning and make any mighty resolutions to do great deeds of kindness or benevolence. What we do need is to fill our minds so full of kind and tender thoughts, that a bubbling impulse of helpfulness will characterize all our day's living. While we are planning to be prompt and punctual and industrious and careful, we want to be sure to add one thing more—the purpose to be helpful. Just take it as a matter of course, as much a regular thing as eating breakfast or going to work or school. Eyes have to be quick and alert to carry out such a purpose. Ears have to be delicately trained till no moan of distress or cry for help shall escape them. One has to stop being absent-minded, which often means selfish-minded, and try for that "heart at leisure from itself" which the poet prayed for; since the chance of helpfulness in any particular instance is a gift so fleeting that the least inattention often loses it forever. On the other hand, one who begins, in ever so small a way, to make it a part of his day's program is quickly and wonderfully rewarded. Every step of his path blossoms thick with opportunities. No "day's run" can be without them. —Annie Burham Bryant.

Patience is the truest sign of courage. Ask old soldiers who have seen real war, and they will tell you that the bravest men, the men who endure best, not in the mere fighting, but in standing still for hours to be mowed down by cannon shot; who were most cheerful and patient in shipwreck starvation and defeat—all those things ten times worse than fighting, ask old soldiers, I say, and they will tell you that the men who showed best in such missions were generally the stillest, meekest men in the whole regiment. That is true fortitude; that is Christ's image; the meekest of men, and the bravest too.

It is not enough for a youth to get sufficient education and special training to enable him to meet the ordinary demands in his career. It is the extraordinary, the unexpected, the emergency, that tests man's caliber, his preparation, his fitness.—Orison S. Marden.

Whoever obeys nature's laws, finds his work crowned with beauty. Obey the law of perfect speech, and you have eloquence; the law of perfect writing, and you have literature; the law of right and wrong, and you have character.—N. D. Hillis.

Today is, for all that we can know, the opportunity and the occasion of our lives. On what we say or what we do today may depend the success and completeness of our entire life struggles.

LOOK. LOOK.

We want a lot of New Subscribers, and with a little effort you can get us one or more. We do not ask you to work for us for nothing, but will pay you for what you do. Here is our offer to you:

For a New Subscriber at the regular rate of $1.50 per year, we will send to any address you name

10 copies of "A Letter to a Friend"
or
One Pound of other Tracts,
or
One-half Pound of Tracts and 5 copies of A Letter to a Friend.

This will enable you to earn a supply of tracts to distribute among your friends, and perhaps start some one on the way to the Kingdom.

LOOK AGAIN, PLEASE!

We have a number of copies of "The Word of the Kingdom" which originally sold at $1.50. This is a work gotten out by Brother John O. Woodruff before he died. Only a few copies remain, and they will make excellent presents. While they last we will mail you one Free, if you will send us

Two New Subscribers.

JUST LOOK AGAIN, PLEASE!

We have on hand some copies of the Emphatic Diaglott. All of our readers know what it is—a word for word translation of the New Testament, by Brother Benjamin Wilson. There is a column with a line of Greek and beneath it the equivalent English words so the reader may know just the word that is used. A very valuable help in Bible study. We will give you one of these books Free if you will send us

Four New Subscribers.

We trust our friends in Canada will remember that the present agreement with the United States forces us to pay extra postage on papers sent to Canada. This compells all publishers to charge 50 cents a year more to the subscribers in that country. This makes our rate to you $2 00 instead of $1 50. We have said before, and now repeat, that if any brother living in Canada thinks we should not add this extra postage, and declines to pay it, send your $1 50 and we will provide THE RESTITUTION to you. We will have no quarrel with a brother about so small a matter.

Christmas Notice.

We wish to inform our many friends who have for so many years remembered the poor with us at Christmas time, that the Chicago Bereans will again this year, send out Christmas baskets to the widowed and the fatherless. Please send offerings to Gertrude Ellis, 3013 Washington Bl'vd, Chicago, Illinois. If sent after Dec. 10 please send to Leila E. Whitehead 5439 Ontario Street, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois. On account of the stress of work for our new Berean lesson books, we neglected giving an account of last Christmas work. We remembered nine families and gave over five dollars in money. Two sisters from Texas sent us a box of dear little dolls, and a brother and sister in Michigan a bundle of woolen mittens and stockings, which found homes without searching far. I wish to emphasize the fact that no names are sent with our baskets. "In His Name" are they given, and to Him ascend the thanks of those whose burdens are thus lightened.

LEILA E WHITEHEAD.

Your Own Business.

"Study to be quiet," that is, study to dismiss all bustle and worry out of your inward life. Study also to "do your own business," and do not try to do the business of other people. A great deal of "creaturely activity" is expended in trying to do other people's business. It is often very hard to "sit still" when we see our friends, according to our ideas, mismanaging matters, and making such dreadful blunders. But the divine order, as it is also the best human order as well, is for each one of us to do our own business, and to refrain from meddling with the business of any one else.—Everyday Religion.

A money miser grows rich by hoarding, but a good man's heart is made richer by giving.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

SOME days ago we mailed statements to a number of our brethren, but all have not yet responded. We wish they would do so quickly. Also hope all who can will remit their renewals without waiting for statement. Most of you know how your stands, and you can save us a large amount of work and outlay by saving us sending notices. Please brethren, attend to this.

WE are authorized to announce the book written by Brother James W. Wilson, on the subject "Will it pay to become a Christian, notice of which was given some time ago, will be out early in December. Those who have not yet made good their pledges, are urged to do so at once. Send to Miss Leila E Whitehead, 5439 Ontario st. Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Further announcement later.

Christmas Presents.

I can conceive of no gift so valuable as that gift which may lead the recipient to receive the gift of eternal life.

From this time up to January 15, I offer Pine Woods Bible Class for $1, which is a reduction of 25c. Student Text Book for 45c. Cunningly Devised Fables for 5c. Will it Pay to Become a Christian? a new book of 96 pages 25c. Address Wm. H. Wilson, 625 North Willow avenue, Austin sta. Chicago, Illinois.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions: and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 300 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good fruit. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 28, 1910. NUMBER 48.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this restoration and establishment of the kingdom of God on earth, with the Christ as King of kings and Lord of lords. The saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the final judgment of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life given through Christ and many other kindred truths. This body is dedicated to the publication and dissemination of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins preparatory to the full glory and endless life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

A Happy New Year.

Just as the turn of the midnight,
When the children are fast asleep,
The first Old Year slips out by herself,
Glad of a chance to be laid on the shelf,
And the New Year takes a peep

At the beautiful world that is waiting
For the hours that he will bring;
For the wonderful things in his paddler's pack;
Weather, all sort. there will be no lack,
And many a marvelous thing.

Flowers, by hosts and armies,
Stars, and sunshine and rain!
The merry times and the sorrowful times,
Quick-step and jingle and dirge and chimes,
And the weaving of joy and pain.

When the children wake in the morning,
Shouting their "Happy New Year,"
The year will be started well on his way,
Swinging along the night his first white day,
With the path before him clear.

Twelve long months for his journey;
Fifty-two weeks of a spell;
At the end of it all he'll step out by himself,
Glad of a chance to be laid on the shelf,
At the stroke on the midnight bell.

—Margaret E. Sangster.

Hail, bright New Year! on untrod path of life
Winds on before our sight;
The future hours, with keen endeavor rife,
Lead up to a height to height.

Hail, glad New Year! we clasp thy clinging hand,
And onward gaily rove
To that blest clime, the happy Rainbow Land
Of golden treasure trove.

Oh! fair New Year, may God his grace bestow
On what the future brings;
Thou best New Year, by Love divine we grow
And reach to better things.

The Old Year dies with all its vain regrets,
Farewell Old Year, bar well.
The New Year dawns with all that Hope begets,
Hail! bright New Year, all Hail!

The Prophetic Word.

We are informed through the sacred writer that no prophecy of Scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old times by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. To Timothy Paul says, All Scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. Jehovah's plan of salvation is found as recorded in the prophetic Word. Adam and Eve were directed to multiply, replenish the earth (fill it with their offspring) subdue it and have dominion. The earth has been beautified for the home of the race The ultimate of this promise was "have dominion." The dominion was every living creature. This dominion was to include the race if Adam should prove faithful. He failed and was not granted universal dominion. Jehovah then provided that one of the race should have dominion not only over the beasts of the field, etc., but over the whole race. Jehovah's plan was not changed because of the failure of the man whom he had created and tried God planned that the earth should be filled with a righteous race. He counted all under sin that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. The basis upon which he would count righteousness was that of belief in the message given. The thing required was the offering of an acceptable sacrifice. The Lord God had offered the first when he clothed them with the skins of animals. Gen iii 21. The fig leaf covering was a human invention and could not cover sin. When the first son was born the mother remembered the promise, that her seed should bruise the head of the serpent's seed, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord, (Heb. scholars say, that "from" is not found in the text) Her faith was that Cain was the one the Lord promised. When another son was born and grown to manhood the two were directed to offer an acceptable sacrifice to Jehovah. The first sacrifice offered was the shedding of animal blood. All future sacrifices were looking forward to the one great sacrifice, that of the Lamb of God. The two sacrifices are prepared alike with the exception of the Lamb. Abel offered the acceptable sacrifice by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts. There was but a slight difference in their sacrifices. Just the offering of the Lamb or the shedding of blood. Each had the lamb. All that the Lord required was taking it from the fold and slaying it. Cain in his anger slew his brother hoping no doubt to receive the excellency. By my own might will I accomplish it Slay the old man of the flesh.

This haughty son of the race was soon taught that his iniquity was greater than could be forgiven him Gen iv 13. (Marg. rend) He was driven from the presence of Jehovah. Under these conditions no acceptable sacrifice could be offered as there was not one righteous one to offer it. Another son is born and his name is called Seth which means appointed. The mother said, God hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel whom Cain slew. Gen iv 25. Seth being instead of Abel was the righteous seed. To him there was born a son; and he called his name Enos. Then began men to call themselves by the name of the Lord. (Marg) Jehovah had produced a righteous seed by whom sacrifices could be offered. By selecting and proving for the following four thousand years Jehovah produced in the Christ the one perfect sacrifice. To which all previous sacrifices pointed. No sacrifice was acceptable to Jehovah without faith in the seed promised to Eve and the slaying of the animal. The race soon departed from the faith In the days of Noah there was but one preacher of righteousness and by preparing the ark as Jehovah directed he condemned the world and it was destroyed. After the flood the rainbow promise was given to the offspring of Noah. It was soon forgotten and men began to build a tower, and confusion of tongues followed.

Had men have heeded the prophetic Word they would have been the recipients of many temporal and spiritual blessings. When Israel was delivered from Egyptian bondage Jehovah promised to make them a peculiar treasure to himself. He would withhold no good thing from them. They were to be proven as a nation. History verifies the fact that they failed, but for the few faithful ones and his name's sake he would not destroy them as a nation. It is recorded (1 Kings viii 8). There hath not failed one Word of all his good promise by the hand of Moses. The righteous are promised the inheritance To become righteous we must be righteous doers. No man can be counted righteous without the faith of God or the faith of Christ. The faith of God relates to his dealings with the race since the offering by righteous Abel. The future cosmos will be placed under the reign of Jehovah's Christ and his saints. This will be the final effort to cleanse the race of sin and the earth from the curse. Those who survive the trials of that age will be made righteous subjects in the kingdom promised. In the ages to come rulers and subjects will alike be made immortal Then will the earth be filled with Jehovah's glory. Be it so.

Destiny of the Wicked.

In these days we hear and read a great deal about the mercy of God, and the possibilities of the human race, and that if the sinner has not had the opportunity through adverse circumstances to learn the truth and be saved, he will have an opportunity under much more favorable circumstances in the age to come.

We agree that God is merciful and we thank and praise his holy name, and we believe it proper to be merciful, because they that are merciful shall obtain mercy.

God is merciful to the sinner in that he allows the wicked to live when they often deserve the punishment of immediate death While living they have an opportunity to be saved if they will hear his voice.

In 2 Cor. vi 2, we read, "Behold now is the day of salvation," and in Psalms xcv 7 "Today if ye hear his voice." Hence it is a dangerous doctrine that teaches an opportunity for the sinner of this age to gain eternal life in a future age, unless he repents now.

Let us examine a passage often quoted. I refer to 1 Tim iv 10. which reads, "For therefore, we both labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God who is the savior of all men, especially of those that believe." Referring to the Diaglott we find that the word "savior" is translated "preserver" which is a better rendering. The apostle does not mean that all men are to be saved but that God's watchful eye is over all. He gives us the seasons, the rains and the crops, and many other blessings, which fall on the just and the unjust. He is a preserver of mankind But it is not His intention to bestow everlasting life on all, as some seem to think.

That those out of Christ have no hope, we learn in 1 Thess iv 13, "But I would not have you to be ignorant brethren concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope."

It is not necessary to hedespeak a wicked in order to be without hope just be alien from the commonwealth of Israel, and the covenants of promise and we are without God, and therefore without hope in the world. See Eph ii 11.

The wicked having no hope, what will be the outcome? What is the destiny? In 1st Sam ii 9 we read, "He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness." Job xxi 30, "The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction." Psalm xcv 5, "Thou hast rebuked the heathen, thou hast destroyed the wicked, thou hast put out their name for ever and ever." Psalms xi 6, "Upon the wicked he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone and an horrible tempest, this shall be the portion of their cup." Psalms xxxvii 10, "For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be, yea thou shalt diligently consider his place and it shall not be." Psalms xxxvii 20, "But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs, they shall consume, into smoke shall they consume away." Psalms cxix 119, "Thou puttest away all the wicked of the earth like dross." Proverbs ii 22, "But the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and transgressors shall be rooted out of it." Proverbs x 25, "As the whirlwind passeth so is the wicked no more." Mal iv 1, 3, "Ye shall tread down the wicked, for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet." Job xxxvi 6, "He preserveth not the life of the wicked." This is in contrast with the life of the saints. "Your life is hid with Christ in God." Col iii 3

Psalms xxxvii 28, "The seed the wicked shall be cut off." Exodus xxxii 33, "Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book." Psalms ix 17, "The wicked shall be turned into hell (the grave) and all the nations that forget God."

Many other passages could be quoted but these ought to be sufficient to answer the query, What is the destiny of the wicked?

I believe there are all classes of wicked persons represented in these verses, but we can find no hope for any of the wicked.

They are to be blotted out, to be cut off, preserved not, ashes under the feet of the saints, to be trodden down, to pass away like a whirlwind, to be rooted out of the earth, they shall be put away like dross, shall consume away into smoke, the wicked shall not be, their name shall be put out for ever and and ever, reserved to the day of destruction, shall be turned into the grave.

God's attitude towards the wicked does not change. He is the same yesterday, today, and forever. He cannot tolerate sin.

The wicked are without God, and have no hope and doomed to everlasting destruction.

Dear reader, if you have not taken on the sin covering name of Jesus, do not delay, tomorrow may be too late. Do not wait for a chance beyond this life, it will not be granted.

Yours looking for the Blessed Hope,
J. C. Thompson.

Table Talk.

2 THESSALONIANS ii. 13-15.

"But we are bound to give thanks, always to God for you, brethren beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the spirit, and belief of the truth. Whereunto he called you by our gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word or epistle."

We, brethren, have cause to give thanks always to God because we are the called according to his purpose. We can realize the power of the gospel unto salvation, and can appreciate the love of God to us ward that we may have the privilege of being his chosen people, if we continue steadfast in the one gospel with the one hope and the one faith.

When we try to grasp the magnitude of God's love for us we simply are overcome with the greatness of it and can only realize our own littleness as we realize God's greatness.

What are we that God the Mighty One, the All Powerful One should provide us with all the things we have to use to maintain life and use for our pleasure?

It seems from our actions when we stop to think of all we have, and know that God furnishes all, and then to look at ourselves and what we do that we do not appreciate, any thing that God has done for us. Then consider our weaknesses and our infirmities and we once more realize that we are naught.

We can be more to and do more for God by doing more to spread the gospel, the gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to every one who believes and obeys it.

If we cannot spread his gospel by our verbal and written efforts, then we can by our lives to those who see us each day, and by our finances to those who cannot see our daily lives If we are called through the gospel then we must do our part to spread the gospel so that others may be able to lay hold upon it and be called out too We know our condition before the gospel was preached to us and for fear we have forgotten it I will quote it to you. Eph. ii. 11, "Wherefore remember, that ye being in times past Gentiles in the flesh, that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world."

That was the condition of every one who still have not been added unto the one faith.

Think of the great change which has taken place with each of us because of our obeying it. "But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ." "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone."

"Now our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God, even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and good hope through grace, comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every good word and work."

P. L Morton.

An Admonition.

Dear brothers and sisters of the Household of Faith: I don't feel capable of giving advice, but as it comes from the Word of God, I do not hesitate giving it. To the person who is trying to be a Christian, and not merely wading along, or drifting with the tide, should take heed to this. In studying the Scripture we find some instructions for us to follow.

To begin with, let us read the 4th chapter of Eph. In the first verse it leaves the impression that the person who is serving the Lord, as the Christian, is called out from the world And it is a worthy calling, to be called by the Lord. So let us conduct ourselves with all lowliness, and meekness, not being puffed up by our knowledge. Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth.

Then by being called we shall be according to our calling. Being puffed by love, instead of puffed up by our knowledge Another thing which we need to follow is "peace," and endeavor to keep in the bonds of peace. For we read in Heb xii 14, "Follow peace with all men, and holiness without which no man shall see the Lord." Here we find it necessary to follow after peace and holiness both, in order to see the Lord. Let us have our conversation as it becometh the gospel of Christ, and stand fast in one spirit, and one mind, striving together for the faith of the gospel, not being frightened by those who oppose us; for it is written, "Seeing it is a righteous thing with God, to recompense tribulation to them who trouble you; and to you who are troubled, rest with us when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels."

A Christian, to believe on Christ, must also suffer with him. Now let us turn to Phil. i. 2-4 Does it become a Christian to strive?

We read here, Let nothing be done through strife, or vain glory. Yet there is one thing to strive for, which is "The Faith of the Gospel."

Furthermore, we should not labor for self alone, but Rom. xv. 2, says, "Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good to edification." To the neighbor good, but I our edification; and Rom. xiv. 19. says, Let us follow after things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another.

We find some more instructions in 1st Peter iv 3-19 Also v. 2, 3, 6-8 If we stay in a sober condition and watch, we will be able to stand all the sharp cuts given us; but if we go around with our eyes shut and don't watch, the devil is after us such persons, and he will get them too. For he is seeking whom he may devour; and if it isn't that class of people, who is it?

If a man of the world follows after the things of the world, the world pays no heed to it; but if a Christian goes aside, then there will be remarks The world will say, "Why he says he is a Christian, but I can't see that he is any better than I." A Christian don't have to get up before the world and say, I am a Christian; but "by their fruits, ye shall know them."

If we are the children of the day, we are not of the night, nor darkness. Therefore let us not sleep as others do. "Not be drones."

But we must watch and work, and be in a sober condition, ready to meet things as they come to us all through life.

1st Thess. v. 7, 8, says, "They that sleep sleep in the night, and they that are drunken are drunken in the night But let us, who are of the day be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith, and love, and for an helmet, the hope of salvation." If we have this shield, we will be able to stand.

Now let us read 1st John ii 2 8 "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is—more— very one that has this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure"

A short time ago I was in a small town, and went to church, it being Sunday morning, and I noticed some of the brethren using tobacco, chewing, and smoking. It also happened to be communion with them, and I just wondered, as I saw them partake of the Lord's cup, if they thought tobacco and the blood of Christ made a good mix ure? Does that combination make us pure, even as he is pure? But a new spirit is to be put in the place of the flesh. Therefore it becomes necessary for us to be spiritually minded, and not carnal, and to watch for the Lord's coming. "Watch ye therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come" Matt. xxiv. 42

"Take ye heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is; for the Son of Man is [illegible] journey, [illegible] and to every man his work, and commandeth the porter to watch Watch ye therefore, for ye know not when the Master of the house cometh; at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning, lest coming suddenly, he find you sleeping, and what I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch." Matt. xiii 33 37.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
Ben H Carpenter.

Report of Meeting.

We were even more pleased than surprised to receive word from Bro. L. E. Conner, of Cleveland, Ohio, that he would be with us, at Moriah, Ill., over Sunday, December 11, as he was enroute through this part of the state.

He delivered three most profitable and edifying discourses; on Saturday evening speaking from Ephesians vi "concerning the Christian armor;" on Sunday morning on the Resurrection and its import to the human family; and on Sunday night beautifully portrayed the Coming of our Lord and Savior.

Such services do us good, being a flock without a shepherd, and we do enjoy hearing the truth in its purity. While we have the silent messengers, the Spirit, viz the Word of God at all times to guide us and Jesus Christ as the source of counsel, yet we feel the need of exhortations and encouraging words of the ministering brethren, as the churches of old. They needed the word and admonitions of their beloved Paul, Timothy and the faithful ones. These come as refreshing showers to us.

It is sad as to say we had good attendance and most attentive as Bro Conner portrays the esteem of the people here, with the exception of one of the Church. They do not receive the truth presented or are too [illegible] to accept it.

May all ministers of the truth be abundantly blest and kept by the power of God in true hope and trust.

Mrs C W Weaver, Sec'y.

Editor Restitution:

You will find enclosed Money Order to pay my subscription on the paper that is past due, and on up to March 1911.

This has been neglect on my part which I will try to not let happen again. I can't very well get along without it. When I began to take your paper I was a member of the Christian Church; but through The Restitution and the Bible I have learned that Christ's kingdom has never been set up as yet; but is to the future. I have also learned what the true gospel of the kingdom consists of. I have withdrawn from the Christian Church, and with the help that I can receive from and through The Restitution and the kind brothers who write so ably for the paper, I will try to live and walk in newness of life.

If I am never permitted to meet any of the brethren of like precious faith, I shall try to live in such a way that I may have an entrance into his coming kingdom.

Very truly yours,
Wm Burchard.

Dear Bro Underwood:

You will find enclosed three dollars to renew for another year, the subscription to The Restitution to the following addresses.

I am still watching and waiting for the return of our Lord from heaven, and I begin to think I must fall asleep ere he comes, but it will not matter, for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep what I have committed unto him against that day."

May peace and the peace of God be with you

Your hope,
A. S. Miller.

UNDERWOOD, OFFICE EDITOR

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH B. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA. DEC 28, 1910.

WE wish to again thank our friends for the many words of encouragement that come to us, and for the substantial support given THE RESTITUTION. We certainly appreciate your kindness, and shall endeavor to so live and conduct the paper as to merit your favor, and finally gain the approval of our Master

ON December 21, 1910, an accident occurred on a train coming east from Chicago by which a mail car was de- [illegible] all the mail that [illegible] sorted [illegible] ination. [illegible] ry is at Eldridge, partly burned, but we were able to make it out. There may have been other mail that was entirely consumed on that car, so if any western friends do not get their order filled, it may be letters were lost in the way.

SHOULD there be any Brother or Sister who think they have been treated unfairly by this office, and not given proper credit for what was sent, if he can kindly inform us of the case, we will be very glad to correct any error we may have made. We realize that we, like others, are liable to make mistakes. We are human. All we can do is to correct an error that we make, and that much we do cheerfully, always giving the person who claims the error the final word, even though they be unable to furnish proof of what they claim. Not a single claim made in years has been ignored when presented to us for consideration. With this as our method of dealing we feel well satisfied and shall continue to follow it up.

WITH this issue of our paper we complete the Volume that is numbered Forty-nine. With the next issue we shall enter upon a new year. What has been done in the past year is done. We cannot change the history. The opportunities we had for doing good, if not taken these are passed, and will come to us no more. The duties we shirked and did not do will be testimony against us. The only recourse we have left is to redouble our diligence for the coming year, or that portion of it that we may be spared to live out. For ourself we shall do the best we can to make our life what God will approve. We can do no great things, and God will not require what it is impossible to accomplish with the small ability we possess. We wish all our brethren and friends a Happy New Year, and state that with God's blessing we shall press on in our work and make THE RESTITUTION worthy of your support and confidence.

Wanted.

In a "Declaration of Principles and Constitution" of the "Indiana State Conference of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith," that was adopted at the Annual Meeting held at Argos, September 10, 1836, (and which has never been rescinded or changed to this day) we find among the adopted principles one reading as follows: "We believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

In the "Constitution and By Laws of the Church of God of Plymouth, Indiana," adopted January 6 1898, (and which no action of that Church has ever changed) we find in Article 2 the following: "The Church of God at Plymouth, Indiana, believes that Jesus the Christ is the only begotten Son of God."

In the proceedings of the Indiana State Conference held last June at old Antioch—that old house whose walls have echoed so many sermons from noble brethren long since gone to rest, among whom we may mention Brothers Hugh Barnhill, S. A. Chaplin, J. S. Hatch, Richard Corbaley, Ralph Carter, J. M Stephenson, John L. Wince, and a host of others good and true both dead and living—at old Antioch the following was offered and carried without a dissenting voice: "Resolved That we, the State Conference of the State of Indiana, in Conference assembled this 11th day of June, 1910, do believe that Jesus is the only begotten Son of God."

"Resolved, That this Conference is opposed to legalism in the sense that the Church is called upon to keep the Seventh Day Sabbath."

We wish to state that Brother S. A. Chaplin, when Editor of THE RESTITUTION, became so bitter and so intense in his opposition to a certain leader of the theory of the human paternity of Jesus, that he would not even read communications sent him; nay more, would not even cast them into his waste basket, but would deliberately walk to the stove and consign them to the flames, and walk away with the firm determination depicted on his face that he had once more shown respect to his Lord and Savior, in that he had thus rid the earth of something that was an insult to the Christ, the Anointed of God Brethren, please remember this, and take it to heart, all you who revere the memory of Brother Chaplin, he was a most intolerent foe to those who held to any theory that had the least smack of the human paternity idea.

Were he here today can you imagine what he would say to those brethren who very leniently say to tolerate those who teach this and other theories, urging that nothing be done to hurt their feelings, and claiming that such have a right to teach such views if they wish?

What would he say of the minister who held that we have "no right to judge another man's conscience," and therefore should tolerate those who teach this theory—what would Bro. Chaplin think of such ministers coming to the State of Indiana and working among our people, holding such "liberal" ideas, right in the face of the above noted emphatic action of our Conference?

There is not a Brother or Sister who ever knew Brother Chaplin either personally or by his pen, but what knows full well that he would denounce such from the very housetops.

Brethren, we are living in a very critical period of the world's history, and right now we need a few more like Brother Chaplin.

During the ministry of Jesus when here on earth, various questionings and doubts came to his mind, much as other men since then have had misgivings and doubts. On one occasion Jesus gave vent to his mind in this way "Nevertheless, when the Son of Man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" The Diaglott says "this belief on the land."

Just now this question is prominent in the minds of many of our best brethren, and we say again, in view of the crisis we have reached—not the crisis of the "management of THE RESTITUTION" but the crisis the Church of the Living God has reached, the crisis that the true faith is now passing through, yes in view of this we do sadly need a few of the stalwart sort like our lamented Brother Chaplin, who was not afraid to stand in defence of the honor of his Lord.

Which way shall we look, where shall we find a few such strong men? Surely not among those who advise leniency to the opposers of the truth of God. Where then?

ON occasions part of a private letter may be given publicity and not be considered a betrayal. Hence we give an extract herewith:

Dear Brother Underwood:

Congratulations to you and Brother McCrory for the appropriate words to the "Sanhedrim" that met November 20, and pompously announced the destiny of the manager of THE RESTITUTION and also of THE RESTITUTION. If that announcement has affected each believer as it has myself, no stronger chain could have been forged to bind us all to work for the support of the paper that has had the moral courage to uphold the cause of Christ and rebuke schismatics. If I could treat the subject as courteously as you and Brother McCrory have, I should like to express myself in regard to the matter, but as your vindication will be ready soon, perhaps I had better wait. The movement is not only bold as a scheme, but shows the deepest ingratitude.

I say to each subscriber in this critical moment, the words of the brave Captain Lawrence—"Don't give up the ship."

With earnest desire that you will secure an overwhelming majority who will rally to the support of God's truth, I remain as ever,

Yours in the Blessed Hope,
J. F. WAGONER.

Editor Restitution:

I enclose Post-office money order for $1. 50. Please renew my subscription to THE RESTITUTION for one year, as time is most out. J. W. Sissle is not able to read it himself as his health is very poor. His family are always interested in the paper.

Wishing all the readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

An aged brother in Christ,
J. W. SISSLE.

Sunday School Lesson.

JANUARY 8, 1911.

Jeroboam makes idols for Israel to worship. 1 Kings xii. 25 to xiii. 6.

In this lesson we have Jeroboam who was made king of the northern kingdom after the division, seeking to establish worshiping places for the people, as he realized that if they all went to Jerusalem to worship God, they would soon be again united in one kingdom, and he would be killed. His scheme was to select two places, one at Bethel only twelve miles from Jerusalem, near his southern boundary, and one at Dan near his north boundary, both of which had been ancient places for worship, and there he set up his golden calves, and established altars for worship where the people were instructed to gather at times that he decided in his own mind.

In the study of this lesson it will be found that if the children of Israel, the chosen people of God, had only obeyed him, and been united in their service to him, he would have made them a strong kingdom that could not have been broken by other peoples. It was then and is now disobedience that causes such wrecks.

Alliances that Solomon had made were broken off, and friends became enemies. Idolatry was substituted for the true worship, and civilization was set back instead of forward.

What God wanted was an obedient, true hearted people, who would do his will, and through such a medium was the world to be transformed and become a universal kingdom worshiping and serving God. The selection of this nation to be used for this purpose was made, but here we find them quarreling among themselves, broken up, with idolatry in their midst, a prey to the nations round about them.

Jeroboam the first king of the northern kingdom, was not of a royal line, but was one of the common people, though possessed of great ability. He had business capacity, and was a natural leader of men. He had been told by a prophet of God that he should be king over the ten tribes, and that he and his family would be a reigning family. However, there was a provision to this promise. If "thou wilt hearken unto all that I command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do that is right in my sight, to keep my statutes and my commandments as David my servant did."

Where Jeroboam made his mistake was like many in our day do. He took the matter in his own hands and started a rebellion against Solomon, and was banished to Egypt, returning when Solomon died and Rehoboam assumed the reign.

To Jeroboam was given an opportunity. The land was rich, the people were energetic and forceful, and there was abundant chance for a wise and unselfish ruler to make much of what was placed in his hands. The corruption and oppression that had borne the people down under Solomon, and which Rehoboam would make even heavier, he could lift off the burdened ones. But Jeroboam's opportunity lay in the condition that God had laid down. His commandments must be obeyed, his statutes must be observed. The true religion must be upheld—a religion that had for its basic principle obedience to God. This alone could make a united people, and secure success of the plan.

What did Jeroboam do with the opportunity given him? The reading of the lesson section tells of the two idols set up in two different places to keep the people from the true worship. The times were changed, and the whole system of religion changed, priests were created from the lowest classes of people, and every possible effort made to eradicate every element of the true worship. Every bad thing imaginable was substituted under the name of good things. Again it is proved that "good intention will not help a man on his way, if he takes the wrong road."

Jeroboam's sin was disobedience, and the necessity of obedience is the lesson to be impressed as we study this narrative. George Eliot said, "Nothing in this world is worth doing wrong for." This is another way of refuting the theory that the "end justifies the means."

My Dear Brethren and Sisters:

Paul tells us in Ephesians vi. 11, to "put on the whole armor of God." Why so, Paul? That we "may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." Yes, Paul in his day saw that it was necessary to have on the whole armor of God if we would be able to withstand and overcome the evil that is in the world. Verse 14 says, "Having your loins girt about with truth."

Yes, dear ones, the TRUTH is what we want, is what we must have and believe and obey if we ever gain eternal life. Again, in the 16th verse, "Above all taking the shield of faith wherewith we shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." Yes, I believe we have to hear the Word of God first, then have faith to believe the precious promises he has made and obey that form of doctrine by being buried with him in baptism, and ever walking a Godly life, as Paul tells us in Titus ii. 12, "That denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world," that as the 13th verse says "We are looking for that Blessed Hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." Yes, let us be able to look further than that. Let us look forth to the time when there will be a thing of the past, when the things we now hope for will be a reality, when Christ Himself will be with us, when the curse that our old earth is groaning under today will be removed. Rev. xxii. 3, when it will blossom and bloom again like the garden of Eden. Isa. xxxv. 1; Ezek. xxxvi. 35. When the knowledge of the Lord will cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. Isa. xi 9; Hab. ii. 14. When one man will not say, Know the Lord, for all shall know me from the least to the greatest. Rom. viii. 11; Jer. xxxi. 34. That is a time I am looking for, longing for and praying for. Let us all be up and doing and strive for that everlasting home with the Master.

Your Sister, looking for the soon coming King.

ETTA DEN-MORE

That Ministerial Association.

I have a letter of inquiry concerning a Ministerial Association of five recently formed. A section of the letter reads as follows;

Brother Wilson:

What do you think of the ministerial association? If there is one formed just among ministers, how is the Church to take action, for I understand the Church is the pillar and the ground of the truth, and all questions are decided by the voice of the Church and not by the ministers. Would it not finally bring about a priest-ridden people? I am asking for your opinion, if you will give it."

You ask "would it not finally bring about a "priest-ridden people?" It seems to me so, as the last part of section 3 reads as follows: "To prevent as far as possible unbecoming conduct on the part of members of the Church, and dissension, discord and divisions in the Church on account of the agitation of questions to no good purpose."

It looks to me like the formation of a Clerical Hierarchy to which the Church must be subservient, as this association assumes in said article 3, to be the regulator of the Church as to conduct, and also to determine the questions the Church shall agitate, as to whether it will be to a good purpose for them to agitate them or not. In my reading of the Scriptures I find the minister must be a servant of the Church, and not a lord over God's heritage. This association assumes the right to be a guide and dictator to the Church, a disciplinarian. See article 9:

"This association shall have power to determine when the conduct of any of the members is out of harmony with the principles of the association, and shall have power, by a two-thirds vote of its members to expel from its membership any member so determined to be out of harmony with its principles."

Were not some of these association preachers at a recent general Conference opposed to a Church Discipline being formed? How is it then, that this clerical association can form a Discipline, vested in the association, by which they shall have power to expel members on a two-thirds vote of this association, but deny this power to the Church?

The Bible makes the Church a disciplinarian, and never an association of ministers (servants of the Church). As to conduct, a final resort must be made to the Church. Matthew xviii. 17 reads; "If he neglect to hear the Church, let him be unto thee (Church) as an heathen man and a publican."

As to doctrine, see 2 John 10: "If there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house (house of God the Church) neither bid him God-speed; for he that biddeth him God-speed is partaker of his evil deeds."

The word "house" here must have reference to the House of God, and not to private homes, because we are told in Hebrews xiii. 2: "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." We are not instructed to sound these "strangers" as to "this doctrine" before entertaining them.

The formation of the association being discussed, seems to be bringing about the prophecy of 1 Peter iv. 16-17: "If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf.....that judgment must begin at the house of God; and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?"

A judgment is a decision which makes a separation. The house of God is certainly being "sifted as wheat" today; a separation is taking place in this sifting out the chaff from the wheat.

The association idea absolutely unscriptural, that it may of a truth be termed chaffy. In the sifting process the chaff and wheat are separated. No person in his senses can suppose chaff to be wheat. "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come," and we are not surprised at the things now happening. In these "last days" let not the "wheat" form any alliance with the "chaff."

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Dear Brother Underwood,

Find herewith an order for which send THE RESTITUTION for 1911 to the person named herein. She is a dear good sister, strong in the faith, but of limited means, and I have loaned her my paper, but she will enjoy having one of her own, and I want mine myself.

I like THE RESTITUTION. It is like one of the family. I can remember it in its infancy in Pa's family back in the fifty's. It is opened as soon as it is brought to the home, and I never fail to find something good in it, real food. I sincerely trust that you may be given strength, courage and means to continue your good work.

Yours hoping to meet the Master in peace. May we all be there.

Mrs. J. W. APPLEYARD.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed $3 50 to pay for the dear old paper another year, and one dollar for the Lord's poor. I am still striving in a feeble way to serve the Lord, but it is hard on all that are isolated as I am, and all such have my kindest sympathy. May God bless them to go on, and may we all meet some bright day on that evergreen shore, is my prayer. My time is not out but I do not want to be too late.

Youre ever watching and waiting for our blessed Lord. With love to all the household of faith, and a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Your sister in Christ,
EMILY COLLETT.

Decisive Moments.

There are moments in the life of every person when some important decision is made, and which may be far-reaching in its results. They are more solemn moments than may be realized by the one who makes the decision. Each one of us has come to a moment when we were called upon to decide the question as to whether or not we would accept eternal life, or reject it. Very many people, in such a moment, have decided that they would wait until another day in which to accept the great gift of God; but it was a most perilous decision, and a most perilous waiting, for never afterward did they have any desire to become a Christian. The unsaved person who says to God, "Go thy way this time, and some other day I will heed thy voice," runs the terrible risk of never having another opportunity to hear God's wooing voice.

The late Prof. T. Harwood Pattison, in his last sermon, said; "The choice which we make decides not only the path we walk, but the end we reach. Pilate, at the only interview he had with Jesus, asked, 'What is truth?' and he waited not for the answer. Probably at that moment he settled his whole future fate. In a darkened room at Damascus, Saul of Tarsus, the young persecutor, sat revolving that very same question. Three days of agonizing thought, three days at the parting of the way. Sunset and evening star saw him still there. Sunrise and noontide found him there yet. Three times the city awoke and went forth to its burden, then home to rest, but Saul did not stir from that point. Then he rose up, and flung the door open, and stepped out in the light, and cried as the sun shone in on his soul, 'For me to live is Christ.' He took the road from which he never turned aside until he reached the last milestone, and in the prospect of the block, could write, 'I have finished my course; I have kept the faith.'"

What a decisive moment in Paul's life that was! It was a decision which has resulted in vastly more good to humanity than can ever be described. Weigh well your decisions.—C. H. Wetherbe.

Heroism at Home.

How useless our lives do seem to us sometimes. How we long for an opportunity to perform some great action. We become tired of the routine of home life, and imagine we would be far happier in other scenes. We forget that the world bestows no title so noble as a father, mother, sister or brother. In the sacred precincts of home we have many chances of heroism. The daily acts of self-denial for the good of a loved one; the gentle word of soothing for another's trouble, the care of sick, may all seem as nothing; yet who can tell the good they may accomplish? Our slightest word may have an influence over another for good or evil. We are daily sowing the seed which will bring forth some sort of harvest. Well will it be for us if the harvest shall be one we will be proud to garner. If some one in that dear home can look back in after years, and as he tenderly utters our name say, "Her words and example prepared me for a life of usefulness, to her I owe my present happiness," we may well say, "I have not lived in vain."—National Presbyterian.

One of the most disastrous effects of sin in the soul is that it has made it so difficult for men to believe in love and realize love. How very little this world believes in love! Do a man a kindness and he instantly suspects you of an interested motive. One of the greatest difficulties our God has had in dealing with men is to get them to believe how much he loves them. Not one of us has begun to fathom the love of God. I think it gives our God a joy that hardly anything else gives him when we are able to say that we have known and believed the love that God hath toward us.—G. H. C. Macgregor.

Conformity to the Will of God.

[Concluded from Page Three]

much as the spoiled child, who, because it is not permitted constantly to feed upon confections, pastries, and sweetmeats, but is called by its parent to partake of substantial fare, and sometimes to take that which is bitter, and also to go forth and endure that which is "hard and afflicting," loses confidence in the love and wisdom of its father, and sadly refuses to do his will.

Remember, "he sitteth as a refiner and purifier of silver," whose business it is, not to see that there is no fire to try us, and no dross revealed, but to see that the fire gets not too hot, lest it injure and destroy; nor too cool, lest it do not accomplish its end,—the purification of the heart from all its nature.

Neither is he at a loss for fuel from which to make these purging fires. They come from any and every circumstance around us that is needful to cross our wills; from many little things connected with ourselves, our families, our tenderest friends, and the common business of life, and even from our religious services. He will cause a fire to glow forth, giving us a sense of the cross, mortification, and death, which are necessary to the perfect submission of our wills, and entire acquiescence with God. And if these fiery trials, which are to try you, reveal hidden forms of selfishness and sin, as the lance reveals offensive matter not before seen, "cease lying but deep within, be not disheartened. It is your physician at work wisely, and accomplishing the object of your desire,—a perfect cure. Courage, brother. His soothing encouragement to you is, "After ye have suffered a while, I will strengthen, establish, and perfect you."

Will It Pay to Become a Christian? Is the title to a well written book of 96 pages by Bro ther James W. Wilson. In a clear and convincing manner it sets forth the Christian faith, and answers the question indicated in its title affirmatively. The edition should be taken at once, and put out to work. It is mostly bound in cloth and can be had by addressing W H Wilson at 625 North Willow av. Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois. The price is 25 cents, very low, and within reach of all. Send and get one.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10098 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

New Year.

The years roll past with lightning speed,
God's hand is there, let us give heed:
But He is waiting all unseen,
By unrolled scientists I ween.

Poor little men with all their pride,
Their day is short, they can't abide;
The years roll past, and they are gone,
But God is still upon His throne.

But years are given for work to do,
And earnest workers are too few,
Against the force of greed and sin;
To... work right on, the truth will win.

For years will come, as come they must,
But brings the triumph to the just;
... brings a grand and brighter day,
... wicked men will flee away.

A. WALLACE MASON.

We will be in Salem, Ohio, Jan. 4 to 15, 1911; and will begin a series of meetings in Troy, Ohio, Jan. 14th.

Ministerial Association.

In THE RESTITUTION of Dec. 14, 1910, there appeared the report of a Ministerial Association which was held in this city (Cleveland, Ohio) on Nov. 29th. Readers will wonder what the gathering meant, and why we did not participate in the conclave held in our city. The situation is such that contrary to our desires we are impelled to say as follows:

In Article 3 the "purpose" of the Association is said to be: "To promote the general edification of its members; to bring the churches and brethren generally into closer union and fellowship and to prevent as far as possible unbecoming conduct on the part of members of the Church, and dissension, discord and divisions in the Church on account of the agitation of questions to no good purpose."

A most excellent "purpose" certainly, and we wish it unbounded success. The prayers go will them so far as the "purpose" of the Association is concerned, unless by "the agitation of questions to no good purpose", is meant the divine ownership of Christ, the sufficiency of the gospel to save with out the help of the law, and the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures. With us these questions are living issues, prominent parts of the vital and saving message of God to man. With malice toward none and with love toward all we say that if the design of the Ministerial Association is to rule out these gospel truths as "questions to no good purpose," then the issue between us is clearly drawn, and we must act accordingly. We do not say that such an interpretation represents correctly their meaning, and we have no desire to make out that they wish to relegate these questions of gospel truth to the scrap heap; but judging from the position taken by all the members of the Association who were at the General Conference, Christ's Sonship, the abrogation of the law, and the inspiration of Scripture, are "questions to no good purpose." These were the questions in controversy at the General Conference; and the Secretary of the Ministerial Association got over on the Josephite side of the tent; and while he does not believe their doctrines, he helped them fight against the truth, and he fought against what he himself believed to be the truth. Then the Vice President of the Association did what he could for the errorists, although himself an unbeliever of their errors. And the President of the Ministerial Association (the Association is composed of three officers and two members), with whom we worked two years in Illinois, and who at that time was a more inveterate opponent of Josephites, law observers, and partial inspirationists, than the Editor, and who before the General Conference publicly urged others to go, found it convenient to be busy elsewhere when the meeting convened! We repeat that while we have no desire to put a bad interpretation upon their "purpose" in suppressing the "agitation of questions to no good purpose", we are fearful that there are iron claws under the smooth fur. We learned at the General Conference that people can believe one thing and do another; that preachers can believe the truth and yet fight under the banner of the enemy. While entertaining these apprehensions in the present case no one hopes more ardently than the Editor that they have no foundation in fact.

The meeting and organization of the Association in Cleveland, Ohio, was unsatisfactory and unfortunate for several reasons.

I. Ohio has more ministers than any state or province in North America. These proclaimers of God's Word were deliberately snubbed—not one received an invitation to the Ministerial Meeting called to convene in their state.

II. The Church of God in this city, of which we are pastor, has the largest resident membership of any church in the United States or Canada. Instead of the Association convening with the Church of God in this city, the largest and among the oldest, if not the oldest in the state, they assembled with a daughter of the Mother Church—a daughter who has been so turbulent, factious and disobedient to her mother that, rather than submit to her discipline, she left home and began to keep house for herself (1 John ii 19; Jude 19); who is not in fellowship with her mother, nor the Ohio Conference; and who belongs to no Conference in the world.

III. The Editor is acquainted with all the members of the Association, and holds them in highest esteem. They came to the City, and their business "transacted," and departed. Only by the kindness of Correspondents in Indiana and Illinois did we know they were to be in the city. Their deliberations were held within ten minutes' walk of our parsonage. Telephone facilities were at hand. We were recovering from a surgical operation when they were here; and though they were almost within a stone's throw of our home, not one of them called or even telephoned.

IV. The Association passed a resolution that they had "lost confidence" in the management of THE RESTITUTION, and "resolved" to start another paper. Unfortunately Bro. Underwood was not invited to the meeting to face the charges they made against him. He was given no chance to explain anything that had shattered their "confidence" in him. Condemned unheard, they say in a resolution "unanimously adopted" that they have "lost confidence" in him without even stating their reasons, thus heading off any reply to their charge. A specific charge can be met by argument or confession; but a general charge cannot be denied nor confessed. Following hard on the heels of this premature condemnation, "it was moved and seconded that full copies of the minutes of this meeting be sent for publication to THE RESTITUTION." Brother Underwood was "unanimously" condemned in his absence upon charges not stated. Of course the next move was to logically and consistently, (?) ask him to publish his own condemnation to the four winds; for as the Ministerial Association of five members decreed!

Brethren, this is all wrong. If there are dissatisfied brethren who do not take THE RESTITUTION, and you can publish a paper that will suit them, by all means get your paper a going. These brethren do not take THE RESTITUTION anyway, so you can carry on your work without hurting any one. Instead of being destructionists become constructionists. This seems not to be your policy; you desire to pull down somebody else to build up yourself. Wrong, brethren, THE RESTITUTION is too old and faithful; its readers are too numerous and loyal to the truth, for a Ministerial Association of five members to overthrow it. Could it be done, would the spirit of Christ and of love be in the doers thereof?

We were told at the General Conference by anti-creed champions that the delegates there who represented state conferences had no power to pass on the questions of Christ's sonship, the sabbath, and the inspiration of Holy Scripture. We had no right to administer discipline to any one for the same reason—the want of power. Yet strangely enough, five ministers met in this city, Nov. 29, 1910, who represented nothing but themselves, formed themselves into a Ministerial Association "with power to transact business" (article 4), and dictated to other ministers the following terms of admission to their society:—Ministers of the Church of God may be admitted to membership in this Association upon declaring themselves to be in harmony with the objects of this Association and subscribing to the Constitution and By-Laws. Article 8.

You must be in harmony with and subscribe to the Constitution and By-laws of the Society to become a member; and once a member you are invited to look at this "big stick" of power held over your head:

This Association shall have power to determine when the conduct of any of its members is out of harmony with the principles of the Association, and shall have power, by a two-thirds vote of its members to expel from its membership any member so determined to be out of harmony with its principles. (Article 9).

Strange, passing strange, is it not reader, that you can belong to the Church of God whether you are "in harmony" with it or not, whether you can "subscribe" to its teachings or not, but not to the Ministerial Association; that while the Church has no power over the faith and discipline of its members, can't "expel" any of them, for the lack of power, the self-constituted Ministerial Association of five members has "power to determine" upon the conduct of its members, and even "power by a two-thirds vote of its members to expel from its membership." A two-thirds vote of five members means that when three and one-third persons have voted your conduct unbecoming, you will be "expelled," so be careful.

With such "power" as this behind the throne it is plainly to be seen that members of the Association will have to walk straight. The very men that had "no power" at the General Conference last summer have suddenly become very powerful.

But the disturbing question is, where did they get all this power? Of course the Bible empowers the Church of God to oversee the faith and conduct of its members. We don't have to form a Ministerial Association to get this power. The formation of this association with disciplinary power shows that such power is wanting in the church; or else the Ministerial Association has more power than the church. How long-suffering heaven is toward erring, contradictory, changeable man.

Relative Importance of Pastors and Evangelists.

Brother Huggins:

Do you think your remarks encouraging to the brethren and sisters of like precious faith who are dispersed through the world? If I understand correctly, you believe it necessary a pastor remain with his flock so as to "graduate them in the high branches of Bible lore," and to keep encouraging them so as not to let them "starve or be torn to pieces by wolves and other wild beasts."

Now let me ask, The "lambs—sheep" mentioned—who are they? Did Christ tell Peter to devote himself to a select community? Ah, no! The word lambs—sheep show, that the whole company of believers were in Jesus' mind at the time. Thank God he did not say, Don't go to the isolated, but go to the larger bodies who can unite and pay for this food.

Here is where we must watch ourselves, for partiality is severely forbidden in the Bible. If our hearts be set upon Christ, we shall want no other shepherd. Why not rely more on his promises? "He is nigh unto all that call on him in truth," he is a thousand times more willing and earnest to do for his sheep than the best shepherd. It is true that the lambs must be fed, sheltered and protected—but, is it possible, can it be true, after all the preaching that has been done, there are not so many as one, two, or three well-instructed brethren in our churches who can feed and shelter the lambs while the minister is out preaching the Good News.

Oh, the shame of it! It seems to me you have exalted the pastors above measure—it is catholicism—the priests do it all—the members are ignorant, can't teach or help to encourage one another just because they have no ministerial certificate.

Are we justified by faith or knowledge? I have confidence in God that if we "ask in faith nothing wavering," he will bestow sufficient knowledge—that is, if we try to help ourselves.

We speak that we know, and testify that, by experience, we get instruction and encouragement from the epistles that were written to the different churches, and not only these, but from books, articles and many good tracts. Ah, let us reach our hands to our invisible but ever present Shepherd, Jesus Christ, who gave himself on our behalf, that he might redeem us from all lawlessness and cleanse for himself a peculiar people devoted to good works. Yes, our Shepherd gave his life to redeem us from death, and if we are faithful he is able to keep us from falling in the time of great darkness. When I realize the great suffering he underwent on our account, it makes me ask myself, What am I doing to advance the cause I profess to love? Alone, we can do but very little, but in "union there is strength"—all things are possible. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Jesus declared this, the "laborers were few," and said, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers." There are thousands upon thousands who have not yet heard the glad tidings of the kingdom.

The Savior's sympathetic heart could not resist the earnest appeal of the "woman of Canaan", so let us have a sympathetic disposition that we too may heed Christ's earnest appeal when he said, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers."

May God help our people to see that there is much work for us to do. If we cannot preach we can all help to send some one who can. "If ye love (only) them which love you, what reward have ye?"

Now Brother Huggins, I mean not to cast a slur. God forbid! I have written my feelings, and you know there is immense relief in telling out of pain

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The above letter from a highly esteemed sister is so full of exhortation to love and good works, in such a good tonic to stir up evangelistic activity, we gladly give it room in Ebenezer. We fervently pray that her burning words of zeal for the evangelistic cause may be blessed of God in warming cold hearts and opening closed purses in spreading the good news of the kingdom in this world of perishing humanity.

In this evangelistic matter, however, let us guard against having zeal without knowledge. Rom. x 2. We would not for our right hand discourage evangelistic work. God knows that our sympathies and prayers are with our poor, underpaid, hard-worked evangelists who are trying to save the people who are perishing for lack of knowledge. But we must not exalt one thing however important it may be, to the elimination of another thing equally, if not more, important. Pastors and Evangelists are both recognized by Bible authority; the only issue is the relative importance of the offices. Because we have said in a former article that pastors were more important than evangelists our sister says: "It seems to me you have exalted pastors above measure." She evidently thinks, and we are sure many of our brethren think, that evangelists should have the precedence over pastors. Precisely the reverse of this is the truth. That this does not exalt pastors "above measure" is clear from the example of Christ who

I began his ministry with his disciples, Matt v 1, 2, and concluded it with forty days of exclusive instruction to his chosen. Acts i 3.

2 The apostles were only copies of the Great Original, and following in his footsteps they always preached the gospel "to the Jew first." Matt x 5, 6; Acts xiii 46; Rom i 16

Such is the "measure" of pastoral importance according to the Divine Standard. If believers get together in large enough bodies there is no reasonable objection to them uniting and paying for their food. They should not want something for nothing. It seems reasonable and scriptural that the sheep should give their shepherd enough "fleece" to keep him from starving and freezing to death. A flock of sheep that begrudge their shepherd what little wool they can spare must be a very unsympathetic, sorry lot; they certainly would think more of their wool than the truth. To suggest that they "want no other shepherd" than Christ is to go against experience and testimony. Christ is "the great shepherd of the sheep," the "chief shepherd"; 1 Pet v 4; but this designation of his supremacy implies "other shepherds" under him as subordinates of the Chief. If Christ is the only shepherd, he could not, from any standpoint rank as chief shepherd. But there are other shepherds under him, which explains the otherwise meaningless statement. 1 Pet v 1, 2; Acts xx 28; Heb xiii 17.

But to return to the question of pastoral importance: "Can it be," asks our sister, "after all the preaching that has been done there are not so many as one, two, three well-instructed brethren in our churches who can feed and shelter the lambs while the minister is out preaching the good news?" To our shame as it was to the shame of the Corinthians, there is not a wise man among us. 1 Cor vi 5. Only in a few of our churches are there two or three brethren able to feed the sheep, and they are found only in churches with pastors, and are indebted to pastoral help for their ability to officiate ecclesiastically. Well-instructed brethren can evangelize better than they can fill the pastoral office in feeding the flock "with knowledge and understanding." Jer iii 15. Philip the deacon, Acts vi 5; became Philip the evangelist, (xxi 8), and spread the glad tidings of the kingdom in Samaria (viii 5, 12). He founded churches, but was pastor of none. It took apostles, men who gave themselves continually to prayer and the ministry of the word (Acts vi 4), to follow up his work and perfect (viii 14-17) Only by pastors "over them in the Lord" (1 Thess v 12) to admonish them was it possible to perfect that which was lacking in their faith (1 Thess iii 10).

Such are "well-instructed brethren." Is it not easier to address an audience of ignorant sisters upon the plain elements of gospel truth than to speak to ripe brethren "of full age," with their "senses exercised to discern both good and evil," who demand and are not satisfied with less than a "strong meat" diet? Heb v 14. Surely it requires less ability to tell the "old" story of salvation than to expound the "new" truths of advanced revelation. Matt xiii 52.

Any well-informed brother can put together a dozen stereotyped sermons on the gospel, and go from one place to another and "preach" them; but how few the men of caliber enough to preach continually to the same people—and they an educated people! A sermon on the Trinity to aliens is a "word fitly spoken, and is like apples of gold in pictures of silver" (Prov xxv 11), but this discourse of "well-instructed brethren" would be like trying to teach the alphabet to a college professor! They have left the "principles of the doctrine of Christ" (Heb vi 1) and are among the Wheels of Ezekiel, the Prophetic Dates of Daniel, the Myrtle Trees and Mountains of Brass of Zechariah, the Types of Hebrews, and the four Living Ones, the Twenty-four Elders, the Seven Spirits, Seven Thunders, Seals, Trumpets, Woes, and Plagues of Revelations.

Before a pastor can feed brethren who have attained to this perfection of faith he must be a teacher who is capable of teaching teachers. Along with our evangelistic zeal we must remember the pastor and his better work. Evangelistic work is wholly dependent upon the brotherhood; they support the work. "There are thousands upon thousands who have not yet heard the glad tidings of the Kingdom." Yes, dear sister, and thousands who never will hear it. 2 Tim iv 3, 4; John iii 20; Acts xxviii 26, 27. But must we not have a "sympathetic disposition"? Yes; but the moment our affection becomes "inordinate" it is a sin big enough to shut us out of the Kingdom. Col iii 5. Thousands of people in China never heard the gospel. If they wanted the gospel half as bad as they want opium they would get it. In our zeal to tell the kingdom message to others, let us always remember that if we neglect our own house-hold of faith, and fail to provide for them, we have denied the faith and are worse than infidels. 1 Tim v 8.

Words are leaves; deeds are fruits.

"Will It Pay to Become a Christian?" A 96 page booklet by Bro. Jas. Wilson, published and for sale by Bro. W. H. Wilson, is a neat looking little volume. Its subject matter is good, the reading is plain and interesting. On pages 71, 72, and 73 there are some remarks about the kingdom of God that are open to criticism; but on the whole the book is "straight," and will make a welcome acquisition to the literature of the truth. It ought to have a large circulation. The price as stated by the publisher is "twenty-five cents, or it will be sent free to any one who will agree to loan it to at least two other persons likely to be influenced by its contents." Address W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Conformity to the Will of God.

Would you choose for your happy and everlasting motto, "Holiness," or "Wholeness," to the Lord? Then, first of all, you will dedicate all to him. Not but that all you have is his, and has been from the beginning; but you have not so regarded it. You have taken your portion and gone your way heretofore, wasting your Father's gifts in selfish living. Let all this cease at once; and let it be your language, the language of your heart, "What wilt thou have me to do?" In a word, consecrate all to your heavenly Father. How will you do this? We answer,—Consent and decide that all, whether act, word, thought, desire, or possession, shall be, not as self or men will, but as God wills. This, you say, I have tried to do, again and again. Doubtless you have, and done it acceptably, too. But here you halted; you did not believe. Believe what? you ask. I answer,—The Word of God to you at that point. That word is, that he "accepted" and "received" you. Hear him: "Be ye separate, and I will receive you." You separated yourself, presented yourself, a "living sacrifice," but did not believe on the assurance of his Word that you were accepted. No; you waited for some sign, some sensible manifestation, to come up in your feelings, to assure you that all was received, thus making some preconceived emotion the ground of faith. God does not say faith cometh by feeling joyous, peaceful or otherwise, else you would be right in expecting it to rise and inspire you with faith. Nay; "faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." Therefore, when you consecrate all as well as you are enabled, you have God's Word for the fact that he "receives you." This faith will inspire you with feelings of peace, gladness, and great quiet and power of soul. In God's order faith gives rise to feelings, and the feeling is faith, as you have erroneously supposed. Hence you may take God's Word, and rest upon that. There is no error in this. It is the only way of success, as has been tried and proved by hundreds, after having struggled with this same error.

To illustrate: Suppose the Lord had said in his abiding Word, "If any man will place twelve stones upon the earth, and put a lamb thereon, and burn it to ashes, I will receive him, and be a father unto him, and he shall be my son." Now, I ask, if you should do this, and the lamb be consumed to ashes, would you not have God's Word for your assurance? Yes, as convincingly as if heard audibly from heaven that he "received you."

The Lord has not said this, but he has said: as shown above, that if we "come out from among them and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing, he will receive us." Now, I ask, if we thus do, have we not the testimony of the Spirit, written in the Word, that we are accepted? Do not fall into the common error of separating the letter of the Word from the spirit of the Word. You must, by faith, regard the letter as the testimony and expression of the mind and Spirit of God to you, just as you believe the letter of a friend to be the expression of his mind and spirit. It is through this written Word, directly or indirectly, that the Spirit speaks, testifies or witnesses to us. To regard the Word as a dead letter, is to remain in darkness and unbelief. To faith, "these words are spirit and they are life." Let us then "believe, nothing doubting."

We often make a joyous and glad-some state of mind the only evidence of our acceptance with the Father. This is a very mischievous error. To do this is to make the faith of our acceptance depend upon our emotions or feelings; whereas "the Word" is the only true basis of faith, on compliance with which all the promises become ours. We forget the Word which saith, "If need be, ye are in heaviness;" that our Savior endured this, and yet was just as acceptable to the Father as when his emotion was the opposite. And now, as we are called to "endure hardness," and it is given us to "suffer with Christ," and also to bear some "afflictions for a moment," we must certainly not consider any one state of feeling the only acceptable one. For if, "when need be," we are in heaviness, then heaviness must be felt. If to endure hardness, then hardness must be felt. And if we are to have "afflictions," then we must sometimes feel "afflicted." You therefore see that if you take one class of emotions to be the evidence of your acceptance, when you feel thus your faith in God will abound. But since our feelings necessarily change and vary, as we have seen above, our faith in this case will sometimes be lost, and we fall into consequent weakness and sadness, if not into gloom and total discouragement. Nay, such anchor-ground is too unstable. We need the immovable promise of God, which holds "both sure and steadfast," amid all the varying storms, winds, and rolling billows that come upon us.

The only true test point required of us is in the will. If this be true, if it be in the heart to say, "Thy will be done," we are accepted, let our feelings be what they may; for "where there is a willing mind, it is accepted." Ah! this living by feeling, instead of by faith, has made sad havoc of many a promising disciple. It reverses the order of God, and keeps the soul off its only true and immovable foundation, the promise of the Father. It is being

LOOK. LOOK.

We want a lot of New Subscribers, and with a little effort you can get us one or more. We do not ask you to work for us for nothing, but will pay you for what you do. Here is our offer to you:

For a New Subscriber at the regular rate of $1.50 per year, we will send to any address you name

10 copies of "A Letter to a Friend"

or

One Pound of other Tracts,

or

One-half Pound of Tracts and 5 copies of A Letter to a Friend.

This will enable you to earn a supply of tracts to distribute among your friends, and perhaps start some one on the way to the Kingdom.

LOOK AGAIN, PLEASE!

We have a number of copies of "The Word of the Kingdom" which originally sold at $1.50. This is a work gotten out by Brother John O. Woodruff before he died. Only a few copies remain, and they will make excellent presents. While they last we will mail you one Free, if you will send us

Two New Subscribers.

JUST LOOK AGAIN, PLEASE!

We have on hand some copies of the Emphatic Diaglott. All of our readers known what it is—a word for word translation of the New Testament, by Brother Benjamin Wilson. There is a column with a line of Greek and beneath it the equivalent English words so the reader may know just the word that is used. A very valuable help in Bible study. We will give you one of these books Free if you will send us

Four New Subscribers.

We trust our friends in Canada will remember that the present agreement with the United States forces us to pay extra postage on papers sent to Canada. This compels all publishers to charge 50 cents a year more to the subscribers in that country. This makes our rate to you $2 00 instead of $1 50. We have said before, and now repeat, that if any brother living in Canada thinks we should not add this extra postage, and declines to pay it, send your $1 50 and we will provide THE RESTITUTION to you. We will have no quarrel with a brother about so small a matter.

Christmas Presents.

I can conceive of no gift so valuable as that gift which may lead the recipient to receive the gift of eternal life.

From this time up to January 15, I offer Pine Woods Bible Class for $1, which is a reduction of 25c. Student Text Book for 45c. Cunningly Devised Fables for 5c. Any one desiring pictures of Illinois Bible School or Conference can secure them of the undersigned at 30 cents each for 5 x 7 size, postpaid. Post cards of Bible School 5 cents each or 45 cents per dozen, postpaid. F. V. Blakely, 627 So. Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A Trip South.

Soon after January 1st, I expect to evangelize in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana. I expect to visit those places I visited two years ago. Should any others desire my services while in their State, please address me at 625 N. Willow Ave. Austin Sta. Chicago, Illinois.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

At the Lord's Coming.

Let the blessed hope of the coming of Christ keep us ever on the watch-tower, looking, longing for it, and hasting towards it.

Would that we duly considered our accountability to Christ, who in the day of his appearing will judge the secrets of all hearts. Then we shall each be called on to give an account of his stewardship—an account not only of gifts of understanding and substance, but of daily employment, and of all the minutes of the day. See 1 Cor. iv. 1-6.—Emmanuel's Witness.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

SOME days ago we mailed statements to a number of our brethren, but all have not yet responded. We wish they would do so quickly. Also hope all who can will remit their renewals without waiting for statement. Most of you know how your account stands, and you can save us a large amount of work and outlay by saving us sending notices. Please brethren, attend to this.

The Visitor.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I have copies of the Second Edition of The Home Department Visitor of 1908 for sale. The proceeds of sale of these goes toward publishing a new issue. The delay in publishing another has been from lack of funds.

These Visitors are especially prepared for Gospel Mission Work. The issue of 1908 is for the Christmas season, when much can be done toward spreading "The Good Tidings of Great Joy." A very little invested in Visitors would send the message of great joy to many homes. Will you help in this work? There are a large number of students from foreign lands in the University of Illinois; from China, Japan, India, Egypt, South America, and the far-off islands. There are fifty students from China. The Visitor will be sent to each of these at the Christmas time. Let us improve these opportunities at our own doors.

Those who wish copies sent to friends send names and address to me. The price of the Visitor is 10 cts a copy; ten copies for 80 cents. Address me at 1009 South Wright Street, Champaign, Illinois.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—Its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents. 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O. Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 85 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

BROTHER H. A. Lehman was chosen as Secretary and Treasurer of the Ohio State Conference. A number of the brethren will have business with him, and all such should mark down his address so they will know where to write—address 135 East 11th avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but as a rule may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1 00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by W. J. Jobin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think unworthily will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Consciousness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address W. L. Tomlinson 10837 Orville Ave, N. E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from W. L. Tomlinson, 10837 Orville ave, Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T. J. Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 11, 1911. NUMBER 2.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Love and Duty.

There lives a voice within me, the guest angel of my heart,
And its sweet lispings win me till the tears strikking start;
I persevere—it springeth, like some magic melody,
And evermore it singeth the sweet song of songs to me:
This world is full of beauty as other worlds [illegible]
[illegible] only it might be full of love.

Night's starry tents [illegible] in heavenly evermore,
Morn's bright undulations hour [illegible] as of yore;
But there are thousand hearts around where no bright smile can shine,
And there are million hearts that [illegible] immortal wine.
This world is full of beauty as other worlds above,
And if we did our duty it might be full of love.

Dear God, what hast-ard trampled 'neath this killing crush for gold!
What noble hearts are sapped of love, what spirits low-laid hold!
Yet a merry world it would be, could we see and use,
With its banks that rot for labor and its wealth that wastes use:
This world is full of beauty as other worlds above,
And if we did our duty it might be full of love.

The Evening and the Morning.

There are two great epochs in our world's history; an evening and a morning. The same is true in the great prophetic visions revealed in the Records of Inspiration. While there was an evening to every one of the six days of the world's creation there was none to the seventh day, which closed in outline the whole creation-week, and brings before us the glory of that day when "the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days in the day that the Lord bindeth up the breach of his people, and healeth the stroke of their wound." Isa. xxx. 26.

This is the same picture drawn on the canvas of Zechariah's prophecy. "But it shall be one day which shall be known to the Lord, not day, nor night; but it shall come to pass, that at evening time it shall be light. And it shall be in that day that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea; in summer and in winter shall it be: and the Lord shall be King over all the earth; in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name one." Zech. xiv. 7-9.

The evening shall not throw its shadow over the city when the King in his beauty shall reign—the waters shall flow onward toward the two seas, giving life and health to the places of former desolations. Isaiah in his highest rapture points with graphic words the glory of Zion under the blessed reign of the King of Peace—"Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities; thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down..... but there the glorious Lord will be unto us a place of broad rivers and streams; wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall any gallant ship pass thereby." Isa xxxiii 20-21.

John from the sea girt Isle of Patmos reaches out to the final scene beyond the details of the regeneration and beholds the Eternal City in its final glory. From its throne the waters of life flow out amid the trees of life in the Paradise of God. Old Eden's Garden seems to re-appear, and the curse which so long has blighted our earth, fades away as the [illegible] light and glory of God and the Lamb become the sanctuary for the servants who have passed through the [illegible] into that eternal day wherein there is no night. The great Morning will come. Those who have endured the night of weeping and sorrow, will be ushered into the morning of joy and victory. It was morning when Israel beheld the final overthrow of the Assyrian host. It was morning when the disciples came to the empty tomb of a risen Lord. It will be a morning of radiant skies when the Morning Star rises in the Orient and fills the new world with light. Just before the full orbed sun shall flush the world with Heaven's benedictions of Love and Glory. May it be our victory to awake in the Morning of that completed Redemption in Christ our Lord.

H. V. REED.
